Merger dies

The much-publicized proposal to merge UMSL with Harris-Stowe State College appears to have fallen apart due to enormous opposition to the plan.

Shadia R. Aery, commissioner of the Coordinating Board for Higher Education, said at a hearing in Springfield last week that she didn’t think the merger was possible.

“I still believe that the merger would be best,” Aery was quoted as saying in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. “But politically, with my board and the UM Board of Curators, I don’t think that’s possible. Given the history of the two institutions, we can’t do it. St. Louis who wants to keep the University of Missouri there, if the people in the community don’t want it, that’s the kiss of death.

Aery, who made the original proposal to the CBHE, said she still believed that in the next decade, such a single institution would be formed.

The merger plan met with a storm of disapproval from supporters of both schools when Aery introduced it in September. At an Oct. 25 hearing here, students demonstrated and all but one of the people testifying were opposed to the idea.

At the committee hearing Aery discussed alternatives to the plan, including the closing of Harris-Stowe; the establishment of UMSL as a liberal arts institution for the state; transferring undergraduate teaching courses from UMSL to Harris-Stowe; or maintaining the two schools separately but increasing cooperation between them.

Aery said those recommendations had come from the public, in nearly 3,000 letters sent to the board.

The board is also considering other recommendations for the 10 public institutions in Missouri. A third hearing will be held in Kansas City on Dec. 12, after which time the board will decide what form the recommendations should take before being sent to the entire board for consideration.

Transportation provided to curator’s meeting

Students Association will provide transportation to students wishing to rally at the UM Board of Curators meeting in Columbia tomorrow.

Christopher Lenniski, student advocate, said students and others will stage a rally Friday to push for divestment of University of Missouri-St. Louis in South Africa. The groups are protesting apartheid practices in that country.

Although the curators will not address the divestment issue Friday, Lenniski said it will give students a chance to “keep the curators aware that we’re still concerned about this.”

Lenniski said various civic and church organizations will help the rally get under way.

“If we don’t get cooperation soon, we’ll become increasingly vocal,” Lenniski said. “If we have to get ourselves thrown in jail for it, we’ll do it. We’ll do what we have to do.

Last month the curators said no to a complete divestment plan submitted by students here, but did say they would consider the issue when making future investments.

Lenniski said those interested in traveling to Columbia should meet at 8 a.m. in the University Center lobby Friday.

TURNER APPOINTED SPECIAL ASSISTANT TO PRESIDENT

COLUMBIA, Mo. – Ronald J. Turner, associate dean for continuous education extension of the College of Arts and Sciences and assistant professor of speech communications at UMSL, has accepted a position as special assistant to the president of the university, it was announced recently by interim President Melvin D. George.

He will assume his duties in Columbia Jan. 1. C. Peter Magrath, who will become UM president Jan. 1 and with whom Turner will work closely, expressed his delight in Turner’s acceptance of the appointment, which followed a nationwide search.

Magrath said Turner will help the president’s office communicate the University of Missouri’s story to state and national audiences.

Turner, 41, who lives in Chet- naught, is a native of Laclede County. He earned a bachelor’s degree in speech and English at Southwest Missouri State University.

See “Turner,” page 3

WHAT A MEAL!

About 15 UMSL students competed in a taco eat-off at Naugles. 9650 Natural Bridge, last Friday. The lucky winner won a taco a day for a year.

Two winter courses planned; emphasize black studies

Sharon Kubatzky editor-in-chief

Two courses planned for the winter semester will focus on black studies, but those teaching the courses say they shouldn’t be construed as being just for black students.

“The Black World” will be taught by Robert Watson, adjunct lecturer. Watson said the class will be a survey course in black history focusing on the black experience in America.

“We’ll cover historical and some contemporary issues such as where the civil rights movement was and is today, the effects of busing, the effects of the economy on the low-income population, some international issues and how they affect minorities,” Watson said.

Watson said that one of the misconceptions white students have is that courses dealing with the black experience are just for black students.

“The more one knows about one’s own cultural differences, the better we’ll all be able to get along,” he explained. “The black experience is inter-related with the total American experience. Black students are not the only ones to be educated about this.”

He added that some white students might feel that this would be a “radical” class in which whites were put down. “Don’t condone that at all,” he said. “It’s counterproductive to what we’re trying to accomplish.

“I would encourage black students, white students, all students to take this course,” he added.

“Political Symbolism and Culture,” an anthropology course, will be offered this semester as well. Dr. Helan Paige, visiting professor, will lead the course in the ethnography of racism.

“This is not just for enlightenment,” Paige said of the course. “I want the students to understand racism as a cultural construct. We’ll look at the ethnography, then we’ll discuss it in light of present-day situations.”

Observant woman foils possible theft

Jim Tuxbury assistant news editor

Some lucky student can thank Kim Jones for possibly preventing an auto theft on the date of Nov. 29 at about 8:30 that morning. UMSL police received a call reporting two suspicious persons in parking garage “N.”

Police responded to the call, and apprehended two men, who according to UMSL police ‘were in possession of certain tools used in crimes related to automobiles.’

Chief William Karabas said that the men, identified as non-students, also had a “past history of that type of activity.”

A record check showed that these two men were wanted in St. Ann and Berkeley.

Karabas was pleased with the incident. “We encourage the community to help. It’s always beneficial,” he said.
Symphonic band gives concert

The UMSL Symphonic Band will present a concert on Thursday, Dec. 6. The performance will begin at 8 p.m. in the Education auditorium on the South campus at 7004 Natural Bridge Road. Admission is free.

The program will include “Flourish for Wind Band” by Vaughan Williams, “Original Suite for Band” by Gordon Jacobs, the Concertino for Percussion and Band, by Clifton Williams, and “Marche des Parachutistes Belges” (the official march of the Belgian paratroopers) by Pierre Leemans.

The director of the Symphonic Band is Terry Austin, assistant professor of music. For further information, call 553-5990.

Verity named fund director

Dennis H. Verity has been named director of fund development for UMSL. For the past four years, Verity was director of development and research for the St. Louis Community College district. Prior to that, he was the coordinator for research and development at CEMREL in St. Louis. Verity, who has done private consulting work in fund raising and research for several non-profit organizations, has served as an adjunct lecturer on grantmanship and fundraising at UMSL since 1974.

Verity holds a bachelor’s degree in English and humanities from Rutgers University and a master’s in English and art history from the University of Minnesota. He received a management studies certificate from Washington University’s Graduate School of Business Administration in 1982.

Committee seeks student members

The Student Policy Committee of the School of Business Administration has been meeting regularly. The committee members are appointed undergraduate and graduate student representatives who serve in a liaison capacity between the student body, dean, faculty and staff of the school.

Interested students are being sought to participate in this committee. For more information, call Stephanie Holtzhouser at 291-7189 or see Pauline Thompson in Room 407 SSB.

KWMU fundraiser falls short

KWMU (FM 91), the National Public Radio affiliate of UMSL, has just completed its annual fall membership drive. During the on-air fundraiser, 2,300 listeners pledged a total of $123,000 in support of KWMU. According to General Manager Rainer Steinhoff, this amount fell short of the station’s $150,000 goal.

“We hope to make up the difference through mail-in renewals and corporate matching gifts, as well as business and corporate underwriting,” Steinhoff said. "The brightest spot is the unprecedented community support we’ve received. Hundreds of volunteers spent long hours at the station, and many businesses donated items for use as special premiums.”

Steinhoff doesn’t foresee major changes as a result of the drive. “Our most popular shows will remain intact. As usual, we received the most support Saturday evenings during Garrison Keillor’s ‘A Prairie Home Companion’ and weekday mornings during Morning Edition.”

Approximately half of KWMU’s budget is funded by contributions from listeners, businesses and corporations.

RAISING FUNDS: Studio Set Board President Ken Langsdorf answers phones during KWMU’s recent on-air membership drive. In the background are KWMU Jazz Director (and UMSL student) Jim Wallace (left) and General Manager Rainer Steinhoff.

KWMU (FM 91), the National Public Radio affiliate of UMSL, has just completed its annual fall membership drive. During the on-air fundraiser, 2,300 listeners pledged a total of $123,000 in support of KWMU. According to General Manager Rainer Steinhoff, this amount fell short of the station’s $150,000 goal.

“We hope to make up the difference through mail-in renewals and corporate matching gifts, as well as business and corporate underwriting,” Steinhoff said. "The brightest spot is the unprecedented community support we’ve received. Hundreds of volunteers spent long hours at the station, and many businesses donated items for use as special premiums.”

Steinhoff doesn’t foresee major changes as a result of the drive. “Our most popular shows will remain intact. As usual, we received the most support Saturday evenings during Garrison Keillor’s ‘A Prairie Home Companion’ and weekday mornings during Morning Edition.”

Approximately half of KWMU’s budget is funded by contributions from listeners, businesses and corporations.

The years small group of Americans and Russians set out on the greatest adventure of them all...

to see if there is life beyond the stars.

The years small group of Americans and Russians set out on the greatest adventure of them all...

to see if there is life beyond the stars.

The years small group of Americans and Russians set out on the greatest adventure of them all...

to see if there is life beyond the stars.

The years small group of Americans and Russians set out on the greatest adventure of them all...

to see if there is life beyond the stars.
German educators visit campus

The opportunity to exchange ideas about continuing education brought a delegation of German educators to UMSL to visit with Wendell Smith, dean of Continuing Education at UMSL, and members of UMSL's Continuing Education staff. The group was on route to attend the recent national conference of the American Association for Adult and Continuing Education held in Louisville, Kentucky.

The delegation included six representatives, each from a different state in Germany. Representatives from the other five German states will visit the United States next year.

"We will share our experiences with others in the state," said Professor Günter Dohmen, leader of the delegation. "The primary difference in our system is the way the university is structured in relationship to the government and the amount of self-directed contract learning used in the United States. I am interested in returning to Germany with that innovation.'

The German delegation also visited universities in Washington D.C. and in Alabama.

IDEA EXCHANGE: UMSL Continuing Education officials meet with a delegation from Germany at the American Association for Adult and Continuing Education which was held in Louisville, Ky.

Turner

from page 1

University and master's and doctoral degrees in speech at UMSL-Columbia.

He has been at UMSL since 1977, serving as acting dean of Alpha Psi. We regret any correction that the book pool will be sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega. The article should have read that the book pool will be sponsored by Beta Alpha Psi. We regret any confusion this may have caused.

from page 18

Puzzle Answer

Happy Holidays

The CURRENT Staff Wishes You & Yours a Happy Holiday Season.

We'll be back January 17, 1984

Plan now for your advertising & editorial needs by contacting us at 553-5174 or 553-5175.
Current marks a milestone

The Current this week celebrates a milestone in its existence: our 500th issue.

Since its inception, the Current has worked to provide services to the UMSL community. Our purpose is twofold.

Firstly, we offer a learning experience to students here. There is no journalism school at UMSL, so aside from three related courses offered here, the Current is the only source of newspaper journalism training on campus. Interested students can come in with little or no experience and find out what working for a newspaper is all about. Our staff members come from all areas of the university — many are speech-communication majors, but there have also been business administration, philosophy, history, English, political science, education and music majors. We feel that the training offered here is invaluable no matter what field students eventually enter. Communication and working with a group are important in nearly every job.

Secondly, the Current seeks to provide the UMSL community with information about the school that you can't find anywhere else. We want to give you news about student groups, faculty members, sports teams, and each other — features and information not available except in the Current.

Sometimes we fail. We're human, of course, and we're students just like most of you — still learning, still testing our ideas and actions. When we do fail, we try to learn from the experience, pick ourselves up, dust off the dirt and move on — and try not to make that mistake again.

We hope your experiences with the Current have been favorable. We like to think we provide a valuable service and entertain you at the same time. You may not always agree with our ideas or be interested in all the information we're presenting, but if the Current helps to keep you informed about UMSL and in touch with others here, we'll feel we're serving our purpose.

Again, we would encourage you to become involved in the Current, either by participating here or by submitting information about your organization or activities, or by writing a letter to the editor. That's what we like about the student newspaper. Make it your paper.

The staff of the Current thanks the UMSL community for 500 prosperous issues. May there be 500 more!
more letters
Says students should unite against problems

Dear Editor:

After weeks of fear, indignation and resolute anger on the part of the UMSL community, it would seem that the tide of battle in the CBHE merger conflict has taken a victorious turn against the CBHE proposal and for a continued role in the future of the University of Missouri system.

A recent front page article in the Post Dispatch (Wed., Nov. 28, 1984) in which Commissioner Shaula Avery admitted that the merger "would not gain the legislative approval it would need," as well as private assurances from key leaders in the Missouri House of Representatives that the proposal would not be introduced nor passed as legislation, would seem to spell death for the ill-conceived merger. Yet we can safely say that we have won the battle.

Although the CBHE battle may be over, the war continues, for as one professor pointed out, without continued funding and expansion of programs so necessary at this stage of development, this university could suffer a different type of death equally as disastrous as the CBHE proposal.

It has been often noted that UMSL is a university with few friends and many enemies. Although the community support demonstrated during the CBHE controversy would seem to contradict this assertion we must keep in mind that any expansion in terms of the inherently competitive system of higher education will assert we must keep in mind that any expansion in terms of the inherently competitive system of higher education will...

Rival public and private Missouri institutions demonstrated during the CBHE battle a surprising spirit of unity that was overwhelming. The area which sticks out in my mind is Lucas Hall. Every Monday, Wednesday, Friday I walk past that area and see cars parked in the wrong place. I certainly can't stay away; I then come back another day to find the same place occupied by another car. The area which sticks out in my mind is the area at the bottom of the hill leading to Lucas Hall. Every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday I walk past that area and see cars parked on the lines signifying no parking on the grass and in front of signs saying NO PARKING.

The reason for my grievance is that I have to park in the farthest garage from the buildings and subsequently must walk a good distance to get to class. When I pass the area at the bottom of the hill, it makes me mad to see at least five or six cars parked in the wrong place. I certainly don't want to run the risk of a ticket so I stay away. I then come back the next day to find the cars in the same place without a ticket! This is very aggravating, not just to me, but probably to many others.

Why these illegal parkers can't walk an extra 1,000 feet may be a reason for us with limited parking capacity to apply the maximum penalty.

Name Withheld

Dec. 6, 1984 CURRENT page 5

Treasury Regulation 1.162-5
UMSL alumnae finds herself in custard business

Joanne Quick
reporter

Luella O'Connor greets each customer at her new custard stand in St. Charles with a "Hello, how are you today?" She's friendly, even when her patrons are not.

Smiling and excited about her first customer of the day - O'Connor starts through her list of concrete flavors for a stout, grumpy woman: "We have strawberry, chocolate, chocolate-chip -" until she is abruptly cut off by an "OK, I get the idea." O'Connor takes it in stride, polite and cheerful as ever.

After all the setbacks she has faced in trying to establish her custard business - from a loan rejection to construction delays - O'Connor isn't upset by one rude customer. Determined to reach her goal, the 1982 UMSL graduate has overcome many barriers, and isn't upset by one rude customer.

She's small framed and slender. Her brown hair is carefully curled and brushed back from her smooth, delicate face. She wears makeup sparingly - only to add a dash of pink to her sun-tanned face. Her warm smile tells you you are her friend. She wears a powder-blue T-shirt, a denim skirt, tan hose and flat rubber-soled shoes as a uniform.

O'Connor's business started as a direct result of an UMSL class project. In the fall of 1982, she enrolled in Business 392 - Entrepreneurship - Small Business Management, instructed by Peggy Lambing. Her semester group project was researching and developing a proposal for a business.

O'Connor and the four others in her group worked on an idea for a custard stand and developed all the plans as if they actually had to open the business.

"We researched the materials we would need to purchase, a good location, and a building and lease agreement, parking lot arrangements, lighting, a bank loan agreement, the laws involved, advertising ideas and the costs involved with the entire project," O'Connor said.

"I was very intimidated," she continued. "And when I went to pick up some used equipment I had bought, they had sold it to someone else," she said.

"The doors to Custard Unlimited finally opened July 31.
"But more problems followed. "During the first two weeks I was open," O'Connor said. "I took in counterfeit money and had an electrical fire in a circuit breaker, which meant I had no freezers or coolers working for about four hours."

"And when I went to pick up some used equipment I had bought, they had sold it to someone else," she said.

"The doors to Custard Unlimited finally opened July 31."

Although the concretes didn't spoil, they changed consistency. "They were still edible but were not the high quality product that I wanted to advertise," she said. She decided to donate the concretes to nursing home residents, who greatly appreciated the gift. "They don't always have money for those kinds of treats, and older people have a sweet tooth," she explained.

Finally her problems were ironed out, and the rest of August was a success. O'Connor represents the UMSL student who has returned to college after working for some time and starting a family.

She had started electronic engineering classes at a community college the same year her youngest daughter started kindergarten. After completing her associate degree, she found herself divorced with three daughters to care for.

See "Custard," page 7
Hoodoo Gurus’ debut album has nothing exciting to offer

Mark Bardgett
pop music critic

The Hoodoo Gurus
Stoneweave Romances
A&M
Australia has rapidly become the scene of the British Invasion West, with its potpourri of sounds insulating the American airwaves in the form of Men At Work, Air Supply, and T.N.S.T among numerous others. Stoneweave Romances is the debut by the Hoodoo Gurus, another band of label junkies laying claim to U.S. radio. And it’s a shame there’s nothing exciting offered to the listener on Stoneweave Romances with the exception of the potential of Alan Thorne’s representative selling until she realized she had power supplies for the company.

Later she decided to quit her job, electronics. Two years later she couldn’t advance any further. Representing selling until she realized she had power supplies for the company.

album review

But follow these tracks any farther, and any notion of classic rock’s roll evaporates because there’s hardly any distinction between the songs. But if you're looking for a song full of them, it’s a technique which rarely succeeds.

The second side of Stoneweave Romances forgoes the litter and gold nonsense in “(Let’s All) Turn On” and “Death Ship.”

“Ambitious and self-driven, she became the first female salesman for a manufacturer’s representative selling electronics. Two years later she changed jobs, and was again the first female salesperson that company had hired. She sold the power supplies for the company until she realized she had reached her potential there; she couldn’t advance any further.

She started school again part-time in 1980, studying management at Washington University. Later she decided to quit her job, go to school full-time and live off her savings until she finished.

For instance, take the whole first side of the album. The first bars of “I Want You Back” prompt you to believe you’ve just stumbled across the new Pretenders. Take the gusto of “Archer” or the psychedelics of “Dig It Up,” and visions of Jim Morrison and the rest of the Doors appear.

from page 6

Custard

Ambitious and self-driven, she became the first female salesman for a manufacturer’s representative selling electronics. Two years later she changed jobs, and was again the first female salesperson that company had hired. She sold the power supplies for the company until she realized she had reached her potential there; she couldn’t advance any further.

She started school again part-time in 1980, studying management at Washington University. Later she decided to quit her job, go to school full-time and live off her savings until she finished.

Custard

from page 6

Ambitious and self-driven, she became the first female salesman for a manufacturer’s representative selling electronics. Two years later she changed jobs, and was again the first female salesperson that company had hired. She sold the power supplies for the company until she realized she had reached her potential there; she couldn’t advance any further.

She started school again part-time in 1980, studying management at Washington University. Later she decided to quit her job, go to school full-time and live off her savings until she finished.
Suicides among young adults rising

Mike Luczak

On the UMSL campus lurks one of the most menacing and helpless UMSL photocopy machines. I was lucky enough to get an interview with him.

Luczak: First of all, why do you molest innocent and helpless photocopy machines?

Molestor: I usually go up to one of the most menacing machines which are copying paper s?

Luczak: But why haven't you gone to the administration with this, instead of making it a personal vendetta?

Molestor: Because the administrators are the ones who approve the money for these machines in the library in the first place. Apparently it's all right with them if a machine copies, but it's not all right for a student like me to copy. Therefore, I have no other choice but to molest these Xerox machines.

Luczak: And what kind of monster are you, that you usually see fit to give these Xerox machines?

Molestor: I usually go up to them and put my face where they can't see it, which teach how to put it freely and then put my money into it and let it copy my face.

See "Molester," page 15

Suicide among young adults rising

The suicide rate of 12.7 per 100,000 persons in the United States today is the highest it has been during the Great Depression in the 1930s. A striking rise in the rate of suicide among young adults, groups from 15 to 24, is becoming a major concern. Over the last nine years the number of suicides in this group has more than doubled.

Speculated reasons for this heart-rending phenomenon approach suicide as an escape from the fear of alcoholism, a breakdown in the nuclear family, unemployment, and the new ethic of independence, competitiveness, and achievement, all contributing to isolation.

In reality, 70 to 80 percent of all suicides give a clue or warning of their intent.

Unfortunately, suicide is too often considered a taboo subject to be confronted directly and is swathed in myths and misconceptions. Answer true or false to the following questions to find out what you really know about suicide.

1. People who talk about suicide rarely commit suicide.

2. Suicide is a sign of insanity.

3. Most persons who commit suicide have an immediate cause.

4. Poor people are particularly prone to suicide.

5. If you think people are actually committed suicide, it is most likely to occur to act out a recent personal crisis.

6. Suicide is the coward's way out.

7. People who commit suicide lose all interest in the details of life.

8. Suicidal persons rarely seek medical attention.

9. A suicide attempt means that the person feels there is no turn back.

10. The suicidal person wants to talk about feelings in order to get an interview with him.

All of the preceding statements are true about suicide, and all of the answers are false. In reality, 70 to 80 percent of suicides give a clue or warning of their intent. All suicidal thoughts should be taken seriously. Suicidal people are not mentally ill or out of touch with reality. They may be most marked by hopelessness and despair.

The best thing to do when dealing with a suicidal person is to talk about it. Confronting suicidal thoughts directly minimizes anxiety and shows you care and are supportive of the person. Suicide crosses all social groups. Today, one group is more susceptible than another.

One of the most important things we can do is to prevent suicide attempts from becoming immediate behaviors. We should be encouraged not to escape from ongoing despair, but some people commit suicide in order to change immediate circumstances.

The best thing to do when dealing with a suicidal person is to talk about it. Confronting suicidal thoughts directly minimizes anxiety and shows you care and are supportive of the person. Suicide crosses all social groups. Today, one group is more susceptible than another.

One of the most important things we can do is to prevent suicide attempts from becoming immediate behaviors. We should be encouraged not to escape from ongoing despair, but some people commit suicide in order to change immediate circumstances.

The best thing to do when dealing with a suicidal person is to talk about it. Confronting suicidal thoughts directly minimizes anxiety and shows you care and are supportive of the person. Suicide crosses all social groups. Today, one group is more susceptible than another.

One of the most important things we can do is to prevent suicide attempts from becoming immediate behaviors. We should be encouraged not to escape from ongoing despair, but some people commit suicide in order to change immediate circumstances.

The best thing to do when dealing with a suicidal person is to talk about it. Confronting suicidal thoughts directly minimizes anxiety and shows you care and are supportive of the person. Suicide crosses all social groups. Today, one group is more susceptible than another.

One of the most important things we can do is to prevent suicide attempts from becoming immediate behaviors. We should be encouraged not to escape from ongoing despair, but some people commit suicide in order to change immediate circumstances.

The best thing to do when dealing with a suicidal person is to talk about it. Confronting suicidal thoughts directly minimizes anxiety and shows you care and are supportive of the person. Suicide crosses all social groups. Today, one group is more susceptible than another.

One of the most important things we can do is to prevent suicide attempts from becoming immediate behaviors. We should be encouraged not to escape from ongoing despair, but some people commit suicide in order to change immediate circumstances.

The best thing to do when dealing with a suicidal person is to talk about it. Confronting suicidal thoughts directly minimizes anxiety and shows you care and are supportive of the person. Suicide crosses all social groups. Today, one group is more susceptible than another.

One of the most important things we can do is to prevent suicide attempts from becoming immediate behaviors. We should be encouraged not to escape from ongoing despair, but some people commit suicide in order to change immediate circumstances.

The best thing to do when dealing with a suicidal person is to talk about it. Confronting suicidal thoughts directly minimizes anxiety and shows you care and are supportive of the person. Suicide crosses all social groups. Today, one group is more susceptible than another.

One of the most important things we can do is to prevent suicide attempts from becoming immediate behaviors. We should be encouraged not to escape from ongoing despair, but some people commit suicide in order to change immediate circumstances.

The best thing to do when dealing with a suicidal person is to talk about it. Confronting suicidal thoughts directly minimizes anxiety and shows you care and are supportive of the person. Suicide crosses all social groups. Today, one group is more susceptible than another.

One of the most important things we can do is to prevent suicide attempts from becoming immediate behaviors. We should be encouraged not to escape from ongoing despair, but some people commit suicide in order to change immediate circumstances.

The best thing to do when dealing with a suicidal person is to talk about it. Confronting suicidal thoughts directly minimizes anxiety and shows you care and are supportive of the person. Suicide crosses all social groups. Today, one group is more susceptible than another.

One of the most important things we can do is to prevent suicide attempts from becoming immediate behaviors. We should be encouraged not to escape from ongoing despair, but some people commit suicide in order to change immediate circumstances.

The best thing to do when dealing with a suicidal person is to talk about it. Confronting suicidal thoughts directly minimizes anxiety and shows you care and are supportive of the person. Suicide crosses all social groups. Today, one group is more susceptible than another.

One of the most important things we can do is to prevent suicide attempts from becoming immediate behaviors. We should be encouraged not to escape from ongoing despair, but some people commit suicide in order to change immediate circumstances.

The best thing to do when dealing with a suicidal person is to talk about it. Confronting suicidal thoughts directly minimizes anxiety and shows you care and are supportive of the person. Suicide crosses all social groups. Today, one group is more susceptible than another.

One of the most important things we can do is to prevent suicide attempts from becoming immediate behaviors. We should be encouraged not to escape from ongoing despair, but some people commit suicide in order to change immediate circumstances.
FATHER KNOWS BEST: The Rev. William Lyons, chaplain at the Newman House, has a busy scheduling taking care of all the center's activities.

Mike Porterfield

FATHER LYONS keeps busy at Newman House

Marjorie Bauer

"Make sure you include that the money we collected was an extra responsibility," added Father William Lyons, chaplain at Newman House on Natural Bridge Road, two years from UMSL campus, at the end of the interview.

FATHER Lyons wanted to make sure everyone was given credit for the money collected in the recent fast collection to provide money to help the poor. The amount, $456, a healthy donation raised by students at the center and others in the community, was given to Oxfam.

FATHER Lyons, the second chaplain at Newman House, has been at the center for 17 years. "Newman House is the oldest student activities group on campus," he said with pride. Father Lyons said that Newman House was established by the late Cardinal Ritter as a center for Catholic and interfaith students on campus. It is funded largely by interfaith funds and student contributions.

FATHER Lyons' job on campus is to serve as chaplain to the student, faculty and staff, he said. He also serves as the priest at the Catholic church on campus.

FATHER Lyons has a lay associate, Candy Kemp, who helps him in every aspect of the job except for administering the sacraments.

FATHER Lyons' job includes daily and Sunday liturgy. He supervises the Newman House forensics team group at Newman House — an active discussion group on spiritual topics. Daily Mass is held in the tiny chapel on the second floor of the building.

The house observes "community day" each Thursday, supervised by Father Lyons, to help students with tools in community building, and to build a Catholic student community at UMSL. "At this time," Father Lyons said, "we have been openheartedly welcomed by all students." The community spirit fostered carries over into social justice concerns for the poor. "We want to help the needy, the poor, the starving. We help at Catholic Worker Ministry at 18th and Cass Avenue. This is a shelter providing temporary shelter at times for men, women and children."

The Newman House student body was involved in the recent drive to raise funds for Oxfam and Bread for the World campaign. Father Lyons said, "Students are interested in human concerns. Women's issues and the nuclear armament question." During spring break, Father Lyons said, for the last 10 to 12 years, Newman House has sponsored a three-day retreat at a Trappist Monastery in Ava, Mo. The retreats are open to the public. The monks are vegetarians and support themselves by making candles. "But the students enjoy good food there, too," Father Lyons added with a smile.

Other activities which keep Father Lyons busy include his work with the forensics team. The various pastors meet once a month, and include representatives from the Methodist Church, Presbyterian Church, Disciples of Christ, Baptist and United Church. Father Lyons said the main concern of this group at present is how to help prevent black students from dropping out of school. He said he might approach faculty members for help, and frequently refers the student to services available on campus which he might not be aware of. Father Lyons said he helps with tutoring and job placement. He is always available for counseling.

"It's not all work, you know," Father Lyons continued. "We participate in a variety of social activities — float trips, camping, picnics, parties and the UMSL ski trip." He admitted enjoying skiing himself.

WHAT A TEACHER!: Gayle Brickman, a new lecturer at UMSL, teacher her "Persuasive Communication" students sales skills which will help them in the job market.

Cedric R. Anderson

Brickman focuses on teaching her students sales skills

Stephanie Ross

As Gayle Brickman walked across UMSL campus fall semester morning, dressed perfectly, the actor within her sparkled. She said, "But after I was already changing her look, I looked dramatic."

"Whatever you are selling your ideas," she said. "I truly are selling yourself more than anything else."

That first day in the persuasion class, Brickman presented goals and benefits of good persuasive speaking. She applied selling techniques to stress her ideas.

Words tumbled over each other in a fast-moving air as she warmed to the subject. Some students in the group noticed her obvious enthusiasm and followed her and stopped mid-sentence — changing her name.

The course has a two-part goal. One goal is to teach students how others will buy your ideas or product, she said. The other is to teach how to sell your own ideas. "They are trying to sell something to you," Brickman said.

"I think I am a good salesperson — all of all at selling myself," she said. "I called to see if the speech communication department had any teaching positions open," Brickman said. "They had a full-time roving in the paper. I talked with them and got the job.

Brickman was an advertising sales representative for the Houston Post. She worked with both new and established accounts. Hard work was her main tool. She had to outsell the rival newspaper in a certain local area, and had to get at least 50 percent of the businesses in that area to sign up with the Post, Brickman said.

"Enjoy selling. It's fun and a challenge," she said. "I see myself as a salesperson — I want to share that.

Because of the hard work she experienced while working for the Post, Brickman has other jobs that, and she is going about it in a specific way. Brickman discussed some of the tools she plans to use in her classes. Impromptu speaking is an important aspect in her plan. Knowledge from textbooks and prepared speeches are also key factors.

"I want to teach students how to meet goals in their lives and also in their classes," she said. "I think I have done something if I do that. I am a tough grader, too — a B is a good job, and an A is truly excellent.

"I think impromptu speaking is the most valuable thing for learning technique," she added. "Organizing, thinking and speaking on your feet is a point of power in any kind of selling." Her persuasion has been working on the goals Brickman has set. For instance, she will present a lecture on a topic. Then the class will be asked to do an impromptu speech using the points in the lecture.

She believes students learn by being put on the spot and forced to do something. "I gave a lecture on the five-part motivated selling sequence during one class period," Brickman explained. "The next time the class met, I brought a bag. I gave them a few seconds to think. Then they had to present a two-minute persuasive speech about the product they grabbed. They had to use the motivated selling sequence, which includes five steps: attention, need, satisfaction, visualization and action.

She said she was pleased with the speeches. The students were able to create a need for the product and then tell how the product would satisfy the need.

Brickman teaches one class in persuasion and two courses in introduction to public speaking. She is also one of the coaches for the UMSL, Forensics and Debate Squad. Here, the value of a speaker's words is judged, not graded. But the basics are the same, she said. "I apply the same ideas with the forensic team in my classes," she said. "Selling themselves, I sell ideas, and these ideas are the key elements in speech competitions"

She said her efforts will help the team. "We have a good base from which to start this year," she said.

Brickman's smile flashed as she thought about working for the Dale Carnegie Sales Institute. Brickman must be a lucky person, because getting the Carnegie job was, like her UMSL position, a dream.

"I had gone to inquire about taking the Carnegie course. But they were looking for a sales representative. We talked and I ended up taking the job," Brickman said. "I did take the training course — but after I was already selling it," she added. "It was one of the best jobs I have had.

She had to approach people and companies about taking — or having their staff take — the course, she said. The course is one evening a week for 14 weeks. "It was a real challenge," Brickman said. "I am a persistent achiever, and I discovered it wasn't difficult to sell the training course.

"People want to better themselves.

Part of Brickman's job with Carnegie was giving speeches to companies. "It was exciting to have a positive attitude," That was the trick, she said, and her name got on the Carnegie Top 10 list.

"I can't sell a product I don't believe in," she said.

One product she believes in is strong interview skills. She recalled one job interview she did with the recruiter of a well known company during her senior year in college. She remembers it because it turned out to be busy.

"See Brickman," page 15

California.

He spent his high school years at Saint Louis University High School, and enrolled in Cardinal Glennon College, then Kemrick Seminary. He spent the next four years at Catholic University in Washington, D.C. He took his master's at St. Louis University in Guidance and Counseling. He was appointed pastor at St. Rock's parish in St. Louis, and then at St. Raphael's parish in South St. Louis. He was a counselor at Dubourg High School for 10 years before being asked to be chaplain at the developing UMSL campus.
The Current celebrates its 500th!

Text and layout by Sharon Kubatzy
Research assistance by Jeff Little

It all started as a small-time newspaper called the Tiger Cub. The first student newspaper at UMSL rolled off the presses on Nov. 23, 1966. Its presence was brief; it paved the way for the Mizou News, the second newspaper, which cost students a dime back in those days.

The Current (named after the newly selected UMSL mascot, the Riverman) came along on Nov. 18, 1966, and has been publishing steadily (some things never change!). The Current and indeed the history of UMSL. We're proud that the Current has remained a primary force in information on and off campus.

Our students are always discontented about prices of books, food, and tuition. But there are the lighter moments. In this same issue, Charles Koen, prime minister of the National Black Liberators, presides over the election of the campus and indeed the history of UMSL for the past 16 years of Current history. And on the next page, you'll find excerpts from our Letters to the Editor pages.

We hope you enjoy this glimpse back into Current — and UMSL — history.

From our 500 issues ...

66-67
A front-page story reports the ending of the controversy over the UMSL mascot. The Riverman was chosen over such momentous titles as the Knights, the Griffins and the Eagles. The Riverman would later be dubbed sexist by women's groups.

On June 8, the first graduating class of UMSL received diplomas — 250 students in all.

67-68
Dean of Student Affairs Harold Eichhoff cancels elections for class officers and senators due to "lack of interest." Only the sophomore class had a full slate running for office, and most of those were unopposed.

70-71
The seemingly innocent "Miss UMSL contest" creates controversy when student groups protest, calling the contest racist. Contest organizers argue that the competition was open to anyone. The student court investigates, and a ruling is made. The three protestors held a sign that read, "Get your head together, Susie Cream cheese."

71-72
The new as-yet unnamed "multipurpose building" opens — now the Mark Twin Building.

73-74
An Ozark airliner crashes north of the campus. Thirty-eight die in the incident.

75-76
Arnold B. Grobman is selected UMSL chancellor after a 10-month search.

The Current wins Outstanding Student Newspaper among the Missouri Newspaper Association.

The portrait of Will Clark Hall is reported stolen, and Nelson is quoted as a territorial governor of the University. The Current wins the Missouri College of the Year award.

Week is...
77-78

Student members of the International Committee Against Racism picket the recruitment of students to work for IBM, to protest apartheid practices in South Africa. Although 250 students purchase a yearbook, the book's editors have trouble getting all the pictures taken, and a front page story reports that the book may not come out on time, or at all.

78-79

The KWBU Student Staff makes a major change in weekend programming, changing its Sunday morning show from rock to jazz music, saying 'there's a jazz audience in St. Louis.' Students on the UMSL and Columbia campuses attempt to have a student curator placed on the board, to no avail. The Athletic Committee votes to discontinue the wrestling program, citing a lack of members as its primary reasoning. Wrestler Roger Toben said, 'They are messing around with the future of the wrestlers.' The program is later granted a two-year reprieve, which failed.

79-80

UM Curator Robert Dempsey gets into hot water by allegedly calling one of his employees a 'nigger.' In a story in the Columbia Tribune, Dempsey is quoted as saying 'He still has to go out and rob a bank for me,' referring to a caretaker who lived on his property. This remark followed another one Dempsey supposedly made, referring to the UM budget. He said 'It's like the woman who said she was raped – she didn't resist enough.' Outraged students called for his resignation. The athletics program makes plans to join the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association, marking the first time the school is a member of an athletic conference.

In an unprecedented action, the student government expels 42 percent of its members for not attending meetings.

80-81

A Town Hall Meeting with President Jimmy Carter

It's a big year for politics at UMSL. - President Jimmy Carter speaks at a 'town hall meeting' here on Oct. 13. An estimated crowd of 2,000 hear him speak in the Mark Twain Building. Then in April, an UMSL graduate named Vincent Schornshiel is elected St. Louis mayor.

81-82

Associate biology professor Zuleyma T. Halpin holds office hours outside Student Hall to protest the changing of keys to her office. Halpin says she never received a new key and that all her materials are locked into the other office. The protest works and Physical Plant employees unlock her equipment within two hours.

UMSL students hold a 'Day of Concern' rally to protest budgetary policies of the state. Lt. Gov. Kenneth J. Rothman appeared.

82-83

Ron Tyler, a sophomore forward on the Riverman basketball team, collapses and dies during a pickup game at the Mark Twain Building. The UMSL community mourns the loss of the 19-year-old.

Once more, 'sweat bees invade UMSL.' But this time, the Current features a front page story that includes information about the bees. 'They are commonly called 'sweat bees,'" the story says. "But they are not bees at all. They actually are wasps ...' and so on.

Homecoming is marred by an incident of tampering with hallways. Two students are disciplined for stuffing the ballot boxes during the election.

Building planners are hired for the new science building to be built here, but funds from the state are slow in coming.

Once again, the Current sweeps the Missouri College Newspaper Association awards competition, winning 13 awards.

83-84

The "Comedy Improv at the Summit" preview and is hailed as one of the most successful programming events ever at UMSL.

A cable studio opens in Lucas Hall. The studio is connected with American Cablevision of St. Louis and will provide training experience for television production students here, as well as community programming opportunities. Former UMSL sports standout Carmen Forest participates in the 1984 Summer Olympics on the basketball team.
Dear Editor:

Your student government is aware of its failure to solve the majority of problems on this campus. However, each of us must remember that with limited facilities and resources, solutions must be postponed until a later date. Likewise, it is hard to turn the wheel of change until we are informed of specific issues the Student Association feels are important. It is much easier in room to push a few major programs than to spread our energies over a wide range of issues.

David Depker, President
Student Association
Jan. 24, 1967

Dear Editor:

For nearly four weeks I have been a new member of the UMSL campus, looking at all aspects with curiosity. In that time, I've become aware of certain attitudes that are held by the majority of the students. This is only the tip of this factor of this campus.

In general, I think that these attitudes can be summed up under the heading of "professional liberalism." In essence, they seem to reflect an intellectual snobishness, an attitude of "We're right and you're all wrong."

I think this notion was born out at the recent "Student Power Rally." One student rose and said without hesitation, that "Nixon's not doing a damn thing to end this damn war." He went on discussing the purpose, once more, of stopping the war.

Thursdays, during this 1969 fall semester, does not give the student body much to immoralitv and an one of the more horrible aspects of man's damn war." He went on discussing one student staff in general and this student in particular, or c) invite you to Bugg Lake.

Dear Editor:

Since the Current now has a woman in charge [editor Judy Klamon] I thought perhaps the caliber of its advertising would improve— but alas, I was mistaken. Once again the Current has used an advertisement that offended me. I'm referring to the picture of a seemingly naked woman holding a sign in front of her which said, "Do you have anything to sell or offer a service," et cetera. The implications were obvious and they really disgusted me.

I encourage the Current to continue publishing countless ads that offer women choices on campus and is active in school affairs.

We received 14 applications from girls who were majoring in Greek organizations and two were not. This implies only that the Greek organizations took an active interest in this contest and urged their members to participate in it.

UMSL Steamer Clubs
Marty Hendrix, President
Dec. 4, 1969

Freedom of speech—what would this country be without it? On the editorial pages of the Current you will find a variety of opinions voiced by students, faculty, staff and community members by way of the Letter to the Editor forum. Over the past 16 years, the Current has published countless letters to the editor from many subjects, some serious, some silly, but all demonstrating the importance of a forum such as this one. It's interesting, then, to note the trends we've experienced; for instance, borrowing at UMSL has been a source of inspiration to letter writers practically since its inception. Student government has not escaped the mindful watch of students and faculty members, as is evidenced by several letters. And always someone wants to complain about the lack of cold or parking, the food in the cafeteria, or the poor lighting on campus.

Political issues are popular topics — it seems the '72 presidential candidacy of George McGovern to our current Students will be a factor.

The letter to the editor must be read from the remarks of vigilant readers. We've been chastised for everything from drinking to bad manners.

Included here are excerpts from just a few of the letters we've received over the years.

Dear Editor:

This letter is directed to those students who lack the maturity required to sit in a lecture hall for 50 minutes without opening their mouths. If you are short on good manners or respect for the lectur er, at least have the common courtesy to your fellow student to take your kid bubbling mouth elsewhere. Your loudness is a source of irritation, and impedes concentration. For the benefits of those who are attending class to listen and learn, please shut up or get out.

Patti Danforth
Feb. 25, 1976

Dear Editor:

With the start of a new school year come the traditional articles and handbooks on how to survive. Many necessary details are lacking from these works, however, and I'd like to add a few of my own list of "helpful facts" to them. I've spent a few years here, and consider the following items of some importance:

If you must walk through the Greek section of the Snack Bar, do so quietly and well-armed.

The instructors you think are inadequate will also be the ones who will say there is "no time" to fill out course evaluation forms.

UMSL will find a way to fire, deny tenure to, or otherwise destroy the genuinely good teacher. Get used to this fact now and it will hurt less later.

Hundreds of doors to UMSL buildings remain inexplicably locked in the middle of the day. There is no way to choose in advance which door or group of people a magic one that is unlocked.

Don't smoke dope at Bugg Lake. Be reasonably discreet and you will be safe.

If somebody says to you, "I worked the 3 a.m. air shift Sunday and had some really fine sounds going out," do your best to ignore him/her. This is a KWMU groupie, and will either a) give you a description of the private ritual in-flight ceremony, b) lament about the lack of air time for the student staff in general and this student in particular, or c) invite you to Bugg Lake.

Dear Editor:

Dear Editor:

After reading of a proposed "Women's Lounge" on campus, I was left in a state of puzzlement. A "Women's Lounge" indeed!

A Women's Lounge would be the most blatant example of a sexist institution ever to be suggested for the UMSL campus. I can see how well those who will hit the ventilator if an all male lounge were to be proposed. If we are ever to do something, never let your actions completely disarm and-condemn it for other.

Michael P. LaBrieri
UMSL alumni
Feb. 22, 1973

Dear Editor:

I found the Air Force ad in the Current exceptionally offensive. I feel that it is poor taste towards humanity to advertise an institution that teaches people to and exercises its unholy profession. If it is in line with the interests of America, then I see no stopping it. If we are ever to do anything, let's do away with it entirely; not condemn it for some other individual or to the state.

Michael P. LaBrieri

Michael P. LaBrieri

Dear Editor:

The primary reason the reinstatement of military registration and the draft is opposed by many Americans is because our Constitution, the United States of America guarantees citizens many rights and the Thirteenth Amendment, in particular, protects the individual from slavery (whether in an individual or to the state). For one and for all, the draft issue should be decided by a Constitutional Amendment. This issue is of crucial importance to American civic liberties and national defense.

UMSL Coalition Against the Draft
Feb. 14, 1980

Dear Editor:

All of us who bring our lunch to the Summit lounge are missing our microwaves.

We have heard that it makes a great coat rack, but actually it warms our food. Now we hear the microwave is keeping all the students who have applications for the Fund Palace a place of excitement and a place to spend a lunchroom. This is a request to place the microwave back in the Summit.

Margaret Ewen
Cathy Denzel, Dan Hightower
Nov. 10, 1982

Dear Editor:

In response to last week's article about the Student Patrol issuing windshield tickets, I would like to point out that there are unlocked doors, I must compliment UMSL on its stupidity and desire to provide babysitting services for us college students and their cars.

The major flaw to this idea is that your car becomes an easy ripoff target, by advertising that there are valuables in the unlocked doors. So whatever bad element is on our campus, the Stars must watch the "right ears" to rip them off. Thanks to the Student Patrol.

Name Withheld
March 3, 1983

Dear Editor:

It's time for black students to stop blaming others for our inability to become assimilated into the academic mainstream of this university, and others.

Although I understand the need for black representation on this campus in the areas of administration, faculty and staff, I do not feel that the lack of it should have absolutely no bearing on our success.

If the students we're looking for thank for a moment, this campus is a model of the real world, a world that we are now nearing to become leaders. If we can't deal with this phase without special considerations, how can we proceed to the next?

Joyce Marie Epps
March 10, 1983

Dear Editor:

I was very sad and upset to see a private add for abortions in the Current. It is as bad as any other ad a college student can find.

I strongly encourage you and the rest of the staff to not accept in the future any such kind of offers.

We must respect life and work to protect all living persons, which most assuredly includes the unborn.

Paula Schelling
Feb. 9, 1984

Dear Editor:

I feel that a woman's body is her private business and that abortion is a choice that should always remain open to her.

I encourage the Current to continue placing ads that offer women choices about unplanned pregnancies or unwanted pregnancies.

Thank you for letting women know that safe options are still available for them.

Name Withheld
Feb. 18, 1984
Everyone knew what Jeffrey should do with his life.
Everyone was wrong.
Help Wanted

Part-time positions for campus councilors. Morning day camp programs or full-week summer camp positions. Working with mentally retarded children and adults. Please contact Dave G. 257-2211.

Ambitious, energetic people wanted: Bus driver, housekeeping, janitorial, and flexible hours. You are a self-starter, have proven work ability, and are able to work only a few hours per day. Call Sherry at 292-6538.

Help wanted to delay the cost of one recently purchased Corvette. All donations should be sent to: Save the Vette Fund.

Ride needed Saturday mornings for clinical treatments, Monday afternoons. Will pay with gas money. Please call Mary at 627-6802.

The Old Spaghetti Factory is looking for energetic, hard-working, and dedicated individuals to join our restaurant staff. We are looking for busboys, kitchen helpers, and servers. Please apply in person. A convenient location is available.

For sale:

1979 Capri auto condition AM/FM 8-track, sun roof, good condition. 8000 miles. $2,600 or best offer. Call Susan at 567-5039.

1979/44 Computer, 16K, built in, toxic gases, joystick adapter for SMS. Will take all offers. 500. Need manuals 550-6797, 8 a.m. - 9 p.m.

Truck tires, 4wd, 15 inch, minimal wear, almost new, negotiable. Call 561-5944.

For rental:

1979/80 canvas, multibed, with fox trimmed hood. Size 11x11, includes sheets, blankets, pillows, 955. Machines 550-5077, 8 a.m. - 9 p.m.

Personal

Tim, it's over. I can't sneak around the truth any longer. I'm sorry, but I will never forget you. Take care.

This is the story of a young couple in Portland, Maine. While waiting for an interview, she learned of his death. Its from work, she reaches for a can of cola and finds fish across a piece of lettuce...

H.Q.,

...only you were the best candidate, but you were the best person in the world. You'll always be my one great friend.

To John S.,

The best looking Sag Tauru. A police officer wanted for 2500.00. Will try not to start a fan club that is in dek with you.

Dear Jackie,

...I was the only daughter I just wanted to earn you about a stunning performer. Tommy Tomson and Robinson

Annoyance

Just write to say "Hi" from spank- man and Sign in. AB, mom and dad.

To the Incest Twins.

Which one is the druidic Unicorn? Are you going to wear your usual black for Christmas, or just wear your usual" red" letter? Bob

To Abby Normal, President of Tanning Leather Co.

Robbie,

...a spicy X-Mas. May Santa deliver cans of spiced rum into the pits of your greedy life.

The Tape Stealer

...she turns and sees three sparrow-doorways of the kitchen doorway. Before she even knew what was happening she is rolled tightly in long sheets of tape. She is held captive in an international airport and placed on a plane.

To: the "We're glad you got a ticket!"

...how do you write on all the tickets? I'm pretty sure I'm Level J.C. of parking garage? Who are you? Why didn't you ask me? Rick-fi.

From the other member, Ms. Adamantine.

Dear Mr. Mouse,

Please accept my apology regarding all recent inappropriate behavior. I have been hating myself but I really can't get better. My location is right around the corner! Love you, Rose Bower, Flowers

Dearest Bart,

Thank you so much for being with us tonight. We are all so happy to be together on our sixteeth month anniversary. Thanks for the romantic evening! Your gorgeous blue eyes made me so happy! I can't wait to spend Christmas with you! Thanks for everything, Richard Happy Birthday Lush Puppy!

I can't wait to see you and enjoy some more. I love you very much.

Love, Sean

Don M.

311 KT is almost off my list. I don't know why. Do you still work there? m.a.f.

Bill,

Here you just signed your life away because you know you don't have any other options. Love, Sham

The Roses

Kevin,

...her newest Gig Tau sucks! That's the worst thing that could happen. No, I'm not kidding. Remember that somewhere is still out there...

Bob

...to the biggest brother a girl could have. You're a joy! Good Luck on final! See ya at the party.

Little Sister

...with the trace of her kiss still warm upon his lips, he betrays her to the three of three scientists engaging in diabolic, avant-garde experiments performed only on insects and other small meaningless creatures.

For Adoption:

...a large dog looking for new home. Doesn't eat much, take a little and is a big, big show off. Miss him ex-arm and walkabout more!

To the guy who wishes he was seeing you! Give me a call.

Linda

To the Inter Greek lunch counsel,

...you made the right one! Be ready for change, but you were the best person...

To Martin H.

...for the ride and offers to the party. Snow! Don't let the cold weather stop you! We can do something... maybe not all the time, if not, see you next semester.

WELCOME to Bowling for Dollars.

Suddenly Crazy Al says "The fascinating thing about bowling is how familiar this bowling ball is to me."

To the Inter Greek lunch counsel,

...will be available between Dec. 6 and Jan. 1. J.D. Stenson will give UMSL and other students a talk on social problems.

To the cute guy who always knows what to say! "I love you more. Hurry." Break from the 21st. Hint: don't mess it up when it's right.

M.T. Young-who, ESTA m.f.

To Carris,

How did you like the skittles? Yum, you know me, I always eat the ones you like! Or why run your shining reflection around "Jazzies"?

To the other best Buddy, Linda

...don't see you at finals. We can do something... maybe not all the time, if not, see you next semester.

To C.A.P.

...you're a great daughter. You're a great daughter.

To the inter Greek lunch counsel, Love, #5

...breakfast and have a nice break and a good luck to you and Bill in the future!

To Martin H.

...I must of lost your sense of identity, but you're my one and only! You're a perfect one and no place to turn. I've a suggestion for the UMSL team, the math club should be starting lineup!

The Non Conformist Club promotes their work. Photographs of Brown Business School and Mansfield University top the list. We would give UMSL greater chance to be involved. I vote on the UMSL, conformed.

To the first time, a human being has been transformed into animal form by a human. Meanwhile, back in Portland, Maine...

Dear Non Conformist Club,

...looking for my guide! I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad I'm so glad... and no place to turn. I've a thing over the break...

To Martin H.

...something over the break ...

To the Liberal, love, D.S. Bartlett phone (Rhynia),

Get paid for your birthdays! You're a great daughter. I'm so proud, Beaver, getting psyched, psyched, psyched, excited, excited, excited, and Whiff of Fortune. Absolutely.

To my newest Tau son! That's right. You made the right one. Be ready for change, but you were the best person...

To Tom G.

...are the good times.

To my newest Tau son! That's right. You made the right one. Be ready for change, but you were the best person...

To Martin H.

...are the good times.

To my newest Tau son! That's right. You made the right one. Be ready for change, but you were the best person...

To Martin H.

...are the good times.

To the other member, Ms.

...And the lesson we learn from the near future you shall be...
Everyone knew what Jeffrey should do with his life.

Everyone was wrong.

Molestor

from page 9

Luczak: Oh, how terrible. What do you do then?

Molestor: I usually take the copy home and give it to my mother.

Luczak: Why? Is your mother a Xerox molestor also?

Molestor: No, she just likes my picture, so I give it to her.

Luczak: And how long do you plan to keep molesting?

Molestor: Either until someone catches me, or until justice is done, and these machines are banished from the university.

Club

from page 9

In the club, the equipment and get back to show.

The lack of portable equipment is hurting the club and starting its growth, according to Ahimovic. The club has applied for portable equipment in the past and has been turned down. It plans to apply again.

"If the University wants the speech communication department to grow, it must put in more funds for equipment and growth," said Ahimovic.

One of the plans for the club is to build a better studio on the UMSL campus. Ahimovic says that this will happen many years down the road. A studio lab for students to learn on and a regular television studio would be included in such a plan.

Ahimovic also said she would like to see the club's own channel on American Cablevision. "To have a channel would take a lot of production work and programs," Ahimovic said.

In five years, Ahimovic sees a stronger Television Production Club for UMSL students. A stronger club would help UMSL students gain knowledge and training on campus instead of having to go off campus.

Ahimovic said she wants to see the organization become an entity with a lot of strength in using the media.

Brickman

from page 8

"I discussed my college years in Austin, Texas," she said. "I thought I had aced the job, but I hadn't. I now know that I hadn't said anything about my qualifications.

She wants her students to learn how to read an audience -- an interviewee or a class of students. "I try to persuade the students through input on their speeches. I hope they will give me something, not just sit back looking at each other as well," she said.

She said. "We gain new insights by learning skills that help us perceive the tactics used."
around UMSL

7

Friday

- The UMSL Alumni Association is selling tickets for the Bach Society's annual Candlelight Christmas Concert at 8 p.m. at Powell Symphony Hall. Tickets are $10 and are available at the University Center Information Desk. The ticket price includes an Alumni Association-hosted wine and cheese reception in the Met bar immediately following the concert.
- The 1984-85 "Comedy Improv at the Summit" continues with comedian Jay Leno at 8 and 10:15 p.m. in the Summit lounge. Admission is $3 with valid UMSL student ID, $4 for UMSL faculty/staff, and $6 for general admission.
- Intensive study days will be today and Monday.

8

Saturday

- The Women's basketball vs. Quincy College at 5:30 p.m. in the Mark Twain Building. Admission is free to students with a valid UMSL ID, $4 for reserved seating, $2.50 for general admission, and $5.50 for students and $10 for citizens. Call 553-5121 for information on sporting events around UMSL.
- The Senate Student Affairs Committee will meet at 1:30 p.m. in Room 266 University Center.
- Men's basketball vs. Millikin University at 7:30 p.m. in the Mark Twain Building.

11

Tuesday

- The Women's Center will provide its members with "Food for Thought" today and Wednesday, Dec. 12. The center will serve free coffee and donuts from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The center is located in Room 107A Benton Hall.
- The UMSL Senate will meet at 3 p.m. in Room 78 J.C. Penney Building.

13

Thursday

- The University Bookstore will buy back used books from the fall semester Dec. 13, 14, 17, and 18. The bookstore is open Monday through Thursday from 8:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. and Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.
- The Alpha Phi Omega annual Book Pool will be held in Room 156 University Center from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. The pool will continue Jan. 14 through 18.

14

Friday

- The Senate Student Affairs Committee will meet at 1:30 p.m. in Room 266 University Center.
- Last day to order cap and gown
- The Alpha Phi Omega annual Book Pool will be held in Room 156 University Center from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. The pool will continue Jan. 14 through 18.

18

Tuesday

- Material for "around UMSL" should be submitted in writing no later than 3 p.m. Friday of the week before publication to Steve Brawley, around UMSL editor, Current, 1 Blue Metal Office Building, 8001 Natural Bridge Road, St. Louis, Mo. 63121. Phone items cannot be accepted. Material may be edited or excluded to satisfy space or content requirements.
Ira Levin's "Deathtrap" is one of those plays that you wish you had never seen before, so you could see it again for the first time. This was true for me; I had just found myself in the seat that Benton Hall to watch the University Players production of this classic thriller.

I've been to quite a few University Players productions in the past several years, and without a doubt, the set for "Deathtrap" was the best I've seen. Scott Sharer and his crew set the scene and mood for a good Connecticut country home murder (or two or three). "Deathtrap" owns much of its years of success to pure shock value. I was not the best person to review the production, having seen the play once before and the movie several times. Knowing what was coming next made the viewing a little more interesting. At the end of Act I, Clifford Anderson, the young playwright portrayed by Rex Bauer, comes back from the grave. I knew this. I knew the young playwright played by Rex Bauer, comes back from the grave. I knew this. I knew the young playwright played by Rex Bauer, comes back from the grave. I knew this. I knew the young playwright played by Rex Bauer, comes back from the grave. I knew this. I knew the young playwright played by Rex Bauer, comes back from the grave.

Dave Wassilak proved, to me, once again that he just may be the most gifted actor ever to grace the UMSL stage. I keep thinking that I'm going to see him play a role which I'm not going to like, but it has not happened yet, and it certainly did not happen Friday night. Wassilak created a Sidney Bruhl who seemed every bit capable of killing due to "thirsterless maligns," the fevered pursuit of the one-set, five-character monomane.

While Wassilak created his own version of Bruhl, two of the other characters, Clifford Anderson, portrayed by Rex Bauer, and Myra Bruhl, played by Barb Willis, seemed, purposely or not, to carry on the tradition of their roles as set by Christopher Reeve and Dan Cannon in the movie version of the drama. Both delivered their lines with the same kind of sensitivity and intensity as the two seasoned professionals who succumbs to their support this past semester.

Another fine performance was turned in by Andreas Cush- ing as the psychic, Melga (My daughter is pregnant, I'm better called and tell her) Ten Dorp. Cushings' success was due, in part, to a very realistic German accent.

Chris Stoltze portrayed Bruhl's crony, Frank McLaughlin who succumbs to "thirsterless maligns," along with Ten Dorp at the end of the play.

Technically, the play was extraordinary. Music and sound effects were omnipresent but not overpowering. Lighting was well done, especially in Act II. Scenic 2, when the script called for a power blackout. It's not an easy trick to have a blackout and still see what's happening onstage, but Steve Anderson, KWMU Student Staff, and his crew did a great job of giving the audience the feeling that they were both playing on one set and a couple of laughs.

Laughter is always the best success. The University Players next production will be "The Time of Your Life," scheduled for Feb. 21 through 24.

General Foods International Coffees
Glenmary Home Missio

The Current Advertising Sales Staff would like to thank all of our advertisers for their support this past semester. If you would like information on advertising in the 1985 winter semester, please call us at (314) 553-5175. Thanks again.

Yates W. Sanders and Joanne E. Quick

The Current Advertising Sales Staff would like to thank all of our advertisers for their support this past semester. If you would like information on advertising in the 1985 winter semester, please call us at (314) 553-5175. Thanks again.

Yates W. Sanders and Joanne E. Quick
Shootout ends championship hopes

Daniel A. Kimack
sports editor

It was a bitter ending to a sweet season.

The UMSL soccer Rivermen, losing an NCAA Division 2 semifinal game, 2-1, to Seattle Pacific University here Saturday before 759 paid, walked away from Keener Stadium in the UMSL soccer stadium with their heads down. It didn't seem to matter that this was probably the second-best season ever for Coach Don Dallas' team.

We pushed ourselves to the limit to get the best win we've ever had, and it boils down to penalty kicks," said UMSL forward Ted Hastall. "It takes away the meaning of the whole season.

Following a 1-1 deadlock after regulation time, UMSL and Seattle Pacific squared off in a shootout. NCAA Division 2 soccer guidelines rate the game into a shootout, where each team has five opportunities to score from within the box, if a winner is not declared after overtime. The format, perhaps, is not the most glorious way to end a game — especially an NCAA playoff game — but it is effective. Sort of like Queen bees fighting for supremacy: there is only one winner.

O'Keefe envisions his winning goal

Daniel A. Kimack
sports editor

Seattle Pacific University powerhouse forward O'Keefe knew the right stuff. O'Keefe scored both the winning and tying goals for Seattle in a 2-1 win over UMSL Saturday.

"It's the same old story. Our offense just went sour." — Coach Rich Meckfessel

Rivermen off to bumpy start against West Coast teams

Daniel A. Kimack
sports editor

Dellendo-Fox was just beginning to think he could go home again. And he was enjoying it.

But his 21 points in the first half against the University of California-Santa Barbara, soon found out he wanted more.

UMSL, tipping off a three-game trip to the West Coast for matchups with Division I teams, suffered a 72-65 loss to Santa Barbara.

For a native of San Diego, fell into the Rivermen's mold and slapped through a terrible second-half performance. UMSL folded under Santa Barbara after leading 54-27 when the first half ended.

"It's the same old story," Coach Rich Meckfessel said, noting the Rivermen's lackluster play in the second half this season. "Our offense just went sour.

Indeed. UMSL netted just 25 points in the second frame after playing on strong offense in the first. The only thing they did not lose was a defense throughout the game.

Fox served as a prime example of the Rivermen's weaknesses. The transfer guard played havoc with Santa Barbara in the first half with eight buckets. In the second half he missed six consecutive shots.

Thus, with four minutes left in regulation time, UMSL found itself in a 14-point deficit. Coupled with 21 turnovers, a 40 percent shooting average has that type of effect. UMSL hit just 39 of 97 shots from the field.

But a last glimmer of hope also faded with just under two minutes to play. The Rivermen worked to within seven points of Santa Barbara when guard Bob McCormack missed a three-pointer.

"It can't say McCormack lost the game when he missed that shot," Meckfessel explained. "But it was unfortunate he picked that night to have a bad shooting night.

UC-Santa Barbara, unquestionably, was a formidable opponent for the Rivermen. As will be Stanford and Pepperdine. More than anything else, the three games will help UMSL (3-2) gear up for competition in the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Meckfessel said he would be pleased with just one victory on the trip.

Fox managed to lead all scorers with 16 points. Ervin Bailey had 12 points, followed by Tony Earl, who tied him with 12 points. McCormack led all scorers with 21.

"We really had high hopes," Gregory said of the Rivermen's chances in the tournament. "But they got knocked down right from the start.

UMSL fell to Central University of Iowa, 68-64, before getting knocked around by Missouri Western State College, 85-62. The Riverwomen have not won since their season opener with McKendree College at home.

They should have won against Central Iowa, Gregory said.

"It was a game I thought we should have won," she said. "We made quite a few mistakes.

To be sure, UMSL turned the ball over 19 times in the contest and squandered a 43-38 halftime lead. That slump was brought about by poor shooting and numerous mental mistakes. UMSL shot just 32.1 percent from the field in the second half.

Gregory led all scorers with 21 points, followed by teammates Mindy, Miescher and Kathy Rubach with 16 and 10 each, respectively. Sue Poppens led Central Iowa with 16 points, followed by by Kim McFarlan and Dana Frederick with 11 each.

Things weren't so close against Missouri Western. UMSL trailed by 14 points at the half and lost nine more in the second frame.

"It wasn't close," Gregory explained. "I thought Missouri Western was really a good team. I was really impressed with them.

The Rivermen again had a bad shooting night, hitting just 40.9 percent from the field.

Missouri Western's Cheryl Kemp led all scorers with 28 points, followed by Judy Amos with 21. Gregory again led UMSL with a 26-point effort. Rubach added 10 points for the Riverwomen.

UMSL returned home yesterday for a game with William Woods College.

"That's a game we are really expecting to win," Gregory said in advance. "We need to win that game and get back on the right track."

If there is a glimmer of hope in the recent losing streak for the women, it is the return to health of four players. Hobbled with knee injuries, Rubach, Grace Gain and others are beginning to recuperate.

Women faulted at Missouri Western, drop two points

Daniel A. Kimack
sports editor

If there is at least one player not at fault for the basketball Riverwomen's recent run of bad luck it is Gina Gregory.

Despite the slick forward averaging 12 points per game, UMSL has dipped to 1-3, following two losses last week in the Missouri Western Invitational tournament.

"We really had high hopes," Gregory said of the Riverwomen's chances in the tournament. "But they got knocked down right from the start.

UMSL fell to Central University of Iowa, 68-64, before getting knocked around by Missouri Western State College, 85-62. The Riverwomen have not won since their season opener with McKendree College at home.

They should have won against Central Iowa, Gregory said.

"It was a game I thought we should have won," she said. "We made quite a few mistakes.

To be sure, UMSL turned the ball over 19 times in the contest and squandered a 43-38 halftime lead. That slump was brought about by poor shooting and numerous mental mistakes. UMSL shot just 32.1 percent from the field in the second half.

Gregory led all scorers with 21 points, followed by teammates Mindy, Miescher and Kathy Rubach with 16 and 10 each, respectively. Sue Poppens led Central Iowa with 16 points, followed by Women faulted at Missouri Western, drop two

It was a season of achievements for men kickers

The Rivermen, despite losing to Seattle in the NCAA Division 2 semifinal game here last week, 2-1, have proved they are probably the second-best UMSL soccer team in history.

With an overall record of 14-2-2, the Rivermen qualified for the NCAA Division 2 final four after winning a 2-1 decision over California-Northridge in the national tournament second round.

It was the 12th consecutive season UMSL has made the playoffs. The Rivermen are the only ones ever to make an appearance each and every year of the tournament’s Division 2 format. Seattle Pacific has qualified 12 times.

UMSL’s best season will be remembered as the 1973 campaign when Coach Don Davis’ kickers won the national crown. That team won 13 games.

Much of this year’s success came from goalkeeper John Stahl and forward Ted Hantak. Craig Westbrook, Joe Kortcamp and Mike Alcmon were also vital cogs.

Stahl, a transfer, tied a school record with nine saves. Hantak led the team in scoring and total points with 13 goals and five assists. He also was a transfer player this season. Hantak, a hard worker, had a flare for the dramatic and scored many key goals for the Rivermen.

Much of this year’s success came from goalkeeper John Stahl and forward Ted Hantak. Craig Westbrook, Joe Kortcamp and Mike Alcmon were also vital cogs.

Stahl, a transferee, tied a school record with nine saves. Hantak led the team in scoring and total points with 13 goals and five assists. He also was a transfer player this season. Hantak, a hard worker, had a flare for the dramatic and scored many key goals for the Rivermen.

Most of this year’s success came from goalkeeper John Stahl and forward Ted Hantak. Craig Westbrook, Joe Kortcamp and Mike Alcmon were also vital cogs.

Stahl, a transferrer, tied a school record with nine saves. Hantak led the team in scoring and total points with 13 goals and five assists. He also was a transfer player this season. Hantak, a hard worker, had a flare for the dramatic and scored many key goals for the Rivermen.

Most of this year’s success came from goalkeeper John Stahl and forward Ted Hantak. Craig Westbrook, Joe Kortcamp and Mike Alcmon were also vital cogs.

Stahl, a transferrer, tied a school record with nine saves. Hantak led the team in scoring and total points with 13 goals and five assists. He also was a transfer player this season. Hantak, a hard worker, had a flare for the dramatic and scored many key goals for the Rivermen.

Most of this year’s success came from goalkeeper John Stahl and forward Ted Hantak. Craig Westbrook, Joe Kortcamp and Mike Alcmon were also vital cogs.

Stahl, a transferrer, tied a school record with nine saves. Hantak led the team in scoring and total points with 13 goals and five assists. He also was a transfer player this season. Hantak, a hard worker, had a flare for the dramatic and scored many key goals for the Rivermen.

Most of this year’s success came from goalkeeper John Stahl and forward Ted Hantak. Craig Westbrook, Joe Kortcamp and Mike Alcmon were also vital cogs.

Stahl, a transferrer, tied a school record with nine saves. Hantak led the team in scoring and total points with 13 goals and five assists. He also was a transfer player this season. Hantak, a hard worker, had a flare for the dramatic and scored many key goals for the Rivermen.

Most of this year’s success came from goalkeeper John Stahl and forward Ted Hantak. Craig Westbrook, Joe Kortcamp and Mike Alcmon were also vital cogs.

Stahl, a transferrer, tied a school record with nine saves. Hantak led the team in scoring and total points with 13 goals and five assists. He also was a transfer player this season. Hantak, a hard worker, had a flare for the dramatic and scored many key goals for the Rivermen.

Most of this year’s success came from goalkeeper John Stahl and forward Ted Hantak. Craig Westbrook, Joe Kortcamp and Mike Alcmon were also vital cogs.

Stahl, a transferrer, tied a school record with nine saves. Hantak led the team in scoring and total points with 13 goals and five assists. He also was a transfer player this season. Hantak, a hard worker, had a flare for the dramatic and scored many key goals for the Rivermen.

Most of this year’s success came from goalkeeper John Stahl and forward Ted Hantak. Craig Westbrook, Joe Kortcamp and Mike Alcmon were also vital cogs.

Stahl, a transferrer, tied a school record with nine saves. Hantak led the team in scoring and total points with 13 goals and five assists. He also was a transfer player this season. Hantak, a hard worker, had a flare for the dramatic and scored many key goals for the Rivermen.
Says NCAA hierarchy murdered Rivermen season

Daniel A. Kimack          sports editor

"We pushed ourselves to the limit to get the best win we've ever had, and it boils down to penalty kicks. It takes away the meaning of the whole season." — Ted Hantak

O'Keefe

from page 18

season with six goals). He obviously made the right choice.
O'Keefe took a pass from Glenn Lurie to tie the score 1-1 at 65 minutes 8 seconds. Then, after Seattle goalkeeper Mike McAlone in the contest's shootout, O'Keefe fired the winning score past UMSL keeper John Stahl.

"I knew I would make it," O'Keefe said. "I just took all the pressure off of myself and looked at it (the penalty kick) like it was no big thing."

Said McCrath: "O'Keefe made me look good. Those were the biggest goals of his life and mine, too.

"I don't care if it doesn't score another goal. He can fall flat on his face if he wants to. Those were very important goals for us and I am very pleased."

O'Keefe, happy with his performance and shaking the cobwebs out of his head after being mobbed by his teammates, doesn't expect too many repeat heroes.

"I'm just glad I got my chance to play tonight. I pictured that winning goal before I hit it, but the game was won with that shot.

"I just hope we play well in the championship game."

O'Keefe scored the fourth consecutive shootout goal for Seattle. McAlone was the first of four to miss for the Rivermen.

One stop shopping

Sports Writers and Assistant Sports Editor Needed

"I'm really tired of writing all this stuff on my own — I need help!!!" — Dan Kimack, sports editor

Call 553-5174 now — operators are standing by. Not valid with any other offer or discount. Offer valid through May 14, 1985.

MAKE THE UNIVERSITY BOOKSTORE YOUR CHRISTMAS HEADQUARTERS

One stop shopping

Between classes or on your lunch hour

Pen & pencil sets, calculators, brief cases, backpacks/bookbags, class rings, stuffed animals, leading best sellers, University T-Shirts, sweatshirts, gym shorts, jackets -- Adult and Childrens sizes, and Much, Much More!

More Than a Place to Buy Textbooks

University Bookstore-- Lower Level University Center

If it pleases the jury, the only score worth recording for the future precedence is that of regulation and the two 10-minute overtime periods: 1-1.

Offered here is evidence from Seattle Coach Cliff McCrath: "Each team played well at times. But we've had the luck lately in shootout games. (Pointing to a Seattle fan.) Before all the shots were even taken, this guy came over to me and asked where we were going after the game to celebrate.

"The Game. Not the soccer match, but The Game — the shootout."

I pray the jury find the NCAA soccer mogul's and the fugitive shootout rule guilty of murder in the first degree. I pray the jury finds it in heart to end this killing and it boils down to penalty kicks. It takes away the meaning of the whole season.

Jay Leno

Frequent "Late Night With David Letterman" guest who sold out 12 straight shows at the "Funny Bone" comedy club at Westport Plaza.

Jay Leno appears at the Summit Lounge tomorrow, Friday, December 7, 1984: 8:00 & 10:15 p.m.

Tickets are $6 General Public, $4 UMSL Students, and $3 UMSL Faculty/Staff. Seating is limited. To assure availability, purchase tickets in advance at U. Center Information Desk. Presented by the University Program Board. Co-sponsored by T. Uphike Dolly, Pi Kappa Alpha, and Pi Sigma Epsilon.

Current Work/Study Opening

The Current is accepting applications for the position of Exceptional. This position is a College Work/Study position, only students who have qualified for College Work Study may through the Office of Student Financial Aid may apply. The primary duties of the exception are answering telephones, directing visitors to the right places, answering general questions, applying light typing may be required. Other wise, applicants can only need a pleasant personality and phone voice to fill this position.

If you are interested, you may pick up a Current Application Form at our offices, 1 Blue Metal Office Building, or the University Center Information Desk. Please fill out the form and drop it off at the University of Missouri-St. Louis, Business Office, Box 10, St. Louis, Missouri 63121. We will interview candidates for this position in January.