Optometry, nursing amendment passes

An amendment to the Student Association Constitution that allows the schools of nursing and optometry to be represented in the Student Assembly was approved by students in the Sept. 29 and 30 elections.

But the School of Optometry seat will remain vacant until a special election can be held because no one from the school ran for the seat. One nursing student was on the ballot for the other seat.

The amendment was necessary because the Student Association Constitution required a school to have 251 students before it could be represented in the assembly. The amendment changed the constitution to read that each school would be entitled to at least one representative in the assembly. There are 64 students enrolled in the School of Optometry and approximately 175 in the School of Nursing.

The amendment passed 747-96. Boblyn Tracy was elected to represent the School of Nursing. Student Association President Larry Wines said that a special election will have to be held to fill the School of Optometry seat.

"We will probably just leave it up to them to fill the seat," he said. "It could be done at one of their regular lunch meetings, an election will be held, and let them hold their election."

In the New Student Elections, six representatives, from a field of 14, were elected to the Student Assembly. The winners and their vote totals were: Elliott M. Power-106, Annette Hayden-95, Karen Abi-95, Timothy Falaty-94, Mark A. Spreck-92, and Kevin King-86.

The elected students are to represent the new undergraduate students in the Student Assembly. The Student Assembly is primarily the legislative body of the Student Association. Each school president elected student represents 500 new students. Their terms will begin next week and run for one year.

The orientation meeting for the new student representatives will be Oct. 15 at 11:30 p.m. in the J.C. Penney Building.

Black history meeting to be held at UMSL

A two-day conference on the history of blacks in the St. Louis area, based on manuscripts, archives, photographs and oral histories collected during a two-year black history project at UMSL, will be held Friday and Saturday, Nov. 6 and 7.

The conference includes a Friday evening session of UMSL, beginning at 7:30 p.m. featuring a keynote address by KMOX-TV anchorman Julius Hunter, followed by a concert of ragtime, jazz and blues by the Singleton Palmer Dixieland Six.

The Saturday program will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the new educational building at Central Baptist Church, 2843 Washington Avenue.

The program includes workshops, a special exhibit of historic manuscripts and photographs, a slide tape presentation, and a concert by the Legend Singers. The conference is supported by a grant from the Missouri Committee for the Humanities, Inc., the state's board arm of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The conference is a culmination of a search for documents, photographs, oral histories and other sources of information on blacks in the St. Louis area. The project has been under the direction of Irene Cortovin, a historian and archivist who serves as a research fellow in the Center for Metropolitan Studies at UMSL. For C. Special Education hit by money woes

School of Education Dean William Franzen says the squeeze for the University of Missouri's financial problems cannot be laid on the administration of the system.

"You can look for a scapegoat, but it isn't the chancellor, the department chairpersons, or the faculty," he said. "It is the mentality of the state of Missouri."

Two-percent campus-wide budget reductions enacted this fall resulted in a cut of part-time positions in child, education and physical education. Positions that are new open in special education, educational administration, business education and science education will remain vacant.

Currently the school has only one professor in special education. Franzen said that this situation should be a threat to the program's accreditation. "These cuts actually threaten the existence of those areas," Franzen said. The School of Education was just reaccredited this year.

Franzen said that more cuts would mean a loss of present faculty members. Franzen added that current faculty salaries are not competitive enough to retain good staff members.

"There are people working to formulate ways of informing the public," he said. "To change the mentality we must inform the taxpayers, the businessmen and the legislators. We must especially inform the parents and the students for they will be hurt in the long run."

"We are supposedly a middle-income state, but we support our schools like a poverty state," Franzen said. He said that other states, such as Illinois, are finding ways to support their educational systems.

"We assert that it is imperative that we maintain the quality of our educational institutions," Franzen said. "We must offer the programs students will need in order to succeed in the 21st century," he said.

U.S. Senate aid bill criticized

American Council on Education President J.W. Peltozam sharply criticized the action of a Senate appropriations subcommittee in slashing $562 million from the level authorized in the Omnibus Reconciliation Act, passed last month, for five federally-supported student financial assistance programs. He estimated that the cuts could eliminate 1,063,000 awards for low-and middle-income college students during the 1982-83 school year.

"Unless this action is reversed by the full appropriations committee—or the entire House and Senate—access to higher education will be severely curtailed next year," Peltozam declared.

The spending cuts were approved Sept. 16, when the subcommittee, headed by Sen. Harrison Schmitt (R-New Mexi- co), approved a funding measure for the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education for fiscal 1982. The action places the Senate group at odds with a House panel that approved higher funding levels last week.

Peltozam notes that higher education has supported efforts to control federal spending and reduce the nation's economic house in order. Educators, he says, hold congressional committees during budget and oversight hearings earlier this year that the nation's campuses are willing to shoulder their fair share of budget cuts.

"But now," Peltozam asserts, "the nation's students and their parents are being singled out for unworthy harvest treatment. This shortsighted action would deny educational opportunities to hundreds of thousands of the next generation."

ACE, an umbrella group representing 1,600 colleges, universities and other higher education groups, estimates that the Senate subcommittee action will have these consequences for federal student aid programs:  * Pell Grants. Some 600,000 currently eligible students in the 1982-83 school year would be eliminated from the program which targets aids to the neediest.

UML faculty women to conduct book fair.

The UML Faculty Women will hold a Book Fair, Tuesday, Oct. 13 through Oct. 15 from 7:30am-10pm in the Blue Metal Office Building.

The Book Fair, which benefits the UML library, will feature popular fiction, special interests and scholarly publications, as well as records and magazines.

For further information, contact the library at 553-5630.

Photography contest offered

The deadline for entries in the amateur photography contest part of the Arts Showcase is Oct. 15. There is no entrance fee. Photography contest is open to students, faculty, and staff. Photos will be evaluated on composition, content, and originality. Photos will be exhibited in the library and prints will be purchased by UML for use in university publications. The first prize winner will receive $100, second, $50 and third, $25.

Complete rules and entry forms are available in the Office of Student Life, 162 University Center or at the Information Desk.

International scholars to be here for conference

"Matters of the Mind," a three-day conference which will explore implications of contemporary philosophy for art, ethics, and religion, will be held Oct. 28-30 at UML.

Supported by a Waldson Grants Spring, the conference will bring high-profiled philosophical figures to Princeton, Tafux, Yale, Wellesley, and Oxford. The program will be held in Room 331, $565. The conference is free, but participants are requested to preregister by calling Paul Roth at 553-6194.

Budget open for inspection

One set (six volumes) of the 1981-82 University of Missouri Operating Budget is now available in the library. The budget is available for inspection by faculty, staff, students or community members who would like to see it. Interested people should inquire at the Reference Desk on the first floor of the library.

Classes to be taught on freelance articles

A course on developing and marketing freelance articles will be offered at Washoung Junior High School by UML. Classes will meet on Monday evenings, from 6:30 to 8:30pm, Oct. 26 through Nov. 16.

Participants will learn how to recognize salable ideas, how to develop them into articles suitable for publications, and how to market them successfully. Class discussions will focus on what the publishers are, where they are located, and what they are buying. The class will explore researching ideas, organizing materials, selecting an appropriate writing style, art work, and preparing a manuscript for submission.

Karlene Gentile, who teaches exposition, creative writing and literature at UML, will be the instructor. Gentile is also a novelist and the editor/publisher of a literary publishing house in St. Louis. She also taught writing for seven years at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

The registration fee for the course is $50. Additional information can be obtained by calling Deborah Factory, UML Continuing Education/Extension, 553-5661.

Accounting course given

An intensive five-part course designed to review all subject areas covered by the CMA (Certificate in Managerial Accounting) examination will be offered at UML. Classes will meet on alternating evenings during the week, from 6:30 to 9pm, Oct. 20, 1981 through June 5, 1982. They will meet in the J.C. Penney Building.

Counselors in Managerial Accounting is awarded to individuals who have passed all five parts of the comprehensive examination and have two years professional experience in management accounting (either prior to, or within three years after passing the examination.) The five parts of the examination are: economics and business environment, finance, organization and behavior, public reporting standards-auditing and taxes, periodic reporting for internal and external purposes, and decision analysis.

With the primarily intended to aid candidates in preparing for the CMA examination, the course also serves as a refresher course dealing with current developments in accounting.

Registration fee for the complete course is $450. For information, or a complete brochure, contact Clark Hickman of UML Continuing Education at 553-5661.

Nursing adds four to faculty

Four faculty members have joined the new UML School of Nursing.

Mary Castles, professor and director of research, comes to UML from Wayne State University where she was associate professor and professor in the College of Nursing from 1975 to 1980. Previously, she was director of research for the St. Louis University School of Nursing and Allied Health Professors from 1969 to 1973.

Castles received her nursing diploma in 1944 from Kansas City General Hospital, her bachelor's and master's degrees in nursing from Washington University at St. Louis, and her Ph.D. in health organization research from St. Louis University.

She has published more than 40 articles and papers in professional journals.

Eleanor Sullivan has joined UML's nursing faculty as assistant professor and curriculum coordinator. From 1978 to 1981 she was an assistant professor in the Department of Nursing at Marysville College. Previously, she was an instructor at Southern Illinois University and St. Luke's Hospital School of Nursing.

Sullivan received her associate degree in nursing from Meramec Community College in 1974, her bachelor's degree from St. Louis University in 1975 and her master's degree from Southern Illinois-Edwardsville in 1977. She completed her Ph.D. in 1981 at St. Louis University. She has served as a mental health consultant for the Visiting Nurses' Association of Greater St. Louis, a nurse psychotherapist for the Child Center of Our Lady of Grace, and a staff nurse at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Ruth L. Jenkins, assistant professor in the UML School of Nursing, received her Ph.D. in special education from St. Louis University in 1981, where she also completed her bachelor's and master's degree in nursing.

She graduated from the Jewish General Hospital School of Nursing in 1962.

Most recently, Jenkins was director of the master's degree program in early childhood and special education for the St. Louis University Department of Graduate Education.

Karen Kelly Schutzhefer, who is currently completing her Ph.D. in instructional process at SIU-E, has been appointed an instructor in the UML School of Nursing. She will teach a course on interpersonal systems in nursing practice and will be involved in curriculum planning.

She received her bachelor's and master's degrees in nursing from SII-E and the University of Minnesota.

Schenzerhofer comes to UML from Lewis and Clark Community College where she was an instructor in psychiatric nursing.

The School of Nursing, which admitted its first class this fall, offers a Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree specifically designed for registered nurses who have RN diplomas from hospital training programs or Associate of Arts degrees from community colleges.

Supplemental Grants. The Senate panel would cut this program by $12 million, requiring the elimination of 270,000 students. The House subcommittee accepted the $370 million current funding level authorized by the reconciliation legislation. This is a key program for students attending higher-priced public and private schools as a supplements to Pell Grants.

Direct Loans. The Senate subcommittee mark would fund 143,000 fewer recipients than the House, which approved the $726 million reconciliation level. This program is targeted to low-income students unlikely to obtain commercial loans.

State Student Incentive Grants. This $26 million cut would bring about a loss of $52 million in student aid funds when matching funds from the state are pumped into the equation. It would eliminate some 50,000 students now eligible for these dollars. This would trigger a crisis in about 14 states, which recently have set up programs largely dependent on federal matching funds.

and aide D. Darden, a political scientist and photographer, have worked as research assistants and field workers on the project.

According to Continisio, "The purpose of this conference is to bring to the public the findings of our project, to describe and develop more on the history of blacks in St. Louis. We feel fortunate that UMSL has been able to play a vital role by providing a home for these materials where they can be catalogued, repaired, researched and preserved as part of the permanent joint collection of the Western Historical Manuscript Collection-State Historical Society of Missouri located on the University of Missouri campus."

A brochure describing the conference program is now available. There is no registration fee for the conference, but advance registrations are requested. There is a $4 charge for lunch on Saturday. For information, or to register, call UMSL Continuing Education-Extension, 553-3961.

Homecoming: Does it belong at UMSL?

Judging by the small number of students who participated in Homecoming activities this year, and in recent years, the validity of "Homecoming" must be questioned.

Does Homecoming belong on the UMSL campus? For past homecomings, parades have been held, floats made, bonfires burned, games played, dances held, and lawn displays constructed. Some of these same activities were also a part of this year's event. But in the past, Homecoming at UMSL has not been that successful.

This year, although student involvement was not record breaking, Homecoming could be considered a success. A foundation has been laid.

This year two student organizations, Delta Zeta Sorority and Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity, participated in the lawn display competition with a winner, Pi Kappa Alpha, receiving a free keg of Miller beer. The display sat in front of the University Center.

There were also 14 candidates running for queen and king. This activity, which received a good showing from both candidates and voters, remain one of the most successful and long-standing traditions for Homecoming.

And then there was the highlight of the event—the dinner/dance.

A very slight gain in attendance was noted at the dinner/dance compared to the previous years when just a step was held. A gain was the object of the switch, although the increase was not as great as hoped.

There was also the "Homecoming Soccer Game" which was played on Friday night. Again the increase in attendance was small compared to an average soccer game. The problems encountered this year surrounding the soccer game conflict (the Rivermen played Saturday night at 7:30 pm and the dinner/dance began at 6:30 pm) can be resolved next year. The Homecoming Committee and the Athletic Department need to work together in scheduling a Homecoming Weekend that is best for as many as possible. Whether the athletes choose to attend the Saturday night celebration or not, at least they should be given the opportunity.

Visible signs of Homecoming, such as lawn displays and queen and king elections, can continue to help promote the entire event and it is hoped will continue next year.

Letters

Dear Editor:

Just thought I'd drop a note to tell you of the latest atrocity on campus. Again the students have been given the proverbial "shaft". I am referring to the top level of garage #2 being changed into visitor parking after years of being student space.

The Current's last issues make crystal clear the administration's concerns for ensuring sound decisions regarding university expenditures. Their new sensitivity to community needs has even led to the development of our own School of Optometry and a degree program in Nursing.

However, also in past issues were articles focusing on Dr. Sanders' contributions to UMSL.

After reading one such account, I wrote a letter to the editor, but I was informed by this instructor, I found the article not only inaccurate but woefully inadequate in its description of this truly remarkable woman.

I applaud the administration for its enlightened posture concerning university monies but can only continue to help the individual writer.

Sincerely,

Monica Lewandowski

Student Assembly member clarifies "Kinamore plan"

Dear Editor:

As one of the 22 members of the Student Association Assembly who voted for the referendum on the proposed increase in the Student Activity fee, I write for three purposes: 1) to congratulate you on exceptionally thorough coverage of the Assembly's September meeting (and of this dispute in particular); 2) to explain that passage of the motion to hold a referendum by the Assembly does not constitute an endorsement by the Assembly of one of its three alternatives (the Kinamore Plan, which you erroneously refer to as "the Student Assembly proposal"); and 3) to heartily concur with your editorial sentiments on the subject, which support the concept of a well-rounded educational environment and the idea that ACTIVITY fees ought to be used for ACTIVITIES.

During the floor debate on this issue, I asked for and received an assurance from President Wines (a supporter of the Kinamore Plans) who expressed publicly—that the alternative to divert activity to academic projects, etc., would be represented merely as a proposal of SOME MEMBERS of the Assembly; and that the purpose of the motion we passed was merely to place that third alternative before the student body. WITHOUT the Assembly as a whole taking a position on it. Without such an assurance, you may rest assured that the proponents of the motion would not have received a vote. This is but one more instance the administration has had the opportunity to place student needs in the forefront. I urge you to continue to reflect the students' desires.
Chancellor responds to student's letter

[Editor's note: The letter below addressed to Earl Swift, Student Association assistant, was forwarded to the Current by Chancellor Arnold Grobman. The letter is in response to Swift's letter which appeared in last week's issue of the Current.]

Dear Earl:

Thank you for your letter of September 29 in which you comment on my letter of September 22 to President Olson. That letter was part of a negotiating strategy being engaged in by the administrators of the University preliminary to preparing recommendations for the Board of Curators. The letter was neither designed nor intended as a statement of my position on fees and should not be construed as such. The fact is that the President and Chancellors will be recommending to the Board, at its October meeting, no mid-year increase in fees.

I find curious your statement that I have not contacted the Student Assembly. The fact is that I have contacted every constituent of the Board to learn their views. I would be happy to meet with the Student Assembly at its request at any mutually convenient time. Two invitations in six years seems to me to be too few. And to deplore my not contacting the Student Assembly, when I have been doing so annually, I would suggest is an inappropriate observation.

Sincerely,

Arnold B. Grobman
Chancellor

UMSL STUDENT NEEDS HELP!

Dear Editors:

In her abusive letter in your October 1st issue, Patricia Barkers asserts that it is "too difficult for people like Ron Edwards to understand that UMSL does not need or want entertainment." That is utter bullshit and shows that Harkins has no respect for herself or anyone else who goes to this school.

Just because UMSL's student population consists of us lowly working commuters does not mean we have no desire or need for such entertainment. I think the campus is very lucky to have someone like Ron Edwards, who not only know good music but is well acquainted with many of the top professionals personally performing in St. Louis. Edwards has put together some amazing shows for UMSL, including blues great J.B. Hutto and, more recently, Oliver Sain. Doing an outdoor show in noon heat is not, as Harkins maintains, "gravy." As it stands, I applaud him for doing the extraordinary job he does. The Wednesday Noon Live series (by the way, plays to far more than a "handful of students") as can be seen by anyone who walks around campus at that time.

I, for one, am not going to join a freewithout meeting to have fun and not to just look logical excuse, Harkins would rid the campus of guest speakers.

Student impressed with Wednesday Noon Live

“A gorgeous film of glowing scenes. Transcends the ordinary.”
—Jane Shaye, NBC-TV “Today Show”

“Absorbing, moving, deeply felt. Brilliantly photographed. The battle sequences rank with those in Kubrick’s ‘Paths of Glory.’”
—Jack Kroll, Newsweek

“Could well be the movie of the year. As colorful as ‘Raiders of the Lost Ark!’ Exciting, involving and splendidly acted.”
—Dave Sterritt, Christian Science Monitor

“Can take its place with pride next to another World War I classic, ‘All Quiet On The Western Front.’ Poignant, vividly told.”

Homecoming 1981: the memories remain

Sharon Kobush

Although few remaining relics of Homecoming can still be found scattered about the campus and the Commons will echo with "vote for me," the 1981 Homecoming is over.

The week's events closed with a dinner/dance held last Saturday night at the Plantation Dinner Theater. The dance provided the attending crowd with fun, laughter, entertainment, and the announcement of the lawn display winners and the 1981 Homecoming royal court.

The display contest drew a total of four entries but only two actually materialized. Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity won first place for their paper-mache riverboat and Delta Zeta sorority took a close second for their gambling scene. The first place prize was a keg of beer. Both displays were awarded a plaque.

After a hectic week of campaigning, the candidates anxiously awaited the results. The first place prize was a keg of beer. Both displays were awarded a plaque. The cold Friday night Homecoming soccer game was poorly attended, but even the bitter cold of the weather didn't affect the performance of the Rivermen as they scored a 3-0 victory over Northeast Missouri State. During the game's half-time the 14 court candidates were introduced.

Curt Watts, programming director, said he would have been happier with a larger attendance and involvement but over-all he was pleased with this year's Homecoming activities.

All the events were planned by the Homecoming Planning Committee which is a subcommittee of the programming board. The planning is usually done by Rick Blanton or Bowie but due to their already filled schedules the responsibility was handed over to Watts who then gave it to the board. Sharon Cox, who is in charge of the special events subcommittee on the board, acted as chairperson.

The money spent on this year's activities totaled approximately $4000. The Budget Committee allocated them $700 dollars and about $2200 was collected on tickets which left them with a debt of about $1100. They hope to get the remaining money from additional funds, due to an unexpected increase in enrollment, or from a line item change. Last year's committee was allocated a total of $1475 for just a dance whereas this year dinner was included.

Even with its problems Homecoming was an enjoyable experience. Just ask any of the 220 people who attended the dance.

Kammerkonzert music fit for a king

Daniel C. Flarsuk

The Kammerkonzert Chamber Orchestra led by conductor, Lazar Goussan, opened its 1981-82 Season last Sunday with dazzling performance at the Art Museum in Forest Park. Baritone Robert McFerrin was the featured soloist.

The Kammerkonzert piece, which consists of seven movements, opened the performance. The balance was superb and the rhythms were precise with the exception of some sluggishness at the very end of the last movement.

McFerrin was a proficient composer. His works include 40 operas, 21 oratorios, 10 cantatas, and 4 passions, and a large number of oratorios, as well as 80 orchestral and chamber works. This particular was written when he was music director of the music society orchestra, which was founded by Telemann in 1754 and taken over by Johann Sebastian Bach in 1729.

The Kammerkonzert's interpretation of "Telefunsk" was fairly true to Telemann, although the use of dynamics was a little too "baroque." Although Telemann definitely was a Baroque composer (especially in his use of cadences), much of what he did leaned quite heavily into the classical period.

McFerrin joined the orchestra as they continued with Shostakovich. The Six Romances were originally composed in 1942 as Opus 43 for a four-student orchestra. The Kammerkonzert presented the first performance of this orchestral version heard outside of Russia.

Aside from his baritone, McFerrin just did not have the range to hit the few notes in the part. This lack of range had an adverse effect not only on the exception of the passages of the music, but also on the performance. It was, at times, not sustained.

McFerrin's performance on the Johnson "Spiritual," however, was another story. He showed everyone that he does indeed have a sense of humor.

The three songs that McFerrin did were emotionally charged and eclectic.

Aside from his terrific range, lack of use of dynamics, McFerrin displayed a singularly awesome feel for breath control.
Ellis, Barnes receive honors

Laura Dyer

The names Elmer Ellis and Ward E. Barnes may seem like two ordinary names, but the two they belong to are very deserving individuals. The two ary degrees are given to many Ellis and Barnes received the award in honor of their key roles in the establishment of the UMSL campus. Barnes, who wasSuperintendent of the Normandy School District at the time, led the Normandy School District in purchasing the former Bellevoir Country Club for use as the Normandy Residence Center, a junior college. He then went to Ellis, who was president of the University of Missouri, and inquired at the possibility of the university purchasing the property to establish a St. Louis campus. Both men felt strongly about the need for accessible and respectable higher public education to the people of St. Louis. Finally, in 1963, after many negotiations, the University of Missouri bought the land and campus was established. Both men have continued to keep in close contact with UMSL since its inception.

Ellis and Barnes both have impressive backgrounds. Ellis received his doctorate in 1930 from the State University of Iowa. That same year, he joined the faculty of the University of Missouri. In 1940, he became Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences where he remained until he was appointed president of the University of Missouri in 1955. He retired in 1966. Ellis has also worked for the advancement of education internationally on committees on the national and state level, and written two books.

Barnes has a master of arts in school administration from the University of Missouri-Columbia and an honorary doctor of laws degree. He was an instructor at UMC and in 1930 he became principal, and later superintendent, of the Normandy School District. He has served in many state and local organizations and is a charter member of the University of Missouri-St. Louis Chancellor’s Council.

In light of all of their achievements, a single award seems to be of minor consequence. It is those two men whom the people of St. Louis have to thank for giving them an educational opportunity that otherwise would probably still not exist. In their acceptance speeches, Ellis and Barnes appeared optimistic about UMSL’s future, based on its past. But it is the people of St. Louis on whom they feel the University is dependent.

Musicians band together

Shawn Fopppe

What is MENC? To its members it is many different things, but in its basic form, the Music Educators National Conference, an organization which was formed in 1937 at UMSL in 1974.

The purpose of the group is to bring together music students in an open forum where they can socialize and express their problems. Although the group is a business organization, it also serves as a social club.

One of the goals of the organization is to support UMSL’s music department.

"Many people do not consider the department as a part of the campus," Fred Willman said. Willman is a music professor and a sponsor of the group.

The music department, along with the schools on Marillac, nursing, optometry, and education, are isolated from the rest of campus life because they are not a part of the main campus.

This lack of recognition affects the department. The student lounge in the Music Building is slightly larger than the office in Benton Hall and although money has been allocated for the refurbishment of all the university lounges, the one in the music department has not yet been furnished.

The lounge contains one table, six chairs and two portable carrels. The lighting is unsuitable for studying. "It's terribly inadequate," Willman adds.

MENC sponsored a winner music contest on September 30. President Barb Brockling stated that the purpose of the activity was to publicize the existence of the group and let music majors and minors know that it’s not just for the music students enrolled in education.

Each monthly meeting features special guest speakers from various aspects of the music profession.

Music

The orchestra finished the program with Handel’s “Water Music.” The balance was good, and Willman stated exquisitely especially in the second movement, “Menuet.”

The familiar melodies of the “Allegro.” were expertly performed, between the strings, the trumpets, and the French horns.

There is an interesting story behind “Water Music.” Handel, it is said, served as a harpist for an English court while he was a young man. He traveled to London. His harpist patron took the English throne as George I, after Queen Anne’s death. Handel had overworked his left hand and was anxious to regain the new king’s favor, but he was afraid that he had been dismissed:

“Water Music” was played as a surprise for the King during a boating party on the Thames in 1717 and effected a reconciliation between the two.

The Kammergild’s entire concerto, including the encore (Shostakovich’s “Spanish Dance”), was fit for a king.

Correction

In the story about the writing lab which appeared in last week’s Current, Sally Jackoway was quoted as saying, “the English composition courses were not thorough enough to prepare students for their upper-division writing assignments.”

The quote should have stated that many students did not write in other courses until their junior or senior years and, therefore, needed refresher sessions; some transfer students had not written analytic reports or research papers, which are frequently required here. The Writing Lab was created to meet these needs.

The Current regrets this mistake.
Kickers claim classic; now 7-0

The Rivermen soccer squad cruised along on their undefeated season and Saturday when they won the UMSL Budweiser Soccer Classic. The teams in the tournament included: Northeast Missouri State University, Southeast Missouri State University, Evansville, and UMSL.

The team opened up with a victory over Indiana State University-Evansville, and took them for a 3-0 ride in front of a crowd of 300.

UMSL didn’t waste any time scoring in the first half of play. After 2:05 in the game, junior forward Bret Gove took a pass from field-mid Scott Chace, and booted it into NEMO’s net. Gove’s goal marked Chace’s third assist for the year. “Chase is playing really well; he’s a goal getter,” Coach Dan Dallas said.

At 40:01 in the game, leading scorer Mike Bess took a pass from junior back Tony Pasztor, and connected it for the Rivermen’s second goal.

The Rivermen didn’t score again until the second half when Gove took a pass from senior Pat McVeigh at 69:32 and tapped it in, giving the Rivermen kickers a shutout with a score of 3-0. The Rivermen’s defense was flawless, allowing NEMO only one shot on goal. The shutout was goal keeper Barry Simek’s third of the year.

The championship game was played on Saturday, when the Rivermen faced Indiana State University-Evansville. UMSL won 1-0, with their only goal coming at 42:18 in the first half. Bess scored when he was connected on a penalty kick after a controversial hand ball call. The game was not an easy victory for the UMSL squad.

“We did dominate the game, but we had to play tough.” Dallas said. “They have a good team.”

Bess, in his fourth year for the Rivermen, has a career total of 18 goals, just two goals short of the school record. Bess and Muesenfechter and Frank Flasch. “He’s playing the best soccer of his career at UMSL,” Dallas added.

His chances also look good for the single season scoring record which stands at 14 goals. Also held by Muesenfechter.

“We’ve played only seven games so far,” Dallas said. “We have nine games left. Bess and Gove both have a chance to break the record.”

The Rivermen’s next game is slated for Saturday, when they take on the newcomers from Lincoln University. It is the last conference game scheduled for the Rivermen. If they win they will become the MIAA conference champions.

The UMSL squad will take on St. Edwards University, Tuesday, Oct. 15 at UMSL. SIU is currently ranked number one in the division I rankings.

“I’ll be a tough game,” Dallas said. “They’re always in the playoffs.”

Kickers face tough mid-term against powerful Cougars

Mid-term examinations are perhaps the most important events for UMSL students at this time of the year. For the UMSL men's soccer squad, the biggest mid-term of all will take place next Tuesday night when the SIU Cougars invade UMSE for a key collegiate soccer battle.

The Cougars will undoubtedly provide UMSE with a tough challenge of the year. SIU has compiled a 6-2-1 mark after its first nine games this fall and is presently ranked tenth among all Division I teams in the nation.

UMSL, on the other hand, has passed all of its assignments thus far and is proud of its No. 1 ranking in Division II. The Rivermen have allowed only one goal in their first seven games and are closing in on several school records. Their 7-0 start, for instance, is the best in the school's history.

There are, however, a few observers who believe the Rivermen have shown a bit of slack by playing a first-half schedule that has been watered down considerably. UMSL coach Don Dallas, for the most part, agreed with that assessment.

"We really haven't been tested yet," he said. "We'll know a lot more about our team after the SIU game."

A look at UMSE's victims in the first few weeks of the season attests to the validity of Dallas' statement. The Rivermen have yet to play a Division I or a nationally-ranked team. SIU fits both descriptions.

The Cougars will arrive at UMSE next Tuesday night with a young, but talented squad. The rivals from across the river started five freshmen last year because of injuries to key personnel, and those five rookies are now seasoned veterans. Sophomore Steve Gavain and Leo Bournue have been the most impressive of last year's first-year performers.

"They've been aided by a strong defense," said the goalkeeping tandem of Ed Gettemeier and Leo Bourneug have been the most important personnel, and those five rookies are now seasoned veterans. Sophomore Steve Gavain and Pat Malloy have also been steady in the backfield.

The primary reason for SIU's success this season has been the play of its newcomers. Freshmen Mike Dvorak and Bill Stallings have contributed more to the SIU scoring attack than was expected when the season started. Malloy, a freshman from Hazelwood Central, leads the Cougars with seven goals and Stallings has also come through with several key tallies.

According to veteran SIU coach Bob Guelder, his team's performance in the first nine games of the season has been tremendous. In fact, the Cougars have progressively gotten better. It's difficult to detect a weak spot on their roster.

"We've very pleased with the way they've been playing," Guelder said. "I just hope we can stay consistent."

This is what makes the UMSE-SIU clash so interesting. UMSE upset SIU last year on the road by a score of 2-1 in overtime and battled the Cougars to a 1-1 tie the year before. Thus, the Cougars will have plenty of incentive to best UMSE.

It's difficult to believe SIU will come into the UMSE game not mentally and physically prepared. One of the major reasons for its inability to defeat UMSE the past two years. In fact, Guelder has guaranteed his team will be ready for UMSE.

"I hope we'll be hungrier this year than we were last year," he said. "We respect UMSE's record and we know they'll be sky high for us, but we're ready to go."

On paper, the game shapes up as an exciting match with SIU the favorite. But, remember games are played on the field, not paper. And UMSE has held its own with the Cougars the past two years. Why not again?

In UMSE's favor is its winning streak and No. 1 ranking. The Rivermen have been subjected to a murderer schedule in the first half of the season, but they do believe they can compete with the best teams in the nation. Winning tends to build confidence and the Rivermen have a lot of that right now.

This is definitely one test the Rivermen would love to pass.

Although Neal is pleased with his team, he believes the cross country program would be greatly improved if they had some thing to encourage other runners to join. If a college had a track team, they could get away with a good cross country team without offering scholarships. As expected the Cougars played well. They have more depth than the Harriers and are capable of scoring many goals. However, the Cougars are not without their weaknesses. They have more defensive players than we do and that makes scoring for us more difficult."

Pikes peak but may fall if injuries continue to plague starters

Frank Cusumano

Everybody is familiar with the adage. "We have good news and we have bad news." Well, that phrase certainly applies to the fortunes of the Pikes football club.

First the good news: they raised their record to an unblemished 3-0. Bruce Short hit the all-world tight end Joe Richmeyer with three touchdowns on the road to a 19-0 victory over the Red Rockers. Richmeyer has now caught a league-leading six touchdowns.

Now the bad news: this club has been hit with a series of costly injuries. Tony O'Driscoll. Red Rockers. Richmeyer has been hit with a series of touchdown passes. The Pikes kept their record brilliant by downing the Bills 14-6. The wonderful William Shanks had two more scoring passes, but the key to this club might be the play of the linebackers. Nick Curlett and Arthur Porter are two of the most fierce hitters in the league. They each have above-average speed.

The Butchers won their first game of the year with an 18-2 triumph over the Gators. The Pikes kept their record to 3-0, but the key to this club might be the play of the linebackers. Nick Curlett and Arthur Porter are two of the most fierce hitters in the league. They each have above-average speed.

Women

Also included on the injury report are wingback Karen Gettymeyer with an injured knee and forwards Karen Lombardo and Neen Kelley. Lombardo and Neen Kelley is nursing an injury to her Achilles' tendon. Both girls are playing, but neither are at full strength. Regardless of injuries, the Riverwomen still have their perfect record intact. Last weekend, they defeated Denison University 4 to 1 and the University of Cincinnati, 2 to 1. The women kickers put their re-alignment lineup to the test Tuesday night against Maryville College.
