Four Lilies—still not the same enthusiasm.

A number of students, who attended the retreat, said that they were not interested in participating in the future because of the limited amount of time and money involved.

The annual Bates Leadership Training Retreat will be held this year on the campus of the University of Missouri-St. Louis from November 18 to 20. The retreat will be open to the public, and students and faculty from other universities are encouraged to attend.

The retreat is sponsored by the Bates Student Council and is part of the University of Missouri-St. Louis' ongoing commitment to leadership development.

The retreat is designed to provide students and faculty with opportunities to develop leadership skills and to network with others who share similar interests.

A bill passed by the Missouri legislature Monday could allow the growth of graduate programs at private universities by making it easier for them to obtain state approval.

The bill was sponsored by Republican state Sen. Franklin D. Keating of Kansas City, who said it would help private universities compete with public institutions.

undergraduate programs not offered through the university.

The bill is intended to aid UM students graduate programs that do not fit into existing programs at the university, such as programs in history, political science, and education.

The bill would allow universities to receive state approval for new programs, which would then be eligible for state funding.

The bill was signed into law by Governor Jay Nixon on Monday. It now goes to the state legislature for final approval.

LeLoup said that the bill is a necessary step to ensure that the university remains competitive with other institutions in the state.

The bill is expected to be debated in the state legislature in the coming weeks, and could potentially be signed into law by Governor Nixon before the end of the month.

Backpacks Cause Health Hazards

"Backpacks provide a worthwhile and creative learning opportunity that people need to adapt to in an age dominated by technology-based communication." - Ron Turner

Jaccuel Lauer

"Cash and Rainbow, a Celebrations of the Arts " poster簧s a host of themes of the seventh annual springtime event to be held Thursday, Mary 16, Monday, May 14, at the Jefferson National Republican Woman's Day. Turner, former associate dean and director of the College of Education, lamented the fact that people find technology-based concepts "exciting but not useful.

"Technology provides a mechanism for people to manipulate information that is not exciting but very useful," Turner said.

"From all over America, tellers will come and tell stories at the festival. There are as many styles of telling as there are different school gymnasiums."

Carolyn Amos

"Pathfinder backpacks are a real problem for the out-of-town student," said Lynn Salberg, the featured St. Louis Backpacker. "I use them as one of the sources of the festival. One evening I was out in the 'backpack' and I was turned in by the police."

"People wear backpacks with clothes that are too long or too short, or even just nothing on."

"Backpacks lead to overuse and misuse of the American campus, popular book packs seen on every student lounge, it might seem like college life has never been so easy."

"But why are we putting up with this?"

"The festival is sponsored by Cosmopolitan in an effort of change through grants to the University of Missouri-Louis, College Trust, Put Incorporated, Liverpool University, and others."

"But even a properly balanced pack can be a problem for the out-of-town student."

"So Sendre recommends a complete work-out program with weight machines, adding exercises for flexibility are equally important. But all this also means a great deal of health consciousness that one can study either offer a rationale for at least one health class."

"Gymnastics may enhance your flexibility most easily, a group of British students say."

"But even if you are not interested in gymnastics, either from rigidity or increased self-consciousness, speaking, eye contact, and hip manipulation may help you improve."

"The festival will be held Thursday, May 1, through April 17, 1980."

"The festival also offers out-reach programs to medical professionals and homes for the aged."

"The multicultural/multiethnic program, which will include live and local performances of music, is the centerpiece of the festival."

"The four-day festival."

"Stories told to the audience's attention. Some use eye contact as a key to capture the audience's attention. Some use eye contact as a key to capture the attention of the audience."

Student Leaders Deserve Another LTU

Student leaders decided to move the Leadership Training and Development Retreat back to the YMCA. They believe that the YMCA should greatly improve its facilities and services.

Last year, Student Activity Board decided to hold a one-day workshop for student leaders in the LTU Senate. This year, the move is to the YMCA, so staff members can attend and learn about the YMCA's services.

Therefore, the attendance last year was about 25 students, while this year is expected around 50 students.

This is also a great opportunity for students to improve their leadership skills and develop a network of contacts with other LTU students.

In addition to this, many students are excited about the possibility of holding a retreat in the YMCA because of its proximity to campus.

Student input was sought out by the Student Activity Board regarding the development of such a program. The feedback was positive and this led to the decision to move the retreat back to the YMCA.

Student Organization Leaders attended the workshop and pay special attention to the new opportunities that are created through the retreat. They expressed their organizations' resourcefulness during the 1986-1987 year.

A Case Of Withholding Certain Fees

Says Meyer

Students at UMSL are concerned with the bill that was introduced by Congressman Pete Domenici. The bill, if passed, would affect student aid in several ways.

First, it would allow Congress to control the amount of money that is available for student aid programs. This would be detrimental to students, as it would mean less funding for essential needs such as tuition, room and board, and books.

Second, the bill would allow Congress to approve or disapprove the amount of money that is spent on student aid programs. This would give Congress too much power over the financial decisions of universities and colleges.

Finally, the bill would allow Congress to set the maximum amount of money that can be spent on student aid programs. This would have a severe impact on the ability of universities and colleges to provide quality education.

The students' organizations urge the UMSL Senate to take a stand against the bill and vote against it. They believe that the student voice should be heard and that the interests of students should be protected.

Let's make our voices heard and support the student organizations in their efforts to protect our rights and interests.

Seniors, junior, sophomore, and even freshman should join the movement against the bill. We need to show our solidarity and unity as students to protect the future of education in universities and colleges.

Let's stand together and fight for our rights!

The performances were held at the American Theatre due to the theater's reputation. The audience was enthusiastic and the performances were a great success. The traditional Hungarian ballet, with its rich history and culture, was enjoyed by the audience. The performance was a production of the Hungarian National Ballet, and it was well-received by the audience.
