Barnes And Shelton Defend Expenses

Matt Merriman

According to student association financial records, over $400 of the $2,000 annual travel budget has been spent during the first four months of this year.

In response to complaints from other campus organizations that they cannot receive UI funds from committees that have approved travel, Denney said, "I have the authority in December to approve those [travel] expenses." This semester, "said Greg Barnes, SA vice president. "We are trying to allow a deference a decision that involves travel will not be allowed to a division in some expenditure of concern.

Denney was also upset about the process of determining who would be responsible to provide funds to other organizations. He said that next semester, "we will be working with those organizations in some capacity.

According to the Association's financial records, $20 was spent on airfare, $450 on mileage, $1,020 on meals and lodging, and $1,200 on travel.

Both Barnes and Hillary Shelly SA vice president, asked about the corresponding, the travel would be consistent with the $2,000 annual travel budget that the students had been provided.

"We did not expect the kind of travel that would be expected," Shelly said. "The travel will vary in some way that would be expected." Barnes added, "We're trying to deference a decision that involves travel will be allowed to a division in some expenditure of concern.

"It's been a problem for all others, and some of the others are a little bit of the budget, the low and some of the others are a little bit of the budget," Barnes said.

"We will probably reallocate some of the funds from other events of the same way. You put together a budget, the one on the budget is based on what you think is going to happen next year.

"It's an issue that is emerging more and more. We're trying to figure out a way to correct this problem. It's been a problem for all others, and some of the others are a little bit of the budget, the low and some of the others are a little bit of the budget," Barnes said.

One Day's Lunch Money Can Help

The Current's annual One-Day Lunch Money Can Help drive is one of the University of Missouri-St. Louis' largest fundraising events. In 1985, The Current asked students to set aside a day's lunch money and contribute it to an account that The Current would use for the benefit of South African students. Throughout the 1980s, The Current raised substantial amounts of funds for the effort. The goal for the 1985 drive was $100,000.

The drive was organized by The Current's student editors, who had been working on the project for several months. The editors had met with representatives from various organizations that were involved in the South African struggle, including Oxfam and the Student Action Bureau. They had also worked with the National Student Association to promote the drive on a national level.

The editors had planned a series of events to help raise awareness about the drive, including a press conference, a rally, and a concert. They had also worked with the University's Office of Student Affairs to ensure that the drive was approved and supported by the university administration.

The editors had worked hard to promote the drive, and they were excited about the potential for a successful campaign. They knew that the drive was important not only for raising money for South African students, but also for raising awareness about the struggle.

The editors had set a goal of $100,000, and they planned to use the funds to support South African students in a variety of ways. They hoped to use the money to help students pay for tuition, housing, and transportation, as well as to support initiatives that were working to end apartheid.

The editors were hopeful that the drive would be successful, and they were committed to doing everything they could to help raise the necessary funds. They knew that the struggle for freedom in South Africa was a complex one, and they were determined to do their part in supporting those who were fighting for a just society.

Summit Set Up For Talks Between U.S. And Soviet Union

1 James L. Hare, president and executive director of the Conflict Clinic and professor of sociology, spoke with Current managing editor Sherri Brawley about the upcoming summit between the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

What is the nature of the upcoming summit between the U.S. and the Soviet Union? The summit is a moment in process to begin dialogue and negotiate major issues between the two nations. It is a step ahead in efforts to address conflicts and improve relations. The summit is seen as a critical step in the ongoing negotiations between the two nations.

1 According to Hare, the main reason the Student Association would support the summit was because the Student Association would benefit from it. It is important to him that the Student Association is working on ways to improve relations and engage in meaningful discussions.

1 If the summit is a success, it could lead to increased mutual understanding and cooperation between the two nations. It could also result in negotiations and agreements that are among the most successful of all time.

1 The media, particularly the electronic, are always looking for packaging. Television is one of the People Magazine's electronic media. It can attract and gain people to identify with characters. It is natural as we come to rely more and more on television for our sense of what is going on.

1 We have not had a major summit meeting since last October. If we have not had a major summit meeting since last October, it is a reflection of the political climate. It is more difficult to reach agreements when the political climate is not favorable.

1 A good example of this for several years is the Soviet Union. As an example, one could argue that the summit is a step ahead in efforts to address conflicts and improve relations. It is a moment in process to begin dialogue and negotiate major issues between the two nations.

The dialogue between the brassy pianos and small, bell instruments creates a playful mood.

The film's costume design is another highlight. Designer Marge Champion's costumes are as colorful and vibrant as the music. The women's dresses are adorned with feathers and sequins, while the men's suits are tailored with a sense of style. The sets, designed by production designer Robert Haas, are opulent and grand, with elaborate backdrops and grand staircases. The attention to detail is a testament to the film's dedication to showcasing the artistry of the era.

In summary, The Band Wagon is a delightful and timeless film that celebrates the Golden Age of Hollywood. It's a must-watch for anyone who appreciates the elegance and charm of mid-20th-century cinema.

McKfessel Hopes To Build On '84-'85 Finish

Rick McKfessel's UMSL Rivermen had a 1984-'85 season in which they began the fall but ended up in 9th or 10th. Last season they proved that they could be a team with high expectations in the conference. They would like to judge the season on some favorable contributions.

"We hope to improve our success from last year by having a good season," McKfessel said.

McKfessel has had two 15-13 seasons as UMSL’s head coach.

Rivermen Clinch MIAA With Undefeated Conference Mark

Dan Noss

The MUIM Rivermen clinched the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association title with victories over Northeast Missouri State, 2-0, and Southwest Missouri State, 3-1, along with a 2-0 win over Missouri Rolla. UM1L clinched conference play with an undefeated record.

The conference championship should, by most estimations, ensure UM1L a bit in the NCAA Collegiate Athletic Association post-season tournament. Data for the divisions are due by Nov 11.

The Northeast game was another 'big game' for the Rivermen. The remaining games had two goals and the teams record for goals at 15 moulded 15th and 16th (see box) and Missouri - Rolla, Missouri - Rolla, Missouri - Rolla, Missouri - Rolla, Missouri - Rolla.

Dan Noss

After the goal, Northeast was held without a shot for the rest of the game. But it wasn't until 28:42 that Hanta k broke the tie. The back was from Mike McNichol, who stole the ball from a Northeast defender. Ten minutes later, McNichol was out of the game and UM1L finished the evening one man short.

In the title clincher, Southeast Missouri State's first goal was due out by Dennis Sparrow. Tim Caldwell, who was credited with seven saves, each without a shot for the rest of the game, took the penalty kick.

PERFECT PASS: Kathy Rocha passes a ball past an opponent to an UM1L teammate during the Riverwomen's final game. A 0-0 victory over Northeast Missouri State.

Riverwomen Denied Bid Again

The season ended victoriously at The Field, but by the time the selection committee for the National Collegiate Athletic Association post-season tournament was through with the UM1L Riverwomen, the effort just didn't make it through the selection process.

The game against Northeast Missouri State, a 2-0 UM1L victory, was the final game of another season when the record (13-3-2) as good as it was, was just not good enough.

The Riverwomen were denied in 1984 after posting a strong 13-4-1 record, promising things for the future. West results dominated the conference, 1-3, in 1984, also.

The committee instead selected California Rivera, Colorado College and California Santa Barbara from UM1L's region.

THE DECISION LEFT COACH KEN HANNA to the question: win over Benedictine (12-15-9, 12-15, 15-12, 15-5) and Principia 15-5, 15-10, 16-14, 15-12) and Principia 15-9, 12-15, 15-10, 16-14 for the rest of the season.

HARD RETURN: UM1L's Julie March returns the ball in a point against the Riverwomen. The Riverwomen won their last two matches against Benedictine and Principia.

In the title clincher, Southeast Missouri State's first goal was due out by Dennis Sparrow. Tim Caldwell, who was credited with seven saves, each without a shot for the rest of the game, took the penalty kick.

The season ended victoriously at The Field, but by the time the selection committee for the National Collegiate Athletic Association post-season tournament was through with the UM1L Riverwomen, the effort just didn't make it through the selection process.

The game against Northeast Missouri State, a 2-0 UM1L victory, was the final game of another season when the record (13-3-2) as good as it was, was just not good enough.

The Riverwomen were denied in 1984 after posting a strong 13-4-1 record, promising things for the future. West results dominated the conference, 1-3, in 1984, also.

The committee instead selected California Rivera, Colorado College and California Santa Barbara from UM1L's region.

THE DECISION LEFT COACH KEN HANNA to the question:

After the goal, Northeast was held without a shot for the rest of the game. But it wasn't until 28:42 that Hantak broke the tie. The back was from Mike McNichol, who stole the ball from a Northeast defender. Ten minutes later, McNichol was out of the game and UM1L finished the evening one man short.

John Denny is a pitcher for the Philadelphia Phillies. His family has always been religious, and he wanted to be a priest. However, Denny decided to pursue his passion for baseball instead.

As a priest, Denny has also had the opportunity to work with young people and share his faith with them. He believes that it is important for young people to have someone to talk to about their faith, and he enjoys sharing his own experiences and insights.

Denny's message to young people is to be open to the possibilities of life and to remember that God is always with them. He encourages young people to ask questions and to seek out the guidance of their faith community.

Denny's message is one of hope and encouragement, and he believes that it is possible for young people to find their own path within their faith.
