Tax Crisis Threatens Fees

by Kevin Klune managing editor

In response to Missouri's tax crisis and a thread of budget cuts, the University Senate discussed means to increase student fees but decided to table further discussion.

"Asking the university's employees to bear the brunt of the state's tax crisis is unfair to the students as well as to the faculty," said Representative Chafin. "Our job is to ensure that every dollar counts, and that's why we need to continue to talk about the issue." Klune said.

The resolution was referred to the Finance Committee for further discussion.

Two Alumni Make A Passage To India

by John Kilgroi managing editor

Two UM-St. Louis graduates will begin a journey to India this spring. The students, John Lee and Anna Smith, are Webster Groves, a high school near the university.

The graduates, John Lee and Anna Smith, both students of the university's graduate programs, will travel to India for two weeks on a trip organized by the university's graduate programs. The trip will focus on cultural exchange and community service.

Lee and Smith said they are excited about the opportunity to experience India and its rich culture. "We've been looking forward to this trip for a long time," Lee said.

The trip will begin in New Delhi and include visits to Delhi, Agra, and Jaipur. The students will also have the opportunity to participate in cultural events and meet with local residents.

"It's a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity," Smith said. "We're really looking forward to it."

MIRTH DAY ‘89: Students Celebrate As Exams Draw Near

FUN IN THE SUN: Clockwise from top, A giant sea of sand transformed a back lot into a scene from a beach blanket bingo movie. Children from UMSL's daycare enjoy the day with balloons and soda. Students line up to take pets at golf. Two girls bask in the warmth of the mid-day sun. A mad skater demonstrates a new version of an old way to travel. The Fabulous T-Birds entertained the masses. A Ferris Wheel gave students a new perspective on campus life.

Stan, The Idea Man

by Pauline S. Bariaro

features editor

In the middle of his most recent creative surge, Stan Colona, a freelance journalist and a published features editor for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, has found himself receiving unsolicited help from unexpected quarters. The latest of these occurrences involved a young man whose presence has not only provided Colona with a fresh perspective on his work, but has also helped to further solidify the journalist's reputation as an idea man.

Colona, who has been described as having "an ailment" of generating ideas, has been known to wear a red, white, and blue baseball cap, a symbol of his love for Americana and folktales. Despite his sometimes chaotic approach to life, Colona has a remarkable ability to turn his talents to good use, and his latest inspiration has come from an unlikely source.

Colona was approached by a young man named Bobby Nordahl, who had heard of Colona's reputation and decided to try to offer his own ideas to the journalist. Colona was initially skeptical, but Nordahl's enthusiasm and the quality of his ideas soon won him over. Nordahl has been living with Colona and his family for the past few weeks, and has impressed everyone with his creativity and energy.

"I think we have a wonderful coming together of creativity here," Colona said. "Bobby has a lot of ideas, and I think we can learn a lot from each other."

Colona's latest project is a series of stories that he is working on, which he hopes will be published in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. The stories will be based on the work of Bobby Nordahl and will be a reflection of his unique perspectives.

Colona's ability to think creatively and to see the world in new ways is a testament to his talent and his passion for storytelling. His latest project is a wonderful example of how ideas can be brought to life and how creativity can be shared.

"I think we are all idea men," Colona said. "We just need to find the right people to work with."

Rivernemen Baseball Team Secure Berths in Playoffs

By Greg Abner

The baseball Rivermen swept their weekend doubleheader over the weekend, outscoring them 19-10 in the two games. The team came into the weekend with a record of 3-3 and 2-3 in MIAA play. The team lost to St. Louis on Wednesday by scores of 6-3 and 1-0.

The team had played well in their previous two games, scoring 11 runs in each of those contests. However, they struggled against the Riverwomen, scoring only one run in the first game and four in the second. The team was were able to win both games, scoring 10 runs in the second game of the doubleheader.

The team is now preparing for the MIAA tournament, which begins at the end of the month. The team hopes to advance to the championship game and win the tournament.

Dear Fellow Students:

It has been a tremendous privilege to serve as your Student Body President with this being the 25th Anniversary of UM-St. Louis and the 150th Anniversary of the University of Missouri as a land grant institution.

This past year has been both an exciting and what I would argue is the most successful year in the history of student government on our campus. The following is just a few of the projects which originated and were completed under my administration, and that will bring exciting benefits for students in the years to come.

1.) Entrance into the Associated Students of the University of Missouri (ASUM) - After a full year of intense negotiation we joined this successful student lobbying organization which now represents the four unified student bodies of the University of Missouri, and now has the legislative voice of representing all 55,000 students in our University System.

2.) Creation of a State of the Art IBM Student Computer Center - Expected to be completely functional by the Fall of 1989, this facility will be housed in a completely remodeled area adjacent to the Executive Offices of the SGA, and will contain the most advanced IBM Super Workstations and accompanying hardware, to perform the most complicated users needs involving mathematical, engineering, financial, and even graphic applications.

3.) And Finally, The Expansion of the Mark Twain Complex - As I promised in my campaign to you last year, I was going to personally become involved in a referendum movement to raise the $1.6 million dollars necessary to convert this 17 year old antiquated facility into a world class health facility that would be an attractive area for student interacting and retaining the highest quality students, who realize that a healthy body creates a healthy mind.

As you can see, this has been both a successful, busy, and long year. Once again I would like to thank you for the privilege it has been serving as your representative, and I want to wish each and everyone of you a successful and fulfilling future.

Sincerely,

[Signature]

Serious about coaching softball for as long as she can. She was on the softball team in her high school years. Vogler had heard about coaching in 2084 when softball coach Mike Larson at St. Louis University and Lincoln University were talking to Vogler about softball coaching. Nothing was definite at the time, but interviews were being arranged.

The thought of coaching at UM-St. Louis, however, kept Vogler thinking more and more about returning to her alma mater.

Looking for a Part-Time Job?

Looking for Tuition Scholarships?

Next game against Rolla. The team have set or are on the verge of breaking school records. Hartmann has moved to top of Missouri Valley Conference in batting average, doubles pitching by Vogler. The record is 53.

Vogler adds. "There's been a lot of headaches, but its really rewarding."

About selling your used textbooks!!!

Used Books

Current editions in good condition are worth 50% of the list price for books being used next term on this campus until the bookstore quota is reached. Afterwards, the price you receive is based on a nationally used textbook guide. The list price is determined by the publisher, not the bookstore.

Old Editions

Since most textbooks are revised every three to four years, old editions have no value. It’s to your advantage to sell them as soon as they are no longer needed. Selling your used textbooks enables another student to purchase books at the used price.

Paper Backs

Because of their limited lifespan, paperbacks (also called Tradebooks) earn 10-20% of the list price which is shown on the front or back cover of the book.

• Instructors decide which books will be used each semester.
• If a book is not being used at this college, the buyback price is determined according to the demand for the same book on other college campuses.
• Used books are sold in the bookstore at approximately 75% of the list price.
• Bring your used textbooks to the bookstore on the dates shown in the ad and turn them in for Cash.

Higher Taxes, Not Higher Fees

The phrase "increased taxes" has become somewhat taboo in Missouri over the last few years, but luckily we have a governor who doesn't think things off until the last minute rather than neglecting the issue totally.

When Governor John Ashcroft proposed an increase in cigarette and corporate franchise taxes he reluctantly, but necessarily, broke the taboo. Without more taxes, higher tuition fees are mandatory, he said.

Education leaders like CBRE President Avis Tucker, UM System President C. Peter Magrath and UM-St. Louis Chancellor Margaret R. Barnett all agreed that cuts of this magnitude would be devastating.

The students of this and other UM campuses should be grateful that the governor promised not to cut education in favor of a possible tax hike or a plan for more student fees. Without more taxes, higher tuition fees are mandatory.

With the sudden burst of hot weather, it seems like finals should already be over. But, alas, we may have to quite literally wade through the our examinations in buildings without air conditioning until later in the semester.

With this our last issue, we at the Current are certainly glad that we can at last make an effort to do some homework for a change. We don't doubt that many student leaders feel much the same, with the last week of finals well underway.

It's been a good year for UM-St. Louis — notwithstanding several nagging tuition threat mentions of the state budget and 20 employees has been section together. Cathy has also been the one who has grown the problems as they arose, the one to move on.

To all students, we wish you good luck.
The recent abortion issue has become a hot button issue in the nation. People are passionate about the issue and are willing to voice their opinions. This passion has led to a great deal of controversy and debate. People on both sides of the issue have strong feelings and are willing to defend their views. This has led to a great deal of conflict and division. However, it is important to remember that the issue is complex and that there are no easy answers. Each person must take the time to consider the issue carefully and to listen to the views of others. Only then can we hope to find a solution that is fair and just for all.
