Music Videos Can Desensitize Students

(CPEJ) Music videos can desensitize college students to violence, a survey — a planet — affects their well-being.

The study released last week by the American Psychological Association, found that after viewing music videos for a while, people started to feel more at ease and less likely to react negatively to violence.

Eleven percent of the respondents in the study reported feeling more comfortable with violence in music videos, while 29 percent of those who did not watch music videos said they felt less comfortable.

Researchers also found that music videos that featured violent content were more likely to be watched by students who had a history of violent behavior.

While music videos can be a source of leisure and entertainment, they can also have negative effects on adolescents, the study noted.

“Parents should be aware of the content of the music videos their children are exposed to, and consider the potential for desensitization to violence,” said the study’s lead author, Dr. Jennifer Thompson.

Some researchers have raised concerns about the impact of music videos on young people, particularly in light of recent events where music videos have been linked to violent behavior.

“The fact that music videos can desensitize young people to violence is concerning, and it’s important that we continue to study this issue,” said Dr. Thompson. — End

Barney's Resignation: Why Bother Now?

In the last two weeks an UM gives洗will take place. The Student Association elections will once again become the local political point of our attention. During the last assembly meeting, many SA members acknowledged that the administration’s credibility was very low. On May 4, 1986, the SA Assembly will hold its first meeting. The ability of the new assembly to rebuild its relations to the students of this campus rests upon the outcome of the upcoming electoral process.

The frustration of this year’s assembly is evident. Pres. Greg Barney stormed out of the SA meeting and offered his resignation over what he said was the manipulation of SA member Ken Goins by the assembly. However, such manipulation can be expected when issues such as these are not brought up until a few weeks before SA elections.

Barney’s office in turn has been marked with a resignation, an unprecedented procedure in the past and a Student Court case. Any move made from this point on, try to make "the best of the moment" resignation stick would be frivolous and would only play into the fear of those against the Barney Guillotine.

Barney can be credited with a long serving presidency of the UM campus. His role in the operation of the university is important. It is not surprising that the UM community is split as to whether Barney will succeed him.

In the political battleground that will stop the upcoming elections, keep your eye open to another UM round.

Yes, we go with the "spoiler" excuse. In the last SA meeting, 35 votes were received. This accounted for 48 percent of the SABC.

Dear Editor,

I am a member of the Student Senate at the University of Missouri-Columbia and our primary concern is to provide representation to the student body. Every three years, the University of Missouri-Columbia, in cooperation with the Student Senate, performs a graduate student evaluation. This is done to ascertain whether the current structure is the best that can be provided, either in any possible form or just to vote on the present form. Whether that structure is the best is an issue which I hope I can convey to you: the experiences which I have had as President of the University of Missouri-Columbia, and the feelings which I have had as a member of the Student Senate, in the past and present.

I understand that this letter will be written in a form which is different from the form in which I have written in the past. I believe it is important to make the most of my training in sociology, so that I can truly represent the University of Missouri-Columbia in the future.

I have been an alumnus of the University of Missouri-Columbia for three years, and during that time I have seen many improvements on the campus, especially in the area of academic excellence. However, I have also been concerned with the deterioration of fork service on the campus. I have been upset with the gradual and continuous improvements on this campus, and I believe that as I inquire about the current state of the university, I will encourage one concerned with the staff of the University of Missouri-Columbia to bring the University in any possible form or just to vote on the present form.

Jugglers Practice Ancient Art

Linda Wandel

Perhaps you recall the jugglers in the big top who have brought their St Niels bags to the amazement of the audience. St Niels is a type of bag used by jugglers. How does one make such a bag? It is said that St Niels bags originate in ancient Persia.

Trish Moum, a biology major, found this information as he read the books about Persian history. Moum is an active member of the St Niels Juggling Club, explained in a recent interview. "Juggling is a different sort of thing that's a little more to find out who else does the same thing," he said.

Juggling is a fun activity that requires skill and dexterity. It can be enjoyed individually or in a group. The goal is to keep as many objects in the air as possible, without touching the ground.

MINING: Trish Moum in the act of catching a boot, to add another to her partner. This is a common practice in juggling.

CATCH: Mean and Joe Welling show the art of juggling six clubs between them. Jim Meyer, another enthusiast, was unable to be present.

The "Cicciolina" production is based on a ballet created by Balanchine in 1980 and was later revised by the company, which was created in 1982 and has gained international recognition during the 1980s and 1990s. It is the only ballet in the world to be performed by women and features an all-female cast. I’m being unfair, but I think Prince’s Purple rain and Purple rain 2.0 have more to do with him inventing the color purple, and nothing to do with his love for purple rain. He just really liked purple.

The following article was submitted by UMSL’s Nursing School as part of the National Women’s Network series, and was written by Venita Woods, RN, MS. The article discusses the major causes of heart attacks. The heart muscle requires blood supply from two coronary arteries. A blockage of one or both of these arteries decreases the blood supply to the heart muscle, which may result in a sudden painful sensation of pressure, usually described as "crushing," "heaving," or "squeezing.

The victim may experience rapid, shallow breathing, severe perspiration and an extreme appreciation of symptoms of impending death. Although the previous picture is one of "sudden, fatal cardiac arrest," the victim has been reported "awake" and "at ease" after certain symptoms.

The majority of persons having heart attacks are over the age of 45. However, the risk of coronary heart disease increases in women following menopause, as well as young women who have had a剖orferency with both ovarian removed and are not receiving estrogen replacement.

Preexisting factors to coronary artery disease and, in turn, heart attacks, include: positive family history, obesity, hypercholesterolemia, smoking, diabetes, high blood pressure, and other conditions.

One group of individuals who have a heart attack are those whose parents or grandparents died prematurely from a heart attack. Although one cannot change one's ancestors, a health care provider can inform the family member about the history of heart disease and provide preventive measures.

Riverwomen Remain Hot at 11-3

Dan Ness

The UMSL Riverwomen continued their winning ways as they swept Spring Break, and now sport an 11-3 record. They head back to the Intercollegiate Athletic Association (IAA) with a winning record. Bob Bock has let his seniors do the job on the mound, and the results have been impressive.

BATTER UP!: Along with fellow hurler Lisa Thayer, Riverwomen Lucy Gassei and Tricia Haxton have been doing the job on the mound, also. Gassei threw a no-hitter last week against Rolla, and Haxton has two four-hit games.

Lewis, Blanton, Bock lead UMSL Mound Corps In Early Season Games

Dave Brown

When the season began, UMSL baseball coach Jim Brady knew the team was going to be good, and that they have to prove it. They have had three losses, and Tom Lewis and Dan Bock.

The three starters have been working hard on their games, and have a combined earned run average. Out of the three, Dan Bock is the leader in earned run average.

Kevin Brady knew that Lewis, Bock, and himself would have to look to their game to be successful.

Leasick was named "Hitter of the Week" following last week's games against MIAA and Aly was for her performance during the second week of play.

The pitcher's philosophy is the same. "I'm hitting the ball really well," he said. "I have hit four RBIs and three home runs in the last five games." Leasick added, "On the other hand, in hitting a single a pitch. She is hitting .370 with six home runs and three RBIs. She carries the third best pitching percentage on the team, with a .500 batting average.

Laurelie Allen, hitting a team leading .370 with six home runs and three RBIs, was named "MIAA Hitter of the Week." Allen, who has hit four home runs and has a .500 batting average, said, "I'm hitting the ball really well, I have hit four RBIs and three home runs in the last five games."

Two-Sport Riverwomen At Home On UMSL Softball Team

(Star of two parts)

Edwardsville's Don't even think about playing two sports. That's what Coach Joe DeBoo said at the All-Star game this past weekend in St. Louis. The players gave their best shot at the All-Star game but didn't think about playing two sports for the UMSL championship.

In the last few years, the number of players who are playing two sports has increased. According to Coach DeBoo, this is because of the increased demand for athletes who can play two sports.

The UMSL softball team, for example, has a lot of players who are playing two sports. They are the ones who are the most successful and the ones who are the most likely to get a scholarship.

But, according to DeBoo, it's not a good idea to play two sports. He said that it's better to play one sport and focus on that.

There are a lot of reasons why it's better to play one sport. First, it allows you to focus on one game at a time. When you're playing two sports, you have to split your focus between the two games, which can make it harder to perform well in both.

Second, it's better for your overall health. When you're playing two sports, you're putting a lot of stress on your body. This can lead to injuries and can make it harder to recover.

Third, it's better for your mental health. When you're playing two sports, you have to deal with a lot of stress. This can lead to anxiety and depression.

In conclusion, it's better to play one sport and focus on that. It's better for your overall health and it's better for your mental health.
