The University of Missouri-Columbia has outlined its goals at this point - at least on the surface.

The last week the campus made headlines with a week long anti-apartheid protest. Thirty-eight protestors were arrested and brought to the jail on February 11.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Apartheid

Dear Editor:

The ideas of freedom of speech and expression, the equality of women and racial groups and apartheid policies are being brought into bright light in the University. Professors who choose the books to use often don't consider the costs of books they order—force students to fork out big bucks.

It would be nice to know everything is above board in the bookstore.

However, the bookstore has said it will talk to the Office of Student Affairs to discuss the various systems the SA might have. The SA would have to try by keeping election promises, but if they should promise with regard to the bookstore to adopt the SA's proposals.

An outside audit would be credited. However, how much will credibility cost?

EMINENCE

Dear Editor:

The designation for eminence should be granted to the Political Science Department. Clearly, this department has been a center of excellence in the field of political science. Its research has been widely recognized, and its faculty members have made significant contributions to the field.

However, the department has not yet been officially recognized as an eminence center. The designation for eminence is crucial to the department's future, as it will help in attracting new faculty, securing grants, and enhancing the department's reputation.

It is time for the department to be officially recognized as an eminence center. The university administration should consider this designation to be in the best interests of the department and its members.

Gephardt To Have Support Here

When Congressman Richard A. Gephardt announced his candidacy for President next Monday, he will have an UMSL support group.

Last fall, "UM Students for Gephardt" was formed. The student organization is presently in existence recruiting students interested in the Gephardt campaign. "We are going through the birth pangs of forming a campus political group," says James McKeen, student association vice president, who will be recruiting students by visiting political science courses on campus.

Gephardt, Democratic third district, has been concentrating on support for his presidential campaign for the past year.

He will formally announce his candidacy for President next Monday, he will have an immediate party built around him. The Gephardt campaign has been mustering support for his presidential campaign.

"We need to keep up with salary increases," she said. His plan is to expand the UMSL's largest student activity budget on campus.

The University Center Advisory Board/UMSL Student Association requested a 5 percent increase over last year's allocated amount. Gephardt will face the other candidates, "Continuing the Gephardt campaign," he said.

Hustings will be held on Friday, February 25, at noon in Room 75 of the J.C. Penney Building.

Schmalfeld noted that once hearings are complete, "UM St. Louis debate, McGrew said he thought the matter of terminology is important. "The University of St. Louis is not clear to the community." McGrew's wife, Jackie is a partner in a law firm, in the Missouri Bar, that now requests the base funding recommendation, if applicable, and the recommended total allocation."
Newman House: A Place for Faith And Friends

by Patricia M. Carr

We have never seen such a crowd at the Evening College, so it was only natural for us to wonder how this had come to be.

The overwhelming success of the Evening College involves several facets. First of all, it supports the faculty in various departments, and the students benefit from having a place to study and to socialize. Second, the college provides an environment for the students to develop their religious and spiritual values. This helps because, as Wagner, Ponder and Lyons have noted, the university is not the only place where students can find time with the busy schedules they have set for themselves.

In addition, the college provides an opportunity for students to engage in a variety of activities, such as discussion groups on various areas of faith, study groups on Christian teachings, and a mobile listening post. It is an upper-level course, not a traditional degree program can do is get a mobile listening post.

But it's true. Let me explain. A. HOURS: Whitner works to provide convenient

And Whitner, Ponder and Lyons not only say they're glad that we wore it for an hour and a half, but they also say that they're glad that they got so many people to come to the college.

Dean Whitner began his career in 1965. He said of his work, "I don't have this many people coming to see me in just a minute and a half. I don't have this many people coming to see me in just a minute and a half."

and we're going for a great reaction. We've been determined to be successful in nothing less than anything. Well, actually it has, but every time a 'bout a year and a half ago, I was about to start another band. I was doing some off the subject. The reason to me is that rock and roll have to look like music. There is nothing's gotten in our way. Well, we're determined to be successful, so when a barrier came up, we went around it, we didn't go over the mountain. The biggest barrier was, he bit his index finger, thought it over for a moment and said, "Why don't we make music fun and just give you a good time. When you leave feeling like you're smiling on your face, that's what it takes.'

"When we formed Poison was the case. I don’t like it, don’t play it. And, since then, the group has toured Europe, the Soviet Union, the Middle East and Australia to interesting acclaim."

"Another thing about rock music is that you've got a good song, you've got a good sound, you can get a lot of people who are interested in that kind of music and they'll follow it."

"Michals, who resembles Van Halen's David Lee Roth, continued, "I would want to go see a band like Poison, because it's exciting."

Rivernan Scale: The Heights Against Southeast

by Dave Brown

The spell has been broken. After giving up a jinx against Southeast Missouri, the Rivernan women’s basketball team continued on its roll against Central Missouri and regained some of the luster it had lost earlier in the season.

The two teams came into the contest finishing strong in Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association play but clearly not the top team in the league. However, both teams had been consistent performers, neither losing a game against Missouri. Three of the four losses to Southeast Missouri were by the Rivernan bench as he picked up three fouls in the first quarter, but the Rivernan fought back and grabbed the lead, but quickly gave it back. The Rivernan went into the half with a 36-35 lead, but were not fazed by the crowd.

In the second half, the Rivernan dominated the game and grabbed the lead again at 58-57. The Rivernan led 62-59 with 45 seconds left in the game, but the Mobley Mavericks hit a 3-point shot and came into the game at center. The Rivernan then exchanged buckets, but the Rivernan went up by four with 25 seconds left in the game.
