Legislators commend student awareness; rap lack of space, money

Representatives from the Appropriations Committee of the Missouri State Legislature toured the campus here last Wednesday, October 6.

In the press conference that followed Representative E. J. (Lucky) Cantrell stated that the purpose of their tour was to evaluate the procedures the university and to become familiar with its local problems.

The visits to the campuses this year were different from previous ones, as the representatives asked about the input of faculty as well as that of the students.

In talking to students, Cantrell expressed the opinion that contrary to popular belief, "these students have a strong desire for education as well as a sense of responsibility."

They also have a clear knowledge of all the operational procedures of the university," he continued.

"We used to call the youth of today 'kids,' but with what we have seen in touring the four campuses, I would say we would have to call them young men. They seem to want to make a positive input into solving today's problems. I think it might be more meaningful to open a line of communication with the younger generation." Cantrell commented on the students at this campus, saying that he found a better quality of student here. He speculated that the reason for the better quality of students in the big city as well as probably already being involved in the labor market.

"The commuter student seems to have a stronger desire to learn," Cantrell stated.

Experienced in their tour of the four campuses this year (that was so the past several years) it is the cooperation between the different extensions of the university in order to become familiar with its local problems.

In spite of this united effort, however, Cantrell outlined one paramount problem—that of the need for space.

The St. Louis campus shows this need, he said, more clearly than any other campus as it is just sprouting up.

The lack of space is clearly manifest in the enlargement of classes. Cantrell hesitated to confirm that the quality of education is decreasing. Affirmed but he did question why the lack of space has not had a worse affect than it already has done.

Needless to say, there is a lack of space for the improvements that need to be made and Cantrell confirmed that if nothing was done about the availability of money for new buildings a business community would already suffer.

"Young people find no incentive to pursue their profession if there are not enough facilities to pursue their education," he said.

McDonnell-Douglas blasted at CEW Forum Friday

The Central Council Grievance Committee exists to collect and act on student grievances in all areas. To make the committee more accessible to the students, a discussion table has been set up in the student center. As a matter of fact, the table will be in operation every Tuesday from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. Thus far, responses have been good, which is very encouraging.

Each student who has a grievance, suggestion or question will receive a reply from the committee informing him of action taken on his grievance. Any questions about the committee’s activities can be directed to the committee members at the table.

One of the complaints already received concerned the lack of "fire-perimeter" locker space on the campus. The committee suggested that the presently empty lockers in the Multi-Purpose Building be made available to students. The Athletic Department agreed to our suggestion and the following policy will become effective in mid-October. Though this subject was covered in an earlier issue of the Current, we thought it would be beneficial to go into detail. Each locker will be checked out, not rented. No charge will be made for the use of the lockers. It will be on a first come first served basis and you must furnish your own lock. Sign-up periods will be for 30 days and you must return your lock at the end of the period and then, if needed, sign up again for the next period.

Lockers for a day-by-day basis will soon be available.

After lengthy discussion between the Student Government and Chancellors Glenn H. Driscoll, the Chancellor has decided to reassign the old cafeteria-lounge building (Physics Annex, Brown Building, the Barn, or what have you) to student use. The Chancellor said in a letter to student body president that he has decided to reassign the building in view of the "hardship... caused to the student body as a result of the recent Annex for general lounging and recreational use by students."

The University Center Advisory Board has begun to initiate plans for the use of this building. They would appreciate any and all student input into their decisions. You can make your feelings known by listing the representative of the Grievance Committee at the Discussion Table next Tuesday or by writing a letter to the student government, room 252, University Center.

U.S. found its only hope of winning the space war was by bombing the war which it was called the "war." Kagan also stressed that MDC was deeply involved in activities besides the production of Phantom jets such as research in the U.S. space program.

She thought the people in the St. Louis area should know what it means to be "fed" to the largest government contractor which provides so much employment. She said there was a need to talk to people of "converting the MDC plant from a wartime to a peacetime production of goods."

Steve Walsh, speaking of MDC's alleged racist policies, was quoted as saying, "We had a need to help maintain the individual worker's livelihood, it is up to the worker to protest oppressive conditions that prevent him from gaining such livelihood."

It seemed the common consensus of the people involved in the discussion that those who "since the corporation didn't see the need to help maintain the individual worker's livelihood, it is up to the worker to protest oppressive conditions that prevent him from gaining such livelihood."

Citing the "rich profit from racism," one individual said, "It is not in the corporate interest to help knowing this.

Another added that even if a corporate executive were to decide to shift his production to solving a social problem as mass transportation, there would be no guarantee against layoffs or that public voice would be heard.

The reports were made by fifty-seven members of ACTION's Employment Committee composed of twenty-one blacks and thirty-six whites.

The report cited that of 1,840 white collar workers at the St. Louis plant, there were 800 blacks; of a total of 350 chief foremen, there were 340 whites and 1 black; of 106 general foremen, there were no blacks; and of 1,215 assistant foremen, 1,179 were white while only 36 were blacks.

Overall, less than 1% of the 1968 work force was black, the report contended.

University admission policy changed: entrance examinations now required

Under a new four-campus University of Missouri policy, selection of students as regular freshmen in the future will be based on both high school class rank and aptitude examination scores from one or more of four approved college aptitude tests: Cooperative College Admissions Test (CCAT), Ohio State University Psychological Team (CPT), American College Testing Program (ACT) and Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT).

The policy change will affect admission to both the arts and sciences and engineering colleges. Currently, colleges are considering approval of only one test. The new policy, which was approved by the university's Board of Curators during its May meeting, will be effective for the fall term.

Previously, students were admitted to the university as regular or nonregular freshmen according to their rank in their high school graduating class. The new policy requires that students take a college entrance examination in order to be considered for admission.

The examinations will be administered during the spring of the senior year of high school.

The new policy is expected to increase the number of students who are admitted to the university and to improve the quality of the student body. The university estimates that approximately 60 percent of the students who take the examination will be admitted.

Students only hurting themselves by failure to dispose of their own garbage -- Edwards

By ANN TELPOOIST

Staff Writer

If students would pick up after themselves and place their trash in the proper place, the problem of garbage on campus would be lessened. It is impossible to clean up after all the students who leave their trash scattered around.

"People are making little effort to dispose of their own trash," said Donald J. Edwards, student government president.

"It is not a waste of their time to pick up after themselves. It is not a burden to the campus to keep its area clean and is something that they need to do.

"We need to be more responsible for our actions. If everyone did their part, the problem would be lessened.

"It is not fair to the other students who are trying to maintain a clean campus. By leaving their trash on the ground, they are contributing to the problem.

"The problem is not just with the students. It is also with the faculty and staff who do not properly dispose of their trash.

"The problem is a community problem and it needs to be addressed by everyone.

"We need to take responsibility for our actions and make a change. By doing so, we can create a cleaner campus for everyone.

"Let's work together to make a difference and create a cleaner campus for all.

"Thank you for your cooperation and support.

"Remember, "Garbage is not a place to be."
COMMENTSARY: Editorials and Opinions

A bad example

The recent defeat of the proposed amendment to the Missouri constitution which would have legalized parimutuel wagering on horse races points up the basic difficulty confronting any progressive or innovative legislation which happens to incur the wrath of the various religious denominations wielding considerable influence in this state.

Although the horse-racing amendment registered an impressive victory in urban areas like St. Louis, St. Louis County, and Kansas City, the measure was overwhelmingly wiped out in the Bible Belt areas of outstate Missouri.

Really, an inspirational triumph for the forces of goodness and light!

However, unless we read the signs incorrectly, this is just the beginning. The smoke has hardly cleared from the showdown over the horse-racing issue when Rev. Edward J. O'Donnell of the St. Louis Review, the weekly newspaper of the archdiocese of St. Louis, penned this editorial:

"The defeat of the enabling legislation for parimutuel betting on horse racing presented many interesting and unique political alliances. How long has it been, for example, since Governor Hearnes and Supervisor Reese have found themselves on the same side in any dispute? Just as interesting was the marshallng of Protestant religious leadership in opposition to the constitutional amendment.

"The anti-betting forces marshall an impressive array of bishops, presidents and pastors stating their opposition to wagering. We find nothing improper with this procedure. It is the function of leadership to lead and it is the function of religious leadership to stress the moral principles in which it believes. It is our feeling that the well-orchestrated Protestant opposition to the amendment was instrumental in its defeat.

"We hope that Catholics learn a lesson from the anti-wagering campaign. For a number of historical, sociological and ethical reasons a number of Catholics see something inappropriate in church membership and church leadership fighting in the arena of legislation for the principles in which it believes. Abortion is an obvious example. Catholic philosophy and theology see abortion as an attack on human life, but there are those who begrudge religion the right to express this philosophy and to use appropriate legislative means to protect their beliefs by law. Or again, Catholics, among others, have a tendency to lobby in favor of freedom of choice in education. Some who are Catholic and some who are not see this as meddling in areas where church leaders and church members should not be.

"Church pressure for or against legislation considered a matter of morality is wrong only when the means used are pressure tactics. When churches use their proper facilities for communication and argumentation to convince the public of the rectitude of their position, they properly fulfill their function as churches and as members of a democracy."

It is hardly surprising that so many political leaders, of both parties, stood four-square in opposition to the horse-racing amendment. Once the religious leaders had branded the measure as a tool of the devil, it became politically expedient to denounce it in turn.

However, the fact that they succeeded in their aim is all the more reason to stress that a bad example was set and should not be allowed to go any farther.

In this context, there is more at stake than the loss of a source of revenue which the state could ill afford to turn up its nose at.

Rev. O'Donnell finds "nothing improper with this procedure," but we do. When a clergyman renders his opinion on an issue, particularly on an issue with strong moral overtones--and especially when he speaks from the pulpit--his opinion necessarily carries greater weight than those of a mere politician or editor. Whether the clergyman says so or not, the idea that he has somehow been inspired by God must figure to some extent in the thinking of his audience. While we would not categorically deny the existence of divine inspiration, it still has not been proven to our satisfaction that God whispered in some ministers' ears that the horse-racing amendment should be defeated.

With this example so glaringly obvious, certain pending legislation relating to the abortion laws seem doomed to a similar fate at the hands of religious voters--not only Catholics, although they constitute the significant anti-abortion lobby--convincing that they must vote against any such innovation lest eternal damnation overtake them.

With that kind of ominous consideration in mind, there must necessarily be some element of "pressure tactics" involved in such pressure for or against legislation considered a matter of morality.

How can Missourians hope to make progress when religious leaders are ever-ready to venture into any fray intent on imposing their own concept of righteousness upon their less enlightened neighbors?

Clergymen should restrict the use of the pulpit to its proper role, that of tending to the souls of their flock. This preoccupation of theirs with the preservation of such legislative vestiges of puritanism does a real disservice to the image of organized religion, which seems determined to identify itself with an inability to adapt to the twentieth century.

Letters to the editor

Women's Lib strikes back

Dear Editor,

Dear old Ma Bell strikes again with pictures which speak louder than words. Last semester, there was an advertisement which featured a telephone and stated that there would be fewer blind dates when the all-American types could be found in any advertisement. It belied the fact that the girls they wanted were not available.

This year, we are presented with a drawing which belies the text concerning their Initial Management Directory. Oh, they include a token black, all right . . . in an all-white grouping. It's interesting that they would take the opposite woman, you see, but neither are they actively recruiting them. The telephone company is notorious for keeping women in their place: at the switches and lower levels of management. But isn't it nice to know the boys are offered these great chances for advancement?

Continuation

Dear Editor,

A continuation of the Thought for a Week. It is one thing to see something wrong, and another to do something constructive. But it is another matter entirely to think negatively and to not act at all.

We cannot afford to think negatively for our subconscious is an efficient computer and will bring into reality what we feed it. By thinking negatively, we are perpetuating the wrong that we see.

Bookstore prices defended

By CARL HESS
Current Staff Writer

Publishers set prices for all new books sold in the Bookstore. Manager George M. Dickerson offered in defense of criticism directed at Bookstore pricing and return policies.

"We sell new books exactly at publisher's prices," he declared.

On many books, the publisher's price is shown on the outside of the cover. This poses some problems.

"If the publisher finds himself overstocked on a certain book," Dickerson maintained, "and then raises the price on his next 'run,' he places a sticker over the old price to denote the new price. Many students think we put these stickers on, such as the case is."

The Bookstore does get a discount on items it buys from the wholesalers.

"The textbook basically averages about a 20% discount on each book. The non-required book department gets about a 30% discount, the supplies, the non-book department gets about a 35-38% discount," he said. However, the Bookstore must get back all this discount to run its profit.

Dickerson explained, "The library is run in a very subsistence manner, and as such is expected to operate without any general revenue or outside funds for support."

The Bookstore relies on non-required books and supplies for a large portion of its profits; the new textbook department generally runs slightly in the red because, as Dickerson put it, "costs are higher and mark-up smaller."

"The Bookstore," he added, "has made money every year, as far as I know."

"Where does that money go?"

"Every dollar we profit has always stayed in the Bookstore," he said, "and we re-invest this money in additional inventory, and things we need to serve the faculty and students here."

"The store must add twenty-five to thirty thousand dollars per year in inventory alone to keep abreast of the rising volume of customer's needs, according to Dickerson.

Another policy which elicits much criticism is the return policy on book returns. Dickerson asserted that "we have to maintain some sort of discipline in the return policy of the Bookstore. Theoretically, if we don't one could read the book, return it (or a few weeks and sell it at three-quarters of the list price."

"There is a slightly higher mark-up on unreturned books, but it is a better value to the student."

"Dickerson employs a method of return book pricing which he feels is most satisfactory for both the student and the store. The Bookstore buys books from the student at half the current list prices, and then repairs it if necessary, and sells it at three-quarters of the list price."

"The only way that would work is if books were sold over and over again, and that's not being done enough, in my opinion," he said.

"Off course updates and additions of books must be brought in to keep current, he added, "but we could keep many books a great deal longer."

"Contrary to what many students believe, the Bookstore is not responsible for the selection of books for any class for a semester. Books are submitted," Dickerson maintained, "with specific information to author, title, publisher, addition, and whether they want paper or cloth."

"We aren't, I can't say that the faculty are not justified in changing books, but, unfortunately, every change puts the student out on a limb."

"In addition, he claimed that if we use the same books semester after semester, we could reduce cost on books tremendously."

"I would love to do nothing but buy every book that we buy for the campus from students," Dickerson said.

That is not likely to happen. "Publishers," he contended, "are constantly working for the obscurantism factor in books—they know, I think sometimes, that if the book's been around for some time, that they're not going to get the sales (because of re-sales), so they bring out a new edition to make the old seem obsolete."

In conclusion, Dickerson insists that textbook investment is only about 2 to 4% of what students invest in education.

"I don't think that textbook expense is quite the problem most students think it is, if they will look at it in perspective," he concluded.

"TRY IT!
YOU'LL LIKE IT!"

("BUT WHAT IS IT?"

ALL OF THE POWER AND GLORY AND HEADACHES OF THE JOB OF EDITOR-IN-CHIEF FOR THE 1972 UMSL CURRENT.

Dear Editor,

On October 15 McDonell-Doug-lasfbros held its annual meeting.
This recruiting should be stopped.
By attacking such recruiting we will be fighting against the worst practices of M.D. and their supporters of the war.
M.D. is racist -- the worst and least paying jobs are given to non-people of color. Production and white collar workers are non-white. The situation is reversed with cafeteria and janitorial workers. M.D. also pushes racist ideas.
In a memo to M.D. managament from the corporate bosses, black workers were described as "lazy, undermotivated and undisciplined.
This memo was to aid management in dealing with black workers.

Why does M.D. produce war
depots? The answer is obvious.
Weapons production is in the interest of big businesses. Weanons are used to support revolutionaries who threaten the profits of the U.S. corporate elite. Without the planes which M.D. produce the U.S. would have had to withdraw from Southeast Asia long ago. Historically this is no exception.

Why is M.D. racist? Like the war, racism is profitable for big businessmen. Wage differentials between whites and non-whites reduce the wages of all workers. In general all forms of racism serve to divide working people from each other. This division weakens the ability of workers to act together in their interests against corporate interests.

Working people don’t profit from either imperialism or racism. They only suffer from the results: high employment, layoffs, demominatation and layoffs; the movement of plants and production abroad; speed-up, inflation. These things can only be defeated if racism is smashed.

In order to make profits corporations like M.D. must recruit more people to work. In this way, as in all others, UMSL aids the corporation directly to provide profits and publicity for on-campus recruitment. But the corporation like M.D.
come to recruit even when they are not primarily contacted with hiring. This is to maintain a presence as an acceptable business. It is to preserve their status which is clearly in their long run profit interests.

If we stop recruiting we raise the costs of the war and of racist practices for corporation owners.
Profit making is their only goal.
It must be. Businesses which don’t make the most profits can only lose out in those corporations which do. By interfering with recruiting we interfere with short and long run profit goals. Thus anti recruitment actions are good ways of fighting racism and the war.

When we fight recruiters we are not attacking M.D. workers. Most workers at M.D. are not responsible for the practices of M.D.
M.D. workers are our potential allies in the struggle against racism and imperialism, and they can stop M.D.’s war production and its racism.

People who work at M.D. and students who planned to see the recruiter should support all people oppressed by racism and imperialism. Don’t interview with the recruiter -- Join our demonstration.

This action won’t stop racism and imperialism. But it is not merely symbolic. It strikes a concrete blow against M.D. but we must do more. All over the world oppressed peoples are fighting back. In this country welfare mothers, women, black people, working people, unemployed people are fighting against a common enemy - the corporation heads who make billions of dollars from low welfare, low wages, brutal working conditions, racist and male chau-vivinist pay differentials, unemployment and imperialism. We should unite with these people and fight back.

The Committee To End the War

Same old rut

Dear Editor,

What is the Current’s problem?
What possible excuses can this paper offer for its failure to cover
an upcoming New Student Election for the Central Council which registers for 3500 students were to be elected on October 4-5? Maybe, this paper’s problem is the same problem the 3000 students encountered, who failed to vote-- that they either weren’t interested or knew nothing about the election.

This paper feels it has no responsibility to inform students of what is going on at UMSL. If this is the paper’s problem, we, as newly elected reps of the Central Council, are asking you to take this responsibility in the future.

Juxtaposition

Dear Editor,

It was refreshing to see the column Today’s Struggle listed under the comix Frankly Speaking as both of them were quite humorous. This author was bemoaning the fact that Angela Davis was denied bail by our “facial reactionary” government. What seemed so humorous was the irrational rhetoric, and I used the word irrational in the ul-imate extreme; as to be liked to black Archie Bunker of the All in the Family Fame.

The author seemed to think that because one is anti-communist, he must follow one is also racist and reactionary. If what the author says is even remotely accurate, “the belly of the most reactionary regime in existence,” then she would be locked up in a prison for writing such treasonable stuff. Obviously she will be able to write what she wants without being afraid of government reprisals.

Contrast our virtually unlimited freedom of the press and speech in East Berlin where an American exchange student to West Berlin on a trip to the eastern sector said, “I don’t see why more people don’t try to escape to West Berlin” and is now serving a prison term in a communist prison. His name is Mark Huesey. Where is the cry from the college campus, Free
Mark?

I’m for freeing Angela when and if she is found not guilty. We cannot replace white racism for black racism. But if the author can’t hold the readers interest unless she screams something like the capitalist racist system is the cause of all problems today is rather doubtful. What we need today is a time of responsible student action.

An Equal Opportunity Employer

is this the challenge they talked about?

You’ve probably heard it before.
“Get your feet wet and then we’ll talk about responsibility.” Or . . .
“there’s a big desk and lots of filing space. And don’t worry; this large of a company won’t hinder your opportunity for advancement.”

And then you wait — and wait —
and wait.

But there is a company that starts college graduates in decision-making jobs with responsibility.
You don’t waste half your working life with company introductions.
You have the opportunity to supervise and motivate people as well as make decisions.
The program is tough to get into and even tougher once you’re in.

We call it the “Initial Management

The company is Southwestern

October 15.

It’s high risk with high reward.
Look into it.

Refunds ordered for three books violating wage-price freeze

The University of Missouri has recently completed a review of its pricing practices for the University Bookstore in line with its compliance with President Nixon’s wage-price freeze. In the review of approximately 2780 volumes handled through the Bookstore, there were 3 titles where the publisher’s price increase was reflected after August 14, 1971.

As a result, the 3 titles affected have been reduced in price and the students who purchased these books at the higher price may receive a refund by bringing their book and their cash register slip to the University Bookstore book return window.

Chiang’s Exercises in Aggregate Economy, previously priced at $4.75 was repriced at $3.00, so there will be a $1.75 refund.
There will be a $.55 refund on Rudin’s Principles of Mathematical Analysis, repriced at $10.50. Hamption’s Organizational Behavior and Practical Management, was repriced at $11.25 over $10.75. There will be a $0.50 refund.

The list of the 3 titles and the amount of refund per book is also posted in the University Bookstore.
Kickers shoot for national prominence

This Saturday the soccer Rivermen play the first game of a St. Louis intercollegiate doubleheader, a team that downed three and five teams in the country.

The Red and Gold play the Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville Cougars in an 11 a.m. contest at the UMSL field. The Cougars, ranked fifth in the nation, have never lost to the Rivermen.

The Billikens of St. Louis University, a team that downed the Cougars 2-1 in the season opener, lays its number one ranking on the line in a 2 p.m. encounter with Quincy College's Hawks at SLU's Mosull Field.

Quincy, now ranked third, stopped the Rivermen 2-0 two weeks ago on the Brown and White's home turf.

They enter the second half of the season sporting a 2-2-1 mark.

"Our losses to St. Louis University and Quincy Colleges are nothing to be ashamed of," said Coach Dan Dallas. "But to prove ourselves to the NCAA selection committee (for post-season championship consideration) we'll have to knock off a top-five soccer power and SLU's is the only one left on our schedule."

The Cougars have managed a 3-6-1 record thus far in games they have bothered to count. They lost one game in the Ottawa Invitational Tournament.

UMSL lost a 1-1 decision to the Cougars last year at SLU's field. They came closer two years ago when they absorbed a 1-0 loss in a game played at Heman Park, home of the Rivermen before the campus soccer field was completed.

"Our schedule's been tough and it looks like it'll be just as rough this second half of the season," said Dallas.

"But we have some of the finest collegiate facilities in the country and the only way to prove that is to play well against the best."

Eight cheerleaders chosen for varsity, JV positions

Eight new cheerleaders were named following tryouts held Sept. 24 in the fieldhouse.

The student-faculty-staff panel of judges named five varsity and three junior varsity team members to fill out the squads. Three varsity cheerleaders were elected in spring tryouts.

Lisa Besper, a member of last year's squad and Pat Freeman, co-captain of the '69-70 team, were among those chosen.

This is a sophomore from Hazelwood High, a member of Delta Zeta and recording secretary of the Streamers Pep Club.

Swim tryouts

Undergraduate students interested in participating in the UMSL intercollegiate swimming program are asked to contact coach Ted Struckman, athletic office, 453-5641.

Struckman stressed a need for divers as well as swimmers and added that experienced persons would be preferred.

"But we want to see anyone who is talented in swimming or diving out there," he said.

The swimming Rivermen open their first season Jan. 19 against St. Louis University.

Sixth Meet the Rivermen Night, Nov. 19

The Streamers Club this week announced plans for the sixth annual Meet the Rivermen Night, Nov. 19, 6:30 p.m., in the multi-purpose building.

"This will be the first night held in the new fieldhouse, admission, as before, will be free.

Pre-game activities featuring campus organizations will precede the intra-squad game, UMSL's first look at the '71-72 Rivermen cagers.

Competition for organizations will include turtle races, 5-man volleyball championships (tournament finals) and a tug-o-war contest.

Balhline entertainment will be provided by the soccer team and members of the Rivermen varsity squad participating in a crab soccer game.

For more information, contact Jerry Visky, 453-5174 or Marilyn Timmerberg, 453-5211.
Harriers won't quit, down Miners, lose to Greenville

Marvin Goodwin quit the cross-country team for one week. Maybe he better do that more often. "Ted McQuery and Marvin ran really well, that's the best they're done all year," commented Coach Dan Wall after the two runners recorded 4th and 5th place finishes for UMSL in the Greenville three-way meet Tuesday.

The Red and Gold split the double-dual event at Greenville, Ill. College. They lost in their hosts 23-22 but topped the University of Missouri-Rolla, 23-34.

An unusual four mile course and a record time by individual winner Dave Johnson of Greenville combined to help the Rivermen.

Johnson must have heard of Ed "The Breeder" Heidbriier, because he took off like a shot and clocked 21:24, sixteen seconds ahead of the Rivermen's speedster.

"That's the best Dave Johnson's ever run on that course," said Wall. "He usually runs the course in about 22 minutes."

Tom Knappe capped Frank Neal's customary second place finish in UMSL scoring, taking sixth place with Neal crossing the finish line eighth.

"Tom ran a great race, said Wall.

McQuery came in 110, Goodwin finished 13th. Greg Roy came across with a 15th spot.

The harriers take on Principia and McKendree in another threeway meet Saturday, their record is now at the .500 mark.

Newman gets revenge

Harriers won't quit, down Miners, lose to Greenville...

Sig Pi gains ground; Newman gets revenge

Red League leading Sigma Pi saw no action last week but managed to gain ground on their closest rivals anyway as the second place Omega Men, 3-2, split their two contests.

The Newman Gods stomped the Men Tuesday, 18-6, but they had the last word Thursday, taking their revenge on the Black Raiders, 24-18.

The Raiders, playing only that one game last week, dropped from a second place to a third place tie. The Newman Gods, the other third place team at 2-2-1, split two games, losing to the A.M.F.'s, 12-6, on Thursday.

The A.M.F.'s surged themselves on Newman competition last week, taking their Tuesday game with Newman's second team (they have three) by a 12-6 score. These were the first wins of the year for A.M.F.

The Wild Bunch continued to run roughshod over Gold League competition last week, winning the one game they played, 30-6, at the expense of the last place Orangutangs.

The second place Hans, a half game behind the Bunch as a result of an early season tie, the only blemish on their record, handed Sigma Tau Gamma its third loss of the year in four starts, 12-8.

But Sig Tau came back in a Thursday game to slip past the Ramchargers, 4-8, for their lone triumph.

Pi Kappa Alpha, third place team in the tight Gold League race, which finds the top three teams separated by only one game, put it to the River Rats (the other Newman team), 30-24.

"These are the best football league teams we've ever had," said men's intramural director Larry Herres. "We've had good balance and good cooperation.

"I'm pleasantly surprised, he added, "but I have to feel that a facility like this fieldhouse, in which players can change clothes and shower, is bound to make the program stronger."
