New Platform Available by Bugg Lake

The speaker's platform used during the Moratorium October 15 was constructed by the UMSL Physical Plant. At the expense of the University, David R. Ganz, Dean of Student Affairs, told the Current, it is available for any group's usage via the usual means of requisitioning space.

The platform has electricity connected to it which will be turned on for any scheduled function. It is to be made available in the usual manner to the Student Union, Campus Life, Cafeteria Annex. The University does not presently own any outdoor public address equipment, Dean Ganz said.

Mr. Ganz stated that Sigma Pi Fraternity has formally approached the University concerning the erection of a permanent speaker's platform. A location for that construction, yet to be determined, in cooperation with the Business Office, he said.

The location of the present speaker's platform may be lost on a temporary basis during construction of the Physical Sciences building for which funds will be sought this year. Construction of that building will be to the north and east of the newly-completed Life Sciences Building and south of the west wing of the present Administration Building.

During construction, the hillside overlooking Bugg Lake will probably be turned over to the construction company for materials and equipment.

Research Grants Go To Four Professors

Four faculty members have recently been awarded grants for further study and research. Dr. Thomas E. Jordan, professor of education, received the largest faculty grant in UMSL history, a $194,989 grant from the United State Office of Education.

The other three recipients are Sara Jentins, instructor of art history, Dr. John Boswell, assistant professor of psychology, and Dr. James F. Doyle, associate professor and chairman of the philosophy department.

Funds from Dr. Jordan's grant will be used to continue a study of the development of 1,005 St. Louis area children from birth until they are ready to enter elementary school. The research program, which Dr. Jordan began in 1961, had previously received funding from the U.S. Public Health Service and the Central Midwestern Regional Educational Laboratories, with the latter agency also contributing to the current phase of research.

The office of Education grant will enable Dr. Jordan to continue research on the children from age two and one-half to age four. Dr. Jordan attributed much of the preliminary success of his research to the cooperation of the more than 1,000 families whose children are involved and to five St. Louis hospitals cooperating with the project.

The hospitals involved are Firmin Degolye, Homer G. Phillips, Jewish, St. John's Mercy and St. Mary's.

Professor Jordan was formerly chairman of the Department of Guidance Educational Psychology at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale. He is the author of several books on child development and is a research consultant to the National Institutes of Health and the United States Office of Education.

Miss Jenkins' grant, for $12,714, will enable extended research of film and multi-media techniques in the teaching of art history, with the emphasis on the most effective use of such media to augment instruction. The research will include a review of existing programs at other institutions, as well as an investigation of the newest uses of film and multi-media educational tools.

The grant, aimed at possible development of similar approaches to art history instruction, will also allow for the acquisition of equipment — movie cameras, sound recorders and slide projectors, as well as a projection and printing of a film and book library concentrating on the film.
The UMSL Marketing Club held its second meeting of the school year Thursday, October 16. Plans for speakers and various field trips were discussed. The following is a list of events scheduled for November: November 6 - 12:45 Cafeteria Annex Lounge - Mr. William McGoogan, Account Representative for George-Savin Advertising Agency, will present one of his company's recent advertising campaigns and will speak on the role of the advertising agency in the discipline of contemporary marketing.

Dr. Seymour Marshak, Manager of Advertising and Distribution Research for the Ford Motor Company, will make a trip from Detroit to address the student body and area businessmen. He will be at UMSL Wednesday, November 12 at 11:40 in room 102 Benton Hall. Dr. Marshak will speak on the marketing and the development of the Ford Maverick. Slides and films will be shown.

The Young Democrats held two meetings Wednesday, November 5 at 12:40 and 3:40 in the Student Annex Lounge. Anyone interested is invited to attend.

Debaters Down Five Opponents

In their first intercollegiate venture this season, UMSL debaters Bob Hausladen and Mike Kruger returned from the Rockhurst College Debate Tournament with a 5-1 record. The tournament, held October 17 and 18, included ninety-two man debate teams representing forty-six colleges and universities from the Midwest and West.

The UMSL two were debating the proposition, "Resolved: that the Federal Government should Grant Annually a Specific Percentage of its Income Tax to the State Governments." Kruger and Hausladen defended the affirmative side of the proposition three rounds and the negative side the other three.

Among the UMSL victims were South Dakota State, Northeast Missouri State, Northwest Missouri State, Midwestern University, and the University of Denver. The only loss was by two points to the University of Missouri-Columbia.

Vocational Counselor

Carol A. Marcus has joined the staff of the University of Missouri St. Louis Counseling Service as a vocational counselor. The announcement was made by Dr. Lewis J. Sherman, professor of psychology and director of the Counseling Service.

Previously a career counselor with the Contra Costa Junior College in the San Francisco, California, area, Mrs. Marcus received both her A.B. and M.A. degrees from Washington University, St. Louis. She resides at 11046 Charter House Lane, Creve Coeur.

Degree Application Form Is Requested

Mrs. Ethel M. Zucker, academic adviser of the College of Arts and Sciences, has advised the Current that each student is requested to file a degree application form in the office of the dean of the school or college from which he intends to graduate, at least two semesters before the expected graduation date.

University Placement Center

Regarding the team's effort, Coach Courter noted, "It was a fine job, especially considering the fact that Kruger and Hausladen are sophomores, and they were debating in a very strong tournament. The tournament drew crews like Denver, Wyoming, Northesters and Houston. Bob Bob and Mike have the ability to compete in select company."

Time for A Study of Values

The university, by definition, is caught in a paradox in its relation to the society in which it exists. It is charged with maintaining an atmosphere conducive to reflection and study, i.e., it must be, to a great extent, isolated; yet, paradoxically, it is also charged with serving the society, i.e., it must be involved. The tension between these tendencies—both of them necessary to the university, neither of them sufficiently—results in a conservatism, almost a cultural lag. From time to time the pressure of events forces the university to re-examine the conditions of society, then to reassess its attempts at involvement. When this re-examination and reassessment lead to a virtual consensus, the university returns to its normal state, society, i.e., it must be involved. Study, i.e., it must be, to a great extent, isolated; yet, paradoxically, these are but a few of the social, political, at heart, moral questions which need to be examined today. Granted, it is true that we need to understand what is, but we must go beyond to study values, to determine what kind of society we want to live in, to then move toward creating that type of society. For awhile it may be true that, in the words of a popular song, nothing can change the shape of things to come, it may be more true that nothing, man included, can shape the changes of things to come.

The pressure of events, obviously, is now acting upon the university. The university must respond before it, and society, becomes the pawn, and not the creator of events. For a number of years the social sciences have sought to emulate the success of the physical sciences by devoting themselves to the construction of a methodology which leads to empirically verifiable explanations of the human world. Attention has been focused on what is; the question of what ought to be has been neglected. This poses some important problems for our time. Today we are in the midst of a scientific and technological revolution, a revolution which promises to change mankind and society. What will happen, for instance, if automation converts ours from a laboring society to a leisure community? How do we adapt to an increasing population as science continues to terminate the death rate? Can we continue to study values, to advocate, individual freedom in an increasingly massified society?

These are but a few of the social, political, at heart, moral questions which need to be examined today. Granted, it is true that we need to understand what is, but we must go beyond to study values, to determine what kind of society we want to live in, to then move toward creating that type of society. For awhile it may be true that, in the words of a popular song, nothing can change the shape of things to come, it may be more true that nothing, man included, can shape the changes of things to come.

The pressure of events, obviously, is now acting upon the university. The university must respond before it, and society, becomes the pawn, and not the creator of events.
Dear Editor,

Two weeks ago a group of veterans applied for and received temporary recognition of a Veterans Club on campus. This was favorably received by Dean Ganz' office, as they are aware of the large number of veterans who desire association with other students of similar background and interest. An announcement posted on bulletin boards throughout the campus explained that the primary purpose of the club was for social interaction. Recently I noticed that someone has written in the words "filth and malice" behind social interaction on several of the announcements. Many were taken down entirely. The Current lost the club's announcement last week so that it was not printed in the paper. An accord of military service does not necessarily program its participants as non-thinking killers and right-wing radicals. We do a great disservice to them in this manner. Does tolerance extend only so far as anti-establishment views on our campuses? If so, then it is my opinion that our so-called liberal thinkers are practicing the very ideas they purportedly refute.

In reply to Jerry Berry's "unique" analysis of the Vietnam situation, let me say that never has there been a written so much and revealed so little.

First of all, who does he think he is? The Tom Dooley of UMSL? Asking such "rational" questions as: "What happened to the original deal of protecting the skinny kids and headless daddies?"

To answer that gem, let us proceed to find out who perpetrated the "original deal." Well, somebody had to speak up against these alleged atrocities. I mean, like a headless daddy can't do it. The skinny kid is becomeaserriest to spew forth protest. So who's going to stand up for Vietnam? Why the local priest, of course! And stand up he did.

Refugees were reported to be fleeing from the North; fleeing from the "Godless cruelties of Communists." Yes, countless Communist horror stories flowed from Dr. Tom Dooley, our Christian-on-the-spot, kept Americans daily informed past their bedtimes regarding this mass exodus.

Americans were not told too much about Vietnamese history. Catholicism first came to Vietnam via Portuguese expansion. By the 1580's, Christian missionaries had become hopelessly involved with the newly-arrived French colonialism. By the 1950's, Vietnam was fighting an anti-colonial war with France; most of the Catholics in Vietnam took sides with the French. However, they only comprised less than 10% of the entire Vietnamese population anyway. The rest of the population was non-Catholic, which sided with the anti-colonial movement.

It should be noted that the anti-colonial movement was spearheaded by Ho Chi Minh, the one person even Eisenhower wrote about stating: "I have never raised or corresponded with a person knowledgeable in Indochinese affairs who did not agree that, had elections been held at the time of the fighting, possibly 80% of the population would have voted for the Communist Ho Chi Minh as their leader, the mass of the population supported the enemy.

But the fact is that Catholic leadership's hostility to Ho's movement was not shared by the general population of Vietnam as seemed to make no difference to Dr. Dooley, which brings me now to the Catholic position.

It seems apparent enough that the priests with whom Dr. Dooley came into contact kept him well-supplied with atrocity stories, hoping to elicit more American support for the reghung, and the Catholic cause that took such a beating with the French: so much of a beating that by 1954 the French signed the Geneva agreees.

The point I'm trying to make is that the American position has not once rested with the majority of Vietnamese, who were against Diem and the Catholics. The atrocity stories did not stand the test of even Eisenhower. "The enemy had much popular sympathy, and many civilians asked them by phone or correspondence to stop them. Atrocities, I'll assert that that anti-colonial movement was war said, "I have never raised or corresponded with a person knowledgeable in Indochinese affairs who did not agree that, had elections been held at the time of the fighting, possibly 80% of the population would have voted for the Communist Ho Chi Minh as their leader, the mass of the population supported the enemy.

The Berry Line
by Jerry Berry

Who benefits? The question that should be asked when reading the accounts of any news-worthy event. When one hears of a politician participating in any legislative or administrative process, the question of who benefits is of particular importance. And the answer should be the people the politician represents. Too often, however, the electorate or supposedly responsibly appointed official assumes an attitude of being omnipotent. In this self-produced god-like aura they are prone to grandiose notions and worse, to initiate monumental projects. These costs of which are generally of such magnificent proportions that even a wishtal Aladdin would blush at such a wish. Honest leadership of useful purpose is as scarce as a breath of fresh air any more.

U.S. News and World Report states "Instead of machine politicians...we have skilled business administrators...more technician than politician." Mayor Cervantes would seem to be of this stock. He skillfully maneuvered more brick-a-brac to the river front than can be found on a great-grandmother's hutch. He has everything there but a Texas outlet. Yet, what fish that are left in the Mississippi are subject to indigestion if they open their mouth. And if the wind is right a person can just sit down and cry from eye pollution.

Really, a person doesn't necessarily have to be a conservationist to want clean air and water. This is not to suggest that he is the sole neglector of pollution control, nor that he has complete power to halt pollution. But, he could do a lot better job of regulating such industries in his jurisdiction. Tom Eagleton, according to the Globe Democrat, is in town with a Senate sub-committee investigating pollution. He "wishes to learn if present local air cleanup efforts are adequate." A good suggestion might be to start with the assumption that the clean-up efforts are not adequate and leave the hopes of learning to the populace. One of the hopes could well be an explanation of why Portland Cement Co. isn't required to attend the Senate committee meeting. Lack­ing that, a hope for a new Senator.

Realizing that finding the truly honest man is probably a forlorn task, because in the great American tradition of politics a requisite of being a cunning wonder of facts and distortionist of purpose has become vital to success. It is up to the voters to demand their money's worth of service from their officials. The task would be easier if just one official set the example necessary to remind people what an honest servant of the people looks like. Pollution isn't the only issue and Cervantes and Eagleton aren't the only politicians judging on their duty to their constituents. State Sen. Blackwell claims that no matter what his actions are in private life, he is a great public servant, but many other "great public servants" in Jefferson City want to put him off the team. Who's lying? Who's honest? Who benefits?

"Wanna' bet it's fresh?"

"Sure McDonald's is my kind of place. Look. I deliver meat to many of the best restaurants in town but when it's time to eat, I make sure I'm at McDonald's. They use top quality hamburger and I know it's fresh, I deliver every day! It's my kind'a place."
Daust Out

U.M.S.L.'s hopes to repeat as District Sixteen basketball champions were dealt a severe blow this week when scoring and rebounding star Greg Daust withdrew from school.

The ladies didn't think of him as a basketball victim, Sixteen basketball champions a roster is six.

Greg Daust withdrew from school when scoring and rebounding were dealt a severe blow this week (and became average), as he became U.M.S.L.'s second leading scorer last year and all-time leading rebounder. His U.M.S.L. game high was 28 points and a record 35 rebounds.

Basketball coach Chuck Smith plans to use 6-4 Denny Whelan, 6-4 Chuck Henson and 6-7 Bruce Ryan at center this year, 6-4 transfer Ron Carlston will join this group when his eligibility begins at mid-semester.

IM News

U.M.S.L. bowlers will have a chance to show off their talent when the intramural co-ed bowling league begins November 20. Tournaments will consist of four people, men or women. The maximum number on a roster is six.

The league will meet once a week at Bowl-A-Rama on Woodson Road. Cost will be $1.50 per week. This includes three games of bowling, shoes and ball. The deadline for submitting rosters to the Athletic Dept. is Friday, November 7.

The next IM sport will be men's basketball to be played by three-man teams on 1/2 courts on Monday and Wednesday, and by five-man teams on full courts on Tuesday and Thursday.

Soccermen to Face Rockhurst Saturday

by Brad Stevens
Current Reporter

Coach Don Dallas' Kickers will have their hands full when they travel to Kansa City tomorrow to take on a tough Rockhurst team Saturday at Rockhurst. U.M.S.L. bowed a spirited Western Illinois team last Saturday by a 3-2 margin.

The scheduled 2:00 pm contest this weekend will be an all-important game for both teams, as both are top contenders for the same NAIA berth from this area. This game could well decide who will represent our district.

U.M.S.L.'s unheard of Rivermen

Sigma Pi fraternity's IM football team has lost only two games in four years of competition. Unfortunately these losses have occurred in championship games the past two years, last year to the Zetas and this year to a fired-up bunch of Newmanites who called themselves the River Rats. The score of the game played last Friday at Normandy Junior High was 24-12.

Sig Pi's red league champions started off fast, when on the second play of the game, Dan Smith ran straight up the middle for 55 yards and a touchdown. Then the River Rats and their quarterback Mike Taylor took over. Taking advantage of numerous Sig Pi mistakes, Taylor scored a touchdown on a yard run and just missed another when his pass in the end zone went through the hands of his receiver. The half-time score was 6-6.

The River Rats put the game away with three touchdowns in the second half with Taylor passing for two and running for one. He threw one touchdown pass to Bob Speidel and then a few minutes later, Taylor stood in the backfield behind a good offensive line and calmly waited for Joe Stephens to get open in the end zone for a touchdown pass. The turning point of the game occurred minutes later when Sigma Pi, backed up to their five-yard line, completed four passes, including one on fourth down, without success and the Rats took over on the five. On the next play Taylor scrambled over to put the game out of reach.

Sigma Pi came back to score when quarterback Henry Ray, who led the Zetas to their victory over Sig Pi last year but joined the fraternity team when the Zetas folded, passed to Tom Crandall for the TD. Sig Pi had no chances and the game ended 24-12.

The River Rats featured the great play of Taylor plus fine jobs turned in by John Stephens, Eddie Schneidermann and Bob Miller. Both teams in the championship game, along with the BP's and Sigma Tau Gamma who played in the runner-up game, benefited from the great spirit of their many fans in attendance.

In the runner-up game the gold league BP's held off a last minute Sigma Tau Gamma drive to defeat the fraternity men 18-15.
