Marxist Talks
At St. Louis University
by Doug Sutton

Christians and Communists should work toward common goals in order to gain world peace. That was the theme of French Communist philosopher Roger Garaudy’s speech at the St. Louis University Gymnasium on December 7.

Garaudy said that a dialogue must be established between Christians and Communists alike, realizing that “there does not exist the only road to truth.”

Reading the 40-minute address in broken English, the director of Marxist study in Paris outlined the basic differences between Marxist philosophy and the Christian faith. He went on to say that Communist philosophers today are beginning to realize the importance of faith in man’s life. He asserted that in Russia today, this idea is already beginning to become more widespread.

On the other hand, he told the predominantly Catholic audience, Christian philosophers should “free themselves from the dogma that has hampered their progress.”

Garaudy’s speech was followed by a half-minute ovation, and then by a half-hour question-answer session during which Garaudy spoke through an interpreter because of his difficulty with English.

Garaudy’s lecture was part of the Great Issues series which St. Louis U. Student Conclave sponsors. The university came under fire from many groups in the area, the American Legion in particular, which protested the appearance of a Communist speaker on the campus.

Academic vice-president Reverend R. J. Henle, S.J., defended Garaudy’s lecture, in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat stating that it was the school’s role to search for truth. He stated that it was essential that the university encourage diversity of ideas so that objective study can be made.

As a result of the pressure, the University allowed only those persons who had season tickets. Normally, the public is permitted to attend the lectures. In spite of this ban, however, the University extended every courtesy to the press, and the Current reporter was given free admission to the speech.

Morse Condemns Foreign Policy

United States Senator Wayne Morse condemned American foreign policy in a lecture on December 7. Coupled with the foreign policy of the administration Morse also indicted the American public for permitting the government to carry on the Viet Nam War. The lecture was part of the Fall Evening Concert and Lecture Series.

Morse referred to Premier Ky as that “little tyrant in South Vietnam”, who is “killing American boys to keep himself in power.”

The current situation in Vietnam indicates a reversal of the promises under which Morse claimed he campaigned in 1964 in the name of the President. At that time the Senator Morse said, indicated the war should be an “Asian war fought by Asians.”

Millions of people voted for President Johnson under the impression that he would not escalate. That is why Morse said he would no longer support his President.

Morse said, however, that we should not be overly concerned if we just change our foreign policy a little. We should be ready to support a new NATO, for a revision has long been overdue. Further he stated that Morse would not be surprised if a majority of the Senate reaches this opinion next term.

In remarks preceding his prepared lecture the senator spoke on education. He said that in the fire most important foreign policy areas he would include education, and in this field we are ahead of both Russia and China. We must concentrate on education if we are to “keep from drowning the youth in a pool of unemployment.” We must double every public and private university by 1985, in addition to the creation of many new institutions of higher education.

The Senate held a University-sponsored press conference on December 7, since no UMSL Current reporter was advised of the conference we are unable to report on what the Senator said.

Ducks Killed By Crows

The deaths of two of the three UMSL ducks this month has been attributed to a combination of freezing weather and an attack by crows. The report coming from Dean Harold E. Eickhoff’s office said there was no evidence of a reported shooting.

The Animal Protective Association was called in, Sunday, December 4, and attempted a rescue, which was prevented by the half-frozen lake. Maintenance men finally retrieved the animals.

The Animal Protective Association said that it was not uncommon for domestic ducks to freeze when subjected to a wild duck’s natural environment. A domestic duck would require conditioning before being able to survive in a natural climate.

U.S. Senator Wayne Morse Speaking At UMSL

U. S. Senator Wayne Morse commented on the UMSL-Rolla basketball game. The activities Jan. 12-14 will culminate Saturday night with a semi-formal dance at St. Ann’s Auditorium, 7300 Natural Bridge.

Innovations

Lawn decorations will be introduced to UMSL Homecoming. Student groups will erect homecoming exhibits down the main driveway. To enter this contest, organizations must return entry blanks to Jane Moore before the Christmas holidays. A trophy will be awarded to the students sponsoring the best decorations.

Also new to UMSL homecoming will be a pep bonfire and a basketball parade. At the bonfire the 1966-67 homecoming queen will be announced and the lawn decorations trophy awarded. Following the bonfire, the newly elected queen and her court will lead the student parade to Concordia Seminary where the Rivermen will meet Rolla.

Parade Contest

During half time of the basketball game three prizes will be awarded for the best decorated cars. Students wishing to enter the contest can complete an entry blank in Room 210, Administration Building.

Queen Elections

All students will be able to vote Friday, January 13, for the homecoming queen from 9:30 A.M. to 3:30 P.M. in the lobby of the Administration Building. Two candidates from each class will be running for the honor. The queen will be announced at the bonfire and crowned at the dance.

U.S. Senator Wayne Morse Speaking At UMSL
CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

Christmas and New Year's festivities.

While Christianity was a religion of action. Yet no matter where we look on earth and goodwill among men is the central idea of the Christmas celebration. It is the wishing of peace and good will which prompts us to send greeting cards to relatives and friends. The wish for a happy new year is a concept of the Christian spirit. If we should ponder the Christmas story.

As an example, we have several ministries presently on campus, which pay special attention to the moral and spiritual needs of the student body of the University. Unfortunately this is all we have. The student body was sitting with them. They continued making a wish you.

Though we may need to bring attention to and get the three elements of the student publication which could apply to any form of action varied from the system. There is no excuse for our actions, as our actions are opposed to students bringing guests. We are familiar with the University's regulations for students who are active in the student body. We urge them to bring their group's action.

The major function of this University is to educate students of the community, not only to train them in the technical and professional abilities, but also as citizens who will take a rightfull and active part in the world of work. Learning of this type takes place through example, and so we urge that the examples we set as leaders conduct such activities. The University. The most recent example of this neglect occurred when the Board of Curators was not informed of the press conference held for Senator Wayne Morse, and when the appointed representative of this paper was expected to pay for the privilege of reporting on this subject.

We explore this, and other recent occurrences of this type, for they can be interpreted in no other way than as a display of disregard for this publication, and for the students it represents.

This was the angelic proclamation to the world scene we find discord, strife and war on several fronts. One of the most important problems is how we get through it. Unfortunately all too often we hear only of this noble message during the Christmas season. The usual course is to store the Christmas story away in the attic until both can be brought out for display next Christmas.

Every vestige of Nazi influence is being wiped out. It seems to us that if the Christmas story should demonstrate anything at all, in relation to reality, it is the incongruity of status quo that the words of the angel mean. Christianity was a religion of action. Yet no matter where we look we do not find the two in common bonds.

As an example, we have several ministries presently on campus, which pay special attention to the moral and spiritual needs of the student body of the University. Unfortunately this is all we have. We have met to meet a ministering member of the faculty, and everyone's thought. Action and discussion are intertwined as elsewhere.

On the world scene we find discord, strife and war on several fronts. Those with guide us in the world of spirit and knowledge, to order our lives. It seems to us that if the Christmas story should demonstrate anything at all, in relation to reality, it is the incongruity of status quo that the words of the angel mean. Christianity was a religion of action. Yet no matter where we look we do not find the two in common bonds.

We have met to meet a ministering member of the faculty, and everyone's thought. Action and discussion are intertwined as elsewhere.

To the point where the ordering of German internal affairs themselves, we may prove wrong I feel that it would be premature to raise the specter of a new and militant Nazi party. The major function of this University is to educate students of the community, not only to train them in the technical and professional abilities, but also as citizens who will take a rightfull and active part in the world of work. Marketing Club Elects Officers

Last October several business majors, specializing in marketing, formed the Marketing Club. The club is now a collegiate chapter of the American Marketing Association. This campus organization was formed in order to strengthen the study of marketing and to increase the participation of business majors in extra-curricular activities.

Thirty-six students joined the club and elected Jack Sieber as president, Elliot Lesarov as vice president, Suzanne Salzmann, secretary, and Lou Ponciroli, treasurer. Faculty advisor is Dr. William Sahig.

The meetings of the Marketing Club are held bi-weekly at 2:30 Tuesday afternoons in Administration Building, Room 208. Each meeting features a speaker from the business community.

Mr. William Clark of Monsanto will soon speak on the topic, "Research and the Computer." On Friday, January 6, the Marketing Club will visit IBM Corporation to gain insight on the use of computers in modern business. On January 17, the club will hold its last meeting of the Fall semester. The topic, "Graduate Work: How Important?" will be discussed by a panel consisting of two faculty members and two St. Louis area businessmen.
JOTTINGS

If you saw the article on H. L. Menken by Dr. William Nolte in the St. Louis Post Dispatch for Sunday, December 4, 1966, you probably saw Rufus Terral’s comment, "The world’s more important work is done by a Southerner." His thesis seems to be that the South most clearly identifies itself as a separate entity in literature, and not use it to explain, justify or to hence absolute itself. Rudzika hopes he still remembers that the guilt of the South is the embriolic fluid of the best of its modern literature.

Paul Engel will be here on January 11. He’s the director of the creative writing program at the University of Iowa, one of the most expansive and all-inclusive departments of its kind, drawing students from all over the world.

Mr. Engel began writing poetry at Washington High School in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and has never stopped. After receiving his A.B. from the Rockefeller Foundation, was twice a Guggenheim Fellow, and was a Rhodes Scholar from 1933-36, after which, in 1937, he joined the faculty of the University of Iowa. As a critic, reviewer and poet, he has contributed to a number of publications, including The New York Herald Tribune, Chicago Tribune, American Heritage, Atlantic Monthly, The New Yorker and Poetry Magazine. He has lectured internationally as an American specialist for the Department of State, carrying the atmosphere of recent American poetry to Ireland, Germany and Eastern Europe. Currently Mr. Engel is one of two writers serving on the White House’s National Council of the Arts.

At 8:30 on January 11, he will be in room 105 of Benton Hall, speaking on "The Creative Mind." And if his past achievements aren’t convincing, look at his taste in poetry, as seen in Poets’ Choice, a selection by Joseph Landel (Dell Publishing Co., pap. New York, 1960), which includes poems in the University Book Store, and it contains the favorite poems of more than 100 poets, with their own comments. Whether you happen to see the book or not, see Paul Engel.

In the May 6 edition of the Missouri News last year, a review of the film Dr. Zhivago said: "There has not been such a wealth of story in a motion picture since Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." After I saw Four Horsemen a second time, on December 4, it seemed, suddenly, that these two films had much more in common, not only in story conflict of opposing sides of his theme and the plight and dilemma of the main characters.

The film version of Four Horsemen, much removed from the book by Ibanez, is the story of Julio Desnoyers, who tries to navigate the perils of World War II, despite the conflict of opposing sides of his family; his father who died in battle, and his uncle and cousin, officers in Hitler’s army.

Julio attempts to achieve a meaningful relationship with Marguerite Etienne is frustrated by circumstances resulting from the war; man has brought upon himself; conquest, war, pestilence, and death. After Marguerite’s husband returns from a POW camp, joins the Resistance in Paris, is caught visiting Marguerite in her home, then released to her, she decides she must care for his home and children. Later, Julio learns to swim, to become familiar with the swimming pool, then to have his swimming pool, to become familiar with the swimming pool. Julio now searching for some meaning or purpose, joins the Resistance, and, in the end, is so enmeshed in the Resistance that he is unable to join Marguerite after her husband’s death until he disentangles himself, he dies, and although he dies for a cause, the question whether a cause can be dead and any meaning is unresolved.

Whether the backdrop of an age and world as the Second World War or the Russian Revolution, it becomes, for both Julio and Zhivago, the element of destruction. Their struggle for uninvolvement becomes acquiescence in the power and the control of the spirit behind each war, the spirit called ‘cause.’ Each has to meet the statement that modern man can no longer remain neutral, since he will ultimately be involved by both sides of the conflict.

Yet even if man does make a choice, and struggles and dies for a cause, look what a toll "cause" takes. It is better to die a victim of one’s cause than remain one’s victim of two or are Julio and Zhivago more justified in thinking of being a victim as a cause? And would that be more noble a cause or more just? Of the others? Who wins?

FLIGHTLINE

by Jane Moore

Don’t look now but you may have an angel helping you. The only wings she wears however is the emblem of Angel Flight. Angel Flight is a service organization that serves a cause more noble than either or both of the World War or the Russian Revolution; it becomes, for both Menkes, speaking on the in the student body, at no cost.

A average of 20 students have received counseling from the Service since the beginning of the Fall Semester. To date, Dr. Ober estimates, the majority of his and the general student body as well as professional guidance in the areas such as memorization, concentration, time-scheduling, motivation and general study habits. Many of these are aimed at applications of well-established learning principles.

Caseworker positions are available to student counselors who may extend through several sessions, until the student can handle and cope effectively with his problem. Dr. Ober indicates that the counseling for college students is generally quite favorable since most students are relatively flexible, bright and with a desire to learn.

Any student who feels he needs counseling in regards to personal, psychological or vocational testing (with interpretation of results), should contact the Counseling Service, Room 205 Administration Building, or call Extension 50 in order to arrange an appointment with Dr. Ober.

Some of the joint projects engaged in by Arnold Air Society and Angel Flight have included the Bob Hope film of his Christmas tour in Vietnam during October. Sixty percent of the funds were sent to the USO and five percent went to support the programs of Arnold Air Society organization. The members recently completed a date with an Angel contest. The two winners were allowed to take the angel of their choice or their own angel) and to tour the Flight and see the expense of the Flight. Tony Dolce chose an evening out to dinner and a movie at the Student Union and the Stuart Simington Flight. The flight of the UMSL Flight have sponsored many various activities thus far this year. Represented by a car pool during the first week of school to help day and night students fight the parking fees, served at three receptions during freshman orientation week, ushered for all of the faculty concert-lecture series and helped the Student Union Board members seat guests at a luncheon following the student-faculty football game. Deficiencies Sent in November Deficiency notices warned many UMSL students that they had not demonstrated satisfactory academic progress by midterm, November 21. Mr. Allen, assistant director of admissions, told the CURRENT that the primary function of deficiency notices is to inform the pupil of insufficient scholastic achievement and to suggest corrective action that stands." The notices, or pink slips, are sent to all students who are not making a C or better in a course. They also specify the course, or courses, which is the source of the trouble and indicate whether the student is earning a D or an F.

Overnight on the part of the pupil when dropping a course is sometimes the cause of his receiving a pink slip, Mr. Allen explained that a student who drops a lecture-lab course must drop both the lecture and the lab, and if he fails to do so, he may acquire a deficiency.

Mr. Allen also stated that there has been a "slight decrease in the percentage of students receiving deficiencies from last year."
Commuter Student Discussed

At a meeting of the National and Provincial Secretaries of the College and University Division of the Episcopal Church last month four UMSL faculty members discussed with others the role of commuter students.

Chancellor James L. Bugg, Jr.; Dr. Harold Elckhoff, Dean of Student Affairs; Dr. William C. Hamlin, Chairman-Division of Humanities; and Dr. Richard F. Tombough, visiting assistant professor of biology represented the campus in the meeting with various administrators and faculty from colleges and universities in the St. Louis area.

The commuter student living in the two "separate and alien" worlds stemmed the discussion. Those attending the meeting thought there was seldom a person available to the commuter student who is able to knowledgeably discuss the student's role on the campus and in the community or to tell him how to correlate his experiences in the two separate worlds.
The short but exciting intermural soccer season ended at UMSL on Nov. 30th with the champion All-Stars romping to a 6-1 victory over an all league team composed of a collection of players from the other four teams in the league. The final standings showed:

TEAM Won Lost PCT.
All-Stars 5 0 1.000
Lords 3 1 .750
Butchers 2 2 .500
A P O 1 3 .250
Bombers 0 4 .000

The All-Stars dominated the league throughout the season scoring a total of 18 goals while allowing their opponents only 2. The team was composed entirely of UMSL students, most of whom are currently playing soccer in the St. Louis area for various senior league teams. These boys would logically form the basis for a UMSL intercollegiate team should our athletic department decide to expand to include this fall sport. The All-Stars were sold at every position and could probably give a good showing against any of the other schools now competing on the intercollegiate level. St. Louis traditionally has been a hotbed of soccer talent and every other institution above the high school level in the area has a school team now in competition.

The Captain of the All-Stars and the leagues leading scorer was Gene Grindler with 9 goals in the 5 games. Bill Kahn and Ray Kalinowski scored 3 goals each to tie for second, while Tom Hammelman chipped in 2 with Dan Costello and Randy Salvi adding 1 more. Every player on the All-Stars squad deserves special recognition for the outstanding jobs they did during the entire season. The team played as a unit and not as a group of individuals, which is so vital to the success and effectiveness of any sports organization. The members of the champion team and their positions were: Forwards, Dan Costello, Vic Caduce, Gary Miller, Gene Grindler, Tom Hannelman, Randy Salvi; Half-backs, Vince LaVista, Tom Beisinger, Steve Reiner, Dan Fosch, Paul Bickel, Mike Piel, Bill Kahn, Ray Kalinowski and Goalie Bill Steffen.

Norris Receives Research Grant

Dr. James Norris, associate professor of history at the University of Missouri at St. Louis, has received a grant from the American Zinc, Lead and Smelting Company of St. Louis to help support research next summer into the history of the 60-year-old company which is the nation's third largest zinc producer. Professor Norris' findings will be published at a later date in book form.

surprising. There is a danger, two-probed in nature, inherent in these developments. First, they may impede such constructive multi-national programs as the European Common Market and European military cooperation, pointing toward the resurrection of economic and military self-sufficiency at an age when both are dysfunctional at best. That this will in fact happen, of course, is by no means certain. Second, the present political solution of a Grand Coalition between the Christian Democrats and Socialists, even as an interim measure, is foreboding to the extent that the average German citizen can only demonstrate his dissatisfaction with government policies and programs by lending support to a variety of more or less radical and to some extent irresponsible groups such as the N.P.D. This can only help ensure the emergence of the less fortunate with revived German nationalism as such. It was bound to come sooner or later. The task for Germans and other Europeans alike is to see that it is directed into constructive, rather than destructive channels. At this point there is reason to be optimistic in this regard.

experiencing the gradual disappearance of ideological politics, a change which made the recent Christian Democratic-Social Democratic coalition possible. But more important Germany's politics are particularly bland because of a continuing self-consciousness about her Nazi past. The result has been an effort to assure the world of Germany's trustworthiness. Though theoretically an independent state this effort has led to the necessity of surrendering a portion of her sovereignty. The fact that she cannot pursue an independent foreign policy, the haunting fear that a Soviet-American détente will be negotiated which her expense is frustrating to German national sensibilities. In short, there is a longing to end the post-war period. These frustrations are bound to express themselves in the politics of dissent as an effort to punish the political establishment. But it is only because of past events that a show of nationalistic sentiment is interpreted as the rise of a new Nationalism. The same type of resurgence in France is explained as le grandeur, and recent right wing successes in the United States, while alarming to many, are hardly seen as the resurgence of a new American Fascism. The problem is that since Germans once expressed their frustrations in the bestiality of National Socialism the possibility of new expression along a familiar path looms as a fearful possibility. However, in my estimation there is so far little to indicate that the possibility does in fact exist.

RIVERMEN ROLL TO 4-1 WIN

by Marty Hendin

The UMSL Rivermen, supported both on and off the court by 118 people (including cheerleaders and faculty), won their fourth consecutive game of the young season on December 2, when they defeated Sanford Brown College of St. Louis 69-63 at Klein Auditorium, a game played as the preliminary to the St. Louis Hawks game.

Led by Ron Woods, the Rivermen jumped off to an early lead. Late in the first half Clark, who opened the game with 11 points and Silvestre Phillips who had 10 points also scored double figures for the Rivermen.

December 6 the Rivermen travelled to Decatur, Illinois where they suffered their first defeat of the season when they were defeated by Millikin University 104-78. The Rivermen trailed only 44-29 at halftime, but both teams broke the 40-point mark with four points before Jack Stenner and Bob Lucas ignited a Rivermen surge that insured the victory.

High scorers for UMSL were Jack Stenner who had 20 points, and Ron Woods who scored 32 points despite a split finger on his passing hand. Silvestre Phillips who had 10 points also scored double figures for the Rivermen.

These are the teams and individual statistics for the first three games. Abbreviations used are G—games; FGA—field goals attempted; FTA—free throws attempted; FTM—free throws made; REB—rebounds; FP—personal fouls; FT%—total points.

The Sigma Kappa Phi in Action

The Sigma Kappa Phi's intramural football team captured first place honors in the flag football competition defeating the B.P.'s by a score of 12 to 6. The Sigma Kappa Phi's opened the season by scoring both T.D.'s and killing the air often, scoring both T.D.s and insurance victory.

The coach of the Sigma Kappa Phi team included: Art Lefaf, Captain, Mike Rutherford, Dan Feicht, Randy Salam, Tom Ostermueller, Vic Cadice, John Caruso, Dan Doermer, Tom Dudley, Cornie Hesselhous, Ray Kellemyer, Ken Meyer, Tom Nosalek, Cal Fredenheim, John Quigley, Jim Redd, Tom Weatherly, Nick Whitey and Tom Blessinger.

Bubbling vitality and bouncy good humor characterize Beverly Kerr, 18-year-old captain of our 1966-67 UMSL cheerleaders. Beverly, a 1966 graduate of Southwestern College, is a seasoned campaigner having served as captain of the Southwest cheerleaders in her senior year.

In addition to her role of Captain, Beverly is secretary of the freshman class.

Beverly plans to major in English and elementary education. "I worked with children this summer and just loved it," said Beverly, "and since UMSL doesn't offer any major in physical education I decided to concentrate on early childhood and kindergarten training."

Sports minded Beverly enjoys ice skating, bowling, swimming and all types of athletic activities. She is interested in and would like to organize an intramural girls' volleyball team.

Hi Gang

Well how many of you joined the "Mizzou at St. Louis Inter­esting Mail Club?" in one of my classes 52% received interesting pink mail at mid­term. Holy poo poo but that was a happy class . . . . Did you know that the big-hearted athletic department is not making the cheerleaders pay to get into the basketball games . . . . Congrats to Mac the Thumper and the rest of the security department on rounding up the people responsible for the rash of petty thefts on the parking lot, here's hoping they find the low mentality larcenist who shot the ducks . . . . .

This reporter wanted to know what inspired a student to join D Xi K so I interviewed one of their pledges, he said, and I quote, "I wanted to join a fraternity in the worst way, and I did." . . . . Big weekend coming up, on the 16th the Christmas Dance will be held and on Saturday, the 17th, the coed plays Southernmost in a big game, and then the 18th the social party for under­privileged children will be held . . . . . Last meeting of the Senate, APO was recognized by the student government. This week APO met and decided to recognize the Senate . . . . Is it true that U.S. History 355 is really entitled "The Life and Times of Thomas Hart Benton" . . . . The American Legion has contacted the Concert and Lectures Committee, it seems they don't approve of our campus having an extremist speaker like Wayne Morse . . . . The Curators rules on student conduct sound like a direct quote from an American Legion report on the Berkeley riots . . . . Is it true that 144 instructors are equal to one gross, faculty . . . . AFK (flowers and kisses) Award to AFO for the work it is doing acting as tutors to some of the less privileged children in the area, the members should be congratulated for their unselfish efforts on behalf of the community . . . . Contrary to the report printed in another newspaper I did not recognize Carl La Fong as a campus dad, Carl La Fong recognized me as a Campus Dad . . . . Angel Flight raised enough money in their "Dance with an Angel?" to buy all their uniforms, I wonder what would have happened if they had only raised half the money . . . . AFO pledges are sponsoring a food drive this week to help some needy families in the St. Louis Area . . . . The Riverman are really having a great basketball season, the Concordia Tourney Champs deserve all our support . . . . Good luck to Ted Melton in his new position as S.A. treasurer . . . . Did you notice that there is a stamp machine outside the Mail Room? I put a quarter in it and a book of stamps came out, then I went downstairs and put some money in the sandwich machine, looking at both I finally ate the stamps and stuck the sandwich on a letter. You know what? It stuck . . . . Boy I sure hope that the Florissant entrance gets finished soon . . . . Boy work's sure progressing on the library, it seems only two months ago that there was only a hole in the ground surrounded by bulldozers and workmen and now look at it . . . . Congrats to the entire faculty, it isn't often that a University as new as ours obtains the recognition and praise that our school does. This is due, in large part, to the dedicated and capable staff and the fine faculty at the University. Often we overlook the fact that most teachers can be making more money working elsewhere but still remain in jobs where the recognition is little and the monetary rewards comparatively few. A big thanks to our faculty . . . . Congrats to the winner of the "Dance with an Angel?" good old what's his name . . . . Matel (sic) toy company has developed a Chancellor Bugg doll, you wind it up and it disappears . . . . . Rumor has it that the Green Hornet is Officer MacKenzie . . . . Having any trouble with your registration? Its simple, you obtain your registration packet in 103, or it is the Administration office, maybe its the lobby, then you go to your advisor, or is it the dean of students, or do we have a dean of students, then you fill out your course card and have it approved by almost anybody and then you're through . . . Well I guess I'm through so this week's column is dedicated to Thom Jost, AFO, SUB, BUSU, MUSL, BVD, and the entire student body of the JCD, also to the Action Giant, The Ajax White Knight, Dave Decker and all the other imaginary characters that ramble through my mind . . . .

Bye Gang!

LIBRARY HOURS

The library will be open for student use during the Christmas vacation.
December 19 through December 23 the hours will be 8 to 5. The same schedule will be followed from Tuesday, December 27, through December 30.

The above prices include all drinks listed in our extensive FOUR WINDS Cocktail Menu, Except Exotic Cocktails.

There have been protests and picketing in front of the University administration building. The student body at this University is not the most apathetic in the state. At this time there has been no student protest though a great number of causes are readily seen. When will we finally join together as a student body and effectively present our grievances to the University administration?
