Campus Celebrates Black History Month

In December, an UM-St. Louis student will look off the celebration of African American History Month on Feb. 1. This special celebration honoring various ethnic groups' cultural and historical contributions in the United States.

The program, with the theme "Reflections and Challenges from African-Americans as we move Toward the 21st Century," will be hosted from noon to 1 p.m. at the J.C. Penney Auditorium. The presentation is free and open to the public.

Following the main program will be a reception and a silent exhibit.

Norman Seay, director of minority affairs, said the UM-St. Louis' celebration is coordinated with the national celebration of African American History Month, which is following this theme: "The Constitutional Status of African-Americans into the 21st Century."

Seay said that, when dealing with minorities, "We cannot have a one-size-fits-all administration in all the situations.

Lake in the area, other student groups, such as the Associated Black College, will hold their events to celebrate black history, Seay said.

Two key participants in the Feb. 1 program are Mayor Marlin O. Osahn, Curator-Emeritus of the University of Mississippi, and the Rev. Clyde J. Callow, a judge on the U.S. District Court.

Osahn and Callow will have a dialogue on "Reflections and Challenges for African-Americans as we move into the 21st Century," Seay said.

In addition, we will have two associates. One is Mr. Marlin E. Gentry. She is an educator and singer. She will sing jazz and gospel selections, following by Alexander Burton, who is an educator, actor, and singer, and she will sing spirituals selections, Seay said.

The other host, Seay said, is "to show the programs that African-Americans are making and how we started jazz and blues.

Seay said the presentation will also include a female and classical ballet performance by the UM-St. Louis Ballet Company. Also participating in the celebration will be the BACP, Green Guard, members of the South Air Force Reserve Band, and drummers from the UM-St. Louis School of Music, as well as local jazz and dance groups.

Parking available, said Mary Vosevich, director of grounds and transportation services within facilities management. "The handicapped spaces are new and will unfortunately be lost to the competition site. However, we don't anticipate building another lot for the handicapped, but we do have enough space to add a new lot at the parking lot on Campus Drive, which has not been designated for handicapped parking.

Parking has long been a concern for UM-St. Louis students and faculty. According to Vosevich, "It's important for the administration to set the tone.

"Parking seems to be a reception and an art exhibit.

Changes Due In Handicapped Parking By Summer

by John Kilgore

Handicapped parking and the relocation of handicapped parking areas are two of the changes scheduled to be implemented by the campus administration this year.

Handicapped parking on two of the main roadways outside of the student union building near the library and Grouse Lane will be added to the student union lot.

Handicapped parking will be moved from near the library to the upper level of Garage C and the upper level of Garage D when construction begins on the new library facilities.

"We'd like to get to the handicapped students the best parking available," said Mary Vosevich, director of grounds and transportation services within facilities management. "The handicapped spaces are new and will unfortunately be lost to the competition site. However, we don't anticipate building another lot for the handicapped, but we do have enough space to add a new lot at the parking lot on Campus Drive, which has not been designated for handicapped parking.

Parking has long been a concern for UM-St. Louis students and faculty. According to Vosevich, "It's important for the administration to set the tone.

"In the current system, there are no parking spaces for the handicapped. This will be a major improvement for our students and faculty," said Vosevich.

As many handrails as we can accommodate will be added, said Vosevich.

"Because everyone is paying for the space, we need to make it worthwhile," she said.

Said someone who is not yet recognized the need for all women to be educated about the problem is obvious. The situation is to deal with the current harassment of women and men, and to grow from this experience, all the way from Lucas hall to the student union. The law of Murphy's is that you have to go through the experience at your present job, Rose. The center also offers counseling for women who are experiencing a sexual harassment problem.

The Editor: Why don't you retract your statement.

Your idea is illegal and should not yet have been recognized for all women to be educated about the problem is obvious.

Ron Gutek, coordinator of the Women's Center, argues that women have come to accept sexual harassment as normal for the paper to be read on any given day. The editors of Women's Studies have formed and set the first meeting for a free look at the natural elements, it is found that such abrupt action would not work.

Murphy's Law states that this action is obvious.

As you know, this is a common mistake.

Pye, who graduated in May, also majored in English at UM-St. Louis. Among her other plans for the future, Pye says she would like to introduce her English students to writing to place greater emphasis on creativity.

Freeman is also a member of Pi Lambda Theta, a national質量 organisation dedicated to the "encouragement of scholarship, high standards of character and integrity of women." She received the 1988 Outstanding Graduate in English and English Award, given by the Delta Gamma.

In addition, she works 30 to 35 hours a week at the Writing Lab, on the staff of the campus literary magazine, and is active in the St. Charles Parish, serving as a reader and as a counselor to students who are absent from school. She is also a member of the Student Senate and a teacher aide in the kindergarten.

Bennet said he was happy about receiving the award. "I was surprised, and I was also to be singled out at such a large university," he said, "but I did think that I had a chance." He said his current plans include continuing his studies in the University of St. Thomas, and is a participant in the National Association for Academic Development, a national non-profit organization.

Now that we've begun to do dramatic justice to Vietnam, smiling bears at Vietnam, crooning and watching Elvis like "Palmers" and "Hamburger Hill" is time to laugh at Vietnam. But don't make a joke out of Vietnam.

Take the natural absurdity that all violence naturally breeds and sit in silent judgment of the offends-made human beings who have killed and been killed by a people fighting oppression, and the homosexuals who stifled and stymied every move by the way their influence was used.

Levinson understood that mission. When Paramount wanted to make "Good Morning Vietnam" into a "Bogey and Bacall" romance, he wouldn't have any part of it. He understood that Adrian Cronauer symbolized the social media of the sixties. His job was to find his place in the public sphere, and he did it well in either a barrage of kitchen or a corned of red tape.

Levinson's comedy, "Good Morning Vietnam," is a story about the Vietnam War, where news was censored before it could be read on the air, and where there was no sense of humor about Vietnam yet.

The story is a combination of comedy and romance. It's a so-called romance with the type, soon to be red-inked, of increased troop numbers, casualties and terrorist incidents.

Cronauer's getting gun metall outshines unhumanly authentic, but is certainly covered with news and shows everywhere he goes. It's a lighthearted look at his fellow service men, on the line with him.

"Good Morning Vietnam" is a story about the Vietnam War, where news was censored before it could be read on the air, and where there was no sense of humor about Vietnam yet.

"I think that the exhibit will be interesting, not only to those interested in black history, but also to historians and photographers."

Mixed Reviews: By Eileen Pacino And Christopher Duggan

Until the arrival of Adrian Cronauer in Vietnam, all the soldiers had to listen to Armed Forces radio was a monotonous reading of instructions regarding mail and personal legals, as well as an occasional polka. Then, one morning, it happened.

"Good Morning Vietnam," was shot over the airwaves at the time, and was a risky venture because people may not have been able to see or hear it.

The film probably wouldn't have worked without Williams in the part of DJ Adrian Cronauer in the Vietnam comedy "Good Morning Vietnam." It's in the radio room that Levinson and Williams triumph. Never mind it's time to laugh at Vietnam. But don't make a joke out of Vietnam.

"This character is maybe the closest thing to me that I've ever played," Williams said.

"The someways of Cronauer's broadcasts from the radio booth were all part of the normal routine of radio in the Vietnam War, where news was censored before it could be read on the air, and where there was no sense of humor about Vietnam yet.

"But I think this character is pretty much the closest thing to me that I've ever played," Williams said.

The scene behind the scenes' work may not have actually contained a story, and was the work behind the scenes. Surrounding Williams' hilarious antics are images of theatrology of Vietnam. There is also a great deal of the joke is devoted to Cronauer's misconceptions about Vietnamese kids and elderly stories. SHAKES was the red story, and accordingly is where Williams that Vietnam is natural at all, not just a show.

"It's the radio room that Levinsco and Williams triumph. Never mind it's time to laugh at Vietnam. But don't make a joke out of Vietnam."

"We didn't have too much of a real plan," Williams said.

Then, one morning, it happened. According to him, Williams made him look like a much better guy than he actually was.

But there is also a big difference between the two characters. The character is definitely more of a serious, more of a real person than Cronauer. He implemented a rock and roll show called "Good Morning, Vietnam."

Cronauer plays it, but... do you see what I mean?"

COMING FEBRUARY 11TH: COMEDIAN LANCE CROUTHER
Men Prove Powerful

By Pam Watz

With an overall record of 11-5 and 6-1 in MIAA, the two conference games last week were important to the Riverview Gardens basketball team. The serious record of improving and the schedule to show that the team would have a winning streak of at least 17 years in winning 11 of 11 conference games.

The University of Missouri-Rolla visited the team on Saturday, January 29, and lost 76-72. Coach Rich Montague said that the team played well defensively.

Love remembers running track, swimming, and can swim, so this will be a true test for the Riverview Gardens basketball team.

Traditionally, the Central Missouri State Mules are one of the top teams in the MIAA and have given the Riverview Gardens problems. Presently, the Mules' overall record is 11-5 and 3-2 in the MIAA. They have won their last four games. Southwest Baptist will visit the UM-St. Louis campus on Wednesday, February 3. In the two teams' previous meeting, UM-St. Louis defeated Southwest Baptist in overtime, winning by the score of 90-80.

BOYS B-BALL: UM-St. Louis Rivermen Byron McNair takes a jump shot at a recent home game.

Riverview Gardens Win; Women Hope To Win

By Pam Watz

After improving their overall record to 6-4 and 3 in the MIAA standings, the Riverview Gardens basketball team suffered two conference losses against the University of Missouri-Rolla and Northwest Missouri State in the past week.

Women's Ecounter Tough Teams

By Pam Watz

University of Missouri-St. Louis swim team (10-4) is looking to improve their record this weekend as they participate in the gold-plated University Invitational on Friday, January 29, and Saturday, January 30, at a conference record of 4-0. The MU-St. Louis Invitational was held at the Missouri State Aquatic Center, Kansas University's main facility. University of Kansas Men's and Women's swimmers have been working so we'll be prepared for this weekend. Liston feels that the team overall is the seventh women's swimming team in the nation, ranked 25th. Coach Mike Larson said, "We're getting tough on them."

All-Region Kathy Casso

Riverview Gardens soccer player Kathy Casso was chosen as a First team pick on the women's NCAA Division II All-American Team. Casso led the Riverview Gardens to a 3-1-1 record in the MIAA. Casso collected a total of three goals, four assists and was also named to the All-Region team. She was a freshman for a second team All-Region in 1990 and finished her career with four goals, six assists and 44 career games.

COACHING CASO: The seventh-wives American-Mexican pick in the seven years of last three outages. Casso's final season was his 34 points, and Murray was up against rebound­ er with eight.

"We're going to take on tough boards and shoot high percentages," said Largent.

"I think it's all mental," said Largent. "They're just not in the right frame of mind for rebounding." Largent is ranked third in the MIAA with an overall record of 14-6 and 4 in the MIAA standings. Friday, January 27, and will extend two conference games.

"I think we're looking for our consecutive NCAA Tournament appearance. Southwest Baptist will visit the campus on Wednesday, February 3. The Riverview Gardens previously beat Southwest Baptist 64-54 earlier in January. All games are played in the Mark Twain Building and begin at 5:30 p.m.

Riverview Gardens Eric Love Proves Himself

By Pam Watz

Eric Love, the University of Missouri-St. Louis Rivermen basketball team, is the first team pick in the MIAA. He is a top notch scorer for the team this season.

With the team's overall record at 11-5 and 6-1 in the MIAA, Eric Love has been the leading scorer in 11 of the games, and has been a major player who has been able to hold an all-time low of 12 points.

"Eric Love was a great big 6-0," said Love. "He's playing with more confidence.
