Bid recommended to Curators

Cheryl Kentehty

The low bid of $498,000 by the J.E. Novack Construction Co., has been recommended to the University of Missouri Board of Curators for the construction of the University Center's Food Service renovation. The bid is expected to be approved April 24 by the curators at their meeting in Rolla, according to William Edwards, director of the University Center.

The target date for the completion of UMSL's renovation is scheduled for the start of school in the fall. The total cost of the renovation is estimated at $678,641. Furnishings and fixtures will add an additional $54,000 to the estimated figure.

Several alternatives drawn up by the architects of the project, Hagemann Interiors Inc., were dropped to keep costs down.

The entrance doors and restroom vestibules will not be changed at this time. According to Edwards, these changes could be made at some time in the future.

Both construction and raised platforms, proposed in the architects' plans, were also eliminated.

Carpeting will be laid through out the entire area. Edwards said it was "cheaper to go carpet." He added that carpet has been successfully been used in this type of installation.

Other alternatives were vinyl asphalt tile, which requires a lot of labor and maintenance, Edwards said. For cleaning purposes, Edwards said, it will be easier to get a student worker to run a vacuum to clean up a spill than a mop and bucket.

"Our hope is that people will not be able to recognize the plaza," Edwards said.

"The way the plaza is designed has a lot to do with everyone's attitude, including the employees," Edwards commented. "The fewer people will be needed to work in the area after the renovation, he said. Part of the money will go toward making the department, according to Edwards, work more efficiently.

Students receiving doctoral degrees will receive them separately from their particular school. The ceremony will conclude with speeches by Chancellor Arnold B. Grobman and the president of the Alumni Association.

"The graduates will pick up a diploma binder," said Richard Dunlap, assistant to Chancellor Grobman and the coordinator of the ceremony. "The diplomas will be in the binders. Then the names will be announced with the honors and each has won." [See "Ceremony," page 3]

"We want to publicize ourselves and get recognizability back. It is important for students to know who their student body president is, what he stands for, what he can do for them, and what they can do for themselves."

One of the changes in the Student Association proposed by Wines was that his salary be funneled into a special fund. The fund would be used to start new projects on campus, such as check-cashing, and the possible benefits of extra staff members to take burdens off chairpersons of some committees. It would also be used for travel expenses. A bank account, according to Wines, will be set up for these funds and be open for public inspection.

"I would like to stress that this is my personal decision," Wines said. "I will be receiving the salary, it is just that the money I receive will go into the special fund to allow for more money for special projects if needed."

Wines said one of the most important things for the Student Association president and vice president to do is to increase communication between govern-

'Moonchildren' here

"Moonchildren," a play that examines the coming-of-age of a group of young women in mid-1960's, will be presented. April 24, 25 and 26 at UMSL by the University Players at 8pm in Benton Hall theater.

The play is written by Michael Weller, focuses on a group of seniors at a midwestern college who are trying to cope with their imminent disillusionment with reality. Living together in a dilapidated apartment, surrounded by 857 milk bottles and assorted protest placards, they deal with the facts of life by improving new ones. The play asks the question: is there life after college?

General admission tickets are $2. For further information, call 533-5485.

Education grants available

The Institute of International Education has announced that May 1 is the official opening of the 1982-83 competition for grants for graduate study or research abroad in academic fields and for professional training in the creative and performing arts. More than 500 awards to 50 countries are expected to be made.

These grants are designed to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and other countries through the exchange of persons, knowledge, and skills.

Application forms and further information for students currently enrolled at UMSL, may be obtained after May 1 from James Roark, Fulbright Program Adviser, at 409 Lucas. The deadline for filing applications on this campus is Sept. 15.

Open house planned

An open house has been planned for Sunday, May 3, to introduce the St. Louis community to the new Music Building at UMSL. The building will be open from 2-4pm. The Music Building is located on the north side of National Bridge Road just east of the main entrance to the UMSL campus.

Faculty and students of the University's Music Department will perform during the open house. Light refreshments will be served. Visitors are invited to attend and tour the facilities.

Seven-Up awards given

Five UMSL students were chosen as Seven-Up Student Leaders. The awards, sponsored by the Seven-Up Bottling Company of St. Louis, were presented in the categories of Student of the Semester, Greek, Special Interest Groups, Activities, and Curriculum.

The respective winners from each category were Yates Samuel, Family Helony, Lawrence Winse, Joanie Schreiber, and Rita Realle.

Music concert scheduled

The Concert Band and Wind Ensemble and the University Symphony Orchestra at UMSL will present a combined concert on Sunday, May 3, in the Education Auditorium on the Marillac campus. The concert, originally scheduled for April 26, will begin at 7:30pm.

The Concert Band program will include "Sinfonietta" by Robert Jager, Overture to "Der Prokurist" by Eugene D'Albert and "Finnimore National Entrance into the Tower." The Percussion Ensemble will play "Xochipilli" by Carlos Chavez. Warren Bellis, associate professor of music, will direct the program.

The concert is free and open to the public. For further information call 533-5980.

Banquet to honor students

The UMSL chapter of Phi Kappa Phi, an honor society, has invited graduating seniors, and graduate students to join the group. Students who accept, along with 16 faculty members, will be initiated at a banquet to be held on May 3, Arthurton, professional assistant in the Psychology Department at UMSL, will speak at the banquet.

The UMSL chapter was installed in September, 1960. The honor society is designed to promote the pursuit of excellence in higher education by recognizing outstanding students, faculty and staff. Phi Kappa Phi, founded in 1897, is the only honor society in the nation which initiates members from all academic disciplines.

Campus guides needed

Four upper class students are needed this summer to serve as campus tour guides and work with the Student Affairs Staff in small group orientations. Opportunities from June 22 to July 8. The ten day program is incorporated into summer pre-registration, which is held annually to assist new students preparing for their first semester at UMSL.

The Student Affairs Staff will be coordinating the pre-registration and orientation program with the School of Arts and Sciences advising. Student assistants will receive approximately $200 for their service. Interested students should apply at the Office of the dean of Student Affairs at 301 Woods Hall.

Library schedule set

The May 18 to August 26 library schedule has been announced for the summer session.

Beginning May 18 to June 7, the Thomas Jefferson Library will be open Monday, Thursday and Friday from 9am-5pm. On Tuesday and Wednesday, it will remain open from 9pm. On Saturday the facilities will stay open from noon-8pm.

The Education Library will be open on Monday, Thursday and Friday from 8am-5pm and until 9pm Thursday and Tuesday and Wednesday and Sunday it will stay open from noon-8pm.

The reference room will be open from 8am-4:30pm on Monday, Thursdays and Fridays, and from 8am-9pm on Tuesday and Wednesday. On Sundays, the room will be open from noon-5:30pm.

From June 8 to July 31, both libraries will remain open on Sunday from 7am-9pm. The reference room will be open from 8am-9pm.

On Friday the libraries will stay open from 9am-9pm. The reference room will close at 4:30pm.

Both libraries will be open on Sunday from noon-8pm, but the reference room will close at 4:30pm.

Amoco Award recipients named

Two UMSL professors have received the 1981 Amoco Outstanding Teaching Awards. George Taylor, associate professor of psychology and Van Reidhout, assistant professor of anthropology will each receive $1,000.

Judging of the nominees included the following criteria: advising and assisting students outside the classroom, creative and innovative teaching, classroom performance, interest in students concerning their careers, future education, and other personal and professional attributes deserving of recognition.

Applications submitted required documentation by letters from former students, copies of student surveys and other materials which helped demonstrate outstanding teaching abilities.

Paper receives recognition

The Missouri Alumni News has received an award from the Missouri Newspaper Association consecration to the Missouri State University. The newspaper received eight awards in various categories. Jason Wells received a second place award in the Critical Review category.

Earl Swift, outgoing president of the association, received a first and a third place award in the Editorial category. Swift also was awarded second place in the

The brochure will be sent to the graduates through the mail.

The brochure has sent out 915 letters to the graduates and will be taking orders for caps and gowns until April 24. Because some orders for gowns are placed after the deadline the brochure will not know until the last minute how many students will actually participate in the ceremony.

Undegraduate students will serve as volunteer ushers and will direct different groups to the assigned areas in the auditorium, they will also assist in crowd control.

"These volunteers do a great job. They are very important in listening to the crowds," Dunlap said.

Reception held for award recipients

Recipients of the 1981 Student Affairs Award were honored at a reception held April 21. The winners were selected from campus-wide nominations submitted by students, faculty, and staff. The Student Affairs division rated the nominees and selected the winners based on service to UMSL and participation in UMSL activities, according to Dan Wallace, assistant dean of Student Affairs.

Nominees and recipients were David K. Adam, Cadrie Antheron, Anthony A. Bell, Philip Booce, Teddy M. Branson, Kris Brown, Mary Burrows and Sharon Cox, Daniel A. Crone, Charles W. Gerding, Richard Green, Margie Hoffmann, Cheryl Keathley, Carolyn Komyai, Patricia Kinamore and Jeff Kuchno also received awards.

In addition, Patricia Ludwing, Cheryl Morgan, Murray R. Morgan, Bob Netherton, David Pearson, Rita Reale, Margaret M. Roach, and Steve Ryals were also named.

Yates Sanders, Art Stumpf, Linda Swain, Earl Swift, Sandra Tyc, Deborah Trinhong, Michael Villhard, Lawrence E. Wines, and Jeff Wittmater were also recipients.

Six students were also chosen as Evening College recipients. They included L. L. Primm, Charles W. Primm, Helen H. Ruhlmann, Mary J. Schorner, H. Elaine Weatherford, and Lawrence E. Wines.

This is a new award using the same basic procedures as the Student Affairs Award based on different criteria, Wallace said.

These students were selected based on their service to the community, academic activities, work schedules, and how these students incorporated these different roles.

A definite schedule of hours has not yet been set, but the area may be open seven days a week.

Edwards said the names "caterina" and "snack bar" will hopefully be eliminated. The University Center Advisory Board has been asked to consider a new name for the area.

Eleven bids for the renovation project were received from 29 prospective bidders. The J.E. Novaek Construction Co. has completed similar renovation projects at Oklahoma State University under a $2.5 million budget and at Arizona State for $2 million.

Plans for renovating the Food Services area on the Marillac campus is also a future possibility.

"We do anticipate some renovation in the future," Edwards said. "Contact us and it will be accepted." Funding is a major problem, he said.

Possible changes include re-placing the carpeting and the addition of booths in the dining area.

El Salvador crisis discussed

Bub DePalma

An official spokesperson for the Democratic Revolution Front (FDR) in El Salvador, Ramon Cardona, spoke at a political science seminar Friday, April 17.

Cardona spoke against United States military and diplomatic aid to the junta in El Salvador and called for educational assistance to the workers.

The FDR, according to Cardona, was formed as a front to serve as the political instrument of the Salvadoran people in their struggle for liberations and a new society free of corruption, violation of human rights and all forms of exploitation. It brings together the revolutionary, democratic and progressive forces which have developed through ten years of struggle against the El Salvador dictatorship," he said.

Cardona gave a history of the revolution in El Salvador and the reasons why people have taken up arms to protect themselves.

"The first threat in the eyes of the government came in the 1920s when the first labor unions were begun," Cardona said. "In the 1960's, there was a military takeover in El Salvador and the labor unions were very strong and then repressed. The economic and social conditions were terrible. There was no social services and a system of repression was created.

After the military takeover began, Cardona said, 30,000 people were killed in three weeks. Colonels and generals were elected as presidents and people were forced into exile and tortured or killed against the government.

In the 1960's also, labor unions were dissolved and began breaking away from the government. Posular universities began to serve as schools for which the teachers were forced to withdraw by violence.

"The pressure for land was enormous," Cardona said. "The land was owned by the government. One-half of the lands were not being used.

"In the meantime, the workers were literally dying for land. The migrant workers went on strike because of wages. Only three strikes were declared legal and these were repressed by the government," he said.

Cardona said that teachers had to work for some chucks, desks, and chairs and writing tablets. It also took two to three years for teachers to receive their first paycheck.

"Seventy percent of the education in El Salvador is public," he said. "But 70 to 80 percent will not pass the test to get into the schools. This is done on purpose. Guards are stationed at the doors of the schools. They resemble army barracks instead of a school.

In 1974, the workers staged a demonstration to get city people involved and to show repression. The first open massacre also occurred. In 1975, all forces joined in a coalition against the government.

"The legal means were proving feudal. Demonstrations were being repressed by massacres," Cardona said.

The El Salvadoran presidential elections in 1977 brought out a vote for legal opposition. General Carlos Romero was elected president.

"We wanted to vote for anti-business and military to get the freedoms we had never had before in El Salvador," Cardona said. In 1979, a coup was staged to oust Romero and take control of the government.

"In the first month of the junta, the new group had killed

UMSL cashier killed in weekend crash

Funeral services were held Monday, April 23 for Genevieve Buie, an UMSL cashier, who died April 19 when a tractor-trailer jackknifed and slammed into six automobiles parked on Interstate 70 just west of Hanley Road.

Buie and her husband John had been involved in an earlier accident when their vehicle collided with another car, driven by Elise Kastenholtz, westbound on the highway. Berkeley police were in the process of taking testimony from the drivers about that accident when the tractor-trailer jackknifed.

According to the police report, Calvin W. Taylor of Canton, Ga., the truckdriver, apparently braked too abruptly. As the trailer overturned, it skidded across the westbound lanes and

The year in review

The appearance of this issue marks the close of the Current’s second year in publication, and the end of a year which saw both gains and losses for students, faculty and staff at UMSL.

Since July 1, 1980, when this year’s staff began producing the newspaper, 28 editorial columns had appeared on these pages.

In the first, printed in the first summer issue, we made a statement on the paper’s editorial style and purpose. “The hardened attitude of the paper’s editorial stance followed the slow-to-come realization that the only way to make changes from a typesetter is to criticize until changes take place, ” the editorial read. “Unless the administration and faculty know—and are constantly reminded—that they are employed to serve UMSL’s students, they’ll slowly the notion away. We’re prepared to make as much noise as we have to.”

The beginning of the fall semester was marked by two editorials in the paper’s Sept. 4, 1980, edition. The first dealt with the ACE-ACLTA test, a questionnaire administered to freshmen during registration and advising. We found some of the questions it contained unnecessary—questions, for instance, dealing with students’ personal beliefs and their opinions on premarital sex, marijuana decriminalization, worst, the questionnaire contained spaces for participants’ names and addresses.

The Current asked, “Why have some of these questions been asked? It seems that, for some students at least, all they want is to tell the pollster all possible questions have been asked, for the majority of the faculty the results are probably mere trivia; what good the information would do them is questionable.”

The Current called for the removal of the test or the removal of the name and address space. When we contacted H.E. Mueller, director of Admissions, last week, he said that the tests had been used in 1981-82. Changes in it administration have not yet been discussed, he said. The Sept. 4 issue also contained an editorial praising Chancellor Arnold B. Grobman for a memorandum he had written to Woods Hall staff before regarding parking during registration. The memo suggested that they find other areas in which to park during peak registration days so that students using Woods Hall could be better served. “The chancellor is to be commended for this action, as some of those working in Woods Hall who took the trouble to follow his suggestions,” the editorial read.

A week later the editorial addressed the interim continuity plan, a method implemented by Grobman in July, 1979 to save money. The plan calls for a minimum number of students in each class to be offered at the faculty, classes do not attract the necessary number of students, they are cancelled and their teachers are expected to make up the lost work in Evening College, through increased workloads in later semesters teaching summer school. “The most dangerous results of this measure are more psychological,” the editorial read. “The plan can’t help but serve as a damper to the untameable eye.

Says Evening College students treated unequally

Dear Editor:

A growing trend of people returning to school for a higher degree of education is the rise, and so is the Evening College enrollment.

I would like to make known some of the expressed concerns by the Evening College students to our Council.

A growing demand for the needs of evening students should be recognized and dealt with.

One of the concerns of the Evening College Council is the apathy of our student body, many say, “All I hear for is my education, I haven’t time for anything else” or “I can’t even take advantage of what is offered because it’s always offered during the day while I’m at work.”

The Evening College population is generally of the working world and attending night classes to further this education [SIC]. I realize that it would be impossible to schedule everything that is available for the day students to the evening students. But it would be a start if the administrative offices, such as Financial Aid, Student Affairs, Admissions, etc., were to be available for the evening student to take advantage of. My source reveals there isn’t.

As we continue to pay our student activities fees and parking fees, we continue to look for tangible repercussions from these fees, few of which we have seen. A lot of evening students have become discouraged waiting for something tangible to come from this campus other than education. This is my growing concern as president of the Evening College Council.

I would like to list some of the issues expressed to our council. I may also add that we represent 24 percent of the student body. 1. Hours incompatible evening student schedules; 2. Guest speakers generally not offered in evening classes; 3. Closer parking facilities to SSL, Benton, Stedler and Woods halls; 4. Better maintenance of walks and drives during winter; 5. Better lighting on campus; 6. More campus security; 7. Longer hours for the cafeteria; 8. Mark Twain availability for evening students inadequate; 9. Publication of current issues and events inadequate; 10. Academic advisors are not always available during evening hours.

We would like to see better representation of the various committees, but again the problem is at what times the majority of evening students are unable to attend. We are the majority percentage of the student population.

We want to be looked upon as part of this university not a separate entity. This letter has been written by many students, not these issues will be recognized and dealt with by our newly-elect Evening College Council.

Sincerely,

Randell Davis, president

The issues of Sept. 18, Oct. 2, Oct. 16, and Nov. 6 editions feature editorial essays critical of the Associa-

The student lobby group, funded by a $1 fee raised during the student per semester semester to represent students at the University of Missouri's Columbia campus. We felt that, although ASUM gave Columbia students more of their money, it wasn't worth the amount spent on it.

UMSL students agreed by pulling their financial support for ASUM after the referendum held April 7 and 8.

Our Sept. 18 editorial addressed campus life—more specifically, the benefits of campus life. We were investing a little of their time in extracurricular activities. We gave students plenty of reasons not to complain about the UM campus extracurricular environment, but the student body is clearly underpowered and under funded, the editorial read. "The argument that it is a self-fulfilling prophecy that is largely made by passive students who expect their college experiences to be for them alone."

It is, of course, impossible to ignore the impact of the editorial.

In addition to a piece on ASUM, the Oct. 2 editorial featured an editorial on a late funding request from the Mi-society of Missouri Students Union (MSSC). We founded the request unrealistic considering the current financial status of theori-

Our March 8 issue feature-
ed an editorial criticizing a campus police policy allowing students to register for off-campus to park free while attending classes. The emphasis was to "professional courtesy" as such seems very unprofessional indeed.

Two weeks ago we featured an editorial on the Chancellor's Committee on Campus Governance's plans for the university's governing structure. "The recommendation of the administrative committee seems sound, save for the objectionable lowering of student representation and student voting by the Senate," it read. "The speedy implementation of such a plan can be achieved between the working and learning conditions for all members of the university community."

And in last week's edition, we endorsed Yale Sanders and Dan Price for student president, vice president, respectively, of the Student Association.

Larry Wines and Chuck Gerndt were elected to the positions earlier this week.

It's been an interesting year. Hopefully, the small gains garnered through student criticism this year will make attendance at UMSL a more enjoyable experience for students in 1981-82.

Editorials, however, merely call the attention of the administration to the quicker—if it comes at all—when it is clear to the university's student body that one student is dissatisfied.

Letters to the editor are a valuable tool for student communication. All members of the university community may employ their influence to guide the latter's decision-makers. One hundred voices speak louder than one, and action—on the other hand—still a thing about it. Sit down at a typewriter and write a letter. We have 17,000 others, will be

In March 1981, the U.S. received notice of the Managua massacre, the largest in El Salvador. Since January 1981, 18,000 people have been assassinated without a trial.

"A peoples' civilian army was formed to carry on the arms struggle of the government forces," Cardona said. "It was the only alternative left. It is our right to defend ourselves against the government forces to achieve a better society in El Salvador."

The U.S. government is sending equipment and money and is training officers in El Salvador.

Cardona said that anything said against the junta is like "signing your own death sentence." An average of ten deaths per night have been reported.

"It is pure terror in El Salvador, but we will keep on struggling," he said. "It is also a U.S. issue. One million of the dollars sent have killed many people. I wonder if at that time Reagan was thinking of El Salvador."

Cardona was born in El Salvador. He graduated from Berkeley College in California in 1979 and returned to El Salvador to teach. He was forced from San Salvador because of oppression from the government.

Congress has also passed a bill to supply $5 million for military aid, and other five million dollars have been appropriated for future military aid. Reagan's administration has given 20 million dollars to the junta in military support.

"The junta is weak and has only survived through U.S. military aid," Cardona said. "It is still in the minds of Reagan and Secretary of State Alexander Haig to aid El Salvador. U.S. aid is only contributing to the bloodshed of people and the perpetuation of war."

"The U.S. should let El Salvador determine their own fate. We have matured enough to know what is best for us."

Those of us who are required to take a foreign language probably wouldn't if we didn't have to. Thirteen credit hours (the university foreign language requirement) represents more than 10 percent of the necessary credits for many students, just becoming fluent in English is rough. But, having the ability to knowing one language just isn't enough.

Nor four.

Bergogian, a foreign language teacher at UMSL, speaks five languages fluently English, Spanish, Portuguese, French and Armenian. In a pinch, she can get by on her Arabic and her Turkish, and she has studied Latin for eight years.

"Language is a tool for the future," Bergogian said. "There is a real need to know a second language, especially in business."

When it was pointed out that the School of Business Administration allowed its students the alternative of studying math instead of taking a foreign language, Bergogian said, "That's a pity."

"Being able to speak a second language can open doors for you, especially in international business. It is not just a tool. The business is booming," she said.

"When you are dealing with another country you can be a plus for you if you can speak their language," she said. "It shows that you have made an effort to understand them and their culture. It can influence them. With communication making the world smaller, we need to now other languages, other people."

Meeting people is something Rita Bergogian has done a lot of—she didn't have much choice. Although born in Syria, she is of Armenian heritage. While she was very young her family moved to Brazil, where Portuguese is the native language. She later married an Armenian businessman who wanted to move to the United States—at the time she did not speak English.

"In 1968, we moved to Jannesville, Wisconsin, a very small town with 200,000," Bergogian said. "That was quite a contrast to the 12 million in São Paulo, Brazil. I liked it. Living in Jannesville was good because it was a smaller town and the people were interested in me because I was different."

To learn English, Bergogian left the television and radio on all the time. "I didn't just sit down and be alone. I tried to pick up the language while I was working around the house. I learned that hearing the language would help me learn it."

Her knowledge of Latin helped her learn English, she said. "Whenever I had to say something I just couldn't speak, I'd just think of it in Latin and say it with an English accent. It worked," she said.

Bergogian received her MA from the University of South Carolina, and is now working on her PhD. She is in her second year of teaching at UMSL. Next year she will be teaching "Intensive French."

I think teaching language in an intensive way is good," she said. "It helps you learn. It is a wonderful experience. For some people it's a great way to learn a language."

"Learning a language has to be a painful experience," Bergogian said. "To become comfortable with the language is the most important thing, and to do that you have to hear the language every day. You have to learn not be too tongue-tied with a language. Eventually you'll get to the point where you'll understand it."

"When teaching older people a language, they might take longer to learn it because they already have an established set of values," she said. But, she emphasized that the motivation must come from the individual. "To really know a language, not only do you have to be able to communicate in the language, but you have to know the grammar, be able to read the language, and have a thorough comprehension of the language. An all-around student is necessary to know a language," Bergogian said.

For most of us the need will never arise where it is necessary to be fluent in five languages, but for Bergogian points out, no knowing a second language might be very beneficial.
Lisa Birnbach, editor of "The Official Preppy Handbook," will speak in 200 Lucas Hall Thursday, April 30, at 1pm.

The book is the work of a team of writers headed by Birnbach and Jonathan Roberts. They have attempted to explain the history and basic elements of prep life: family, school, sport, work, social customs, costume, and language. The style of "The Official Preppy Handbook" is tongue in cheek, but the information rendered is basically true. The subject of preppiness is one that lends itself naturally to humor, probably because it is inherently ridiculous.

The book discusses prep attitudes, accomplishments, and quaint superstitions. Those who aspire to pass for prep—and there are many who do—will find the handbook a rich mine of useful information. There are lists of the preferred secondary schools, colleges, and clubs, as well as a city-by-city guide to prep bars and restaurants. The book also includes advice on sports to play, dogs and cars which are acceptable to own, and most importantly, prep fashion.

Actually, the phrase "prep fashion" is somewhat of a contradiction in terms. In the past year or so, the so-called "prep look" has become popular with the nonprep masses. But, the book has little in common with true prep fashion, which is beyond "fashion." The basic principles of preppy dressing are understatement and utility. The whole subject would be pretty dull if it weren't for certain bizarre quirks, such as preppies' fondness for the colors hot pink and lime green, preferably in combination.

Birnbach also will discuss preppy habits concerning smoking, speech, nicknames, drinking, and partying. The lecture, which is designed as a satire on the preppy "scene," will also include a slide presentation.

AND NOW: Lisa Birnbach, editor of "The Official Preppy Handbook," will be at UMSL on Thursday, April 30, at 1pm, in 200 Lucas Hall.

Transferring To Columbia This Fall?

If Columbia, Mizzou-Rah will be your new home this fall, we'd like to introduce you, and your parents, to a way you can convert a housing expense into an asset.

We're building FoxFire, a townhouse development specifically designed for Missouri students and their parents who don't want to forfeit $3,000-$4,000 in rent over the course of a college education.

A FoxFire townhouse offers the maintenance free advantages of an apartment with the tax and equity advantages of ownership. Located just one mile south of the campus and Faurot Field, you'll enjoy quick access to all University facilities while your parents (or you) gain valuable tax and ownership benefits of a real estate investment.

To learn more about The FoxFire Alternative, call or return the coupon below. We'll send you or your parents a brochure with all the facts.

Joan Jett’s first solo album wipes out ‘Bad Reputation’

Over the course of the last month or so, I have come under the spell of one of my readers because of my dislike for “new wave” and “punk-rock” music. So, since this is my last column for the semester, I decided to find a really bad “new wave” or “punk” album and rock out to the hell out of it.

Well, I picked an album that seemed to fit what I was looking for. I flipped Joan Jett’s latest release, “Bad Reputation.” As I was listening to the album, I realized that the songs were all about my life, my feelings, and my experiences.

The album is very personal and honest, and it’s really refreshing to hear someone else express the same things that I’ve been thinking and feeling. It’s amazing how music can connect people who have never met before.

I’m not going to go into detail about the songs, but let me just say that the entire album is fantastic. Joan Jett’s voice is powerful and emotional, and the music is tight and polished. It’s a real pleasure to listen to.

If you’re a fan of snarling rock ‘n’ roll or just looking for a good album to blast out your speakers, I highly recommend “Bad Reputation.” It’s definitely one of the best albums I’ve heard this year.

Music is a review column by Daniel C. Flannery.

Bowie big boost to Student Affairs

The album is a perfect example of how hard work can pay off. Gini Bowls, the secretary of the Student Life and Activities office, has been a big help to the organization. She has been working on the UMSL campus for the past ten years, much of which she has devoted to the success of the office.

Bowie’s influence on the organization has been significant. With her help, the Student Life and Activities office has been able to host a variety of events and activities, including concerts, workshops, and other events that cater to the needs of students.

Gini Bowls’ dedication to the organization has been truly inspiring. Her hard work and commitment to the students have made a positive impact on the campus community.

Frank Clements

Sometimes, you can tell a lot about a person by what other people say about them. Bowie is both good and bad. But for UMSL, Secretary Gini Bowls, the comments are all good.

“Without Gini, Bowie’s office just wouldn’t operate as well,” said Blanton. “She’s very vital to us,” she adds. “She’s a hard worker and has done an excellent job in the past.”

Blanton, who is the director of Student Life and Activities, has been working on the campus for over ten years. She has played a significant role in the development of the office and its programs.

“I can’t go out with other boys.” You can see what I mean.

The music, however, is quite good. Jett’s 最小化 around herself with some good musicians, in addition to Hart, on the album. Perhaps the most notable is keyboardist Kenny Laguna. Aside from some excellent production work, “Make Believe” and “Doing Alright With the Boys” are some of the best tunes on the album.

Paul Simon’s had most of the drumming chores. He’s solid, but nothing exceptional. Producer Paul Cendell did an album at least twice before I review it, so it flipped over and started to slide right into one another. I started having doubts. “I better listen to it again,” I said to myself.

Well, wouldn’t you know it? After three times around, I couldn’t deny it. I like the damn album.

“Bad Reputation” is Jett’s first solo album. The 21-year-old singer/guitarist started her career when she was fifteen years old. As I mentioned earlier, she joined with Cherie Currie, Lita Ford, Sandy West, and Jackie Fox, to form the Runaways. The quintet tried to project an image of toughness, but their bubblegum rock and roll gave them away as the dedicated followers of British glitter-pop music (Slade, T. Rex, and David Bowie, to name a few) that they were.

While Jett was good in her aggressive role with the Runaways, the other four were not. But, alas, because of the band’s mediocre music, nobody really took them seriously. The sexual faux-mood that permeated their five albums eventually led to a spread (no pun intended) in Oui magazine. Jett still tried to live down the band’s joke status while holding up the dead weight of the rest of the group. The group disbanded in 1979.

Today, Jett is still struggling to overcome her own “bad reputation.” She has come a long way from Wednesday (that’s the goal of her career). Although the album is laced with hints of “new wave,” “punk,” and “British glam,” it’s basically just good old high energy rock and roll.

Although the music is aggressive, yet enjoyable at the same time, the lyrics on many of the tunes leave a lot to be desired. Perhaps Jett has not matured in that aspect yet. There is no question, however, that she has matured in several other areas.

Her voice can be sexy, cruel or sincere. Her hoarse scream, which, at times, has a somewhat hypnotic effect, is her calling card. Her guitar playing has improved twofold since her days with the Runaways. Back in those days, she stuck basically to rhythm guitar. Now, she has expanded into lead work and she does it well. This is an area of the album, which in her case, is not lead work highlights the almost bitter attitude of the song.

The rock guitar work is complimented nicely by that of Lea Hart’s. Hart’s dirty, funky lead on “Too Bad On Your Birthday” adds a lot to the song, which otherwise is fairly pedestrian.

As I said earlier, the lyrics are far too simplistic. At times, they reach the point of being infantile (especially on “You Don’t Own Me,” “Shout,” and “Let Me Go”). This is a sample from “You Don’t Own Me” (this verse or a variation of it is the underlying theme of the song): “You don’t own me/I’m not one of your toys/You don’t own me/Don’t tell me I

Quick Cuts

“Lovin’ the Night Away” - Dilllam Band

After gigging with United Artists, the Dilllam Band has joined the ranks of RCA. Their album for that company, “Lovin’ the Night Away,” is good.

Although Pat Frederick’s violin still leads the band in its mix of pop, rock, and jazz, the Dilllam Band has shed their “country” image and gone into the rock and roll side of the ledger.

Although they still do the listening ballads for which they are known, they have included some energetic, rambunctious rock cuts. The tunes are good, the harmonies are still great, and the mixdown is superb. Excellent album.

“Escape Artist” - Garfield Jeffreys

“Escape Artist” is Garfield Jeffreys’ fourth album. It is, without a doubt, his best. The album has a good blend of rock, reggae, and soul. The best tunes on the album are “Kangaroo,” a remake of the old ’60s hit, and “Grey Lady Rock,” a high-energy rock and roll song.

Good album.

“Face Value” - Phil Collins

After Phil Collins’ considerable effects with Genesis, “Face Value” is kind of a letdown. The album is mediocre in all aspects: song selection and content, musicianship, and even production, which is somewhat of a surprise. Collins seems to be more interested in recording for himself and his own tastes and not for the tastes of his fans, which is a shame.
You might think that life would be a joke for a comedian, but it's not so for UMSL student Sam Passafiume.

"Comedy is a serious business." Passafiume said. "It's not all laughs, but it's a lot of hard work."

Passafiume is a communications major at UMSL, and plans on finishing next semester. He previously attended Fontbonne College where he studied acting. But his first comedy experience goes back to his days at Southwest High in St. Louis.

"It all started in 1971 back at Southwest," Passafiume said. "I did a stand-up routine during an audition and I fell in love."

But Passafiume’s love for comedy goes back even further than his days at Southwest—back to his childhood.

"My father was in the night club business," Passafiume remembered. "He ran the Cartoon Wheel Lounge. At the time, it was a pretty well-known place, and some pretty well-known talent played there. I was fascinated by music, and I wanted to learn to play the guitar, to be an entertainer. I guess you could say that I was lucky because I knew about very early age exactly what I wanted to do."

Passafiume has been doing comedy for the last 10 years, and is currently performing at Billo Baggs in University City on Wednesdays (amateur night) and on the weekends. He has also performed at the Chase Park Plaza Comedy Corner, Kennedy’s, the Mine Shaft, and at various colleges in the St. Louis area. All of these establishments cater to fairly small audiences, typical for amateur and local comedians. But Passafiume's beginning as a professional was not so typical. "A friend of mine who has seen me performing at a club asked me if I wanted a job," Passafiume related, "and he asked me how much I wanted to be paid. I'd never been paid before for a comedy job, so I asked a friend of mine to help me come up with some kind of rate. We haggled around and decided on a price and the gentleman accepted it."

"About a week later he came up to me and said, 'Things are going great; we've already sold 1,300 tickets.' My mouth fell open. I just couldn't believe it. I was a sophomore in college and I was going to be playing to 1,300 people at the Fontanac Ramada Inn. But the funny thing is that I was not nervous until I was introduced. But after my first joke, I was on a roll and it was easy after that."

Passafiume takes his comedy very seriously and doesn't try to play "the funny man" all the time.

"People can be very cruel sometimes and not even realize it," Passafiume said. "I don't think I was doing a very good job, but I was doing what I could do."

"Retirement is that marvelous time of life when the sun rises and you don't," says the poster behind Bernice Miner's desk. After 12½ years as secretary to the dean of Student Affairs, she is retiring at the end of this semester.

"It's been a lot of fun," Miner said of the only position she has held at UMSL. "In the early seventies, when the students were demonstrating, things like that, I thought it's the day-to-day things that I really like. You never know what a student is going to happen."

One of the functions of Student Affairs is to help the campus organizations how to best spend their money when they are an active group. Miner said they just try to help the organizations get the most for their money.

About retirement, Miner said, "We don't have any big plans." She said that she and her husband, to whom she's been married for 53 years and who is also retired, might do some traveling. This summer, they plan to do a lot of yard work done.

"We're looking forward to spending some time together and taking it easy," she said. "It's not really retirement. I'm just going to take things at a slower pace."

One retirement alternative that Miner had not seemed to consider was returning to school as a student. "Well, I'm not too far from getting my degree, but working and doing homework doesn't sound too exciting," she said. "However, if I do return to school, I'll come to UMSL."

Armstrong to Terry He. is presently a professor at North Texas State University in Denton, Texas, teaching jazz improvisation.

The ensemble will perform arrangements by Rob McCon- nell, Louis Bellson, Buddy Rich, Maynard Ferguson, and will accompany Matteson on some of his own compositions.

The festival will include 13 bands from 11 high schools and two college bands.

There will be an admission price of $4 at the door.

Normandy Methodist Church will sponsor a concert by the University Singers on Friday, May 1 at 8pm. The concert will be held at the church which is located at 6000 Natural Bridge Road.

The singers are under the direction of Bruce Vantine, a full-time member of the UMSL Music Department.

Their program will include many pieces, among which are "A Farewell Duet," by Galli; "Sanctus," by Palestrina; "The Lord is Rising," by Aichinger; Christiansson; and "The Wind in the Oaks," an original composition by Vantine. They will also perform three of the 19th century songs by Brahms and a collection of folk songs and spirituals.

There is no admission charge for the concert. Everyone is welcome.

On Sunday, May 3, at 8pm the first attempt at a combined concert will take place. The University Band, Orchestra, and percussion group will all perform at one concert.

The band, under the direction of Warren Bellis, will perform a mixture of symphonic and wind ensemble music. Their portion of the program will consist of Jager's arrangement of "Sym- fonietta," D'Albert's "Improv- isation," Tchaikovsky's "French National Delfie," and Anderson's "The Rakes of Mallow."

The orchestra, under the direc- tion of James Richards, will perform Vivaldi's Concerto in C for 2 flutes, 2 clarinets, and strings, Boccherini's Sonatina in B flat, Khachaturian's Suite from the ballet "Gayane," and Davies' "Five Kite Pictures."

The Percussion Ensemble will perform "Musica Battuta," by Schifman.

The concert is free and open to the public.

At 8pm on Tuesday, May 5, the University Chorus will perform in the Education Auditorium.

The chorus is a group composed of UM students and members of the community who are enrolled in the extension program. They are under the direction of Bruce Vantine.

Their program will include selections from Schubert's Mass in G, along with works by artists such as Handel and Cherubini, a variety of hymns, carols, spirituals, and folk songs will be performed.

does a variety of tasks for the Office of Student Activities. Aside from her "normal" secretarial work, Bowie also does all the art work for the announcements, bulletins, and programs for Student Affairs Programs. Bowie also compiles the UMSL Student Policy Handbook, annual reports, activities directory, and makes up the UMSL Organizational Roster.

Last year, Bowie organized and ran the UMSL Spirit Week single-handedly, and also works with the homecoming activities and Student Elections. Along with Blanton, Bowie plans and organizes ski trips, the carpool, and bus schedules.

"It's more like a gal Friday job, rather than a secretarial job," Bowie comments. "There is really no job description, you just do the work that has to be done. But I love the job. I like it because it's so diversified. Some days you never know what you're going to have to do. But I've been doing it for ten years, and I enjoy it very much."

"There is so much more involved than just secretarial skills," Blanton says. "And Bowie received her BA in English from UMSL. She previously attended Pennhill University in Chambersburg, Pennsylvania, du page University where she was granted a degree. Bowie's first job on the UMSL campus was to run the microscope machine in the Old Administration Building. When the office moved into the University Center, Bowie stayed in the same job. Later she was hired as Blanton's secretary.

But once she finishes for the day at the University Center, Bowie does not go home, prop up her feet and turn on the television. Bowie is very active in drama, and is the director of the Normandy Pasadena Players, a community theater. The Players put on many productions around the Normandy area and have performed in the J.C. Penney and Marillac Auditoriums. Bowie also Asger many UMSL students in the Players.

The students are very good in the productions and I can always count on them when I need help," Bowie says.

Bowie also directs the Normandy Pasadena Players organization at that the present time is inactive, but is gearing up for a return to performing. Bowie writes all the scripts for the Nomads, and does their musical arrangement. The Nomads play at various hospitals and schools in and around Normandy and used to perform before 4000 children every year.

This fall Bowie says that she would not leave her job for teaching.

"I enjoy helping get the student activities off on the right foot," About helping the students in general, Bowie said, "It's a great job and Mr. Sansone is a great gentleman to work for. He cares a lot for the students and works to make activities enjoyable and beneficial for them. That's what is enjoyable about this job... everyone working together toward the same goal."

it. They think you should be fun and friendly to the people and the clown. But I'm not really a clown. I'm a sensitive, serious, emotionless and I am Sam, not a clown. I try to keep my stage charm and my real character separate."

Besides performing comedy, Passafiume also writes, acts, and plays music. He has acted with the Kirkwood Players and the Macon Players. His roles have varied from Romeo to Fortinbras.

"I like doing theater, but I'd rather do nightclubs," he said.

Passafiume has been working at Biggs' for the past two months. The set up at Bigg's is that on amateur night, the performers all draw numbers. Each one gets five to ten minutes on stage. Passafiume bases his humor on personal experiences. He is known as the "conscience" of press release states, "wherever he goes, he takes a little bit of South St. Louis and Dago Hill with him."

"To come up with my material I always carry a pen and paper," Passafiume said. "And when I write down my ideas I always carry a pen and paper too." Passafiume said. "And I write down my ideas I always carry a pen and paper too."

Passafiume also has formed a production company known as Halla Productions, and is in the process of producing a St. Louis Comedy Special for Cable television.

Even though he has been doing it for ten years, Passafiume still has a lot to learn.

"You've got to be realistic," he said. "Some of those guys at Biggs' think they are stars after just six weeks. I've got a lot to learn and need some more experience to become successful." He passes. "And make a lot of money."

Muesenfechter and Smith named top athletes

Jeff Kochan

Dan Muesenfechter and Lori Smith, two of the most outstanding individuals ever to wear UMSL uniforms, have been named the 1981 UMSL Male and Female Athletes of the Year by the UMSL Current.

Muesenfechter, a junior college transfer from Griffiss Valley, was standout the past two years for the soccer Rivermen. He shatted several career-season scoring records in his two years at UMSL.

The All-American striker, who was drafted by the New York Arrows of the Major Indoor Soccer League and has since been traded to Denver, set the record for most shots on goal in a season when he registered 73 as a junior.

Last fall, Muesenfechter really began to assault many of the school scoring marks. He broke Tim Smith's single-season mark for goals scored when he finished the back of the net 14 times in 1981. The feat also allowed him to tie Smith's career mark for goals scored with 20.

Muesenfechter also holds school marks for most points in a career with 32 and in second in career shots on goal with 138.

Don Dallas, who is the only soccer coach in UMSL history, described Muesenfechter as one of the best players he's ever seen.

"Dan is one of those super kids that don't come around too often," he said. "He improved himself by his own hard work and now he's in the pros. We're really going to miss his offensive next year."

Muesenfechter did not entertain serious thoughts about a professional career until just prior to his senior year. "After my first year at UMSL, I thought I had a chance," he said. "I knew I had to score and pretty much enjoy my senior year, though, in order to have that chance."

And that's exactly what he did. "I wanted to score about 15 goals," said the 6-foot-1 forward. "Individually, I was satisfied with my performance, but I was a little disappointed in the way the season ended."

If you remember, UMSL lost leading scorer and ace of the Midwest-Mideast regional to the eventual national champion, Lock Haven, 2-1. The Rivermen were regarded as a national power, though, and that earned Muesenfechter’s chances of being drafted.

"UMSL is well known in soccer," he said. "I’m sure that helped."

Until recently, one of the sports at UMSL that wasn’t quite as well known as soccer was women’s basketball. But the arrival of Lori Smith has changed that.

Smith, a 5-foot-11 sophomore from Lindbergh High School, averaged more than 13 points per game as a freshman and 17.4 points as a sophomore.

Smith led UMSL to a 22-13 record this past season and set and established several single-season records. She has established marks for most points in one season (609) and most rebounds in one season (294). Smith also holds school records for most free throws and field goals made in a single season.

She was the team’s bread and butter shooter, said UMSL women’s basketball coach Joe Sanchez. "She improved herself throughout her own hard work and now she is the best collegiate women’s basketball player in the Missouri Valley."

Smith, however, shrugs off the personal acclaim. "It’s always more important what the team accomplishes," she said. "If I can help, that’s all that matters."

Smith explained the reason for her decision to graduate this past winter came from the bench. "Coach Sanchez told me to shoot more," she said. "I was content (with) just sitting back and playing, but if I had an open shot, I took it."

She didn’t miss that often, either. Her shooting percentage was among the best on the team, even though she was usually guarded closely.

"I feel more pressure when I’m not scoring," she said. "If I don’t score, I help the team."

With two years of eligibility remaining, chances are Smith will be making UMSL basketball fans feel good in the future.

Special mention goes to Roger Tohen, a 150-pound grappler on the UMSL wrestling team, who became the first MIAA (Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association) champion this past season.

Today, who holds the UMSL record for wins, advanced to the national tournament in his junior season, but failed to place. He came closer to becoming an All-American than any other wrestler ever has at UMSL.

Softball continues torrid pace; may break school record

The UMSL Riverwomen softball squad continued its drive toward post-season play by winning four of six games last week, including three over arch rival St. Louis University.

The Riverwomen started things off last Wednesday afternoon by sweeping a doubleheader from the Lady Billikens. UMSL won the first game, 3-1, as Kim Niece was the winning pitcher, and took the nightcap, 5-2, with Nancy Hatter getting the win.

Then this past weekend UMSL traveled to St. Joseph, Mo., to play in the Missouri Western Tournament. UMSL won two and lost two as it moved within three games of matching last year’s total victory output of 30 games, a school record.

In their first game, the Riverwomen rolled over Tarkio, 13-2. At Hefle: was again the winning pitcher with Mary Dorsey picking up a save.

In the second game, though, UMSL was defeated 8-3 by Northwest Missouri State. The Riverwomen led 3-1 but NWMS erupted for five runs in the fifth and added single tallies in the sixth and seventh to win going away. Niece was the losing pitcher.

The Riverwomen then turned their attention to a return match against SLU. This time the Lady Billikens played UMSL much tougher than they did earlier in the week but it still wasn’t enough as the Riverwomen prevailed in the nine innings, 3-1, UMSL jumped off to a 3-0 lead by scoring two runs on only one hit in the second inning and then adding a run in the third on Judy Piennert’s RBI single, but SLU scored three runs on three hits in the fifth to tie the game. UMSL finally won it by scoring three runs in the ninth on a wild pitch, with the bases loaded and a Geri Rosen RBI single.

UMSL then closed out the tournament by losing to Emporia State, 3-0, in nine innings. Niece was the starter for the Riverwomen and pitched spectacualr, throwing 12 shutout innings before giving way to Mary Dorsey in the thirteenth.

That left the Riverwomen with a 27-8 record going into this weekend’s Missouri State Tournament in St. Joseph. UMSL is seeded third and will play the winner of Tarkio against Misouri Western.

Kickers fill their ranks for ‘81

In just a few months, the UMSL soccer team will begin preparations for what coach Don Dallas hopes will be another winning season. But unlike the Riverwomen, the Rivermen are certain to have their work cut out for them.

The reason is the number of starters who will be missing from the lineup when UMSL opens the 1981 season next fall. Seven standout, including All-Americans Dan Muesenfechter and Dominik Barcowsk, have completed their careers at UMSL and will be sorely missed.

Last fall the Rivermen capitalized on their senior leadership to produce the best regular season record in the school’s history (12-2), but lost a heartbreaker in the finals of the Midwest-Mideast regional to Lock Haven, 2-1. The visitors from Pennsylvania ultimately captured the national championship, a feat UMSL had been aiming for all season long.

"It was the most experience team we’ve ever had," said Dallas. "Next year, it’s going to be tough."

Dallas will be counting on such returning starters as midfieolder Tim Murphy, forward Pat McVey and goalie Ed Woods to spearhead the team next fall. Two-year part-time starters Tony Pasqueri, Bill Rosner and Jim Murphy will also be expected to contribute to UMSL’s cause along with sophomore-to-be Greg Schlafer.

However, it would be safe to say that UMSL will not be able to match its accomplishments of past years unless several talented newcomers are added to the roster. In fact, this is perhaps Dallas’ most crucial recruiting year ever.

"We have a lot of holes to fill, there’s no doubt about that," Dallas said. "We need to get a few players who can step in and help us right away."

Thus far, the harvest has been slow, but there are a few players Dallas expects to help but next year, included in that group is Brett Gove, a 5-foot-9 forward from Lewis & Clark Junior College. Gove, who is verbally [See “Soccer,” page 17]
Rivermen improve slightly as season nears end

Mike Hempen

Last Wednesday afternoon, the UMSL Rivermen baseball team experienced what might have been the brightest moment in this disappointing season when it knocked off the Missouri Tigers 4-2 in the second game of a double-header. UMSL lost the first game, 8-3.

Bill Stull picked up his second victory of the year by going the distance and allowing only five hits and two runs. UMSL’s scoring came in the eighth on Dave Hupp’s second home run of the year with a man on, and Wayne Clermont’s two runs in the eighth. In the first game Missouri exploded for four runs in the first inning on their way to the five run victory. The split gave the Rivermen a 12-20 record going into last Saturday’s double-header against Southeast Missouri State in Cape Girardeau. UMSL ran its winning streak to three straight by sweeping the MIAA conference for 4-1 and 11-2. UMSL’s last game was a 9-1 win over SMU. Coach Dave Fagan pitched a complete game as he won for the fifth time this year.

Hupp’s big hit gave him 12 of the 13 runs scored by the Rivermen in the game, and he is second on the team in average. UMSL’s offense came from first baseman Keith Kimball, who hit his fifth home run of the season in the third inning, and Clermont, who hit his team leading seventh home run in the sixth inning.

In the second game blowout, the Rivermen scored six runs on only two hits in the first inning. Steve Albrannt, Steve Brown and Mark Craig combined for the victory while Dan Reardon and Billy Smith led the hitting attack with three and two hits, respectively.

The 3-1 week gave UMSL a 14-20 season record and a 4-4 mark in the MIAA conference. The Rivermen played Washington University and McKendree College Tuesday and took on St. Louis University in a doubleheader yesterday. That leaves only six games remaining on the schedule and all will be played at UMSL.

This past Tuesday, UMSL played two games, losing to Washington U. 7-6, and defeating Cape Girardeau. UMSL ran its winning streak to three straight by sweeping the MIAA conference for 4-1 and 11-2.

The UMSL baseball squad will play their final games of the season at home doubleheader of the season when it faces the Bears of Missouri State Bears Saturday at 1 p.m.

Southwest is four games above the fourth place team in the southern division of the MIAA (Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association), and needs only to win one more conference game to eliminate Rivermen from any chance of catching the league leaders.

"They’ve pretty well got it cinched," said UMSL coach Dix. "The best we can do is tie with them.

Golfers play touch

Jack M. Cosby

The UMSL Golf Team has experienced a mediocre season this year.

The Rivermen have had one dual win against McKendree College, which they lost by last six strokes. The team has finished in third place in both the University of Missouri-Rolla Best Call and USJA tournaments and finished second in their own Rivermen Tournament at the Normandy Country Club.

Tournaments ahead include the Heart of America Tournament in Warrensburg, Missouri this coming weekend, the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association Tournament, April 30-May 1 at blue Springs, Mo.

The best golfer on the team is Junior Mark Stellhorn, whom coach Jim Niederkorn says is "far and away the best golfer we have and very fine character." There is one returning letterman on the team, Tom Jacobs, but the rest of the team is comprised entirely of newcomers.

Coach Niederkorn believes that he has "a good nucleus" for a team, and he believes that if the current players remain on the team and get some experience, the team will be very competitive next year.
UML lands cage star Jacob as first recruit

Jeff Kuchno

After weeks of deliberation, UML head basketball coach Tom Bartow has finally signed his first recruit for the upcoming season.

Kurt Jacob, a 6-foot-5 guard-forward from McCluer High School, signed a letter of intent to attend UML last Monday night. Jacob had narrowed his choices to UML and the University of Arkansas-Little Rock before making his decision. "I saw Kurt play last year and he is definitely one of the best players in the St. Louis area," said Bartow. "He possesses many of the skills that a college ball player needs to be successful."

Jacob started at McCluer midway through his sophomore season and has developed into one of the most outstanding players to come out of the Suburban North Conference in years. A two-time All-Conference performer, Jacob averaged 21 points as a junior and 19 points this past season. He is the all-time leading scorer at McCluer with over 1,100 points.

"Kurt can shoot the ball from the outside and he is also a fine passer," said Bartow. "He's a very unselfish player."

Jacob, who is also a tremendous performer in the classroom, mentioned UML's basketball program as a primary reason for his decision.

"I plan on going into business," he said. "I also know UML has a great business school. That's important to me."

"I also like the coaches and the players I've met and I think I'll be greater playing in front of people I know," he added. "I'm really looking forward to playing here."

And so is Bartow. "Kurt is going to make a contribution to our team next year," he said. "I believe he is going to be a very good college basketball player."

Wrestling will be back in '81-'82

Rick Capelli

Contrary to reports that the UML wrestling program was to be dropped after a rocky 1980-81 season, there will be a next year.

The wrestling program was near extinction two years ago until the Athletic Committee granted coach Tom Loughrey a two-year reprieve from the program. Loughrey worked with the program for the two years, apparently having things on a rebound during the second season, but the situation fell apart during the month of December.

Due to injuries and lack of funds, all but a handful of wrestlers left the squad. But the Rivermen wrestlers who remained finished out the season because there was really no other alternative.

"There's not much we can do but finish out the year," Loughrey said at the time. "You need eight varsity sports to participate in the MIAA and we're just barely making that with wrestling."

The main problem this year was finances and hopefully some help is on the way.

"We're supposed to get give two-quarter grants every year," Loughrey explained. "But we haven't been getting that much."

Loughrey said that the athletic budget would usually cut corners on the wrestling program rather than one of the major sports like basketball. Next year, however, there will be a considerable increase in the athletic department budget due to a substantial raise in the student activity fees for the next school year. At this time there is no definite budget for the athletic department next year. But Loughrey thinks that the eight sport minimum rule in the MIAA is the key to a probable increase in the budget, even though there was talk a few months ago about dropping the requirement to six sports.

"I know of nothing going on right now that is trying to get it dropped to six sports," Loughrey said. "I know there would be considerable opposition from several schools, because they have sports like track and football."

Loughrey himself will not be back with the program. He will remain with the university, however, as a full-time teacher. His agreement to work with wrestling was only a two-year experiment.

Loughrey is optimistic for next year, because there is a good nucleus coming back, including several wrestlers who were redshirted this year. But the amount of financial help the program will receive is still up in the air.

"Nothing has been decided, because they have no idea what the budget is going to be," he said. "Hopefully, there will be a substantial increase."

committed to UMSL, was one of his team's leading scorers the past two years.

"Brett has a knack for scoring goals," said Dallas. "He's small, but quick and definitely good around the goal."

dallas is also counting on two more transfers, Gary Phelps and Matt Keller. Phelps is a defender, who formerly played at Northern Illinois, while Keller, a 5-foot-10, 160 pound forward, comes to UMSL after a year at Evansville. Both are aggressive, hard-nosed players.

While those three players are definitely in UMSL's plans for 1981, Dallas is still keeping his fingers crossed about a few others.

One such player who may be at UMSL next fall in Randy Ragasdale, a 6-foot, 180 pound defender from meramec Junior College. Ragasdale attended UMSL two years ago and started at the sweeper position as a freshman before transferring. Dallas would love to have him back.

"With the one year he played with us, we know he has good experience," Dallas said. "He's a good player."

Dallas reported that UMSL also has a chance of signing a few players from Florissant Valley Junior College in addition to several high school stars. The veteran head mentor believes that if he can get a few of those players in the fold, UMSL will have had a successful recruiting year.

"If we can get a couple of those players, we'll be in good shape," he said. "We're always optimistic. I think we're going to have a good season next year."

Past sports year had it all

As another season of UMSL athletics comes to a close, it's time to recap the highs and lows of the 1980-81 campaign. As usual, there were some surprises (both pleasant and disappointing) and there were several teams that performed exactly up to their expectations.

The UMSL soccer team, for instance, was expected to have an outstanding season and it did. Until the end, that is.

the Rivermen set a school record for most wins in a season with 12, but they lost in the championship game of the Midwest-Mideast regional to Lock haven. 2-1. UMSL fielded perhaps its strongest team ever and had high hopes of going all the way to Miami for the national tournament. Unfortunately, a national championship never materialized.

Field hockey and softball struggled around the .500 mark throughout their respective seasons, while cross country suffered through a dismal campaign. Field hockey, by the way, has been dropped in favor of women's soccer. As a club team, the women kickers produced an undefeated season and outscored their opponents by a tremendous margin. Look for this sport to be one of UMSL's best in the future.

The basketball season brought smiles to the faces of UMSL sports fans. Both the men and women enjoyed winning seasons, which is made even more significant by the fact that both squads had posted losing seasons the previous two years.

The cagers will have many of this year's standouts returning next winter and that should bode well for a repeat performance. In fact, both the men and women will be entertaining thoughts of post-season action when they take the courts next November.

One of the major disappointments of this past sports season at UMSL was the wrestling squad. The wrestlers began the season with optimism and a few more by the end, but the season, the optimism turned to pessimism and the number of grapplers on the squad was slashed to four.

There has been talk of discontinuing wrestling at UMSL because of the small number of active participants. An improved budget would help alleviate the problem, but the one thing that can be said about UMSL wrestling is that it will be back next year. After that, no one knows.

The men and women's swimming teams experienced a turnaround in their respective seasons with the men going from bad to good and the women just the opposite. The addition of several outstanding recruits was the key to the men's tremendous improvement, while a smaller squad hindered the success of the women.

UMSL's spring sports have also had just about everything imaginable. The baseball Rivermen are the most enigmatic team UMSL has seen in years. They entered the season with their signs set on a possible national championship, but with only a few games to go, they'll have to fight and scrape just to reach the .500 mark.

Meanwhile, the softball squad is destined for another record-breaking season. The women were 30-7 a year ago, and barring a total collapse, will surpass last year's victory output.

As for golf and tennis, mediocrity is the by-word here. Both sports have not been short on effort, but they are victims of the small-sport syndrome. If they had a few more bucks to work with, they could get more things done.

Of course, the money situation has always been a primary problem with UMSL athletics and chances are it will always. This also causes a lot of uncertainty about next year. This past sports' year was filled with outstanding individual performances and next year should be much the same. Standouts, including UMSL soccer players Dan Muenchenfechter and Dominic Bareczewski, both All-Americans, and Roger Toben, an outstanding wrestler who became the first MIAA champion at UMSL, will be gone. But don't fret, Lori Smith, UMSL's female athlete of the year, will be eligible next season as will Rivermen cagers William Harris, Tim Jones and Reggie Clabon.

Soccer fans are looking forward to seeing Tim Murphy and Pat McVeY lead the kickers next season, and they'll also be watching many of the finest women soccer players in the area compete on an intercollegiate basis for the first time ever.

To be sure, UMSL sports will continue to have its pleasant surprises and its disappointments, its problems and its solutions, its winners and its losers. The conclusion here is that UMSL sports has it all.

Clermont makes positive things happen

Frank Cassmano

Anybody who has ever met or talked to Wayne Clermont, the power-hitting outfielder of the UMSL Rivermen, comes away with a positive feeling. Maybe teammate William Shanks put it best, "He's just a nice guy and he converses with everybody. I have never heard him bad-mouth anybody."

And there are not too many people bad-mouthing Clermont's performance on the field. And why should they? He has put together two of the most awesome seasons in the annals of UMSL baseball history.

As a junior, Clermont hit a team-leading .396 with two homeruns and 25 runs batted in. He also tied the school record with 6 Templetons. I mean triples. His performance in center-field bordered on brilliance. He made only one error the entire year.

This year, with still ten games remaining, Wayne is hitting a steady .370. He has seven homeruns, tying the school record. His five triples and four doubles give him the team lead in extra base hits. So with at least seventy innings of baseball left, Clermont is a good bet to hold the UMSL records for homeruns and triples in a season.

Most athletes try and don't try records and records is no exception. "It really is not that important." But with his usual candor, he explained that records mean something. "Since we are probably not going to the regionals, why not go for a few personal goals."

Because the Rivermen have not had a NCAA playoff type of year, Coach Dix has been platooning his regulars more often, in favor of youth. The Coach's thinking is certainly understandable, if not sound. After all, the only place the Rivermen are going after the regular season is to the equipment room to give their uniforms back to Hans. So why not try and find out something about the future of the team.

The coach's new philosophy suits about as well with Wayne as a 0-4 day at the plate. "I am mad that he has been platooning me the last six games. And it's going to hurt my chances for breaking the records. I am a senior and this is it. If I don't get drafted, it's all over." Case rents, your honor.

Being drafted is the ultimate goal of every young baseball player. Sign that contract, cash that bonus check, buy a Fleetwood and get on the next flight to Yankee stadium. Play ten years and then coach for five more. After it's all over, open up a sporting goods store or a saloon.

How about it Wayne? "I would love to play and I think I preserve a shot. But I think a lot of it depends on Coach Dix. Scouts will ask him about me. Now if I had twenty homeruns and 50 RBIs, it would be a different story. But I do not have super stats and I am not playing at a large school. So I need every break I can get."

Wayne does feel he got a break playing under a coach like Jim Dix. "I think he is an excellent hitting coach, and he is the major cause for my improvement from high school and junior college." Clermont is not the first nor will he be the last to testify on the strengths of Coach Dix.

The way Clermont talks about improvement, one gets the impression that he hit like Dal Maxvill before he donned the UMSL pinstripes. That is an absurd as believing Bo Derek has a pimple. His last two years at Parkway North, Clermont hit .325 and .400 respectively.

At Flo Valley, Wayne was a model of consistency. He batted .320 and .340. As a sophomore, he led the team in batting and triples. He also played in every game.

The final chapter of the Wayne Clermont book is now here. Should we remember a diving stop in center field? How about a mile-long homerun? No, just a handshake and a smile.

PEK advances in Coors Intramural Festival

Jack M. Crosby

On Saturday, the one sunny day we had this past Easter weekend, the Campusfest Intramural Festival was held on the University of Missouri St. Louis campus. This is sort of a "Superstars" competition which culminates in a national tournament in Warrensburg, Missouri this weekend, April 25 and 26.

The competition is sponsored by the Coors Beer Company. Coors donates $700 in athletic equipment to each participating school. Participating in the competition are the teams the Flyers, captained by Tommy Tate, P.E.K., captained by Jim Collins, the Dirty Doolers, led by Steve Walters, and Smitty's Gang, captained by Chris Meter.

The competition events consisted of the frisbee throw, the 80-yard relay, a volleyball tournament and a tug-of-war competition.

The frisbee throw was won by the Dirty Doolers. The frisbee throw teams were made up of two men and two women from each team. They threw from a point as nearly along a straight line as possible. The amount of deviation from the line was subtracted from the total distance. The high men's throw and the high women's throw were combined to give the team score. The Dirty Doolers throw was 281 feet, just four feet more than the second place finisher, in that event, P.E.K.

The 880-yard relay was dominated by the Flyers, who turned in a time of one minute, forty-three seconds. However, they were disqualified when one of their team members ran inside one of the track markers, and the victory went to the Dirty Doolers, whose time was one minute, fifty-two seconds.

The tug-of-war was won by P.E.K., which finished second in both the frisbee throw and the volleyball competition. The volleyball competition was won by Smitty's Gang.

At the completion of the competition there was a three-way tie for first place between P.E.K., Smitty's Gang, and the Dirty Doolers. Another tug-of-war contest was held as a tie-breaker and P.E.K. emerged the champions.

Sharpshooters tops in hoc-soc

INTRAMURAL REPORT

Another intramural champion was crowned this week. Monday night, the depth-filled Sharpshooters overwhelmed the Sharks 40-0 and won the women's hoc-soc league.

It was a night filled with splendid performances. Char Hudson was spectacular scoring two goals. Nancy Cadenhead played her usual fine all-around game. Lori Smith recorded her second shutout of the year. She plays goal like Mike List.

But maybe the key to this glorious final was that the Sharks only had the required number of six when the game started. Before their reserves came, the Sharpshooters led 2-0.

And a 2-0 lead with Lori Smith in the nets, well, it's over. Nancy Cadenhead had some profound thoughts on the final.

"It was one of the finest intramural hoc-soc games ever played at the Mark Twain complex. Sort passes and quick speed prevented them from scoring. Kenny Hudson reffed one of his finest games."

KWMU Student Staff Presents the 2nd Annual LOON FEST Friday May 1 11:00 till 1:30 Featuring "FROM THIS MOMENT ON" U.Center Patio Contests + Prizes

ONLY THE ARMY GIVES YOU TWO WAYS TO LOWER THE COST OF EDUCATION IN JUST TWO YEARS.

LOAN FORGIVENESS

If you have a Guaranteed Student Loan or a National Direct Student Loan (made after October 1, 1975) hanging over your head, consider spending a couple of years in the Army.

If you train for certain specialties, the government will release you from 1/3 of your indebtedness (or $1,500, whichever is greater) for each year of active duty.

Obviously, a three-year enlistment would eliminate 100% of your indebtedness. But you may prefer to take a shorter route and sign up under the Army's two-year enlistment option (and put 2/3 of your debt behind you).

Or you might want to join the Army Reserve. If you qualify, as a Reservist you can stay home, get paid for your active duty, and receive 15% loan forgiveness (or $500, whichever is greater) for each year you serve.

But we're not just offering you loan forgiveness. With your education, you can probably qualify for a higher rank and pay grade. You'll have your choice of many sophisticated Army skills.

And you may be eligible for generous monetary educational incentives.

TWO-FOR-ONE SAVINGS PLAN

If your dream is to continue your education some day, joining the Veterans' Educational Assistance Program can bring that day closer.

In fact, in just two years you can accumulate up to $9,200 for grad school. (Only the Army can offer you a two-year enlistment.)

It's not a loan, so you'll never have to worry about making payments. It's simply a savings program between you and the government.

If you save between $25 and $100 of your monthly Army pay, the government will match that amount two-for-one. On top of that, you might qualify for an exclusive Army educational incentive of $2,000. (Longer enlistments can result in higher incentives.)

And you can participate in VEAP at the same time you're receiving loan forgiveness.

So, in just two years, you can go back to school with 2/3 of your debt behind you and up to $9,200 for your education ahead of you. (Of course, a longer enlistment could result in more educational benefits and 100% loan forgiveness.)

To find out more about both ways to serve your country as you serve yourself, call 800-421-4422. In California, 800-253-0011. Alaska and Hawaii, 800-423-2244. Ask for the name of the Army's college representative nearest you.
