Caribbean festival arts	slide kit	1988	For 300-400 years after Columbus landed in 1492, working people-slaves, natives, imported Europeans, Africans, and Asians- developed new and exotic cultures derived from those brought from homelands. Along the 1500 miles of the island-dotted Caribbean, the diversity among the popular festivals almost surpasses comprehension, but three basic types have been isolated for this exhibition at the Saint Louis Art Museum. The Hosay festival is even today basically East Indian Islamic in nature, while the	la	81

			Carnival recognizes European masquerading as an influence. The Jonkonnu festival of Jamaica has two types, both of which draw upon European masking traditions. This kit offers 20 slides with detail explanation.
