Use the steps in the “Using Journal Citations” handout to find articles cited in the Very Important Research Article. You can find the handout here: http://bit.ly/ZrSuA3

Use Scopus to find newer articles that cite the Very Important Research Article. Scopus is on the database list under “S”. On the Document Search screen, type in the title of the article (e.g., Very Important Research Article) and click on Search. You should see a citation to the article on the next screen, and to the far right, a column labeled “Cited By”. Click on the number in the Cited By column.