Dear Students and Colleagues,

As a continuation of our ongoing conversation on campus safety, I would like to draw your attention to the current safety initiatives under way at the University of Missouri System.

You may recall that UM System President Tim Wolfe has recently assembled a systemwide task force to conduct a comprehensive review of campus policies, training and procedures concerning the prevention and reporting of sexual assaults and the availability of mental health services. The goal of this task force is to ensure that each UM campus has the necessary resources to prevent and respond to sexual assaults and mental health concerns, and to communicate this important information to the campus community. UMSL’s representative on this task force, Vice Provost Curt Coonrod, has been collecting important information regarding our campus safety efforts, including an inventory of the resources we have available for those who have experienced violence and/or mental health concerns.

Though the UMSL Stalking, Sexual Assault and Intimate Partner Violence Response Protocols – which I described in my last message to you on March 6 – include many of the campus and community resources that are available, I’d like to take this opportunity again to highlight some of the key resources at UMSL:
