Qualifications of an SI leader:

SI leaders are successful students. In order to be considered an SI leader for a particular course, the student must have a strong understanding of the course content and be able to articulate that understanding to others. This means that the SI leader would have earned a grade of a B or higher in the course. Beyond this obvious requirement, SI leaders need to possess good time management skills, be able to work with groups and, occasionally, with individual students. They also need to be somewhat flexible in order to adapt their learning strategies. Strong computer skills are a plus as some SI sessions may be held online.

Do you have students in mind with whom you'd like to work? If so, please provide their names and contact information. _____

Please direct interested students to Career Services <http://www.umsl.edu/depts/career> to complete an application.

If you'd like to do so, include a brief paragraph explaining why you are recommending these students as SI leaders.

Please include a copy of the course syllabus when you return this form to the Center for Teaching and Learning (519 Lucas Hall) or ctl@umsl.edu
