The University of Missouri has asked the state of Missouri for a funding increase of over $29 million for general operations during the 1982-83 fiscal year. The fiscal year begins on July 1, 1982. This year the university was allocated $170.2 million by the state. The university is asking for $199.5 million for next year.

More than two-thirds of the requested increase is for inflation adjustment. Of the $29 million, $20 million is earmarked for inflation adjustment, $3 million for compensation improvements, and $6 million for program requirements. Included in the program requirements for UMSL is funding for the schools of Optometry and Nursing, library improvements, upgrading of the AOJ program, and improvements in the business education, MBA, studio art, and mass communications programs.

University President C. Olson has designated adequate compensation for faculty and staff as the university's most critical need. In the president's message to the appropriations request, Olson said, "Because the university is not competitive in salaries and wages, it faces great difficulty in recruiting and retaining experienced and qualified people, both faculty and staff. And a university is only as good as its faculty and staff."

According to figures in the appropriations request, salaries for faculty, administrative, and professional personnel are 14.1 percent lower than the average salaries paid by comparable midwestern university systems. Salaries for service and support personnel are 35.6 percent below the average wage rates in St. Louis, Kansas City, and central Missouri. The university does not reflect the four percent salary increases for faculty and seven percent wage increases for service and support personnel to be implemented Jan. 1 at UMSL.

A major consequence of inadequate compensation mentioned in the request was high employee turnover. According to information in the request, the current turnover rate in the service area is 5 percent and in the clerical area it is 37 percent. In the request, personnel turnover was cited as "...a self-defeating situation that affects efficient operations and is more expensive than if competitive salaries and wages had been paid.

Although the university was allocated $170.2 million for this year, it only received $153 million because of statewide ten percent budget reductions imposed by Governor Christopher S. Bond. The reductions were necessary, according to the governor, to maintain a balanced state budget as required by law.
Writing course to be held

A course on technical writing will be offered by UMSL’s Continuing Education-Extension from Nov. 3 to Nov. 24. Classes will meet on Tuesdays from 6:30-9:30 in the J.C. Penney Building. The fee for the course is $65.

The purpose of the seminar is to take the “guesswork” out of selecting a microcomputer system. The program will cover hardware, software, selection and use of a system, as well as complex technical material clearly and precisely.

The course will be taught by Sally Jackoway, an instructor at UMSL who is currently teaching technical writing. Jackoway has been an editor of flight simulator manuals for pilots at McDonnell Douglas. Additional information about the course can be obtained by calling Debbie Gribble at 553-5961.

Computer seminar offered

A seminar on how to select a microcomputer will be offered Nov. 12 at UMSL. The class will meet from 8:30am-4:30pm in the J.C. Penney Building. The fee for the course is $65.

The seminar is taught by Jack W. St. Clair, associate professor of computer science at the University of Missouri-Rolla Graduate Engineering Center in St. Louis. The seminar is co-sponsored by Business Week in cooperation with the mathematics department of Four- hon College.

For information or registration, call UMSL Continuing Education-Extension, 553-5961.

Senior coordinators named

Audrey Easton and Joyce Pund have been named senior coordinators in Business Continuing Education-Extension at UMSL. Easton will assess community needs and develop continuing education programs for the UMSL School of Business Administration. Pund will coordinate and help develop programs and conferences held in the J.C. Penney Building and off-campus.

Prior to joining UMSL, Easton was publications coordinator and administrative assistant for the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB), a national professional association accrediting agency for colleges and schools of business. AACSB also is the government-recognized accrediting agency for colleges and schools of business. Easton also coordinated business scholarships and community relations.

Joyce Pund was previously employed at Saint Louis University. She now is coordinator of academic services in the Missouri Junior Academy of Science.

Granger receives award

Charles E. Granger, associate professor and chairperson of the biology department at UMSL, will receive the 1981 Science Educator Award at the annual convention of the Science Teachers Association of Missouri to be held Nov. 5 at the Cervantes Convention Center.

The award is given annually to science educators in Missouri who have made outstanding contributions to the sciences in the schools and in science teaching through their leadership and activities.

Granger, who received his bachelor’s degree from Iowa State University and his doctoral degree in plant physiology and science education from the University of Iowa, has developed five programs designed to encourage student interest in the sciences.

He is past director of the Missouri Junior Academy of Science and current director of the Junior Science, Engineering and Humanities Symposium.

He originated the Biology Honor Student Program, Summer Science Research Institute and the Biology Teacher Development Scholarship which is designed to encourage students to enter science teaching as a career.

Garage panels to be repaired

Sharon Kubatzky

Schuster Engineering Company of Webster Groves has been awarded a contract by the Board of Curators to make facade panel improvements to the four parking garages at UMSL. Schuster submitted the low bid of $148,760 for the job.

Vice Chancellor for Administrative Services John P. Perry said that safety is a primary reason for the project. The panels are heavy, and we want to make sure they are safely anchored,” he said. Perry said that work on the garages will begin in two to four weeks. “Work will begin as soon as the contract is approved and the insurance papers are in,” he said. Although parking will be restricted in some areas of the garages, the garage will not be closed.

The contractor will replace missing panels and anchor and brace all of the panels.

Some said panels were cracked by movement of the garages. “The structures are built so that they move,” he stated. “If the panels are not properly attached, they will break.” He added that because the garages were built by different companies at different times, there was a difference in the number of panels and the way in which they were attached. “You can’t really say that one way is better than another,” he said. “It’s an engineering thing.” All of the garages were built before 1975.

The panels have been damaged by being hit by cars and manual for snow removal. During snow removal, on the top levels of the garages, snow was pushed up against the panels.

The procedure for snow removal on the garages will not be altered, according to Perry. “The past few years we’ve closed down the top levels of the structures so there would be no hazard on snow removal,” Perry said. “Then we’ve very carefully removed the snow. That is what we’ll continue to do.”

Schuster will have 180 days to complete the work.

Students interested in learning about the operations of the Missouri legislature can do so through the State Legislative Internship Program (SLIP) at UMSL.

The internship program is designed for juniors, seniors or graduate students who are interested in understanding the processes of the Missouri legislature. The students spend one day each week in Jefferson City working directly with the legislators. Students who participate in the program are allowed to observe and take part directly in participation in the legislature by researching current legislation, lobbying bills, dealing with constituent matters and attending the General Assembly. By participating in the internship program, the students receive six political science credit hours.

"The program is open to any student on campus," said Rodney Wright, project development specialist and adjunct professor of political science. "The only requirement is that they must have at least a 2.5 GPA. It is also helpful if they have a little political science background, but this is not mandatory. We have students from the economics, business and social work departments in the program. It is also helpful for students to have good communication and research skills."

Interested students must fill out a two-part application. The first part asks general questions about the student's experience, skills, school background, and reasons for participating in the program. The second portion asks questions such as particular party affiliation and political areas of interest so as to allow for better placement in Jefferson City.

The deadline for turning in applications is Nov. 13. Applications can be picked up in room 408 Tower.

"Sixteen positions are available to students," said Wright. "Last year we did not have a lot of participation in the program, so this year we sent a letter to all faculty members on campus. We want to make people more aware of the program." Student participants are each assigned to work with a specific legislator. They are placed through a state representative from Kirkwood who works directly with UMSL. He receives the information from student applications and makes the actual placement.

"We have a good feel for which legislators have dealt successful-ly with interns," said Wright. "The people in Jefferson City are responsible for the survival of this university. We want to send good representatives from UMSL to Jefferson City."

The transportation to Jefferson City is paid for by UMSL.

"The program is beneficial in that anyone interested in the legislative processes would certainly find it useful," said Wright. "If a student does good work, he makes good contacts for the future. In order to understand the legislative processes, there is no way of learning it as well as watching it in progress."

The State Legislative Internship Program is directly related to an internship program offered everywhere. It is the program which places students in government offices or agencies. Some students are even allowed to work for congressmen.

"We try to match students' academic or career interests with a particular position," said Wright. "Most students in the UMSL program are not student legislative interns."

Philosophy

mind. "Dennett has made philosophers aware of the relationship between problems about the mind and recent work in psychology and computer science," Gordon said. Dennett's book, "Brainstorms," attempts to show how and why the brain is a possible physical object like the human being to do the work of a machine.

Douglas Hofstadter of Indiana University will speak from 3:30-5:30 pm Wednesday in room 118 SSB on "Holism, Goals, Soulless." Hofstadter won a Politeer Prize for his book, "Godel, Escher, Bach: an Eternal Golden Brains," in which he explores some implications of work being done in the computer field for the philosophy of mind. The book brings together the philosophy of mind, studies in artificial intelligence and work in music and the visual arts.

Derek Parfit of Oxford University, who UMSL assistant professor of philosophy Stephanie A. Ross describes as "one of the world's recognized authorities on personal identity," will open Thursday's program at 2:45pm. Parfit will open Thursday's program with his talk, "Personal Identity, Rationality," at 11am in room 216 SSB.

From 2:45pm Thursday, in room 118 SSB, Harry Frankfurt of Yale University will talk on "What We Care About."

MacIntyre has written several books on the intersection of ethics, psychology and politics. His latest book, "Beyond Freedom," was featured in a recent issue of "Newsweek."

The program on Thursday will be concerned with issues of personal identity," Ross said. "Derek Parfit are especially interested in exploring ways of being a person, how our interest in things helps determine our identity and in what way our own ways affect our personal values."

The three-day conference will close with a talk from Robert Reilly of Princeton University on "Contemporary Philosophy of Mind."

From 11am to noon on Friday, in room 222 J.C. Penney, "Moral Psychology and the Mirror of Nature," explores recent developments in philosophy.

Commentators for the program will be Guy Steele of Carleton College, Gerald Dworkin of the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle, Annette Baier of Pittsburgh, and Donald Regan of the University of Michigan. Reilly, MacIntyre, and Dennett will also serve as "concurrents."

Registration for the conference and a buffet luncheon will be held Tuesday Oct. 28 in University House, 7956 Natural Bridge Road. A buffet luncheon will also be served Thursday from noon-2pm. The cost of each luncheon is about $3.

Cocktails will be served Wednesday night from 5:30-7:30pm in University House. Thursday's program will be followed by a banquet at 7pm at the Chase Park Plaza Hotel, 212 N. Kingshighway. The banquet is approximately $20. It is not necessary to send money for the luncheon or banquet.

For registration form and complete schedule, call (314) 997-7791. For more information, contact Paul Roth at 553-6194.

Dear Governor Bond,

This is just a reminder to let you know that the University of Missouri still exists. We have not closed our doors in the face of your budget cuts and general lack of support for public higher education. In fact, the university has even experienced an increase in enrollment this fall despite these hardened conditions.

We are making it, but you haven’t made it very easy on us.

The university will suffer if it does not receive the support it needs from you. Sure, we have made the necessary sacrifices this year in order to stay within our given budget. Library hours have been cut during the summer, the UMSL campus, faculty and staff did not receive adequate compensation this semester, positions have remained vacant and services have been eliminated. But we have not been able to do it this year, but what about next year and future years? How much more can we really afford to cut?

Oh well, c’est la vie. Maybe we should forget about the budget problems for awhile. We do have another question for you, though. When Governor Bond, are we going to see the appointment of three new curators for the University of Missouri Board of Curators? It’s not that we don’t like the present board. They are a dedicated group of individuals. But the terms of C.R. Johnston, Wallace R. Stacey, and William J. Williams ended Jan. 1, 1981. That’s been over nine months ago! It could be there is a related problem concerning redistricting the ten present congressional districts to nine districts. According to Missouri statutes: “The board of curators of the university of the state of Missouri shall hereafter consist of nine members, who shall be appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate; provided that not more than one curator shall be appointed upon said board from the same congressional district.”

Yes, it would be awkward for you to have to remove a curator from the board. But how much longer can we afford to wait for your decision?

Nine curators sit on the board and every two years three curators are either re-appointed or replaced. That means that on Jan. 1, 1983, Daniel L. Bremner, Robert A. Dempster and William T. Doak will end their six year term.

Unless “new blood,” as you’ve put it before, is selected soon, we could see six relatively new curators sitting on the board. That would leave only one veteran who would be well versed in university operations and procedures. Maybe we’ve just sentimental old fools but we don’t want to see too much “new blood” making important university decisions.

As it is now, the three persons who will replace Johnston, Stacey and William will serve a little over five years, provided you make the appointments within the near future. After they serve a full year and get to know the university system, they should have at least a good three or four years left to serve.

Maybe when it comes time to make new appointments for 1983 you’ll find it need to hold off a little then too. After that we won’t worry because of course you only have until 1984 before your term ends too.

It’ll be a long three years for the university, Governor Bond.

Sincerely,

Christopher Yes

Accounting Majors:

WATCH OUT FOR THAT FIRST STEP

Now that you are graduating, a lot of people are going to be telling you that your first career move should be with a Big 8 accounting firm. We at Alexander Grant have a piece of advice for you—watch out for that first step.

If you are looking for a secure niche with a big firm, perhaps the Big 8 is for you. But if you want your first step to provide a wide range of professional challenges, you should take a look at Alexander Grant. While we're not Big 8, we can show you a lot of national and international clients that rival any Big 8 firm, and we can give you something more—an atmosphere in which you can make a significant contribution to client service and a chance to realize your professional ambitions by growing with the firm.

A representative of Alexander Grant-St. Louis will be at The University of Missouri-St. Louis Nov. 12. Sign-up sheets are in the placement office. If the professional opportunity we've described appeals to you, come see us, and make sure that first step is the one you really want to take.

Mystique of Far East holds audience captive

Many of us have been enticed by the mystique of the Far East, but few of us are afforded the chance to view the customs and culture firsthand. Last Tuesday the students at UMSL were given the opportunity, when the Youth Goodwill Mission from Taiwan presented “An Adventure in Chinese Songs and Dance.”

During September and October the dancers, sponsored by Taiwan Television Company, will be visiting over 15 U.S. cities during this, their seventh United States tour. The 14 dancing members of the group are students selected from 104 leading universities in Taiwan. As the name implies, they are here to familiarize the people of the United States with some of the unique customs of the Republic of China.

The program opened with Ch’uan, a combination of martial arts and dance steps. Chuan incorporates the movements of animals into a series of uniform motions which combine style and grace with skill and power.

The second part of the program featured the Highlights of Chinese Classical and Folk Dance. Five newly choreographed dances, using costumes and movements to reflect feelings toward nature.

Third on the agenda was “Taiwan the Beautiful,” which depicted an Autumn day starting with men and women working the fields, singing and dancing. The dance celebrates an abundant harvest and features the dancers flying kites and playing flutes.

Practically everything onstage provided an insight into the Chinese culture. The tremendous discipline was evident in the precision of the dancer’s moves. Their love of beauty showed through in the richly ornamented costumes, and their affinity for the art of dancing was evident from the obvious pleasure they received from the performance.

The audience, a fairly large one, was captivated by the brilliant array of color in motion. The words used to describe the performance included “wonderful,” “excellent” and “just plain great,” but the best description came from a professional dramatist. “I’ve seen all sorts of performances, but this is the only one I’ve seen in America that really captures what it is to be Chinese.”

The Beaux Arts Trio returns as refreshing as ever

Review

Daniel C. Flanagan

The Beaux Arts Trio played in the J.C. Penney Auditorium last Wednesday. It has been several years since the group has appeared in St. Louis and it was a welcome return. Pliniu Menahem Pressler, violinist Isidore Cohen, and cellist Leonard Greenhouse have been together for over 25 years as the Beaux Arts Trio. Playing together for so long has allowed the group to refine their sound to an artful craft, but they have not allowed themselves to go stale. Their music is as refreshing as ever.

The trio opened the evening's program with Mozart's Trio in E Major, K.542. Mozart wrote this trio during his stay in Vienna. The score is expressive, yet natural in the sense of being free of needless technical complications. Mozart's work is known for its gracefully charming melodies. The contrapuntal texture, which is ever present in works from this period of Mozart's life, was played down by the trio, which

The group is structured similarly to one on the UMC campus. Their group is a larger one than ours and they are able to provide monetary support whereas we can only offer personal support. Funding is far off in the future, for says Stowell. Columbia's group is so large because the town is a college town and the university provides many of the cultural programs for the community. Membership for the group is open to anyone who has an interest in the UMSL music department.

The board consists of 17 members. The officers are Stowell, president; Ott, ex-officio member; Mitchell, vice-president; and Mary Edwards, secretary.

Edwards is program director for KWMU and a graduate of UMSL's music department. There are seven UMSL alumni on the board. In addition to Edwards they are, Roger Lee, Sharon Rose, Madeline Crouse, Dorothy Jones, Specs Dallas, and Gary Brandeis.

According to Stowell, one of the main goals of the group is to publicize Kammergild. UMSL's orchestra in residence. The "Friends" are planning a reception for it at the Chancellor's residence. They are also planning a following the dedication of the Music Building.

PIECE BY PIECE: Students in Zuleyka Benigez's Basic Drawing class show off their finished project.

Each of the 22 students received a 2" x 2" part of a selected photograph and charoaled their square to an 18" x 18". The students were not shown the original photograph until the enlarged squares were fitted together. The class, held Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1-3:50pm in the Blue Metal Building, completed the project in two days. The contributing artists include: Jo Kirk, J. Christopher Ryan, Kim Cook, George Wise, Susan Santen, Richard Ficker, Blaise Bova, Zuleyka Benitez (instructor), Roy C. Pennington, John Douglass, Sue Naber. Those not pictured: Tychica Barnes, Regina Bledsoe, Helen Carmichael, Leonard Green, Tammy O'Brien, Michael Olear, Doug Seaton, Tom Weber, Jeff Leong, and Lisa Murphy (photo by Wiley Price).

University Orchestra to perform

The University Orchestra will present a concert, free of charge, on Nov. 1 at 8pm. The concert will be held on the Marillac campus.

The Symphony is under the direction of James Richards, assistant professor of music. The evening's program will include Rossini's Overture to "Italian Girl in Algiers," Britten's Courtly Dances from "Gloriana," Stamitz's Concerto for Clarinet and Bassoon, and Beethoven's German Dances.

Rivermen win two on road

Ron Tipton

The UMSL men's soccer team came off its longest road trip of the season this past weekend with two victories to raise its record to 10-1. The Rivermen posted victories against Xavier University and Dayton University.

The Rivermen beat Xavier 2-0 on goals by Scott Chase and Mike Bess. The first half of the game was kind of sluggish for the Rivermen. Coach Dan Dallas explained "Their field was hard and small. It was wet too, there were a lot of bumps and raises in it."

The second half was a different story for the Rivermen, though, because almost immediately into the half, Scott Chase netted for his ninth goal of the season this past weekend on a free kick that was deflected in. Mike Bess got the shutout and Bob Weis got the assist on goal by Scott Chase and Bob Furstes and Tim Murphy got the assists on the goals.

About three minutes into the second half, Dayton evened the game up at 1-1. Dallas said, "I thought we were in trouble, but we weathered the storm." And they did, literally. "The weather turned really bad," said Dallas.

The first game was really a worry for the Rivermen, though, because almost immediately into the half, Scott Chase netted for his ninth goal of the season this past weekend on a free kick that was deflected in. Mike Bess got the shutout and Bob Weis got the assist on goal by Scott Chase and Bob Furstes and Tim Murphy got the assists on the goals.

The second half of the trip was easier for the kickers as they defeated Dayton 3-1. Jim Kohlschreiber got his first goal of the year off of a first half throw in that was deflected in. Bess' total is up to 10 goals for the season to put him fourth in the nation according to the polls.

The final score of this pressure-packed game was 1-0. It was a goal on a free kick. The game was full of hard hitting and aggressive play by both teams. Unfortunately for the TKE's, the Pike team took a tough 0-1 victory and advanced to the quarter-finals of the polls against the No Names.

The UMSL intramural program is in the midst of transition as one sport ends and another begins. Intramural football will conclude next week with the championship game slated for Saturday, Oct. 27 at 3:00pm. Intramural volleyball is now just two weeks old.

The intramural football season is coming to an exciting close with the playoffs beginning last Tuesday on the intramural football field.

The final round of the playoffs featured an undefeated Pike team going against TKE team that boasted a 3-2 mark. The game was full of hard hitting and aggressive play by both teams. Unfortunately for the TKE's, the Pike team took a tough 3-2 victory and advanced to the quadrant-finals of the playoffs against the No Names.

The Pike's scored on a Bruce Short pass to Lloyd Bollinger who made a fantastic catch. Later in the contest, Chris O'Dell sacked the TKE quarterback back for a two point safety to end the scoring.

The No Names won the honor of playing the Pikes by winning 15-2 against the Jets. The Jets had a season mark of 4-1 while the No Names won the League II Division with a 3-1 mark.

In other playoff action, Sig Tau defeated the Papal Bulls by a score of 10-8. Sig Tau boasted an overall league record of 3-1 and the Papal Bulls, who finished second behind the No Names in League II, had a 2-1-1 record.

In the first round playoff game last Tuesday, the 1-2-1 Great Diggers team took on the League I leading NFCT team who held a perfect 5-0 season mark.

The final score of this pregame of the playoffs was 15-20 with NFCT barely advancing to the quarter-finals. NFCT was powered by three Chris Anagnost touchdowns passes.

Quarter-final play begins today at 3:00pm on the intramural field. The winners of the first game will feature the Pikes playing the No Names. The second game will begin at 4:00pm. It has Sig Tau going against NFCT.

The intramural final is scheduled for next Tuesday, Oct. 31.

Intramural Volleyball began action last week with many exciting games by the 21 participating teams.

The winners from last Mon's matches were the Neo's Phil Zapata-Krappa, also winning two matches, and The Alliance Jetsons and the Pikes 1, who each recorded a win.

The winners from last Wed. nespday were Le Sabre, The Alliance, Dates & Guitars, Denver, UMSL Names, Racquetball Club, Spikes, E. and the Bible Study.

The final score of this pressure-packed game was 1-0. It was a goal on a free kick. The game was full of hard hitting and aggressive play by both teams. Unfortunately for the TKE's, the Pike team took a tough 0-1 victory and advanced to the quarter-finals of the polls against the No Names.
Ed Weis: A brick wall in front of the Rivermen's soccer net

Jeff Kuchno

Ed Weis remembers the feeling he got two years ago as a freshman goalkeeper when he was told, just prior to the season opener against powerful St. Louis University, that he was the starting assignment was his.

"I was really excited but I was also nervous," he said. "Coach (Don) Dallas told me right before the game that I was starting and then I thought about how good St. Louis U. was. I was a bit scared." It would have been difficult to come up with a fall-net minder from Roosevelt High School. The high-powered Bills scored three goals off Weis in that game, but UMSL followers had to be impressed with the manner in which the rookie guarded the net.

Since that day, Weis has steadily established himself as the Bill's number one. UMSL history. In fact, he is already the program's record holder for most shutouts in a career with 15, and he still has the remainder of this season and next season to add to that total. Moreover, however, his shutout record isn't really a true indication of his ability. "It's nice to have the record, but a shutout should be credited to the defense," Weis said. "It would be difficult to get a lot of shutouts with a bad defense. Our defense has been playing well in the three years I've been here." Weis, who was named to the All-Midwest team in 1979, started the majority of the games in his freshman year and registered five shutouts. Last year, he appeared in the 15 shutouts as a junior.

As the 1981 season approached, Weis was aware that he was only one shotout behind Frank Tusinski, who previously held the record at UMSL. But due to graduation and other reasons, there were those who felt it would take time for Weis to get accustomed to his new set of backliners for the 1981 season.

"It really wasn't a big adjustment, though," Weis explained. "Rags (starting sweeper Randy Ragdall) played here two years ago and (Tony) Pusateri and (Greg) Schlake saw a lot of action last year. (Bob) Fuentes is the only new guy back there."

The arrival of fellow goalkeeper Ken Bayless from Florissant Valley Community College also shed a new light on the 1981 season for Weis. In fact, the starting spot was up for grabs as the start of the season and Bayless has continued to pressure the incumbent.

"The competition has really made me work harder," Weis said. "I don't know if it's made me a better goalie, though." It probably has. Not only does Weis work hard at thwarting the opposition, but his experience on a relatively young squad has been a major reason for UMSL's success. The Rivermen were 10-1 going into last night's game against Washington U.

"I guess I'm playing sort of a leadership role," Weis said. "Other than that, I don't feel any different about this year than the first two. We've had a good team every year."

"Weis' main goal is to see the Rivermen capture the national championship before his college career is over. But even if UMSL fails to go all the way, Weis realizes there are more important things.

"It's important just to have a good time," he said. "As long as you're enjoying what you're doing, that's all that matters."

Of course, it doesn't hurt to win. And to be sure, Weis knows a lot about that.

Both the men's and women's soccer games against Eastern Illinois University have been moved up a day to tomorrow, Oct. 23.
Originaliy, the games were to be played on Saturday, Oct. 24.
Eastern Illinois University will bring a powerful team to the UMSL soccer field. Presently ranked fifth in NCAA Division I play, the rivalry has been growing over the past few years. Last year, the Rivermen walked off the Eastern field with a 2-1 victory. That was the majority of the games in his junior year.

UMSL spikers play mental game; win

Jim Schnurrbusch
The women's volleyball team was on a climb toward the .500 level until last week. If they had pulled together victories against McKendree College, and then three successive wins in the Evansville Tourney, a round-robin event that featured the University of Evansville, Franklin College and a relatively unknown Belarmine College, the Riverwomen could have kept their winning streak intact.

But, the Riverwomen couldn't overcome a tough McKendree team on their home court last week Tuesday and lost the match. With that loss, the women's record fell to 6-9.

Traveling to Evansville last weekend, the women's volleyball squad hoped of redeeming themselves by winning a round-robin tournament. They played three matches against three very strong opponents. According to volleyball coach Cindy Rech, they were "team they could have beat."

Actually, as it turns out, there was only one team in the tourney "they could have beat."

Playing all of their games on Saturday in Evansville, the women spikers opened the round-robin action against the University of Evansville, the host team. They lost their opening game 15-10, 7-15 and 10-15.

Their next opponent was Franklin University. They too have UMSL a struggle and finally walked away with a 9-15, 12-15 and 7-15 win.

The women were determined not to leave Evansville without showing how they had improved their seasonal record after such a sluggish showing earlier in the year.

"We beat ourselves," lamented Rech, referring to the two losses against Evansville and Franklin. "It's not that we played bad, things just didn't go right and we weren't consistent.

The women put the losses in the tourney behind them as they looked forward to the final match against Belarmine.

In the fourth game match, the Riverwomen got back on the winning track with a 15-8, 13-15, 15-9 and 15-5 win.

Not only did they play impressively in the match, but the women may have given themselves the emotional lift they needed to face too very tough opponents last Tuesday night. In addition to the win, Rech was able to play everyone on the team which could prove to play an important factor as the season splits up for an intrasquad game. During the various monotonous drills, the team usually goes through a sluggish showing earlier in the year.

"Butch Yatkeman" (Oct. 22, 1981) who is more dedicated to being a team manager.

Franklin.

The women's volleyball team command is Mark Ryan, team manager for the soccer Rivermen the last three years. And although most followers of UMSL soccer don't see it, Ryan does more than just chase down soccer balls.

Ryan's job entails watering and lining the field, putting the nets, corner flags, moving equipment (i.e. tables and chairs), keeping track of the balls, keeping track of the uniforms on road trips, taking down the nets after a game and making sure all the equipment is packed away securely. Wow!

"Why would anyone want to hold down such a low-paying blue collar job that doesn't include a lot of recognition?"

"Because I like it," said Ryan. "I would like to make a career out of it."

Fair enough Mark, but what is so enjoyable about being a team manager?

"It's the day of a game or practice, I'm usually the first one to get here and the last one to leave," Ryan said. "Believe me, it's a lot of work."

But Ryan admits he doesn't mind. In fact, it would be hard to find someone else (with the exception of the baseball Cardinal's distinguishable Butch Yatkeman), who is more dedicated to being a team manager.

"I've been doing this for almost 10 years," Ryan said proudly. "I'm the only person I know who has stuck with something like this for this long."

Although not a very good athlete, Ryan makes a point to stay in top-notch condition. An avid runner, Ryan runs about 15 miles a day over the summer and has been known to run to and from school practice. And he doesn't live just around the corner.

"I like to stay in shape, because my job requires a lot of work," he explained. "It's a job that is physically demanding."

Perhaps that is why Ryan enjoys away games so much. He admits that isn't as much work involved in away games and being with the players on the road can be fun. In fact, Ryan's famed "wolf call" was one of the highlights of the bus ride back from a trip to Rolla earlier this year.

The job of team manager is one that many people can't handle. Fame and glory usually isn't the reward. Personal satisfaction is.

So, the next time you hear "Mark... are the balls," you'll know who they're talking about.

Do you know Mark Ryan?

It's almost the same routine every time the UMSL men's soccer squad practices. After various monotonous drills, the team usually spits for an intrasquad game. During the scrimmage, it's inevitable that at least one player will come down the field with the ball and blast a shot so high and wide of the goal that it appears to be headed for Lambert Airport. And then, as the players regroup for another rush, a voice from across the field is heard loud and clear:

"Mark... go get the ball."

The young man who answers to that command is Mark Ryan, team manager for the soccer Rivermen the last three years. And although most followers of UMSL soccer don't see it, Ryan does more than just chase down soccer balls.

Ryan's job entails watering and lining the field, putting the nets, corner flags, moving equipment (i.e. tables and chairs), keeping track of the balls, keeping track of the uniforms on road trips, taking down the nets after a game and making sure all the equipment is packed away securely. Wow!

Ryan began his career as a team manager his freshman year in high school at Rosary. He served similar capacities in football, basketball and baseball as he does now. After four years of service at Rosary, Ryan went to Florissant Valley Community College, where he was manager of the soccer team for two years. He is now in his third year as team manager at UMSL.

"I've been doing this for almost 10 years," Ryan said proudly. "I'm the only person I know who has stuck with something like this for this long."

Although not a very good athlete, Ryan makes a point to stay in top-notch condition. An avid runner, Ryan runs about 15 miles a day over the summer and has been known to run to and from school practice. And he doesn't live just around the corner.

Unknown orienteering now becoming popular sport

Jim Schurman

Some sports are destined to media coverage—most often, too much media coverage. As a sports enthusiast, one can be overwhelmed with football, baseball, and basketball and many other sports.

There is one sport however, that doesn’t get nationwide coverage. As a sport that has been “kept in the woods” for a long time in the United States, orienteering is rapidly increasing its popularity across the country.

This weekend, a St. Louis orienteering group and some of its members will be a major participant in a national orienteering meet in Buffalo, NY. There will be six UMSL students competing in the meet which will attract 700 people.

Orienteering is the “Thinking man’s sport,” according to Bill Comfort, an UMSL student and Buffalo-bound orienteer.

Orienteering began in Europe long ago and continues to be one of the most popular sports there. Orienteering boasts the single largest sporting event in the world, the O’Ringen Meet held in Sweden, which attracts some 15,000 participants.

The sport relies on the use of a map and a compass to navigate an unmarked course through an unknown area of mostly wooded, hilly terrain. According to Comfort, “The course can also be walked at a non-competitive level. These participants are called wayfarers.”

The orienteer finds each control marker in sequence and places a peg attached to it to mark the control card he or she carries. In addition to the control card, the orienteer is given a clue sheet which gives brief descriptions of the terrain where the marker will be found. The objective of the orienteer is to tour the course in the shortest period of time.

The orienteering course is indicated on the map by several control points, usually ranging from 4 to 12, which are represented on the actual course by orange and white nylon markers.

Because of the nature of the sport, it is relatively inexpensive. Participants are required to have, a compass, which can usually be borrowed from meet organizers. Other than a compass, the only thing needed is the desire to take a scenic trip through an unmarked area in the woods.

Orienteering is broken into levels of competition so that everyone can compete at a competitive level. Each event is divided into several event categories which make use of three to five courses of varying difficulty. The three variables that define the categories are age, sex, and experience.

There are also female and male categories broken into three age groups and three levels of skill. Most meets will actually have 15 to 20 categories depending on the number of participants. Usually there is a non-competitive, novice “wayfarer” category.

The courses used are designated white, yellow, orange, red and blue in the increasing order of difficulty and range from two to 10 kilometers.

Comforth, who won the intramural orienteering meet on campus, relates the sport to a “treasure hunt.” He explains, “Orienteering is a rugged sport. A good orienteer doesn’t use his map or compass, but rather finds the markers on pure determination.”

Joining Comfort for the trip to Buffalo will be UMSL students, Bruce Bellinger, Cathy De Shies, Linda Belford, Dan Meenahan and Beth Skelton.

Meenahan and Skelton are premier orienteers in the class throughout the country.

Meenahan is one of the top 10 male orienteers in the nation and Skelton is ranked among the top five female orienteers. Skelton is also a member of the United States Orienteering team.

Anyone can compete in an orienteering meet. Usually there is a small entry fee of $1 or $2. In addition to running various meets, there is a St. Louis Orienteering Club that offers yearly memberships.

Wet trackers; Harriers lose

Mike Oserak

The UMSL Harriers cross country team had to perform more like Rivermen last weekend at the rain-drenched Washington Invitational meet.

A steady rain, interspersed with heavy downpours and lightning, were the elements the Harriers and the other 12 teams took on as they competed in this race at Forest Park.

Central College of Iowa took first place in the meet, followed by Harding College in Arkansas and Washington University. Roger Dougherty of Maryville College as the first runner to finish the five mile course, breaking the tape at 26:11.

Off the five runners for UMSL, who started the race, four finished. Mike Cole was the first Harrier to finish, coming in with a 29:32. Jim Arnold, Bentley Ritchie and Frank Cunningham were the other finishers.

The race course was more fashioned for steelplatechase running rather than cross country running. Long stretches of mud, slanted loose terrain and puddles up to six inches deep were some of the obstacles the runners endured on the course. Frank Cunningham of UMSL admitted that the course was wet.

"Hickle wasn't really tested," (referring to goalie Cindy Hickle) he added. "They had a good defense but no offense. We were ready to play."

The Riverwomen then traveled to Madison where they played a close game, winning with a margin of 2-1.

"We weren't up for the game," Hudson continued. "It was cold and windy, and the fields were damp and slippery. We weren't moving the ball well or marking their players well."

Nevertheless, the Riverwomen did win, highlighted by a two-goal performance from forward Karen Lombardo. Her first goal came during the first half of play, when she was set up in front of the net by Joan Gettemeyer.

"She hit a rocket," Hudson said. "It was a cannon."

She scored her next goal during the second half, when she was assisted by forward Jan Gettemeyer. Gettemeyer is the team leader in assists, with a total of 13. Madison's only goal came during the second half.

"We were lucky to win," Hudson said. "Our passing was awful."

Earlier in the year, the Riverwomen defeated Madison in the first half of play, when she was set up in front of the net by Joan Gettemeyer.

"It was a rocket." Hudson continued. "They had a good defense but no offense. We were ready to play."

The Riverwomen's next game is slated for this Friday when they take on Eastern Illinois University. The game, which is scheduled for 5:30pm, will be played at UMSL.

Volleyball

Rech felt the team junior Pat Maleas and freshman Cheri Veressmann played extremely well in their supporting performances.

"I did manage to play everyone, I was extremely impressed with the play of the girls who have been sitting on the bench through the first part of the season," explained Rech.

With just one senior on the team, the opportunity for the younger members to play this year will prove beneficial for the 1983 squad.

Letting the starters rest also allows for another important element.

"Some of the starters sitting on the bench, they saw some things that went wrong." Still, the main weakness is not in the fundamentals of volleyball.

"Our biggest problem is mental. The skill is there, we just need to work on the mental skills," concluded Rech.

Riverwomen Notes: The UMSL Women's' Volleyball team are the opportunity for the younger members to play this year will prove beneficial for the 1983 squad.

Letting the starters rest also allows for another important element.

According to Rech, "Some of the starters sitting on the bench, they saw some things that went wrong."

Still, the main weakness is not in the fundamentals of volleyball.

"Our biggest problem is mental. The skill is there, we just need to work on the mental skills," concluded Rech.

Riverwomen Notes: The UMSL Women's' Volleyball team won two more matches Tuesday night.

The spikers won the first match by taking three out of five games from the Southeast Missouri State team. The scores of the games were 10-15, 15-11, 12-15, 15-5, and 15-5.

In the second match, they beat William Woods College 2-1. The spikers won the first and third games 15-11 and 15-5 while losing the second 5-15.

Head Coach Cindy Rech said of the first match, "We beat them by the score of 2-1. This will mess up the seedings for the regionals because of our split matches with SEMO."

The first win over William Woods was party due to the tough play of Sue Durrer, a junior out of Roosevelt High School in St. Louis.

Hey students of life...

GET MUGGED!

Tired of paper cups that leak and go soft in the clutch? Tired of the banal experience of the unsigned stein, the motto-less mug? Tired of sipping your special suds from a vile, nameless vessel? Tired of being under-mugged, substandardly steined, on campus and off? Tired of school? Already? Take heart and heed!

MUGMONTH '81

Wherein the management has consented to sell every beer mug in sight — ceramic, plastic, lidded, unlidded, fine and superfine — at a special 25 per cent college discount. Each mug or stein carries the proud colors of Budweiser®, Michelob®, Busch® Natural Light® Michelob Light® or Wurzburger Hofbrau® — all the true brews that mean so much after the last class of the day. And quantities are limited only by your imagination and fiscal sobriety.

While you're with us, take a complimentary tour of our world-famous Anheuser-Busch brewery. Watch us brew the beers that take the national championship every year! Visit the home of the magnificent Clydesdales! Sample the world's finest family of beers in our Hospitality Room! And browse among hundreds of beer-branded items in the Gift Shop, including T-shirts, tap handles, jackets, caps, Frohees and, of course, the many magnificent mugs of Anheuser-Busch.

So come on down, get yourself mugged and take advantage of Mugmonth '81, the era of the 25 per cent college discount.
