Welcome to the Management Area's Web Site. The MGMT Area is the College of Business Administration's focal point for research, academic course work, non-credit instruction, consulting, and community service in the areas of general management, strategic management, human resource management, international management, and small business management.

The Management Area is committed to:

- Providing students with a first-rate business education at the undergraduate and graduate levels.
- Conducting and disseminating basic and applied research that advances our understanding of issues relevant to the effective management of organizations.
- Creating educational value by delivering an innovative, cutting-edge management curriculum, using both traditional and nontraditional delivery methods.
- Serving the University, the St. Louis business and not-for-profit communities, the citizens of Missouri, and society at large.

MGMT faculty are widely recognized for their excellence in teaching, research, and service by their various constituencies (e.g., students, local business leaders, community organizations, faculty at other universities). During the course of their careers, MGMT faculty have won campus teaching awards, served as editors of professional journals, authored leading textbooks, chaired professional societies, consulted with major corporations, been awarded federal grants, served on community boards and provided thousands of hours of non-compensated community service. We believe that what we learn from our research and our consulting work shapes what we teach in our classes, producing an educational experience that is grounded in what goes on today in business with an eye to business in the future.

MGMT faculty are quite active in interacting with students. For example, numerous students have participated in management-oriented internships under faculty direction. Other students have worked closely with faculty on special projects of mutual interest. Still other students have benefited from working with faculty on projects that were carried out in conjunction with trips to other countries.
