

Associate Teaching Professor or Teaching Professor Of English for Academic Purposes

The Department of Anthropology, Sociology and Languages at the University of Missouri-St Louis is seeking a non tenure-track, full-time Associate Teaching Professor or Teaching Professor in EAP, starting January 1, 2014.

The candidate for this position must have at least a Master's degree in TESOL or Applied Linguistics (Ph.D. is preferred) and a minimum of seven years of relevant teaching experience at an accredited four-year institution in the US. The ideal candidate should have second language proficiency as well as experience living overseas. He or she will transition into the rotating role of EAP Coordinator and should have experience administering a university level EAP program. The candidate must be able to demonstrate excellence in teaching intermediate through advanced level courses in reading, writing, grammar, and American English pronunciation, including the use of technology in the classroom. He or she should also demonstrate a record of active and sustained service relevant to TESOL and a teaching career at a university. The normal teaching load is four (3 credit hour) EAP courses per semester, with a reduction for administrative duties such as drafting the EAP course schedule, managing the EAP curriculum, coordinating the summer program, organizing proficiency testing for international students and faculty members, interfacing successfully with campus units that serve international students, and hiring and supervising full and part-time instructors and tutors in the EAP Program.

Salary range is $43,000 to 47,000 annually.

Send letter of application, curriculum vitae, statement of teaching philosophy, and three letters of reference to:

James Karslake
Department of Anthropology, Sociology and Languages
University of Missouri-St. Louis
One University Boulevard
St. Louis, MO 63121

Or e-mail to jkarslake@umsl.edu

Review of applications will begin in late October and will continue until the position is filled.

St. Louis is a vibrant metropolitan area with multiple language communities.
The University of Missouri-St. Louis is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer committed to excellence through diversity.