Bombay Eunuch	Video, 71 min	2001	"Originally conceived as a film focusing on gender issues, this cinematic investigation of one of India's most secretive subcultures, moves far beyond just gender, and movingly details how ostracized eunuchs, who are unable to participate in the traditional Hindu family structure, manage to survive in present-day India. Once considered near	ass	50 divine, eunuchs today have been relegated to the outer fringes of society and often must resort to begging and prostitution to eke out a minimal existence. The centerpiece of the film is Meena and her surrogate family of hijras, and the film, like the lives of these eunuchs, shifts in tone from joy and celebration to tragedy. Often moving and always insightful, this exploration reveals the multiple complexities and contradictions of the eunuch's world."
