University of Missouri Curator Robert Dempster generated outrage within the university system and in Jefferson City for the second time in two months Sept. 28, when he reportedly used the word "nigger" to describe a black employee he employs.

In an interview published in the Columbia Tribune Oct.2, Dempster was quoted as saying, "The nigger would have gone out and robbed a bank for me if I asked him to," to explain his relationship with Roosevelt Smith, a 65-year-old caretaker who lives on his property.

The article, written by Tribune reporter Mary Ann King, also reports that Dempster referred to black employees as "my people" and that he said, "I look after those blacks like I would my own children."

Elsewhere in the story, the nigger word is quoted as saying, "I sit here and chat with him, just as I would with you," in describing conversations he has held with James Wilder, a football player on the Columbia campus.

Wilder is black.

The interview followed a now-familiar remark the Sikeston curator made at the board's July 27 meeting at the Lake of the Ozarks. In a discussion about control of the university extension budget, Dempster said, "It's like the woman who said she was raped-she didn't resist enough."

That remark brought forth calls for an apology and his resignation from several groups, among them the National Organization for Women and the Associated Students of the University of Missouri (ASUM).

"Anyone who's that biased, that much of a bigot-and I think that's obvious from his remarks-has no business being on the Board of CURATORS."

"It's like he's really building a case," said Steven Bledsoe, ASUM's executive director. Afterwards, a statement was reportedly issued by Dempster's co-director, Terri Cazimero, which said the university was approaching Teasdale to remove him."

In an Oct. 9 telephone interview, view cut short when he hung up, Dempster told the Current, "I was misquoted, and I am making no further comment."

"I hung up with "it," King said. "There was a Tribune phone number there with me during the entire interview, and he can verify what was said."

King said that the interview took place in Dempster's home and at the Security State Bank in Sikeston, of which he is president and chairman of the Board. On Oct. 1, she said, she telephoned him to ask followup questions. At that time she told him that his use of a normally racist term disturbed her, and asked whether he realized he had used it.

"This is the last time I'm going to comment on anything that he calls himself. That's a term we use to describe people down here. You know things are different down here."

"Either one, that's the case, and it's friendly terminology," said Mark Knollman, UMSL student body president, "or two, the "we" that he refers to are all bigots or three, he's a bigot and he was just using that as an excuse."

"The latter one seems to be true because it's consistent with that he's calling himself."

Central Council finishes work on drafting new constitution

Earl Swift

Central Council, UMSL's student government, has completed work on the drafting of a constitutional working text. The organization's Committee on Student Governance ended eight months of discussion on that document and the group's by-laws at a meeting Oct. 9.

According to council representatives, the groups were made necessary a year ago next week, when Paul Free resigned as student president and council representatives discovered that the documents provided for no means to replace him.

Students, faculty and other members of the UMSL community have until Oct. 18 to suggest deletions, additions, or revisions to the text. Suggestions should be delivered to Kevin Dicken, Ad mi nistrative Committee chair person, at the council's offices, 253a University Center.

The group is expected to study and vote on approval of the texts at its Oct. 22 meeting. They will be put into effect following a student referendum in November or December.

The texts contain several changes to the present documents, most notably the establishment of a determined, perennial number of elected student government representatives.

Presently, the group bases the number of such representatives on the size of the student body, each member representing 300 UMSL students. The proposed constitutional text calls for the election of 30 representatives annually.

In addition to altering the council's articles of operation and organization, the revisions suggest that the group's name be changed: It is referred to as the Student Assembly throughout the documents.

Student organization offers alternatives

Jim Wallace

The Alternative Resources and Technologies group, formed on campus last year, offers educational in a wide variety of resources and technologies not used by any sector or group in their particular field.

The group is now studying such diverse subjects as solar and nuclear energy, underground houses, alternate medicine, and aquaculture, under-sea farming.

The group had, during the organizational fair, built a geodesic dome in the third floor lobby of Lucas Hall. They plan to expand on this activity and build a variety of such models around UMSL during the upcoming months.

Loren Paul, leader of the group and a physics major, stresses that his is "not a social organization."

"The group is established on a corporate framework," Paul said.

The group is composed of 15 active members. "I want people to be able to use the group as a reference when choosing a career," he said.

"Some of our members are looking for careers in an alternate field but some are just looking for decisions."

A good deal of the group's time is spent compiling a file to product information and literature pertaining to their field of interest.

"Through us, anyone can use the information we've gathered," Paul said.

They also take tours to points of interest: a geodesic dome home or a methane gas-powered sewage plant in North County.

The group is also interested, said Paul, in building more working projects like the dome in Lucas.

Eventually the group wants to build a real working model of some projects being planned and fabricate a self-sufficient dwelling project and display of what we've done. Also it will provide a much larger office and meeting place.

"Most of our working projects will be incorporated into the dwelling. It will be solar-heated with a wind mill generator and water-storage and water-saving features. No sewer hookups will be needed. So as basic functions are concerned, the house would be self-sufficient. A green house would also be built."

"We've been getting static from the administration when we request the space for our projects. They said if they give it to us they'd be under pressure from all other student organizations."

The group will also be participating in a statewide solar energy conference. The goal of the conference will be to lobby the legislature in the state's Janu­ ary session to provide legislation which will properly establish benefits for anyone who incorporates anything by the use of solar power into their homes or businesses.

"This legislation will already be drafted and filed before January and we expect it to be publicly approved," Paul said.

Safety seminar offered

A one-day seminar designed to acquaint industry practitioners with regulations on the handling and shipping of hazardous materials will be held here Oct. 25 from 8am-4pm. The seminar is co-sponsored by the Gateway Hazardous Materials and Safety Seminar Committee and UMSL Continuing Education.

The “Gateway Hazardous Materials and Safety Seminar” will cover preparation of shipping papers, handling of hazardous materials in the event of spills or accidents, working with damaged containers, and the disposal of hazardous materials. The registration fee for the seminar, including parking, lunch and materials, is $15. To receive a free brochure on the program or to register, call Clark Hickman of UMSL Continuing Education at 453-5961.

Management seminar here

A seminar designed to help women manage more effectively and achieve career advancement will be offered at UMSL Downtown, 522 Olive, November 6 to 8 from 9am - 4pm. The course will concentrate on developing an effective management style and making and implementing decisions. Time management, work priority, and organizational structure will also be covered in the three-day program.

“Women Managers: Now That You Have the Job, Focus on Your Career” is the title for the new seminar, which has been developed by UMSL’s School of Business Administration. The six-person faculty team includes Rose Jonas, manager of results management at the Monsanto Company; Deborah Bornholdt, a management consultant; and Patricia Jakubowski, associate professor of behavioral studies; Larry Baker and Nicholas D’Marco, UMSL associate professors of management and organizational behavior, and Douglas E. Durand, associate dean of the School of Business Administration, complete the faculty team.

For more information or to register, contact Dorothy Bacon at 621-2102.

Math Lab offers help

The CAD Math Lab, located at 424 SSB, offers individual or small group assistance to any student having difficulty in math or related courses.

The Lab also provides remedial instruction for students who need either a review of basic arithmetic or instruction in the basic algebra concepts necessary for success in Math 02. The lab is open Monday through Friday from 8am-3pm, and Monday through Thursday from 5-9pm. No appointments are necessary. For further information, stop in or call Anita McDonald at 453-5194.
Conway, others to speak here

St. Louis Mayor James Conway and others will address current issues affecting the metropolitan area in meetings of Dan Moitl's Sociology 99 ("The City") course this semester. The class meets Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays from 1:00-1:50p.m in 118 SSB.

The public is invited to attend these presentations. Each session will include brief remarks by the speaker and a question and answer period.

The schedule for speakers is as follows:

Dempster’s remarks show more cause for removal

UM Curator Robert Dempster has stirred up trouble for himself again. Ironically, this time he was trying to clear up his past problems. While his last comments produced outrage primarily from women groups, his most recent remarks—especially the use of the word “trigger”—have caused an uproar in the black community. When the Curators meet this Friday both groups, and several student government groups, will be there to demand Dempster’s resignation. It seems unlikely, under the weight of public opposition, that Dempster can continue on as a Curator.

And it is this public opposition that is important to understand just why his resignation is necessary. Those asking for Dempster’s removal, which includes the Current, are not out to stifle his right to state his beliefs, as some have claimed. Rather, as a public figure and in an official capacity, it is necessary to determine the role of this University, Dempster must be clear of any sort of prejudice that might bias his decisions and adversely affect one portion of the UM community.

Dempster’s remarks indicate that he views certain groups unequally. His statement of two years ago more than proved this point: “The women ought to attend to women’s activities. They ought to be looking for a husband instead of playing volleyball.”

In spite of his obvious indiscretions it should be remembered that Dempster has done much to help this university. By volunteering his time to take the monumental task of being a Curator he has done more than most. But it should be recognized that the Curator’s post is not one that can be tarnished and remain effective. Once the public and the students lose faith in the people who run the University, the University itself is adversely effected. The Current reaffirms its call for Dempster’s removal. The longer the wait, the more the University will suffer.

UMSL ignored one more time

While the protesters demonstrate outside, the UM Board of Curators will be holding their regular monthly meeting Friday. The meeting is only noteworthy here because of its lack of importance to UMSL.

Typical of many Curators meetings, UMSL is not mentioned in any of the agenda items. In fact, only UMC is scheduled to be discussed in both Academic Affairs and Physical Facilities. All together 12 topics, ranging from a UMC law school building addition to a change in rules concerning UMC married student housing, will be discussed in those two meetings.

The Columbia dominance of the University programs and funds has been and continues to be, out of proportion with the students served. This has caused a major stumbling block for advancement of UMSL programs.

Administrators say that this is a single University and should be thought of as separate entities. It is time to put some of these thoughts into constructive action and start dealing with the campuses equally.

Letters to the editor encouraged

Letters to the editor are encouraged and should be typed and double-spaced. Letters under 300 words will be given first consideration. Names of authors may be held upon request. Letters may be submitted by anyone from within or outside of the university and may be on any topic matter. Letters may be submitted either to the information desk in the University Center or to the Current office in room 8 Blue Metal Building.

Writer says students care

Dear Editor,

I read an unusually offensive editorial in the September 27th edition of the Current. It stated that the usually poor turnout of student voters in the Central Council elections was even poorer this year with the excuse of “I didn’t have time.” I wish to correct this statement. The writer in this case is accusing the students of not caring in the administration of their rights on campus.

However, this is not the case. After speaking of a number of students, I found that many of them did not realize that an election had even taken place. Others say that they did not know any of the candidates. Most students at UMSL do care about what is happening. There just seems to be a lack of communication. I think that the students at UMSL would be more aware of their surroundings if there was more publicity to the goings-on on campus.

Suggestions would be posters, more flyers, and a student assembly where Central Council candidates may make election speeches. In this way, everyone could meet the candidates, hear their opinions and views, and vote using an accurate choice.

Unfortunately, this campus doesn’t seem organized enough to pull off such feats. I’m sure that it is way beyond its capabilities.

Sincerely,

Sue Jansen

A concerned student.
Constitution

Preamble
We, the students of the University of Missouri, desiring to provide for greater student participation in the general administration and government of the institution, and believing that such participation is essential to the welfare of the academic community, have formed the student government. It is designed to work toward fuller student participation in all aspects of university life through the development of a constitution which will carry out the philosophy that all students be encouraged to govern themselves and be responsible for the conduct of all students. In addition the Assembly shall work with the faculty and the staff toward increasing understanding and cooperation with the need to increase service to the students, the faculty and the metropolitan community, and the State.

Article I Assembly Membership
1.100 Elected Representatives
There shall be 30 elected representatives:
1.200 Organizational Representatives

Each organization recognized by the Office of Student Activities shall be allowed one representative on the Assembly.
1.300 The Assembly shall provide for the replacement of elected representatives, and the replacement shall be responsible for the work of the original representative until the end of the academic year. A new replacement shall be elected from among the individuals from the membership of the organization who would have been eligible to be elected for the unexpired term of the representative.

Meetings of the Assembly shall be held at least once per month during the academic year. Special meetings may be called by the President, the Executive Committee, or by the petition of at least one-third of the representatives.

Article II Officers

The student body president is the head of the student government. He shall be elected at large and then shall be considered an ex-officio member of the Assembly. The duties and rights of the presidency are:
2.100 Serving as chairman of the Executive Committee.
2.200 Representing the student body in official capacities at all meetings of legislative bodies of the Assembly's approval.
2.300 To be the official representative of the student body in the correspondence.
2.400 To report to the Assembly on the activities of the Executive Committee and on actions involving his other duties.
2.500 To appoint the secretary and treasurer with the approval of the Assembly.
2.600 To be able to be, for his term only, appoint those aides and assistants that the president feels are needed for the smooth operation of the student government.
2.700 The president shall be appointed by the president with the approval of the Assembly. The president shall administer Assembly funds in accordance with the Constitution and Assembly bylaws. All transactions must keep accurate and available financial records.
2.800 The president shall be the representative and shall be appointed by the Assembly.
2.900 The secretary of the Assembly shall be responsible for the financial records of the Assembly. The president shall be a member of the Assembly financial committee.
2.100 The secretary shall be elected by the Assembly as its first order of business at its first meeting after the Assembly is elected. The chairperson shall:
3.100 The chairperson shall be responsible for the financial records of the Assembly.
3.200 The president shall appoint a member of the Assembly to serve as the parliamentarian of the Assembly.
3.300 The parliamentarian shall be the chairperson's assistant in meeting the assembly's attention to any matter that he feels to be a vital importance to the operation of the Assembly. It would be introduced under new business.
3.400 The president is the presiding officer of the Assembly and shall, from his membership a parliamentarian, choose for his term only, assume the chairmanship in the chair's absence and to answer questions of parliamentary procedure and floor matters at any meeting of the chairperson. The parliamentarian shall be chosen by the Assembly at the beginning of the academic year and shall be the presiding officer of the general elections. The parliamentarian must familiarize himself with the Assembly, the actions of the presiding officer, and the "Robert's Rules of Order" (newly revised).
3.500 The assembly shall maintain the following:
3.600 No committee or board shall go into effect pending student approval. It shall supercede any previous documents.

Assembly Membership and Ratification of the Constitution
9.100 The constitution may be amended as follows:
9.200 The amendment shall be proposed either by a petition bearing the signatures of the percent of the total student body and the signatures of one-third of the Assembly membership as defined in the Constitution, or by petition of at least one-twentieth of the signatures of two-thirds plus one of the Assembly membership.
9.300 The amendments shall be considered approved when it is voted for by a majority of the students voting in the referendum.
9.400 This constitution shall be ratified when it has received a simple majority of the Assembly members' signatures and then shall have been approved by the Board of Curators. The referendum shall be in the referendum. After receiving the vote, the Board of Curators shall go into effect pending student approval. It shall supercede any previous documents.

Bylaws

Introduction
This student government shall be considered synergistic and that shall function as a whole.

Article I The Executive Branch
Section 1—The Executive Branch of the student government shall be composed of the student body president, the student body vice president, the executive committee, the student body president and the student body vice president.

Section II—The student body president shall be an ex-officio member of the Assembly. He or she shall also be the chairperson of the Executive Committee. He or she shall appoint those aides and advisors he or she desires to serve.

Section III—The Student Body Vice President

The vice president shall be an ex-officio member of the Assembly and shall be the vice-president of the Assembly.

Section IV—The Executive Committee

The Executive Committee shall be composed of the president, the vice president, the officers of the Assembly, the directors of student government, and the student body president.

A. Responsibility for setting the dates of the meetings of the Assembly with the approval of the Board of Curators.
B. The Executive Committee shall be that committee as defined in the constitution.

C. The Executive Committee shall assume the powers and duties described herein as well as those assigned by the Assembly or the constitution.

D. It shall be composed of those members elected to the constitution as well as those advisors appointed by the president.

E. It shall establish the agenda for both regular and special meetings of the Assembly.

F. It shall prepare the yearly budget for the student government subject to the Assembly's approval.

Article 2 The Legislative Branch

The Legislative Branch of the student government shall be composed of the Assembly and its auxiliary bodies.

Section I—The Assembly

The Assembly shall consist of the elected representatives, the organizational representatives and various ex-officio representatives, such as the Dean of Student Affairs, the president and the vice president.

Section II—Meeting Procedure

A. Parliamentary Procedure

"Robert's Rules of Order" (most recent edition available) shall be the official rules of order and parliamentary manual of the Assembly and all Assembly-related meetings.

1. The parliamentarian shall be the final authority in questions of parliamentary procedure and Assembly protocol.

2. In the absence of the parliamentarian the chairperson shall rule on parliamentary appeals pending appeal in the Assembly.

B. Reorder of business at all Assembly meetings shall be:

1. Preliminary
   a) Call to order
   b) Roll call
   c) Approval of minutes
   2. Reports of the Officers and the Dean
   a) President's Report
   b) Dean of Student Affairs Report
   c) Vice president's Report
   d) Treasurer's Report
   e) Chairperson's Report
   f) Other officials' reports
   3. Reports of the Standing Departments

   e) Ad hoc Committee Reports
   f) Old Business
   g) New Business
   h) Close
   i) Next set of the time of the next Assembly meeting

C. Motions may be brought to the floor at any time under new business providing that the motion follows the order of business and that the chair has a written copy before the motion is moved on the floor of the Assembly.

D. Officers', directors', and chairpersons' reports must be submitted in writing to the secretary of the Assembly no later than the roll call of the meeting. Also, the Executive Committee and the standing departments shall submit an annual summary of their actions to the Assembly. If no report is submitted in writing, none will be accepted from the floor.

E. Written proxies shall be allowed by the chairpersons and shall not be counted in the quorum. A proxy shall empower the holder to vote in place of the issuing. The holder must be a recognized representative of the Assembly. No representative may hold more than one proxy in addition to his/her own vote. All proxies must be presented to the secretary of the Assembly before the roll call and the secretary shall announce their existence upon completion of the roll call.

Meeting Discipline

At the chair's discretion a member of the Assembly may be called out of order. Two such reprimands shall be sufficient to remove the member from that meeting. The member shall then be considered absent from that meeting. The Assembly members present may reverse the chair's decision by a two-thirds vote.

The chair may also appoint a sergeant-at-arms to enforce the order of the Assembly.

Section III—Determination of Meetings

A. Responsibility for setting the dates of the meetings of the Assembly shall reside in the Executive Committee.

B. Responsibility for setting the times and places of the meetings of the Assembly shall reside in the Assembly itself as the last order of business in each meeting.

C. If a quorum is not present at the designated meeting time a maximum of one hour may be provided by the chairperson in order to reach a quorum.

D. It shall also be the responsibility of this department to investigate and recommend additional electoral procedures to the Assembly for its approval; and

E. It shall then be the responsibility of this department to conduct those administrative functions as the Assembly deems necessary.

Section V—Evaluation and Recommendation Department

A. The department shall collect and act upon student grievances in all areas.

B. The department shall serve as the nominating committee for such positions as the Assembly be requested or required to appoint.

C. The department shall monitor the activities of the boards and commissions to which members have been appointed. The department shall also monitor the activities of the Assembly.

D. The department shall evaluate the performance of one of the university which affects the student. The department shall then recommend to the appropriate office a course of action.

Section VI—Publicity and Communication Department

The department shall act as described in the constitution.

Section VII—Operation Department

The Operation Department shall conduct social, philanthropic activities and such tasks as the Assembly deems needed.

Section VIII—Ad hoc Committees

A. Ad hoc committees shall be formed by a majority of the Assembly. All special committees shall be reviewed at least once every regular meeting and shall not remain for longer than one semester.

B. Ad hoc committees shall be required to submit written reports to the Executive Committee in accordance with the time limits specified by the Constitution and the institution of the committee.

Article 3 The Judicial Branch

The Judicial Branch of the student government shall be the Student Court as constituted in the constitution.

Section I—Disciplinary Problems

A. The grounds for disciplinary action shall be those set down in the constitution.

B. The disciplinary hearing before the Student Court shall be open to the public. All Assembly members and interested parties shall be informed of the time hearing not less than one calendar week before the hearing.

C. The Student Court shall enforce due consideration of the proper sanctions.

D. Sanctions shall be imposed but not limited to:

1. written reprimand;
   2. suspension from the Assembly for a stated period;
   3. expulsion from the Assembly;
   4. recommendation to the UMSL administration for possible disciplinary action.

Section IV—Membership of the Assembly

Section I—All representatives of the Assembly must be students.

Section II—By definition of a student:

A. A student shall be any person currently enrolled for credit at one or more courses.

B. Students who attended classes during the preceding winter semester will be considered for the summer.

C. No Assembly member shall be on at least one standing department.

D. Standing department members shall be elected at the first meeting after the general election or when a vacancy occurs.

Section VIII—Definitions

A. Department and Committee Membership

1. Department membership shall be open to members of the Assembly.

2. Sub-committee membership shall be open to members.

3. Every Assembly member shall be on at least one standing department.

B. Standing department membership shall be elected at the first meeting after the general election or when a vacancy occurs.

Contents of their own mailbox each week.

Section VI—Appeal

If a representative misses two meetings per semester, the member is

Section VII—Appeal

A. A representative who has expelled may appeal directly to the Assembly and a two-thirds vote will reinstate that person to full membership rights.

B. Should a representative's appeal be rejected by the Assembly, the representative may make an appeal to be heard by the Student Court with the Assembly being represented by director of the Administrative Department or a representative of that department.

Behavioral Studies conference scheduled here this month

The executive President's Committee on Mental Retardation will address the Second Behavioral Studies Conference scheduled October 19 and 20 at UMSL. President J. Krause will speak to program participants Saturday, Oct. 20 at 9am on the development of early intervention programs for high-risk infants and young children.

Mrs. Eleanor McGovern, the other keynote speaker for the conference, will speak on "Child Care—A Needed Heritage," Oct. 19 at 9am.

The two-day conference is designed for special education professionals, teachers, parents, mental health administrators and social workers. "More Than One Way to Care" is the theme for the conference, which will include a variety of panel discussions, workshops, paper presentations, and panel discussions on subjects ranging from the needs of handicapped persons to care of the terminally ill. Child abuse, child care, and other topics will also be discussed.

Krause has been with the President's Committee since 1969. Prior to this current appointment, she served as executive director of the California Council for Retarded Children. He also has been involved in legislative planning for California's mental retardation programs.

"I have been putting this kind of impression on the State of Missouri definitely should do the same," said Knollman, "It's just common sense, really."

The establishment of a student garden club here—the first of its kind in the nation—is the goal of several faculty members, students, and area garden club officials.

The club's formation would represent the first time a collegiate garden club has been recognized by the National Council of State Garden Clubs in the U.S.

As members, students might be eligible to apply for scholarships and would be exposed to horticulture, conservation and landscape design techniques.

For membership information, call Charles Granger at 453-5811 or Kaye Pelich at 453-5777.

Business School sponsors information service

The School of Business Administration, in conjunction with the School's Alumni Association, will continue to sponsor an on-going program called BASCIS - Business Alumnus-Student Career Information Service.

The program involves approximately 80 business alumni who have volunteered to meet with business administration students, on a one-on-one basis, to provide them with some practical information about what is involved in various career paths. It is available to both majors through the School of Business Administration's office of Academic Advising, 487 SSIB.

Large number of housewives return to school

This part one of a two-part series on housewives returning to school. This article deals with the decision to return to school.

The second part, which will be printed next week, will deal with adjustments once a woman is back in school and also with problems they face when they have their degrees.

John Pietsman

"I was sick of taking jobs with no future, jobs without a challenge. I knew this would be a step in the right direction."

"I got tired of being a housewife. I felt I had another role to play in society."

"I didn't know what I wanted to do after high school, so I worked for a couple of years, and then I started back."

These are just a few of the many reasons given by some UMSL students over 24 for deciding to begin or return to college. UMSL offers ample proof that college is not just for kids. Approximately 35 percent of UMSL students are over 24. Returning to college may not be as traumatic to an adult as it is to the first day of kindergarten for a child. Nonetheless, it can generate its share of apprehension, according to UMSL student Lana Steinman.

Steinman, a speech-communication major said, "It was scary stepping out of the safe, everyday world of home and kids, and stepping into the unfamiliar world of school."

"It was scary stepping out of the safe, everyday world of home and kids, and stepping into the unfamiliar world of school."

"It's so scary when I started," Steinman said. "I was taking notes of my notes. "It was just a matter of time before I learned to take one day at a time."

Steinman is now preparing to take another big step in her life as she prepares to receive her degree in December and enter back into the working world.

Ann Thomas is another example of a housewife-turned-student. Before her return to school as a speech-communication major, Thomas would have described herself as a "typical housewife."

After accumulating 93 hours at the University of South Carolina, she quit, and much to her mother's delight, got married. After playing the role of a housewife and mother for 10 years, her desire for an education returned.

"I didn't want to end up playing the housewife role forever," she said. "I really love school. I find it very fulfilling. I could even see myself as a 'professional student.'"

"It still have to find time to be a mother and a wife," she said, "and I also need time for leisure activities."

These two women consider themselves to be prime examples of a growing number of college students: women who have returned to school to prepare for a midlife career while keeping the home fires burning.

The vibrant sounds of South Chicago urban blues will burst out of the J.C. Penney Auditorium Friday, Oct. 12 when J. B. Hutto and "The New Hawks" dive onto the stage for a free concert. The concert will be from 12-1:30pm.

Hutto, not in the regularly scheduled program of concerts in the University Center, is presented by Student Activities through Ron Edwards of the University Center.

Following the tradition of Elmore James and Muddy Waters, Hutto plays an aggressive, electric style of blues. He writes most of the material he performs, but still does a variety of other rhythm and blues numbers. Hutto is currently touring with "The New Hawks," featuring Bob Case on bass, Leroy Pina on drums, and "Silverton" Steve Canvey on guitar.

Coming to national attention relatively recently, Hutto has played the blues bars circuit in Chicago, such as Turner's Lounge, for well over a decade. It was during these years that Hutto developed his own style—tough and visceral.

"I think that if people hear Hutto, they'll like him, but they have to hear him first," Ron Edwards said of the last-minute concert.

Hutto is in St. Louis for several concerts at a bar named after him. These concerts will be on Friday and Saturday. The Bar, J. B. Hutto's, is in the Woodmill shopping center.

Two well-known performers will be at UMSL next weekend. Estelle Parsons will star in "Miss Margarida's Way" on Friday, Oct. 19, at 8:30pm. Acclaimed tenor Robert Gartside will present a recital Sunday Oct. 21 at 7:30pm.

Parsons drew rave reviews for her one-woman play during its New York run. Honored included a Tony Award nomination, the Drama Desk Award, and Cue Golden Apple Award.

Written by Brazilian playwright Roberto Athayde, the play is a challenge for the audience as well as for its star. Parsons plays a tyrannical, repressed, and vitriically vocal schoolmarm, whose classroom histrionics fascinate, repel and convulse her eighth-grade class, played in varying degrees of passive and active involvement, by the audience.

Parsons has appeared on stage in classical as well as modern plays since 1962, and has won two Obie Awards and numerous Tony Award nominations. She has recently turned to directing, as well, but is perhaps best known for her Oscar-winning role in the film "Bonnie and Clyde."

Tickets for the one-night performance, held in the J.C. Penney Auditorium, are $4 for UMSL students, $6 for UMSL faculty and staff, and $8 for general public.

Gartside will continue the weekend when he performs in the J.C.Penney Auditorium on Oct. 21. His recital will include works by John Dowland, Franz Schubert, Francis Poulenc, and a selection of songs by American composers Stephen Foster and Charles Ives. Gartside will be accompanied by Laurence Berman at the piano.

Gartside was born in St. Louis where he was graduated from John Burroughs School. After attending Harvard as a National Scholar, Gartside traveled to Europe to pursue voice studies with Pierre Bernac, Francis Poulenc, and, later, Ernst Reichtert. He remained in Europe for ten years, performing in the major capitals of Europe. In addition to solo recitals, Gartside has worked with many American and European orchestras, including the Boston Symphony.

Tickets for the recital are $2 for UMSL students, $3 for UMSL faculty and staff, and $4 for general public.

Tickets for both shows can be purchased at the Information Desk or at the door. For more information, call 453-5148.

At last, Encare®. Neat, compact, no bigger than your fingertip, Encare is fast becoming the most talked about contraceptive we have today.

Free from hormonal side effects, Encare is available without a prescription. And it might well be the easiest method of birth control you will ever use.

Simply simple.
You simply insert Encare with the tip of your finger. There’s no filling, no tubes, no applicators. And no messy paraphernalia to clean up afterward. Each tiny insert contains an exact, premeasured amount of the clinically proven spermicide, nonoxynol-9.

Spermsafe.

And if you ask your gynecologist about Encare, you’ll be reassured to hear that Encare cannot harm your body the way the pill or IUD might. Which means, you simply won’t be worried about those complications.

For maximum protection, it is essential that you push all six contraceptive foams, gels or creams into your vagina as directed. For information write:

Intramural Touch Football nears playoffs

Mike Hempen

The Fall intramural Touch Football League this year has reached a climax. The three-week regular season is over, and the playoffs are about to begin.

The league consists of eight teams and is broken down into two four team divisions. The are the independent division and the fraternity division. Students not in a fraternity are allowed to play for a team in the independent division only. However, faculty members and staff are allowed to play for any team, regardless of which division they are in.

Each team plays five regular season games. They play the other three teams in their division and two of the four teams from the other division. Therefore not everybody's schedule is the same.

The playoff system is set up so that only the first and second place teams in each division make it to the finals. The two first place teams play the second place teams in the other division. Then the winners meet for the championship.

This year the playoffs will take place on Saturday, October 11 at 3pm. The games will begin on Thursday, October 11 at 3pm. There are two games in each division.

The series between the two schools now stands at 1-1-1. UMSL beat UE in 1977, 1-0, and dropped a 2-1 decision to them last year.

UMSL travels to Cincinnati Saturday to battle Xavier University. The Rivermen's record now stands at 3-1-4.

Mona, I've finally decided where I'd like to make my career: State Farm!

State Farm?

Great Playshare!

You're going to be a soil tiller. Living an agrarian lifestyle!

Vigil, you're going to be a salesman? How could you? Even if they'd have you...

Mona, there's more to insurance than selling policies. Insurance is a business opportunity. State Farm is looking for people interested in a data processing career. I don't have a computer science degree but I do have six hours of data processing courses. So I qualify.

Good grief! They're omnivorous.

No way, Mona! State Farm is the place for men and women with any degree and six to nine hours of data processing courses. Of course, you've got to be interested in a data processing career.

Oh, Virgil, you wear a clean pair of jeans to the interview.

To get details on career opportunities for computer programmer analysts and auditors contact your Campus Placement Director or visit the State Farm Recruiter. Our representative will be on campus October 19, 1979.

DeRousse causes UMSL to capitalize on ‘breaks’

For Jerry DeRousse, a Junior midfielder on UMSL’s soccer squad who broke his leg last August in a pre-season game against Harris Stowe, the road to recovery has been a long and painful one.

But after his September 30 performance against SIU-Edwardsville, there’s no doubt that the pre-broken leg DeRousse is back. And no one is happier than DeRousse, himself.

“I feel good now, because my body is finally functioning right,” he said, “and I’m so hungry, I just want to play.”

DeRousse, who prepared at Mehlville High School in St. Louis, came to UMSL in 1976. He was also recruited by Quincy College, but opted to go with UMSL.

“I wanted to stay in town and play with the big schools,” he said. “It’s not that expensive to go here and with the money they gave me, it was the best place to come.”

The injury was particularly crushing for DeRousse, since he felt that he was at the height of his college career.

“I was ready to play ready to play half last year, because I played for Kasir that summer,” he said. “I got a lot of experience and I feel good.”

DeRousse was still apprehensive about his chances when he said, “I had my doubts.”

“I had a lot of pain and frustration because I couldn’t run well. “A lot of nerves and muscle had to be cut, and at first, I could only run about a quarter-mile, because of the pain in my leg.”

“I kept telling myself I could do it (come back), but I was afraid of messing myself up.”

Unfortunately, that’s exactly what he did. DeRousse received permission to play from the doctor the day after the first practice. During that first session, though, DeRousse became a little over-exuberant and pulled a thigh muscle.

“From not playing for two years, I jumped right into it (practice), and my leg just couldn’t take it,” he said. “I guess I wasn’t as ready as I thought.”

Because of the injury, DeRousse sat on the sidelines for most of the pre-season. He saw a bit of action in the opener against St. Louis U., but then sat out the next few games.

Since then, though, he has seen increasingly more action for the Rivermen, who are on the verge of demanding national recognition.

“Our main objective is to get to Miami (site of the NCAA Division II championships),” he said. “We just want to take one game at a time. We are just starting to get confidence.”

DeRousse’s main concerns right now is to stay injury-free and continue to be an asset to the team.

“I don’t know what to do,” he said. “I know I wouldn’t play the rest of the year.”

What he did do, was withdraw from school and lie around for four months with a cast on his leg. He re-enrolled at UMSL in January, and it wasn’t until late February before he could start rehabilitation on his leg.

But it was not to be as DeRousse saw his optimistic season turn into one he’d like to forget.

“I didn’t know how much action for DeRousse, since he got my leg,” explained DeRousse. “His foot came up and cracked both bones in my lower left leg. I’ve never been in so much pain.”

DeRousse worked extremely hard and became a starter by midseason.

In 1976, DeRousse again started at midfield for the Rivermen: the season was not quite up to par with the previous one as UMSL brought in several freshmen and began making plans for the future.

During the 1976 season, DeRousse was included in those plans, but a leg-tackle by a Harris Stowe player in pre-season action almost ended his career.

“I tried to slide tackle me and instead of getting the ball, he got my leg,” explained DeRousse. “His foot came up and cracked both bones in my lower left leg. I’ve never been in so much pain.”

The injury was particularly crushing for DeRousse, since he felt that he was at the height of his career.
