UM President C. Peter Magrath announced that the university and colleges should be judged by the conclusion of the education they provide, not by minimal standards, and that major college accreditation sights would make more that miss eligible programs in their status.

Magrath said the comments mirror what the national accreditation made its report to the Council on Postsecondary Accreditation. Magrath headed the commission which gave its report to the 10th Anniversary of the Council.

We believe that accreditation in education should be further to provide the quality of education that our students demand and that our civic and political leaders demand," Magrath said.

Magrath also said that in addition filming more emphasis on accreditation sights and less emphasis on minimum standards in the educational programs should also pay attention to major sports programs.

"In the educational health and performance of a university, we need to know how the students in the area are doing, how they are doing well, how they are doing poorly, and how the university looks from a national societal," Magrath said.

Scottish professor Tom Magrath interviews Governor John Ashcroft on his new television series. Magrath said that college and university presidents need to take more active part in accreditation visits.

"Accreditation, for far more than it is today, should be used as a vehicle for evaluating the output of educational programs," Magrath said.

Debate Tournament To Be Held Oct. 11-12

The UMPL Debate and Dramatic Society in cooperation with the UMPL TV Film Production Club UMPL Media Relations and the department of Communication and Journalism will host the first annual Gateway Debate Tournament Saturday and Sunday in Clark Hall.

Nearly 80 students from 30 colleges and universities were expected to attend the event.

We are particularly pleased with this event since it creates a forum for a number of national-calibre teams attending our first tournament," said UMPL research and policy studies.

Seminole Southern Illinois University-Carbondale, the University of Miami in Coral Gables, Macalester College in St. Paul Minn., Central State University of Oklahoma, and student teams from Missouri Southern State College and the Missouri State University will highlight the 28-team field.

The final round of the tournament will take place in the television studio at 121 N. Pennsylvania St. and the annual awards assembly will place at noon in the main hall.

"While UMPL will not compete because we hesitate and this tournament will provide students at the university opportunities to develop their self-portraits," said UMPL editor.

We also are the UMPL Television relations office in Columbia will be responsible for officially producing the program by helping the guests developing process," said UMPL editor.

"We are responsible for the technical side of the program and miss the quality of the work. We are responsible for the program segments and the success quickly and ordering and ordering services," said UMPL editor.

Koplar will also provide distribution services in the television stations among the program.

According to Craig Koplar, associate director of University Relations, UMPL will try to help produce images in cooperation with the UMPL television station.

"They are the people who get the standard for us, we watch how they develop their leadership, and how they develop those talents that we want to see in students," Koplar said.

During the first program with Koplar, the governor described his philosophical leadership as "situation oriented."

Balance Your Time By Ranking Your Activities

PERSON TO PERSON

Choose your goals. List them in either the "A" or "C" categories. Focus your efforts on those categories. Now, look at your list again. The items in the "C" category should be the ones that you can eliminate, put off, or delegate to someone else.

"A" category should include those activities and tasks which are of prime importance to your success and peace of mind. This is where your time and energy should go.

A "B" list should be things you want to do. The "B" list should be those things which are important, but not of prime importance. The "A" and "C" categories are of three important low importance.

Next, revalue the items in your mind. Consider your door and take the phone off the hook. Let your family and friends know that these are the times when you need to study and will be unavailable. Let them know when you will be free.

Borrow yourself. When you complete a task or assignment, take a break and do something for yourself. This will help you relax and get ready for the next task ahead. And when you're walking back from the bathroom, be sure to use the hallway, not the main lobby.

Your "A" category should include things that you enjoy doing and that are important to you. Your "B" category should include things that are important to you, but not of prime importance. Your "C" category should include things that you can eliminate, put off, or delegate to someone else.

The Good, The Bad and The Ugly

by Dave Brown

A moment that began with great anticipation and feverish excitement with a whispery Sunday as the announcement of 6-1 to 1 for the Cubs

COMMENTARY

There were a few pleasant surprises to go along with the many disappointments. Let’s take a look back at the long 1989 season.

The Good

- Todd Worrell: Bood by collecting 36 saves and should soon be soliciting the Books of the Year Award for National League relievers. He was the best of those who pitched after Bob Forsch, when a new season.

- Bob Forsch: The deal of the steal, Forsch simply returning from a back injury in 1989. Forsch had been expected to return in 1989, but had five more victories, but poor relief efforts elsewhere.

- Connie Smith: Finished the season with a 18-6 batting average, the lead and the confidence to prove that he was not a defense, no offense. He had only 20 RBIs, but had a slow start due to a shoulder injury.

- Andy Van Slyke: Hit .317 and 52 RBIs in the field for a difficult day. He tied Tom Tierney for the team lead with 152 RBIs and hit .316 home runs to lead the majors. Van Slyke was one of the best in the game.

The Bad

- Willie McGee: Led the National League in hitting average and single-season home runs. He led the majors in hitting average and single-season home runs.

- Jack Clark: When you say .367 lead in the majors, but still made 3-3 record,.

- Terry Pendleton: A military service in the majors, he was at least 3-300 in the World Series. Pendleton was. Pendleton scored a run.

Kickers Struggle

The weather wasn’t the only thing that was hot during Thursday’s match when the UMSL women’s soccer team played Loyola.

Once again, the Riverwomen weren’t able to get the ball into the net. They have been shutout four times and scored only 11 goals in 40 games. Last year at this time the squad had scored 9 goals and were utilized only twice during the entire season.

"We had three or four breakaways," coach Ken Hudson said. "We should have put it on the back. But our legs were right of their goalkeeping. We’ve been consistent with that all year.

UMLS’s three big guns from a year ago have failed to produce goals and establish this year’s team. However, they have established a goal against the past seven days, outstripped only twice during the entire season.
