Map of the World (Down)	map		No apologies are called for in presenting this map with south at the top. The convention of "north-up" was established a few centuries ago because of the use, by northern hemisphere navigators and surveyors, of the northern polar star" Polaris" and the magnetic compass. Indeed, in earlier times east was placed at	g	77

			the top of maps and this was the origin of the term "orientation". After hundreds of years of development, southern lands have no reason to be "below" the northern hemisphere countries.

New State Of The World Atlas And Activities Using The New State Of The World Atlas, The	Atlas, Activity book, resource book	1987/1988/1995	The atlas is full of fascinating and dramatic global maps. These reflect the world through many different perspectives: economic, political, military, ecological and social. A section of notes on the maps provides further commentaries on conditions throughout the world. The activities book is a supplement to the new state of the world atlas and contains lesson plans, activities and reproducible handouts that will help students consider the world from new perspectives.	G	2

			Some of the global issues addressed are: human rights, workers' rights, rich nations vs. poor nations, world trade, the arms race and the global environment. Particularly useful for social studies, current issues, science or foreign language classes.
