Officials investigate Kuefler incidents

Sharon Kubatzky

UMSL officials said that E. Thomas Kuefler Jr. has repaid $313.65 in funds apparently involving the parking lot and that Kuefler followed the two to their car on the parking lot and that Kuefler "was kneeling and poking" Barnes.

Attempt to reach Kuefler for comment were unsuccessful.

The second incident took place Friday morning in Benton Hall. An eyewitness who asked to remain anonymous said the chain was a rope with a lock on the end from his pocket.

"We heard a noise and went to the door and looked out, and when he saw the guy he swung the chain. The guy turned around and ran," the witness said. The witness said that Kuefler then went looking for the would-be pie thrower in the hallways, and the witness called university police.

"I did what I thought was right," the witness said. "It was just a crazy situation. I was here on campus." Kuefler denied the reports.

"The police are investigating, looking for the individual or individuals involved," Wallace said. "Something is being done about all of it. I don't think there are going to be any overnight solutions.

Wallace acknowledged that health officers at the university have the authority to require that a student get a psychiatric evaluation. "That's not to say that what's being done," he added.

He said the safety of other students is "very much under consideration" at this point.

Mass of student discipline are regarded as confidential, Wallace said; therefore he declined to say specifically what was being done in the Kuefler investigation.

More supplemental instruction planned

Chuck Wielhop

More supplemental instruction will be available for students taking classes this fall.

The Center for Academic Development will provide supplemental instruction leaders for classes in a wider range of disciplines than those tested last year.

Supplemental instruction leaders are upper level students chosen by the course instructor, who attend the class, do all of the assignments, and conduct study sessions for the class.

The students are paid by the Center for Academic Development.

According to Sallyanne Fitzgerald, acting assistant director of the Center for Academic Development, the money for the supplemental instruction is coming from funds that are not a part of the regular yearly budget of the center. "Each year, depending on the budget, we may not be able to run as many sessions," Fitzgerald said.

"The administration and faculty are very much behind the effort," Fitzgerald said. "The strong support from the faculty is due to their being able to choose the person who is the best supplemental instruction leader. It gives them confidence, if they believe they have the best person for the job."

Mainly lower level classes, which students are likely to take early in their academic careers, will have supplemental instruction available. The primary reason for the increased number of instruction leaders, according to Fitzgerald, is the result of a retention committee recommendation to the College of Arts and Sciences. She said the course where a large number of students received a D, F, or W in the past have been targeted for supplemental instruction. Supplemental instruction leaders are not to contact lower level students a better way of communication, according to the committee.

See "Instructors," page 3

Senate attendance irregular; students have worst record

Jack Grone

Attendance at UMSL Senate meetings is generally adequate, according to some senators, although most agree that it could be better. Members have suggested improvements for improvement. Opinions vary, however, whether attendance irregular and meetings should be recorded.

"Generally, attendance is better now than in past years," said Professor Edwin Fedder, chairman of the Senate's Physical Facilities and General Services committee.

"I have never been to a meeting where 100 percent of the senators were there, but I've always felt comfortable with the people of people that show up," said Linda Tate, Senate secretary.

During a meeting, the Senate may continue its business without a quorum present as long as one of its members does not call for a quorum, which usually consists of 57 out of the 112 senators.

However, in two cases this year, the Senate has had to adjourn before its regular business was concluded because a quorum was lacking when a senator called for one. At the Nov. 13 meeting, for example, one committee had yet to give its report when a quorum was called for. The Senate therefore scheduled a special meeting on Nov. 20 to finish its business.

Dr. Kathleen Haywood, Senate chair, cites several reasons why senators are absent from or may leave early from the meetings, which sometimes last over two hours.

"Many people feel that senators take attendance seriously," Haywood said. "But in a large number of cases, there are conflicts with classes. Some teachers may have to leave early in order to prepare for a class. There are also conflicts with illnesses and other meetings." Every year, each Senate determines whether or not it will keep attendance records, according to Tate. This year it has decided to do so, and attendance is mandatory. The procedure is as follows: Senators who are present at a meeting mark their names off a list. A record of senators not present is included with that meeting's minutes, which the secretary sends to all Senate members.

However, this list is not always accurate, according to Tate.

"It's been a little difficult to keep records because sometimes people forget to check their names off the list," Tate said. "I assume people are bright enough to mark off their names. If they don't, that's their problem.

Fedder agreed that being at the meetings is important, but argued that keeping a record of attendance is not absolutely necessary.

"Sometimes we have to remind ourselves of our responsibilities," Fedder said. "But what's necessary is for people to go. You don't need a record of who's there and who's not. I don't like being told I have to be somewhere when I'm responsible enough to know I have to go."

"If you are a senator, it is your responsibility to be at the meetings," Tate said. "It ticks me off when people don't show up."

Medals continuing to be awarded to winners of the 1985 MIAA Cross-Country Championship. A record of attendees at the MIAA Cross-Country Championship.

In this issue

Elections

Senate elections are this Monday in Tuesday. Read about the candidates in this week's Current.

Man of visions

Student Association President Greg Barnes has "many visions" for UMSL and for the entire world.

Disappointing loss

The Rivermen were eliminated from the NCAA playoffs in a loss to Central Missouri State last Thursday.

Page 15
Scholarships offered

The Financial Aid Office is accepting applications for the Lucile DeWitt-DeWitt Scholarship which assists needy young women in securing an education.

Applications are also being accepted for the Gene S. Bennett Scholarship which provides awards for students of good moral character from a community with a population of less than 10,000.

The deadline for these applications is April 1.

For information on these scholarships, call or visit the office of Student Financial Aid at 555-5506, 259 Woods Hall.

Self-development seminars to be held

Continuing Education-Extension will offer two workshops to help students focus on self-development and self-confidence.

The first of the workshops, "Building Self-Esteem in Adults," will be held on Saturday, March 30, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The seminar, which helps adults to develop a more positive self-image for more satisfying interpersonal relationships and career success, will be at the St. Louis County Library Headquarters, located at 1430 S. Lindbergh Blvd. Instructors Jamie Lewis and Priscella Timmorgen will help participants to focus on self-development and to overcome obstacles that can block self-esteem. The fee for this course is $25.

The second workshop, entitled "Assertiveness Training," will meet on Tuesdays from 7 to 9:30 p.m. during the month of April. Sharon Marches, director of the Discovery Program at UMSL, will help participants to express ideas, feelings, opinions and wants directly and honestly. This workshop, which will help participants to develop confidence through assertiveness, will be in the J.C. Penney Building on the UMSL campus. The fee for this course is $95.

For course information and registration call 553-5511.

Computer workshop for youngsters set

Continuing Education-Extension is offering an introduction to computers for young people.

The BASIC computer workshop is designed for those between the ages of nine and 15 years. Students will learn what microcomputers are, computer terminology, educational applications and beginning programming in BASIC.

The instructor for this course in UMSL microcomputing faculty member Allan Creas. The fee for this course is $65, and preregistration is required. For more information contact Mark March at 553-5961.

Nominees sought for UMSL Award

Nominations are being accepted for the 1985 "UMSL Awards." This award was established in 1980 as an effort to recognize and applaud selected students, faculty, staff, alumni and community members who have demonstrated outstanding service to UMSL in a voluntary position.

The "UMSL Award" will be presented at the chancellor's residence on May 1, 4:30 p.m., at a reception for all faculty and staff.

Deadline for nominations is Monday, April 1. All nominations, including a summary of duties performed and the basis for your nomination, should be sent to the UMSL Alumni Relations, 426 Woods Hall.

For more information, call 553-5542.

---

Pi Kappa Delta accepts UMSL bid for chapter

Pi Kappa Delta, the nation's oldest honorary fraternity for students competing intercollegiately in debate and speech contests, has accepted UMSL's bid for a chapter. The new chapter, to be called the Missouri Psi Chapter, will be installed at the Pi Kappa Delta National Convention to be held March 20-25 on the campus of the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville, Ark. At that convention, UMSL will also compete for the Pi Kappa Delta national title with approximately 100 other schools from across the nation.

The charter members of the UMSL fraternity will be Bryan Ford, president of the Forensics and Debate Club and Chapter, and Boreline Henning, John Hancock, Frank Nicelle and Kirk McManus. Tom Preston, the coach of the squad, will be the fraternity's sponsor. William Laubert, a transfer student from East Central College in Union, Mo., and Ed Heilig will be induced at the convention. Newcomers Shirley Ouelley, Curtis Whitman, and Dave Halloran will be initiated at the year's Psi Chapter banquet to be held in late April. "The National Council of the fraternity wishes good wishes and regards," said national secretary Tony Allinson of Cameron University in Oklahoma City to Preston.

The induction will culminate a successful semester for the UMSL Forensics and Debate Squad. The squad has thus far won eight awards since January, and the tournaments remaining, has eclipsed the school record of 20 awards in one year set in 1982-83 by bringing the 1984-85 total to 21. The performance has been highlighted by juniors Ford and Hancock. At a Cross Examination Debate Association debate team, they have thus far accumulated a combined record of 21-6, and have placed at three tournaments this semester. They placed third out of 24 schools at the Gorilla Debate Tournament held at Pittsburg State University in Pittsburg, Kan. Jan. 17-18, and placed third in the quarter-finals at the Sooner Invitational in Norman, Okla., the next weekend. At a tournament that was held at the University of Arkansas Feb. 8-9, they placed third out of 36 teams, bringing UMSL's national ranking to fifth among over 60 first-year CEDA programs. In addition, Ford was named fourth speaker out of 40 at the Sooner Invitational and second speaker out of 30 at the Missouri Association of Forensic Activities State Tournament held at Eureka, Mo., Feb. 22-23.

Laubert has highlighted UMSL's performance in individual events. He placed third in poetry interpretation and sixth in prose at Northeast Missouri State University Jan. 26. At Arkansas, he placed in semifinals in both prose and ampromptu speaking. And at the state tournament in Eureka, he won first place out of 16 contestants in prose, marking the second year in a row he had won a state title. Hancock also took the trophy for sixth place in extemporaneous speaking at States.

Remaining tournaments include Pi Kappa Delta nationals in Fayetteville, a one-day tournament at Illinois State University March 30, CEDA nationals at the University of Nevada-Reno April 5-5, and the National Forensic Association Individual Events National Tournament to be held at Marshall University at Huntington, W.Va. April 26-28. "We have put in a lot of work this semester," Preston said, "but we have a lot more to do before the summer."

---

Police seek warrant for Benton Hall robber

UMSL police are seeking warrants against a man accused of robbing a student in Benton Hall Feb. 13.

Police chief William Karabas said the victim identified the man in a photo lineup. The suspect is a black male, 28, who Karabas said was asked to attend several other robberies in the city.

"He's not a student," Karabas said. "He has an extensive police record."

Karabas said the suspect was parole on a previous crime.

The robbery occurred in a study lounge in Benton Hall. The suspect robbed the student at knife point. The student's wallet with a small amount of cash and credit cards. The student was not injured.
Elections for the University Senate will take place Monday and Tuesday, March 11 and 12, each day from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and again from 5 to 7 p.m.

Any student may vote by showing a validated university ID card. Polling places will be located in the University Center lobby, in the Social Sciences and Business Building and on the South campus.

A town hall "Meet the Candidates" forum will be held tomorrow at noon in the University Center lounge. Two candidates who study primarily on the South campus will also be available in the lounge on that campus at noon.

Forty-one students have filed for 25 seats in the Senate. Following are excerpts from each candidate's application.

John J. Mabre - Mabre is president of the UMSL Personal Computer Users Group. "I believe that my advice and experience at the UMSL campus will help in the Senate," he says. Barbee has completed 61 hours here.

Brenda Barron - Barron has served as administrative assist­ant, community service coordinator, and member of the faculty executive committee. "I believe that my advice and experience at the UMSL campus will help in the Senate," she says. Barron has completed 126 hours here.

Pascal Bercker - Bercker is currently a member of the Senate. "My political school is instrumental to my development as a leader. I believe that my advice and experience at the UMSL campus will help in the Senate," he says. Bercker has completed 60 plus hours here.

Tom Bommarito Jr. - Bommarito currently serves as vice president of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity. He is chairman of South Campus activities. UMSL Honor Council, Student Senate, and campus wide organizations and activities on and off campus. "All citizens are concerned with student affairs," he says. Bommarito has completed 80 plus hours here.

Kim Fishman - Fishman has completed 43 hours here. "I believe that my advice and experience at the UMSL campus will help in the Senate," he says. Fishman has completed 43 hours here.

Bennett Fox - For assistant development director of KVMM and promotion manager for the Student Recruitment Office. "I believe that my advice and experience at the UMSL campus will help in the Senate," he says. Fox has completed 99 hours here.

Felicia Fritts - Fritts says she had that open mind and original ideas to the University Senate. "I believe that my advice and experience at the UMSL campus will help in the Senate," she says. Fritts has completed 12 hours here.

Matthew C. Fritts - Fritts says he had that open mind and original ideas to the University Senate. "I believe that my advice and experience at the UMSL campus will help in the Senate," he says. Fritts has completed 12 hours here.

Mary K. Groshosel - Groshose has completed 15 hours at UMSL.

John Ray Hancock - Hancock says he had that open mind and original ideas to the University Senate. "I believe that my advice and experience at the UMSL campus will help in the Senate," he says. Hancock has completed 51 hours here.

Susan Allisa Fenster - Fenster is a member of the Student Assembly and Zeta Tau Alpha. She has completed 12 hours here.

Brenda Barron - Barron has completed 31 hours here.

Paul Casinatis - Casinatis has completed 69 hours here.

Maria R. Durst - Durst says she had that open mind and original ideas to the University Senate. "I believe that my advice and experience at the UMSL campus will help in the Senate," she says. Durst has completed 105 hours here.

Susan Allisa Fenster - Fenster is a member of the Student Assembly and Zeta Tau Alpha. She has completed 12 hours here.

Kim Fishman - Fishman has completed 43 hours here. "I believe that my advice and experience at the UMSL campus will help in the Senate," he says. Fishman has completed 43 hours here.

Bennett Fox - Fox is assistant development director of KVMM and promotion manager for the Student Recruitment Office. "I believe that my advice and experience at the UMSL campus will help in the Senate," he says. Fox has completed 99 hours here.

Michael Katch - Katch has completed about 165 hours here.

Edward David Kennedy - Kennedy says he had that open mind and original ideas to the University Senate. "I believe that my advice and experience at the UMSL campus will help in the Senate," he says. Kennedy has completed 165 hours here.

Barbara A. Mathieu - Mathieu says she had that open mind and original ideas to the University Senate. "I believe that my advice and experience at the UMSL campus will help in the Senate," she says. Mathieu has completed "50 to 60" hours here.

Kenneth A. Mayer - Mayer is president of the College Republicans and a member of the Student Association. "I want to bring more involvement and I have concerns that I wish to express," he says. Mayer has completed 87 hours here.

Timothy A. Moreland - Moreland is a member of the Pierre Laclede Honors Program and is the science-representative on the Honors Committee. "I am very interested in learning and I have a lot of experience," he says. Moreland has completed 80 hours here.

Susan A. Kramer - Kramer has completed 59 hours here.
Dear Editor:

In reference to Daniel A. Kimack (Music)’s Sports Editor, concerning the editing of "Worst and Best" aspects of UMSL Basketball.

The Budweiser Pep Band members feel that comments of "worst musicians," "worst song," and "best musicians," directed at our organizational standards, are inappropriate. The criticism of this nature does nothing but undermine the spirit of the entire basketball fan group. Our suggestion is that both Grey-Eagle and the UMSL sports department, Caratosky Athletics, work to promote enthusiasm and attendance at the games.

Sincerely,

Daniel A. Kimack Sports Editor

Tired of nonsense

Dear Editor:

During the recent months Tom Kuefler has been allowed to wreak havoc in the editorial section of the Current. Though sometimes his letters have been outrageously comical, they all remain consistently unprofessional and vitriolic. He has demonstrated himself to be a disgrace to the office of Student Senate and has tarnished the previously associated name of that of a UM Curator Scholar. However, he is not the reason why we have written.

As a newspaper, the Current has a responsibility to represent the views of readers, majority and minority alike. As a university, it has an ethical responsibility to uphold both academic and social virtue as defined by its culture and community. Anything that would hinder the paper from fulfilling these obligations would act as an infringement upon the paper’s professional integrity and responsibility.

By publishing Kuefler’s initial letters, the paper failed in its obligation to represent the minority consensus. However, by continuing to publish his letters, it has crippled its academic and social responsibility to the extent that it will no longer be able to fulfill a community benefit. Why do I say this?

Dear Editor:

We have followed with increasing, anger and anguish the publication of E. Tom Kuefler’s letters. We sincerely believe that the Current staff has not used any discretion in printing his last tasteless and illigal letter.

We despise Kuefler’s groundless personal attacks on student and Mushaben’s job based on hearsay and innuendo. As students of Dr. Mushaben’s classes, we find her to be one of the most competent professors at this university. As a proponent of Political Science, it is Dr. Mushaben’s job to expose students to ideas that may be foreign to our beliefs. To call this “the corruption of a young kid” as Kuefler does, is to ignore the fact that education provides us with a series of choices, not doctrines to which we must adhere.

The freedom that we enjoy in this country, the freedom that allows us to retain our freedom and express our opinions, is a gift of a group of radicals fighting injustice over 200 years ago. The freedom to think for ourselves and express our opinions without retribution is one of the tenets upon which our country was founded. If thinking for oneself is ‘descendants of Kuefler’ (as E. Tom Kuefler seems to feel), we are definitely glad to be infected.

(As a matter of information I, Kathy Grossheim, was Kuefler for the Student Senate as an alternative to E. Tom Kuefler.)

Kathy Grossheim
Judy Copeland

Dear Editor:

It is in reference to Daniel A. Kimek, rear vs. much of the student body, and now faculty, has been waged long enough. While Tom’s letters initially sparked only heated arguments, those sparks have now spread far.

I am asking you, the Current, to stop fan

Kuefler a columnist?

Dear Editor:

Concerning the latest letter from everyone’s favorite campus martyr: It seems to me that Kuefler is quite the comic book hero in his never-ending struggle against untruth and free thinking. He never ceases to pass judgement upon others with ideas different from his own.

He doesn’t hesitate to assign labels to others as “burnouts” or “sleazy rockers” (note the spelling of sleazy, Tom. Remember, you are a Classics Scholar…) without defining the terms. And yet he expects to be taken seriously.

I suppose that Mr. Kuefler would attach the stereotype of “liberal” to me, if he knew me, and might consider me an evil influence on society due to my personal beliefs, and the fact that my work involves independently of self-appointed dictators of moral and social values, but it would only amuse me more.

I find myself reading the Current every time it comes out now, for the inevitable latest from Mr. Kuefler. Perhaps, if more people feel this way, the Current staff could consider making him a regular columnist, just to improve his argumentation.

Mark Bagley.

Glad to be infected

Dear Editor:

We have followed with increased, anger and anguish the publication of E. Tom Kuefler’s letters. We sincerely believe that the Current staff has not used any discretion in printing his last tasteless and illigal letter.

We despise Kuefler’s groundless personal attacks on student and Mushaben’s job based on hearsay and innuendo. As students of Dr. Mushaben’s classes, we find her to be one of the most competent professors at this university. As a proponent of Political Science, it is Dr. Mushaben’s job to expose students to ideas that may be foreign to our beliefs. To call this “the corruption of a young kid” as Kuefler does, is to ignore the fact that education provides us with a series of choices, not doctrines to which we must adhere.

The freedom that we enjoy in this country, the freedom that allows us to retain our freedom and express our opinions, is a gift of a group of radicals fighting injustice over 200 years ago. The freedom to think for ourselves and express our opinions without retribution is one of the tenets upon which our country was founded. If thinking for oneself is ‘descendants of Kuefler’ (as E. Tom Kuefler seems to feel), we are definitely glad to be infected.

(As a matter of information I, Kathy Grossheim, was Kuefler for the Student Senate as an alternative to E. Tom Kuefler.)

Kathy Grossheim
Judy Copeland

Fire is spreading

Dear Editor:

I am asking you, the Current, to stop fan

The Current welcomes all letters to the editor. The writer’s student number is required with the letter. Non-students also must sign their letter, and include the phone number. Letters should be no more than two printed pages in length.

No unsigned letters will be published. Names for published letters will be withheld upon request. Letters with the writer’s name in pub, will be run with the address number.

Responsibility for letters to the editor belongs to the individual writer. The Current is not responsible for correspondence that may be offensive or that do not adhere to the policies of the Current. Letters that do not adhere to the published guidelines will not be published.

Letters should be typed and submitted to the editor, 1 Blue Metal Bike Building, or the University Center Information Center. They may be mailed to Let­ ters to the Editor, Current, 1 Blue Metal Bike Building, Natural Bridge Building, St. Louis, Mo. 63121.
Dear Editor:

The recent letter to the Kuefler Chronicles, Chapter (?) (the chronicles have their own ambiguity) titled "straightening of the record," by E.T. Jr., and I find only disarray and disdain within my own mind. The chaos of a wide range of letters, editorial responses, and opinions that E.T. Jr. had published was presented in a beauty that prints an entirely different picture of the record of E.T., the paranoid and egoist who seems oblivious of the wondrous beauty of the savior of the free world. Any claims made here or there, by this simplistic student of circumstances and Kuefler's own words as support of their content. I am certainly certain of the rest of the campus knows of these facts, as Kuefler has made a fool of himself publicly several times. It is unfathomable that the obvious nature of my elocution leaves me little room for compassion, and I can only suggest that Kuefler has worn blinders for so long that the rest of the campus has some type of headless misanthrope.

Tom Kuefler does seem simply blind to the views of others, and there even seems to be a touch of megalomania in his public appearances, which has already been ignored for the greater achievements, which already have been achieved by the students. Nevertheless, Kuefler would learn that pride prevails for attention while humility speaks for itself. It is only in actuality that Kuefler's thoughts and ideas are on the same level as a private citizen.

I think control by surveillance is generally accepted as a symptom of totalitarianism, which I assume is what he alludes to by his reference to "communist ideas," not a free society. Would moralists defend his ideas or would they include an enlightened knowledge of our world enabling the pursuit of responsible and informed action of his own? I am certain that he find morality in the security of ignorance? Can he plainly think of his teaching credentialed with his most basic idea and "anti" as a "anti" and "communist" ideas be able to explain: defend, or even effectively participate in their own political culture, much less make moral decisions.

Dear Editor:

Thanks to Mr. Kuefler, the Feb. 28 edition of the Current once more provided the whole campus with extraordinary opinions and backbiting comments. I enjoy reading about Mr. Kuefler's case because of the absurdity of the kind of life. Especially what our misunderstood fellow student had to say on pages 4 and 5 in the last Current. I lament the ignorance that Mr. Kuefler seems to be blinding himself with comments that are made in his demonstrations in West Germany. According to his view, "thousands of clear cut rumors and muskets are the participants, promoting revolution and communist aggression in that country."

It is only in the face demonstrations and anti-nuclear power marches are clear signs of presently widespread public concern, so most Germs today are paranoid about the Soviet and U.S. arms-build up and their country where the military forces of the Allied powers are still present as a reminder of the second World War. Many other serious problems face the Federal Republic nowadays such as the need for nuclear power plants to meet the increasing demand for energy along with far-reaching economic difficulties that dramatically the already existing social divisions and therefore cause to compromise the security of ignorance? Can they think of his most basic idea and "anti" and "communist" ideas be able to explain: defend, or even effectively participate in their own political culture, much less make moral decisions.

Vice Chancellor MacLean elected to propose a decrease in the student portion of the activity fee. Net savings to the students: approximately $67,000, more than 86 percent.

Similarly, the vice chancellor's office proposed no increase in the student services portion of the fee, which covers one-time purchases of equipment and capital improvements for student organizations.

On both of these portions of the student activity fee, everyone, including the vice chancellor's office to the Board of Curators has allowed that decisions should be based on "substantial student input," and the sampling of student input that the Student Association leadership has generated has beenheed.

Unfortunately, there are two other portions of the activity fee, which do not go directly to student groups and for which the vice chancellor's office is swatting (at this point) to concede to sovereignty of student opinion. One goes to support the University Center, and the other, athletics. These are the two portions of the fee that are the subject of substantial discussion and some heated argument in the Senate Student Association.

It was apparent to me then, as it is now, that these increases were an inevitable consequence of an unfair and misguided policy of the Central Administration in Columbia (endorsed by the Board of Curators) that classifies both the U. Center and the athletic program as "auxiliary enterprises" rather than as part of the university proper. This means that they are supported by the students, and not by charges rent and other forms of plant, maintenance and other operating costs that the general operating budget would ordinarily cover. Translated into English, this means that students are required once to buy the U. Center and the Mark Twain Dining Hall. And again to pay rent on buildings they already own.

See "Barnes," page 6

Dear Editor:

In response to E. Tom Kuefler, Jr. 's letter to the editor in the Feb. 28 "Current" I question his alleged support of law, order, and morality. What does Mr. Kuefler intend to uphold by use of words in his most recent editorial? For example, does he wish to restate the law of the United States Constitution and Bill of Rights which guarantee the rights of free speech, a pending assembly, or does he advocate the law of fear from his state assembly? I believe that he does condemn FBI surveillance of a professor? Does Mr. Kuefler believe the "free world" should tolerate such activity fees instead of "anti" and "communist" ideas, not a free society. Would moralists defend his ideas or would they include an enlightened knowledge of our world enabling the pursuit of responsible and informed action of his own? I am certain that he find morality in the security of ignorance?

Can he plainly think of his teaching credentialed with his most basic idea and "anti" and "communist" ideas be able to explain: defend, or even effectively participate in their own political culture, much less make moral decisions.

Dear Editor:

I was prompted not to enter the fray, but Mr. Kuefler has finally reached a point that I feel warrants a response. His attack on Dr. Joyce Mushaben would be ridiculous, if it were not so malicious. On the most basic level, Mr. Kuefler seems to be operating a bit in "the dark ages" himself. I don't know what Dr. Mushaben was contemporary doing in the late 1960s, but my guess was that it was similar to how I was spending my days — trudging through a high school curriculum that would enable me to attend college.

I am also somewhat startled that Mr. Kuefler has empowered Dr. Mushaben to the extent of making her "a threat to the free world." It is no wonder that Mr. Kuefler envisions his student as a "headless misanthrope.

Gerald (Gerry) Robe West Germany

Chairman

Dear Editor:

"Far West" has given the reference to Professor Mushaben I would suspect "corrupting" would be better understood as "controversial," and I would be a danger equally as grave as the freedom state surveillance.

Mr. Kuefler's attacks of Professor Mushaben's academic background, research and teaching methods display a solution of the freedom of expression. The openness and controversy necessary for vigorous intellectual growth or the survival of the society. Neither the pursuit of knowledge (academics) or freedom can be seen as either "liberal" or "conservative thought. Mr. Kuefler has confused Professor Mushaben's credentials in a political sense with the ideological disagreements with what she said, but which is the only question we value is Mr. Kuefler's conception of law, order, academics, morality and decency (a sweeping collection of vague concepts) would cripple the academic freedom and ultimately the quality of education available at UMSL.

Sincerely,

S.R. Jourdan

P.S. "Far West" contains a mirror that's large enough. Dear Editor:

"Far West" has given the reference to Professor Mushaben I would suspect "corrupting" would be better understood as "controversial," and I would be a danger equally as grave as the freedom state surveillance.

Mr. Kuefler's attacks of Professor Mushaben's academic background, research and teaching methods display an illusion of the freedom of expression. The openness and controversy necessary for vigorous intellectual growth or the survival of the society. Neither the pursuit of knowledge (academics) or freedom can be seen as either "liberal" or "conservative thought. Mr. Kuefler has confused Professor Mushaben's credentials in a political sense with the ideological disagreements with what she said, but which is the only question we value is Mr. Kuefler's conception of law, order, academics, morality and decency (a sweeping collection of vague concepts) would cripple the academic freedom and ultimately the quality of education available at UMSL.

Sincerely,

S.R. Jourdan

P.S. "Far West" contains a mirror that's large enough.

Amoco Outstanding Teaching Awards For Excellence In Undergraduate Teaching

Nomination forms and eligibility criteria are available at the University Center information desk and the circulation desks of Library and The Jefferson Library and The Education Library

Deadline: Monday, April 1, 1985
Rachel Johnson

Barack

Cathy Burack

Barnes

Russell

implied inanity as a "thief of words." As a matter of fact, he'll be working on a novel of accounting sleight of hand to extract additional money from students.

I made that point rather forcefully at the student associations with which I was acquainted, and the students and I were very much interested in under current US policies. The point is, Student Associations with their student viewpoint on all pro pose, who have supplied the answers to the questions you say students want answered. I hope that in the future, this survey can produce much more substance for students as having an appetite for, as your editorial would suggest.

If the Orient lacks the news staff to do so, might I suggest that they look into this a few issues after the final issue.

We are presently seeking alter ative viewpoints, and the students should be expected to be even more involved. In any event, there should be wide, wide, wide exposure. In this 1965, only 10 percent of all women completed college and in 1979 the figure jumped 14.6 percent; the figures will probably decline overall in the next few years due to the financial aid cuts.

UMSL is no better or worse in dealing with sexual discrimination than other schools." Barack said. "The faculty on campus need to realize that there are women, minorities and adults in student's classes and should make their lectures more interesting, not less.

Burack said there have been cases of sexual harassment on campus. It's important to report it when it occurs, because a professor can be sanctioned with behavior semester and the same behavior the next semester and no one will know," she said. Victims of sexual harassment on campus may report it to the Women's Center.

women earned 63.9 percent of all earnings. In 1978, only 10.0 percent of all working women earned less than $49 per week, compared with 23.7 percent in 1965.

UMSL will kick off the confer ence with a concert by Judy Gorman-Jacobson on Friday, April 12, at 8 p.m. in the Summit Lounge. The concert is free.

Other conference sessions will be held in Busch Center at Saint Louis University on April 13. For more information, contact Burack at the Women's Center, 107A Benton Hall, or call 555-5555.

The center also offers short counseling workshops on women's issues and sexual harassment counseling services for students.

Barnes is man of visions

Lee Myrick
reporter

Greg Barnes is a man of vision. As the president of the UMSL Student Association, he doesn't have just one vision, but many. Barnes believes in man's limitless potential to improve himself, and he believes that people of all races can live and work beside each other as friends. And Barnes has applied those beliefs to his work here at UMSL.

Barnes first came to St. Louis in 1978. His father is a career Air Force officer, and he spent most of his early life moving from one state to the next. But after attending college in California and then graduating from Michigan State University in 1980, he came here and decided to enroll at UMSL, where he is majoring in mathematics and speech communication.

Barnes has been active in student government for almost his entire career here. He ran for a chair on the Student Assembly immediately and was elected. He left the Assembly after one year, becoming disenchanted with what he then thought was kiddie politics. He decided to run for president a year later when the national non-conformist club budget was cut by 50 percent. Barnes had been a part of the debate club in Michigan and valued its position at a university, and he believed that every person must do in order to lead a full life be committed himself to something larger than himself. He lost the election but committed himself to UMSL and began working as a student advocate.

Barnes has been busy in UMSL politics ever since. In April 1984, he again ran for the office of chair and was elected.

Barnes no longer thinks university government is just play politics. He has a sophisticated political philosophy that is guided by moral concerns, and he doesn't believe in shuffling tough issues under the rug.

"Political change is the most difficult thing to do in this world," said Barnes. "We're conditioned to behave and accept certain things according to where we were raised. It's just reflex. We're 'noble dogs' as Plato said. We need to change that conditioning, but few have the patience. Those who do usually end up suffering for it."

Barnes describes himself as shy, but his accomplishments hardly sound like the work of a retiring type. He has acted in six plays produced here at UMSL, worked as a teaching assistant in the Center for Academic Development mush writ, worked for the Current, worked at the library circulation desk, and formed UMSL Students for Action.

He said his work in the theater has helped him overcome his shyness.

"When I auditioned for my first show," Barnes said, "there were 13 parts and only 12 people showed up. They had to take me."

He explained that acting is a way for him to vent frustration, and with his busy schedule, he probably has a lot of steam to blow. As an example, Barnes recently had his 27th birthday, and on that day, he attended an assembly, a technical meeting of the theater, and a rehearsal for the latest production, William Saroyan's "The Time of Your Life.

Barnes said that this is a big year for him.

"Mom said that she would make a birthday cake for me next week if I think I can make it home at all," he added.

Barnes explained that beginning toset up most of his time, sports were a big part of his life. He said he was a big fan of whatever sport was in season.

"I used to love college basketball," he said. "But now I like to watch the Lakers.

But if you talk to Barnes for very long, you'll find that there is one passion that supersedes all others for him, even Magic Johnson and the Lakers. Just ask him what he wants to do after he graduates.

"I want to promote the advancement of human rights, perhaps work with Amnesty International," he said.

Barnes calls himself neither a radical nor conservative, because he has opinions that apply to both sides of an issue. He said that extremists on either side always tend to overlook someone.

BARNES VISION QUEST: Greg Barnes, president of the Student Association, has committed himself to the betterment of the UMSL campus and following up on student concerns.

"People on one side only care about one side," he said. "I think oppression is oppression no matter who is doing it to you. I feel for political prisoners, particularly dissenters, people who are treated hideously just for having a conscience in a country that doesn't have a conscience in its leadership."

Barnes said that there are two ways to make changes in a society — from outside, like Amnesty International, and from inside the legislative process. He said the latter is the reason he wants to run for public office.

He said that within the legislature, one can affect millions of lives with the stroke of a pen. But he said that he probably has a difficult time coping with the tradeoff between conscience and everyday process.

"I'm fascinated with thinking what would have happened if leaders like Gandhi and King would have run for public office," he said. "But of course, they had a bigger effect than if they would have been in office. But today you have to get involved with the system. I will work within the system as long as I can. In this job, I can actually do something."

But he said that some people get seduced by the system and that if he can't work within the system, he'll put pressure on it through organizations like Amnesty International. Barnes's political philosophy is modeled after his two great heroes, Mahatma Gandhi and Martin Luther King.

"I don't believe in violence," he said. "I think that lobbying has a great effect. For instance, I think some of the groups that Ralph Nader has formed have saved thousands of lives. We can use the openness of our society to outweigh what's going on in the legislature.

"You might not always agree with Barnes, his beliefs command respect because they're well thought through. He hasn't merely jumped on one party bandwagon and ridden it for better or worse. And his enthusiasm is refreshing in a generation that appears pathetically unaware of the political scene.

Barnes said that the 1960s had a major influence on him. "They had a great magnem for me," he said. "I really thought that things were changing forever. But I had no illusions about communism."

Barnes has a very harsh view of the Soviet Union. Some people might say his pro-Reagan, pro-Israel sentiments don't coincide with his other human-rights beliefs, but Barnes doesn't see that problem.

"I'm not against right-wing aggression," he said. "I would go as far as Reagan in calling the Soviet Union the evil empire. Someone needs to address the authorities who are committing mayhem in Afghanistan and Eastern Europe.

"I think the ideal situation would be the American ideal where people would be better off economically and politically. That's what I
Organizations assist in development of necessary skills

Steven Lieberman

Many students are missing out on the informal opportunities for professional development here at UMSL. Utilizing opportunities made available by our business fraternities, organizations and clubs can greatly assist in the development of skills necessary to bridge the gap between college and the real world.

Madeline Greub, president of the Delta Sigma Pi, professional business fraternity, feels the fraternity can offer a student leadership training. "We are structured like an ideal company, with separate functional departments, working towards the same goal," Greub said. Delta Sigma Pi, one of the largest international professional fraternities, has about 31 members and 18 pledges this semester. Since Delta Sigma Pi is a professional fraternity, a prospective student member has to must have had a B average and become acquainted with the history of the fraternity via a pledge education period. This period, during which there is no housing, strengthens the fraternity members a chance to evaluate the pledges.

"We are also unique in that we consist only of a variety of business majors which makes for a well-rounded outlook on the "big picture" of business," Greub said. Another unique feature of Delta Sigma Pi is its professional program. The fraternity raises money from all fields in business from the business community. Besides the professional program, Delta Sigma Pi's members have a "life" outside the fraternity. Members run fund-raisers and sponsor community service programs.

The two accounting organizations on campus are the Beta Alpha Psi accounting fraternity and the Accounting Club, both coed. The main distinction is that Beta Alpha Psi is strictly a fraternity with membership available only to accounting majors, while the Accounting Club is open to non-accounting majors. Prospective Beta Alpha Psi members are also invited to join and must meet certain requirements to be accepted.

Both accounting organizations presently have about 60 members. Jean Lafond, Beta Alpha Psi president, is proud of the fraternity's honorary status and stresses the main purpose: professionalism. When asked why Beta Alpha Psi would benefit a student, Lafond said, "It's a great asset to be a member of our fraternity because of the exposure to area accounting firms and the development of increased job opportunities." This exposure is also helpful in developing communication skills which are a necessity in the real business setting.

Lafond also emphasized their fund-raisers and community service activities which include preparing tax returns for the elderly and the traditional Beta Alpha Psi book pool. The fraternity also has social events where students can become better acquainted. Another important advantage of belonging to the fraternity is help from an alumnus towards a job opportunity.

While the major focus of Beta Alpha Psi is on the public sector in accounting, the Accounting Club serves itself into both the public and private sectors. Dale Brunk, past president of the Accounting Club and now an auditor assistant at Peat Marwick, a big accounting firm, said that the club helped him to get the job. "Being an officer of the Accounting Club gave me the exposure needed to secure a job in the competitive market place. Attending seminars featuring big-fight speakers also gave me a better perspective on what area of accounting was really for me," Brunk said.

The president of the Accounting Club this semester, John Sneed, agreed with Brooks. When asked how the club would benefit a prospective member, Sneed said, "Our club is an outlet where freshmen, who have not experienced any accounting course yet, can gain some insight on what accounting is all about. This helps them decide if accounting is really something they want to pursue." The Accounting Club tackles current issues like the change in the tax laws, which takes its toll on every facet of the business world.

As an incentive to attend meetings, members are offered certificates. One of the toughest obstacles for the Accounting Club is that of planning speakers who appeal to everyone. "The more that students know about business organizations, the better off they'll be and the better off UMSL will be," Sneed said.

Pi Sigma Epsilon stands for professional sales executives and is the national coed sales and marketing fraternity at UMSL. G. Harold Whittaker, president of the UMSL chapter, said that the fraternity can offer a student a variety of skills which are a necessity in the competitive market place. Attending workshops featuring big-name speakers also aid students in developing the skills necessary to bridge the gap between college and the real world.

For instance, in the fall semester, The Blizzard, the club's magazine, will be "mpot," the non-conformist club, see "Organizations," page 14.
Barnes

from page 7
admire about Reagan. He’s not all Hollywood. It’s a genuine conviction. He said that we’re going to educate the world to American policy. It’s a major step, but people want the world to step forward. It’s not like Carter’s idea of adapting to the limits—that’s a lot of crap. There’s a whole infinite challenging universe out there. There are all kinds of frontiers to tackle, all kinds of ways to improve the world. I hate to see people waste their lives worrying about what the latest thing to worry about is. In order to live a full life, you have to commit yourself to something larger than yourself.”

This is what Barnes wants to do in the political arena. He said that he wants to put people in touch with their potential and get the wheels turning so that people with talent can use it.

Right now Barnes is using his talent to try and change the apartheid government of South Africa. He feels that the divestiture of university funds is a key issue facing the campus today. He said that people underestimate the legacy of racism in this country.

“Gandhi called himself a practical idealist. People who call themselves realists believe the good Lord is going to wave his magic wand one day and things like apartheid will disappear. This isn’t going to happen. The only way to prevent a bloodbath is to refuse to cooperate with the individuals and institutions that promote oppression.

“Little things like divestiture can topple the whole works. This is realistic, not pie-in-the-sky idealism. We were an apartheid government a hundred years ago, but change was accomplished through work on a moral plane.”

Barnes says that some people think that the UMSL campus is completely apathetic, but because of its work for divestiture of funds from South Africa, the merger proposal, other UM campuses think that UMSL is a hotbed of activism. He said that it shows what some committed people can do, and he feels that they have the potential to influence events.

“The real test of the system is to see how it functions when it’s right. It’s been satisfying to see our generation prove that we’re not the most apathetic, unaware generation in the history of this country.”

Barnes believes that racial interaction poses the biggest problem for UMSL students today. He said that people underestimate the legacy of racism in this country.

“The extent of damage to the psyche of some people is horrible,” he said. “That kind of distrust won’t stop until we set down together and talk. The chancellor and some others don’t think this is possible. They seem to think that the blacks are unapproachable. UMSL is not seeing the need of blacks in the community, and we’ve got to stop shuffling it under the rug. One of my visions is to see a task force of white leaders attending an Associated Black Colleges meeting and vice versa. I’d love to see both sides integrated. I think they’re open to that. We work together in here on political issues every day. Why can’t they do it there too?”

Barnes said that the race problem is not simple one, that it contaminates everything else and every issue that he deals with has a racial dimension. He said that until the problem is addressed, this campus can’t progress. “You can argue about what level of affirmative action is appropriate, but only one percent of our faculty is black and 15 percent of the study body is black,” he explained. “If the governing body were committed, it could put together a package of bills that would pass the black legislature. We could be advancing everyone instead of holding everyone back, but it takes some far-sighted leadership.”

Barnes said that he is infinitely more optimistic about UMSL’s future than he was when he came here. He said that the campus is beginning to lose its money in the long run. “People saw that demonstrations and the board of curators and it also losing its special place in the UM system image. He said that the campus needs imagination in dealing with its problems and that it needs to cultivate areas of excellence within the larger scheme of things.

“We need to develop our potential, to be bold,” he said. “That’s one thing we’ve learned from the CBHE. People like the campus, who are conservative by nature, saw that it served its purpose.”

Barnes said that though UMSL has a reputation as a small campus, it doesn’t take that much to reach maximum potential. “If you have students who need to get involved and that the 70 or 80 students who really run the campus are like a small community. He emphasized that it’s not what they do but the opportunities that are available. He said that he had often had meetings with other opportunities here also, at the newspaper, at the radio station, at the cable television station, and that students can have an interesting time here as anywhere else if they just get involved.

“The first two years here were the weakest of my life,” he said. “But my last two have been the best.”

Barnes credits the change to his involvement in student government, and he seems to believe the lessons that one can learn from leaders like Gandhi and King than he does in anything else.

“Just because you’re alive, you don’t have to be educated,” he said. “We were an apartheid government in these parts for years. It’s genuine policy. It’s a major step, but you had to be disciplined in your use of it. But how many universities teach Gandhi? I majored in political philosophy, and I didn’t read one word of his. The only way you have progress is to apply the principles of religion to politics. I think we are paying a great price for our ignorance in this country. Gandhi was the inspiration behind King. We had always believed that the teachings of Jesus could only be applied to the individuals and not institutions before he read Gandhi.”

Barnes philosophy works in the smaller arena of the university as well as the global one. "If you could just go the final way to find the good in people rather than harp on the little things," he said. "There’s a good side to everybody. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the global one. People should read Gandhi. They should read King. If someone as shy as myself could become president of the university as well as the Friday

- The UMSL Opera Workshop will present two one-act operas today and tomorrow at 6 p.m. in the Benton Hall Theatre — see this week's opera section for further details.
- As part of its Friday night Lenten series, the UMSL Newman House will present a lecture on Lenten themes at 7:30 p.m. The Newman House is the UMSL catholic student center, and is located at 8200 Natural Bridge Road.
- The UMSL Chess Club will meet at 1 p.m. in Room 72 J.C. Penney Building.
- The University Program Board presents "No Small Affair" at 7:30 and 10 p.m. in Room 101 Stader Hall. Admission is $1 with a valid UMSL ID and $1.00 for general admission.

Saturday

- The University Program continues this week's film series with "No Small Affair" — see Friday for details.
- The "Saturday Morning Health Talks" series, being sponsored by the UMSL Wellness Network, presents a discussion on "Financial Planning" at 10 a.m. in Room 218 Mark Twain Building. This week's speaker will be Elke Koch, a financial specialist with Mercantile Trust Co. Time will be given for personal questions and answers regarding this week's subject.

Sunday

- "Creative Aging" airs on KW MU (FM 91) every Sunday from 7 to 8 p.m.
- The retirees staff takes a look at "Africa's Past and Present" with John Works, professor of history. Works worked in Africa for seven years teaching and doing research and speaks three African languages. He has been a professor at UMSL since 1977.
- A Student Association Assembly Meeting will be held at 2:30 p.m. in Room 229 J.C. Penney Building.

Monday

- University Senate elections will be held today and tomorrow from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Voting booths will be located in the UMSL Wellness Center Lobby, the Social Science and Business Building, and "The Hub" at the Student Center.
- A "Monday Colloquium" on "Necessary Evil: Political and Economic Aspects of West German Arms Transfers" will be held at 1:30 p.m. in the McDonnell Conference Room, 331 SSB. This week's speaker will be Frederic S. Pearson of the political science department.
- Men's baseball vs. McKendree College at 1 p.m. on the Mark Twain Field. Call 553-5660 for information.
- An intensive "Leadership Training for Women" workshop will be held today from 1 to 5 p.m. in Room 427 SSB. This workshop will focus on topics of relevance to women considering a position of leadership. Call 553-5360 or 553-6711 to preregister. The seminar, sponsored by the UMSL Counseling Service and the Women's Center.
- Financial Aid Workshops will be held today and Wednesday — see this week's financial aid section for details.

financial aid

- The Financial Aid Office will offer free workshops for filling out financial aid forms for the 1985-86 academic year. These workshops will highlight different types of aid available and instruction for filling out the 1984-85 American College Testing (ACT) Family Financial Statement (FFS). Day sessions will be offered on Mondays at 10 a.m. and sessions will be offered on Wednesdays at 6 p.m. The day session will be held in Room 72 J.C. Penney Building and the evening session will be held in Room 229 J.C. Penney Building. Individuals attending the workshop are asked to bring the parent's and student's completed 1984 state and federal income tax forms, as well as any other relevant income statements. These workshops are open to all members of the UMSL community. Call 553-6397 for further information.

opera

- UMSL's Opera Workshop will present "Gallantry," and "The Old Maid and the Thief." These one-act operas will open the concert, its characters reflect the spirit and form of a television soap opera. The second opera, Gian-Garlo Menotti's "The Old Maid and the Thief," is a lively comedy, which includes a cast of two old spinsters, a flirtatious young servant, and an innocent tramp who is mistaken for a thief. The performances will begin at 8 p.m. in the Benton Hall Theatre. Admission is $2 for students and senior citizens, and $4 for general public. Call 553-5980 for further details about these performances.

next week around UMSL

The Beau Arts Trio will appear in concert on Thursday, March 21. The trio's concert will begin at 8:15 p.m. in the J.C. Penney Auditorium. This UMSL musical event is part of the St. Louis 1985 Arts Festival and the UMSL Premiere Performances Series. General admission will be $7. Call 553-5536 for details.

Exhibits

"The Herbarium Blossoms" Third Floor Stader Hall Through March

The University Program continues this week's film series with "No Small Affair" — see Friday for details.

ON DISPLAY: The Gallery 210 "Culture and Record" exhibit will continue through March 20. The gallery is located on the second level of Lucas Hall and is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday.

Exhibits

- "St. Louis Black Women: Organized for Change" Main Level Thomas Jefferson Library Through March
- "Creative Aging" — see Friday for details.
- "Africa's Past and Present" with John Works, professor of history. Works worked in Africa for seven years teaching and doing research and speaks three African languages. He has been a professor at UMSL since 1977.
- "Leadership Training for Women" workshop will be held today from 1 to 5 p.m. in Room 427 SSB. This workshop will focus on topics of relevance to women considering a position of leadership. Call 553-5360 or 553-6711 to preregister. The seminar, sponsored by the UMSL Counseling Service and the Women's Center.
- Financial Aid Workshops will be held today and Wednesday — see this week's financial aid section for details.

calendar requirements

Material for "around UMSL" should be submitted in writing no later than 3 p.m. Friday of the week before publication to Steve Brablow, around UMSL editor, Current, 1 Blue Metal Office Building, 8001 Natural Bridge Road, St. Louis, Mo. 63121. Phone items cannot be accepted. Material may be edited or excluded to satisfy space or content requirements.
He gives description of film crew members' jobs

Steve Klearkan
film critic

Are you one of those people who watch the credits at the end of a film—the ones that list everyone who worked on the film? Many of us do, but few of us really understand what the various positions are or what the people who fill them actually do. This column is for those of you who are curious about the nitty-gritty of the film industry and want to know how the pieces of the film puzzle fit together.

Director—Most films are shot from the director’s creative perspective. However, producers often exercise a great deal of artistic influence over a film. A director is the person who interprets the screenplay, oversees most elements of production and generally has a degree of control over the production. The director is responsible for getting the rest of the crew to buy into his vision.

Production Manager—The production manager secures the entire production crew, handles contracts and payroll, and manages all aspects of the film’s production schedule. The PM is also responsible for making sure the film is delivered on time and on budget.

Assistant Director—This is the person to whom the director assigns various jobs usually along with the Unit Manager. The Assistant Director is responsible for managing the day-to-day production of the film and ensuring that the production runs smoothly.

Unit Manager—This position is often referred to as the “head of the department.” The Unit Manager handles all the administrative aspects of the production, such as scheduling, budgeting, and paperwork.

Production Assistant—This position is responsible for assisting the Production Manager and the Assistant Director with various tasks, such as running errands, answering phones, and organizing paperwork.

Costume Designer—This is the person responsible for creating the costumes worn by the actors. The costume designer works closely with the director to ensure that the costumes fit the characters and the overall look of the film.

Hair and Makeup Artist—This position is responsible for creating the hairstyles and makeup looks for the actors. The artist works closely with the costume designer to ensure that the overall look of the actor is consistent.

Editor—This is the person responsible for cutting the film together to create the final product. The editor works closely with the director to ensure that the film’s pacing and storytelling are effective.

Music Director—This position is responsible for selecting and arranging the music for the film. The music director works closely with the director to ensure that the music complements the film’s overall look and feel.

Casting Director—This position is responsible for finding the right actors to play the roles in the film. The casting director works closely with the director and the producer to ensure that the actors chosen fit the characters and the overall look of the film.

The traditional production crew members are just a small part of the larger film crew that works behind the scenes to make a film a reality. The film crew is made up of a vast array of people, each with their own unique skills and responsibilities. It takes a team to make a film, and each person on the crew plays a vital role in the filmmaking process.
This month commemorates women's history

(Editor's Note: This article was submitted by Anne R. Kenney, Associate Director of the Western Historical Manuscript Collections.

The week, March 3 thru 9, 1985 marks the eighth year of the nationwide observance of Women's History Week, a time to honor women's contributions and achievements in our nation's history. Around the country, special events were held, interest was generated concerning the accomplishments of past and as yet unrecorded women, and the extent to which women have shaped the past as well as foster an appreciation of women's role in the present.

This week also marks the 75th anniversary of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA), the amendment proposed to the U. S. Constitution by Representative Zefkin that March 18th, 1913 to set aside honor to women's contributions. By 1967, women from the garment and domestic industries in New York had staged a demonstration protesting low wages, the 12 hour work week, lack of recognition, and police harassment. By 1970, the United States Women's National Birthday (W.W.N. B.) organized interest concerted in voting this bill. Since its conception, women have marched, lobbied, written letters, and spent their own time and energies for this cause. In 1977, the United Nations celebrated International Women's Year (IYW). General Members looking for people to join your area. Join in the fun.

Department of Social Services is looking for research on Dental Hygienists to assist Dental Sealant to assist Hygienists in Little Rock, a position open for several weeks. I'll call you back.

The Knobline pledges in the Dugout, "Wacks Watches: ""You are the King of the Girls"" in the Girls in the ‘70s. P.S. D. A. Roent.

I get you in a little more precious and your dog boy.

I will be seeing you on the 21st! Let me know if you're interested.

The Scout

Happy Birthday Karen. We know that she is a very bright and beautiful 21 year old. Have a great birthday! Happy Birthday from your friends in the back. The Scout

Carrie

I'm not a very good writer but that's not a problem because you have the same interests. I'm working on my first story. What do you think of it? I hope you like it.

The Scott

Dianna

General Manager is looking for people to join your area. Join in the fun.

Dianne

Diagnos to go is less painful than teaching yourself "try.

Happy Birthday to everyone who is celebrating birthdays this week. I'm glad you're all together for lunch on Sunday. I'll be there all night.

The Scott

Carrie

I'm not a very good writer but that's not a problem because you have the same interests. I'm working on my first story. What do you think of it? I hope you like it.

The Scott

Dianna

General Manager is looking for people to join your area. Join in the fun.

Dianne

Diagnos to go is less painful than teaching yourself "try.

Happy Birthday to everyone who is celebrating birthdays this week. I'm glad you're all together for lunch on Sunday. I'll be there all night.

The Scott

Carrie

I'm not a very good writer but that's not a problem because you have the same interests. I'm working on my first story. What do you think of it? I hope you like it.

The Scott

Dianna

General Manager is looking for people to join your area. Join in the fun.

Dianne

Diagnos to go is less painful than teaching yourself "try.

Happy Birthday to everyone who is celebrating birthdays this week. I'm glad you're all together for lunch on Sunday. I'll be there all night.

The Scott

Carrie

I'm not a very good writer but that's not a problem because you have the same interests. I'm working on my first story. What do you think of it? I hope you like it.

The Scott

Dianna

General Manager is looking for people to join your area. Join in the fun.

Dianne

Diagnos to go is less painful than teaching yourself "try.

Happy Birthday to everyone who is celebrating birthdays this week. I'm glad you're all together for lunch on Sunday. I'll be there all night.

The Scott

Carrie

I'm not a very good writer but that's not a problem because you have the same interests. I'm working on my first story. What do you think of it? I hope you like it.

The Scott

Dianna

General Manager is looking for people to join your area. Join in the fun.

Dianne

Diagnos to go is less painful than teaching yourself "try.

Happy Birthday to everyone who is celebrating birthdays this week. I'm glad you're all together for lunch on Sunday. I'll be there all night.

The Scott

Carrie

I'm not a very good writer but that's not a problem because you have the same interests. I'm working on my first story. What do you think of it? I hope you like it.

The Scott

Dianna

General Manager is looking for people to join your area. Join in the fun.

Dianne

Diagnos to go is less painful than teaching yourself "try.

Happy Birthday to everyone who is celebrating birthdays this week. I'm glad you're all together for lunch on Sunday. I'll be there all night.

The Scott

Carrie

I'm not a very good writer but that's not a problem because you have the same interests. I'm working on my first story. What do you think of it? I hope you like it.

The Scott

Dianna

General Manager is looking for people to join your area. Join in the fun.

Dianne

Diagnos to go is less painful than teaching yourself "try.

Happy Birthday to everyone who is celebrating birthdays this week. I'm glad you're all together for lunch on Sunday. I'll be there all night.

The Scott

Carrie

I'm not a very good writer but that's not a problem because you have the same interests. I'm working on my first story. What do you think of it? I hope you like it.

The Scott

Dianna

General Manager is looking for people to join your area. Join in the fun.

Dianne

Diagnos to go is less painful than teaching yourself "try.

Happy Birthday to everyone who is celebrating birthdays this week. I'm glad you're all together for lunch on Sunday. I'll be there all night.

The Scott

Carrie

I'm not a very good writer but that's not a problem because you have the same interests. I'm working on my first story. What do you think of it? I hope you like it.

The Scott

Dianna

General Manager is looking for people to join your area. Join in the fun.

Dianne

Diagnos to go is less painful than teaching yourself "try.

Happy Birthday to everyone who is celebrating birthdays this week. I'm glad you're all together for lunch on Sunday. I'll be there all night.

The Scott

Carrie

I'm not a very good writer but that's not a problem because you have the same interests. I'm working on my first story. What do you think of it? I hope you like it.

The Scott

Dianna

General Manager is looking for people to join your area. Join in the fun.

Dianne

Diagnos to go is less painful than teaching yourself "try.

Happy Birthday to everyone who is celebrating birthdays this week. I'm glad you're all together for lunch on Sunday. I'll be there all night.

The Scott

Carrie

I'm not a very good writer but that's not a problem because you have the same interests. I'm working on my first story. What do you think of it? I hope you like it.

The Scott

Dianna

General Manager is looking for people to join your area. Join in the fun.

Dianne

Diagnos to go is less painful than teaching yourself "try.

Happy Birthday to everyone who is celebrating birthdays this week. I'm glad you're all together for lunch on Sunday. I'll be there all night.

The Scott

Carrie

I'm not a very good writer but that's not a problem because you have the same interests. I'm working on my first story. What do you think of it? I hope you like it.

The Scott

Dianna

Editor's Note: This article was submitted by Anne R. Kenney, Associate Director of the Western Historical Manuscript Collections.

The week, March 3 thru 9, 1985 marks the eighth year of the nationwide observance of Women's History Week, a time to honor women's contributions and achievements in our nation's history. Around the country, special events were held, interest was generated concerning the accomplishments of past and as yet unrecorded women, and the extent to which women have shaped the past as well as foster an appreciation of women's role in the present.

This week also marks the 75th anniversary of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA), the amendment proposed to the U. S. Constitution by Representative Zefkin that March 18th, 1913 to set aside honor to women's contributions. By 1967, women from the garment and domestic industries in New York had staged a demonstration protesting low wages, the 12 hour work week, lack of recognition, and police harassment. By 1970, the United States Women's National Birthday (W.W.N. B.) organized interest concerted in voting this bill. Since its conception, women have marched, lobbied, written letters, and spent their own time and energies for this cause. In 1977, the United Nations celebrated International Women's Year (IYW) and declared 1975-1985 the UN Decade for Women. A highlight of this decade for Americans was the National Women's Conference held in Houston in November 1977. For the first time in the history of the United States, the federal government sponsored a national planning and voting of discontented citizens in order to determine their needs. The Houston Conference and the many related activities of IYW involved millions of women. Unprecedented and costly, IYW squelched the Equal Rights Amendment to the forefront of public attention and indication to many citizens that the federal government was beginning to accept the importance of the women's movement. In 1980, President Carter used his declaration of National Women's History Month to urge the ratification of the ERA. When the ERA was not ratified, it became clear to many women that they and not the federal government would have to determine the outcomes of the House of Conference.

This week represents a time for commemoration and reflection. The role that women have

See "Women," page 14
The TV Theme Song Sing-Along Book is on bestseller lists.

Loren Richard Klaha book reviewed.

It proved to be one of the more successful trivia spinoffs, the new book titled "The TV Theme Song Sing-Along Book" by John Javna is raking up some impressive sales. Already on the best-seller list, "The TV Theme Song Sing-Along Book" could prove to be a clever companion to "Jokes For The John."

The book, John Javna, has

Book review

JUSTICE FOR ALL: The Student Court's primary job is to oversee and rule on traffic and parking violations. It also aids students who have any grievances. Recently the court ruled on the financial matter involving the Chess Club.

Court administers justice

Al S. Gadkar assistant features editor

The Student Court is probably the least known and publicly branch of the Student Association. Until recently, its primary job was to oversee and rule on traffic and parking violations. But, as many people are aware, last semester the Chess Club asked the court to intervene on its behalf to settle a financial matter. The court heard the testimonies of both parties involved and then made a recommendation to the Student Association.

The court functions in the same manner as any court of law. It decides on matters that are brought in front of it by outside factions. Its function within the Student Association is to interpret the bylaws of the university.

Health information discussed

[Editor’s note: This article was written by Judith Dempster from the School of Nursing.]

While reading and researching professional literature in preparing for lectures, there are always short items related to health that I find interesting and occasionally a column, I will pass some of these health related items on to you in the form of mini-health capsules.

Let’s start with this one . . . by acting like a corpse you may live longer! A group of researchers recently found a type of yoga, the Shavasan or 'corpse' technique, can help reduce blood pressure. What's required is about 20 minutes, twice a day to:

- Lie down on your back with feet about 12 inches apart.
- Concentrate on breathing slowly and deeply with each breath coming from your diaphragm for 25 minutes.
- Think of your house, say the bathroom . . .
- Then, pop your eyes open.

Here’s another . . . when infections recur, check a new book. A New York pediatrician found repeated episodes of throat strep infections in many of his young patients were related to active sports programs. He offered help to any person who brings to light issues that are in his court's position is to aid any person who seeks help, and to bring to light issues that are in need of attention.

Until their options are when they make a decision, based on their testimony and other relevant facts pertaining to the issue.

The court consists of six justices and the chief justice. Dan Wallace, assistant dean for student affairs, is the court's faculty advisor. Even though he does not help in deciding the cases, he does offer advice to the justices that helps them in reaching their decision.

In addition to making decisions on cases, the court helps to appoint any organization in the student government, the Student Court.

While reading and researching the court reports, there are always little known facts concerning our favorite shows. Tasty tidbits are offered to the reader that otherwise might have been forgotten.

Examples include the following:

- "Star Trek" was Leonard Nimoy's first steady job 12 years; Fonzie’s leather jacket from "Happy Days" is now part of the Smithsonian Institute; Archie Bunker's favorite chair from "All in the Family" is also there. And during filming of the television show "The Brady Bunch," the producers often used midgets for stand-ins.

Chock full of trivia questions and answers, "The TV Theme Song Sing-Along Book" dabbles in television history. Many of the television shows referred to in the book are forgettable and should be, I "Married Joan, "The Monkees, "Beany and Cecil," "F Troop," etc. Still there are a few favorites here - "I Love Lucy, "The Partridge Family, "Bewitched," and "Welcome Back Kotter."

So the next time you are thinking about redecorating your house, say the bathroom . . .

Unless you have ever had the sensation of flying or floating in mid-air (by floating, I mean an intense feeling about future events that are occurring now) have you ever closed your eyes and observed on how your body changes? Out how ECKANKAR can help you discover the answers to your deepest questions.

ECKANKAR Ancient Art of the Middle East, MEDITERRANEAN & MIDWESTERN UNITED STATES REGIONS SEMINAR
March 9 & 10, 1985
USML at Wilson College, P.O. Box 161, Mt. Lebanon, Pa. 15228.
For information, call 622-5862.
Avoid kissing your pet.

- Do not give food to a pet that has seen you in a month.
- If your child, or any pet of your acquaintance, has certain infections, have the vet check your pet.

Finally, avoid anything that is likely to spread it to the pet, then back to the child. The following advice is offered (for adults as well as children):

- Avoid kissing your pet.

Organizations

from page 8

The 35-member fraternity, feels the member of Pi Sigma Epsilon can gain practical experience by applying textbook theory to a real business setting. "A student member will develop the self-confidence needed to start a marketing job right after graduation," said Bianco.

A study of Pi Sigma Epsilon graduates showed that they received an 18 percent higher starting salary than other graduates. The study also noted less on-the-job training. When asked who their main professional contacts are, Whittaker said, "Our main professional contact is the Sales and Marketing Executives of St. Louis.

They are interested in the student's involvement with their organization. This guarantees that Pi Sigma Epsilon members will have major job opportunities." With respect to Pi Sigma Epsilon's professional program, Whittaker said, "I much preferred appearance by Peter Coors, top executive at Coors Brewing Company, who spoke about his company. The Marketing Club, is headed by Gary Schurk an intern at Tretter, Gorman, Inc., a public relations firm in Clayton. The club consists of about 30 coed members. When asked who their main professional contact is, Schurk replied, "I feel our club can bring a student out of the dark by giving him or her a chance to associate with other students, as well as with marketing contacts in the business community."

Schurk feels strongly that the stereotyped commuter student is not a prime candidate to join the club. Students should take the time to look into the various business organizations offered at UMSL," he said. The highlight of last year's Marketing Club activities was a successful Eden Hardware Community Information Survey that the club implemented in conjunction with the pledge class of Delta Sigma Pi. Another business organization at UMSL is American Society for Personnel Administration. The unique feature of the organization is the membership fee is the coeds' president, to be Suzko. The club is a part-time teacher at UMSL. It is presently teaching Management as a Behavioral Science 1, while at the same time, working towards her doctorate in Industrial/organizational Psychology. In fact, six of the 33 coed members are working towards their doctorate in I/O Psychology. The organization is mainly geared towards students having interests in personnel administration, but all others are welcome. ASPA's major affiliation is with the Industrial Relations Association. ASPA members maintain a close affiliation with professionals in the business community through a liaison with a local chapter of the Industrial Relations Association. "We are very lucky to have the support of the Industrial Relations Association. They have a strong desire to help us," Suzko said.

Some of their activities include a project dealing with how to prepare yourself for a career in personnel administration, and seminars on compensation benefits and selection of personnel. Suzko was also enthusiastic about the opportunity ASPA members have to develop a network throughout the business community by attending ASPA/Industrial Relations Association sponsored seminars and dinners where all St. Louis members congregate. "This is a prime opportunity to make contacts," she said.

Women

from page 12

played in American history can be celebrated in a number of ways. Mayor Vincent Schoemehl has declared March 3-9 Women's History Week in St. Louis. Across the city, exhibits, conferences, and special events have been planned. The St. Louis Women Historians are sponsoring their third annual women's history conference this Saturday at the Missouri Historical Society on the impact of technology on women in the home.

Two workshops honoring the contributions of black women, are on display in the Thomas Jefferson Library. The Western Historical Manuscript Collection (Uptown) is hosting an extensive Women's Historical Collection. The UMSL community is encouraged to celebrate women's history week by visiting the collection and reading the words of our foremothers, suffragists, pacifists, social reformers, labor union leaders, priests, home-makers and mothers.

The Western Historical Manuscript Collection constantly seeks additions to the Women's Historical Collection. If you have or know of women's history material, call 553-5143. The Collection is open to the public Monday-Friday 9-5, and until 9 p.m. on Tuesday.

Kirschling returns to school for third degree

Rachel-Johnson

James Kirschling, 61, seems to know the value of education.

He is returning to school to work toward his third degree. Kirschling practiced law in Wisconsin, served in the Army Reserves for over 20 years, worked for the Internal Revenue Service and fought overseas during World War II.

Kirschling was drafted in 1943 and decided to remain in the reserves after his tour of duty. "I'd recommend the reserves strongly, especially for the supervisory experience. The ROTC is also a good deal for college students," he added.

"The reserves are easier, the barracks are less crowded and vehicles are used a lot more, instead of marching, which requires more time in planning."

Kirschling also worked for the IRS for 24 years in the Appellate Division, which handles disputed cases in, or on, the court docket. He said he enjoyed working for the IRS, "except for all the deadlines."

Kirschling also traveled to Europe several times, visiting Germany, Yugoslavia, and Czechoslovakia on bicycle trips. He said he's now back at college in St. Louis, "so he can use it on his trips. In addition, he said he'd like to teach German in high school, but only on a part-time basis.

Kirschling knows the value of a good education, having used his background obtaining jobs and in his travels. But UMSL also benefits from his education; few students know what it was like to live during the Depression, were even alive during World War II or have traveled as extensively as Kirschling.

He's an asset to the campus, and faculty and students can draw upon his experiences. Few people can offer what he has to offer, a wealth of information from a life rich in education, experiences and interests.

An enthusiastic Tyler Kahdeman, president of the UMSL Investments Club, lives for the pursuit of professionalism. "We provide a student with an opportunity to communicate within a decision-making environment. Students will eventually have to make decisions about their financial future so they might as well prepare themselves now," Kahdeman said.

Thirty members strong, it seems as though the coed UMSL Investments Club will continue in its pursuit of professionalism.

FRIDAY & SATURDAY NIGHTS AT THE MOVIES

No Small Affair

March 13, 1985

11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

University Center Lounge
Rivermen season falls at CMSU

Jim Goudien

Central Missouri State University closed the curtain on a fine 1984-85 UMSL basketball season last Thursday night by defeating the Rivermen, 86-74.

For UMSL, it marked the end of a fairy-tale season in which the Rivermen surprised the preseason prognosticators with a third-place finish in the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

For the first 25 minutes of the MIAA first-round playoff game, UMSL looked as though they would surprise the Mules for the second time in five days. But it wasn't to be.

UMSL, from an all-time high of 6:22 to go to the first half to the CMSU at halftime, 34-34.

With 16:45 left in the second half, the Rivermen managed to take a four-point lead. But as fate would have it, the UMSL Cinderella story began to unravel. Central outsourced UMSL 16-4 to take a 50-40 halftime lead. Included in that surge were 10 unanswered Mule points in a span of six minutes.

We turned the ball over three times, and they converted all three times," Coach Rich McKessel said. "We made four makeable shots when they hit four more baskets.

The Rivermen were not able to rebound from the five-minute collapse and got to within nine points the rest of the game.

Joe Goldkamp led UMSL with 21 points, and Ervin Bailey added 18 to the Rivermen with 16. But it wasn't enough to get past the Mules.

It was a great season for the 'Riverskaters,' marking the fourth straight game that they've been in double figures on the boards.

CMSU was led by Ron Nunamaker with 17, and Ron Henderson's 16. Henderson also had 10 rebounds.

For the game, CMSU shot 44.3 percent (31 of 70) from the field. The UMSL season ended last week, it could be said that everyone has a better chance of making the final four.

Mama's disability is that they are one nameless cheerleader and one Cheapskate.

And among those helping in the cheer section, but who made a lasting impact with his grit and determination on the ice, could also be the team. LaPorta was a real key to the Riverskaters, and he may be missed most of all.

The last Impression of the past season, though, will be the players not returning to the team. LaPorta was a real key to the Riverskaters, and he may be missed most of all. The team will miss him, but not our best players.

For LaPorta playing hockey at CMSU gave him a sense a pride. "I really played with I've played with these guys. They were all terrific, and I took a lot of pride in playing for my school," he said.

"When I made the team, it was such a great experience," Witbrodt said. "With CMSU, being a commuter school you need a kind of activity to make friends and I really enjoyed it." LaPorta, who also enjoyed having Witbrodt, "Kenny was just a hard worker. He was always hustling and real smart, just a great player," LaPorta said.

Goldkamp echoed LaPorta's comments, "Ken always came through in the clutch. Whenever we needed a goal he was the one to do it." Witbrodt added, "He was the best of the best. Everyone looked up to him. Between him and Kenny is probably the best line I've ever played on." LaPorta said.

"Jim is such a great playmaker, that he makes everyone look good. Between him and Kenny it was probably the best line I've ever played on," Witbrodt said. With the best line, it really is, that kind of talent in one season. But Goldkamp knows that with a little hard work and a lot of effort UMSL can continue its fine play. "It's amazing what a little what work can do for a team. Effort brings success," Goldkamp said.

See "Basketball," page 16

Skaters could see end of first dynasty

Jim Goudien

With the UMSL hockey team's season ending last week, it could mark the end of an era for blue blazers. "It's black," she said of the dark suit.

Well, the teardrags and feathers might have been a joke, but still I think she wants to give me a blue and black eye.

might have been a joke, but there was little doubt that there is a lot of room to improve, and Mark Aegerter from the UMSL Cinyear will be different because we have all been with the team. LaPorta was a real key to the Riverskaters, and he may be missed most of all.

The last Impression of the past season, though, will be the players not returning to the team. LaPorta was a real key to the Riverskaters, and he may be missed most of all. The team will miss him, but not our best players.

For LaPorta playing hockey at CMSU gave him a sense a pride. "I really played with I've played with these guys. They were all terrific, and I took a lot of pride in playing for my school," he said.

"When I made the team, it was such a great experience," Witbrodt said. "With CMSU, being a commuter school you need a kind of activity to make friends and I really enjoyed it." LaPorta, who also enjoyed having Witbrodt, "Kenny was just a hard worker. He was always hustling and real smart, just a great player," LaPorta said.

Goldkamp echoed LaPorta's comments, "Ken always came through in the clutch. Whenever we needed a goal he was the one to do it." Witbrodt added, "He was the best of the best. Everyone looked up to him. Between him and Kenny is probably the best line I've ever played on." LaPorta said.

"Jim is such a great playmaker, that he makes everyone look good. Between him and Kenny it was probably the best line I've ever played on," Witbrodt said. With the best line, it really is, that kind of talent in one season. But Goldkamp knows that with a little hard work and a lot of effort UMSL can continue its fine play. "It's amazing what a little what work can do for a team. Effort brings success," Goldkamp said.

See "Basketball," page 16

Cullen impressive, looks to nationals meet

Dan Noss

Elizabeth Cullen set four school records in qualifying for the three National Collegiate Athletic Association meets over the weekend when the UMSL Riverwomen closed out the year in Chicago.

UMSL finished 12th in the 12- team meet, dominated by eight Division I schools, with 102 points.

Cullen, whose best event is the 100-yard freestyle, lost to only one Division I swimmer. Her school record of 1 minute, 21.12 seconds was broken at the 1985 Eastern in South Bend by Kathy VanDalsem at Oakland University in the 100 backstroke. She was 0.23 seconds off the national qualifying mark.

The times that gained Cullen All-American honors included 24.7 seconds (fourth place) in the 50 freestyle; 53.62 seconds (fifth-place tie) in the 100 freestyle, and 59.74 seconds (sixth-place tie) in the 100 butterfly.

Coach Rich Fowler feels Cullen has an excellent opportunity to do well in the nationals based on her on the high quality of this meet. The eight Division I teams participating brought the meet to a level that is competitive with the Division II nationals, he said. Also, the top eight team in a quiet way always giving it his best shot, but never really getting the recognition he probably deserves.

The team just went out and did the job. He isn't a hollow guy, he just goes about his work," Witbrodt said.

For LaPorta playing hockey at CMSU gave him a sense a pride. "I really played with I've played with these guys. They were all terrific, and I took a lot of pride in playing for my school," he said.

"When I made the team, it was such a great experience," Witbrodt said. "With CMSU, being a commuter school you need a kind of activity to make friends and I really enjoyed it." LaPorta, who also enjoyed having Witbrodt, "Kenny was just a hard worker. He was always hustling and real smart, just a great player," LaPorta said.

Goldkamp echoed LaPorta's comments, "Ken always came through in the clutch. Whenever we needed a goal he was the one to do it." Witbrodt added, "He was the best of the best. Everyone looked up to him. Between him and Kenny is probably the best line I've ever played on." LaPorta said.

"Jim is such a great playmaker, that he makes everyone look good. Between him and Kenny it was probably the best line I've ever played on," Witbrodt said. With the best line, it really is, that kind of talent in one season. But Goldkamp knows that with a little hard work and a lot of effort UMSL can continue its fine play. "It's amazing what a little what work can do for a team. Effort brings success," Goldkamp said.

See "Basketball," page 16
Aiding the scoreboard statistics were two freshmen Larson calls the most improved players on the team -- Kathy Rubach and Grace Gain.

"In Kathy it is not so much improvement as it is just the chance to show herself," Larson says of the often injured 6-foot-1 center Rubach, an honorable mention All-Conference team, distinguished herself late with a 16-point, five-rebound performance against Southeast Missouri State and nine rebounds against Central Missouri State.

Improvement for Guia, a 5-foot-10 forward, was the adjustment to the more demanding physical and mental level of college basketball. "But Grace brought it and adapted very well," Larson said. "She's willing to go out and do what you ask her to do."

Gain had a sparking 14 point, three rebound performance versus Central Missouri State University in the season finale. For 85-86 Larson would like to see more consistent play from forwards Jody Lisch and Marni Schmidt.

"Jody can drive and is strong enough to be a sound rebounder. Larson said of the uniting defensive player. Proving she can score, too, Lisch had 17 points to go along with nine rebounds against Northwest Missouri State.

In Schmidt, Larson feels her pre-season goal of double figures in both rebounding and scoring was not above the six-footer. He says Schmidt was probably the most improved in her season, although she increased her rebounding total to 187 in 84-85.

"Speaking of increased statistics, Larson notes, "The best example iszenia, outstanding 51 percent from the field and 73 percent from the free throw line for 17.5 points per game. All three marks were single season highs in 1984 and improvements over 83-84. Larson is looking for continued

Basketball

from page 15

midnight.

Now Meckfessel must turn his attention to next season, trying to fill the void of three graduating seniors -- Ted Meier, McCorrmack and Edwards.

"(Delondo) Fox didn't shoot well for us this season, but we expect him to improve next year," Meckfessel said. The couch is hoping that Fox can help offset the loss of McCormack's outside shooting.

"But all three (seniors) could shoot from the outside," Meckfessel said. "That's how we were able to beat the zone defense this season." Meckfessel will be counting on Duane Young to get more into the offense next year, but said he is still is interested in picking up a pair of forwards and a firearms man.

But you can't blame Meckfessel if he takes time to save this season and contemplate what might have been. If only the tale had lasted a few hours longer.

Basketball

from page 15

And Goldkamp may be right according to Witbrodt. If anyone knows about hard work it is goldkamp. "He went from mediocrity to one heck of a hockey player. He really improved and worked hard at it," the team captain said.

It might be unfair to single out these four guys for UMSL's success this season and those prior to this one. "When I look back I'm not going to remember that we didn't win. I'm just point to remember all the fun I had and data all the great guys I met," Witbrodt said.

These four were part of a team that gave their all. Anyone who saw an UMSL game would have noticed these four for their talents and their constant assault on the opposition's goal, but what about the rest of the team?

Marty Wood received Goldkamp's unoffical Brian Butter (St. Louis Brown's hard-nosed and determined captain) Award. "Marty is the hardest worker I've ever played with. He is so determined to do well, that he is an example for everyone and could be the catalyst for the team next age," Goldkamp said.

There are other players who did not have the recognition that the others received, but do deserve to be acknowledged. To Pat Majcik, Chris Rainier, and Rob Herberholt, hang in there you make it, according to Goldkamp. "Those guys worked as djust as hard as anyone else. but for the most part they are just picking up the game and it will take awhile," he said.

Next season the team may or may not meet the success of former UMSL teams as far as their record goes, but one thing is for sure: You can bet they will continue the strong tradition of playing hard and giving it their all, no matter what the score.

What to do? The choice is yours.

We offer: pregnancy tests • medical exam • diagnostic ultrasound • counseling • referrals • abortions

For 10 years our emphasis has been on support of the woman, extended contact with local health care providers, and a 100 percent refund of classes and services. Physicians are board certified (D.O.)

You Are Pregnant?

Call NATIONAL ABORTION FEDERATION

Toll 300 227-7225

For further information and to apply for SCHOLARSHIPS

YOU CAN APPLY FOR ONE OR MORE OF THE SCHOLARSHIPS

1. U-M money for books, plus $100 per school month. They also pay off in the valued leadership credentials you earn while you continue your chosen college studies. And a position of authority as an Army officer when you graduate.

If you meet the following qualifications you may compete for one of the scholarships:

CITIZEN OF THE US AND OVER 22 YEARS-OLD

FULL TIME STUDENT SEEKING BACHELOR DEGREE

MINIMUM QUALIFICATION:

2.9 GPA OR ABOVE

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION AND TO APPLY APPLICATION PERIOD ENDS ON OCTOBER 15TH, 1985

ARMY ROTC. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.