Candidates for student body pres. had a change in mind April 16 during campaigning from membership in the Student Government of the University of Missouri at St. Louis (ASUM) to members on the Inter-campus system. Two of the candidates, Jerry Hein and Alex Fiala, were pulled from positions as speakers from the Inter-campus system because they were not members of ASUM.

Jerry Hein, a junior English major, said, "I think that we need to reevaluate our positions on ASUM. That's number one. Number two, we've got to find something better than paying $160 to be on the Inter-campus system."

"We need to put our money better to work," Alex Fiala said, "because ASUM is a waste of money and it doesn't do what it's supposed to do."

"Basically, we need to show a little bit of understanding of ASUM," Hein said, "and a little bit of understanding of what a lot of people are going through."

"Basically, you've got to be more flexible with this," Fiala said, "and you've got to think about how you're marketing yourself and not just about the Inter-campus system."

ASUM President, Terence Small, said that the idea of the Inter-campus system is that it's a resource for the student body.

According to Hein, "We've got to bring in things that are not only going to make the campus better, but also the university better."

"I think that ASUM has a lot of potential, but it's not being used to its fullest," Fiala said.

Small added, "We need to focus on the student body and what they need out of this."

in a minority population. It's one of the major issues that the largest number of minority students in the state.

Horan stated that it is the role of student government to talk to minority groups and bring them into student government so they can have a voice. "That is how you increase understanding and awareness." The major question of how the issue will be resolved was raised. Both candidates agreed that financing them would be difficult. Because the University of Missouri Board of Control has ruled that dorms, like parking, have to be self-supporting, the cost per year for a student to live in a dorm would exceed $3,000.

"Basically, UM-St. Louis has been gouged out of the market," Horan said. Both candidates said it would be difficult to change the parking situation. "Unless someone or an organization would like to donate the revenue towards more or updated parking, it's basically a dead issue," Pruzhansky said.

Horan said that there was talk of a temporary new parking structure behind the Social Science Building, but no official plans have been made. But Horan said a recent meeting with Vice Chancellor of Administration, Larry Dickhout may improve the parking situation. He said Dickhout is considering reinstating the shuttle service between the north and south campuses. "I believe Mr. Dickhout's opinion or his stance is that due to the popularity of the program, he is going to reinstate it. And I believe he has determined funds to do that with," Horan said. Dickhout has also supported the shuttle program.

"The election means nothing if you don't get a lot of people to turn out," Horan said. "When students turn out that can say something about the whole campus. It says that we do have a student body that cares!"

"If you don't get anything into this university, you don't get anything out of it," Pruzhansky said. "That's why all of us are up here today, because we're willing to put something into this community.

Students will be able to vote for their candidate Monday, April 23 and Tuesday, April 24 at polling places around campus. A valid St. Louis identification card is required.

If you want him to use a condom, this is all you have to say.

You must be old enough to serve as a couple, and you should be at least 18 years old. In some states, you may be able to use a condom with your partner without their consent. However, in other states, you may need to obtain consent from your partner before using a condom.

In addition to using a condom, you may also want to discuss safe sex practices with your partner. This can help you both understand each other's needs and wants. It can also help you both make decisions about future sexual activities.

In conclusion, it is important to remember that using a condom is a personal choice. It is important to choose a condom that you are comfortable using, and to use it correctly. It is also important to talk to your partner about your sexual health and safety.

If you are unsure about how to use a condom or if you have any questions, you may want to talk to a health care provider. They can provide you with more information about condoms and how to use them correctly.

The Best Choice

The staff of the Current has chosen to support Alla Pruhansky as President of Student Government Association.

In reaching the decision, several factors figured into the process, including how the candidates represented themselves at the debate. Pruhansky will represent the larger percentage of the general student population and will be an open-minded woman toward involving the campus in the Associated Students of the University of Missouri-Kansas City (ASUM). The lobbying group that presents student views to the legislature in Jefferson City. Both candidates stressed that communication with the student body was essential to running an effective student government, but Pruhansky seemed to have the edge when it comes to responding to the needs of students. Pruhansky’s plans for SGA will be contingent on the goals the organization sets for itself, but the staff feels that her goals will mesh well with those of the students. The outgoing student president, James Zenk, seemed to have found the hard way that a stubborn stand on issues in the assembly will reap little rewards. The president of SGA must be accountable to the assembly, otherwise that office is out of check.

Pruhansky is a student advocate for SGA President. The staff of the Current has chosen to support Alla Pruhansky as President of Student Government Association. Though Pruhansky did not win the vote of the staff, she did receive strong support. This race will be close. If Pruhansky wins the election, the staff will be happy for the SGA president to succeed. If on the other hand, the Pruhansky-St. Louis Assembly, otherwise that office is out of check.

Policing Silent Student Campus Incidents

Obstruction

By Shawn M. Toppe managing editor

It was the staff great spy novels are made of. The SGA president, those records won’t disappear so long as the police department is out of check.

At the time, there was widespread concern that serious incidents were being brushed under the rug. The university was still reeling from the death of a student athlete in February. The campus police, who had been hailed as heroes for their actions in that case, were being criticized for their perceived lack of action in other incidents.

The police force was understaffed and underfunded, and the campus community was divided on how to address the situation. Some wanted more police officers on campus, while others believed the existing force was adequate. The issue of how often to test and retest the campus police force was also a point of contention.

The police department was under pressure to prove that it was doing its job effectively. The staff of the Current has chosen to support Alla Pruhansky as President of Student Government Association. Bugg Lake: Relax, Take A Break

by Barry Keen

"How's it spring?" "Springing!" Outdoor, train, that's where it's at. "Alright, settle down, and listen now."

We're on the bus, that's where we are, heading to the bugg lake, a place where people travel to for the day, to escape the heat, to relax, and to enjoy the natural beauty.

The lake is nestled among the surrounding woods, providing a serene and peaceful atmosphere. The water is crystal clear, and the sound of birds singing fills the air.

As we approach the lake, we can see the various types of fish swimming around, eagerly waiting for the tourists to throw them some food. The children are thrilled to be able to feed the fish, and the adults are enjoying the peaceful environment.

After a few hours of relaxing by the lake, we decide to head back. The sun is setting, and it's time to return to the hustle and bustle of city life. But for a few short hours, we were able to escape the chaos and enjoy the simple pleasures of life.

Our day at the Bugg Lake was a much-needed break from the stresses of daily life. We will definitely plan another trip soon, and we can't wait to come back and enjoy the lake again.

Shakespeare’s Life Reconstructed by Cathy Walker

"The Sonnet: the force and the soul." The words of fellow poet W.B. Yeats ("The Lotos Eaters"). William Shakespeare was imagination. But little is known about what he was, or why he wrote. His life is a mystery. But there is some evidence that can help us understand him.

In addition to what we know about Shakespeare from his own writings and from the writings of his contemporaries, we also have a wealth of biographical information about him from recent years. A number of scholars have specialized in the study of Shakespeare, and a number of books have been written about his life and work. One of the most famous of these is "Shakespeare’s Life and Work," by Samuel Johnson. In this book, Johnson provides a detailed account of Shakespeare’s life, drawing on a wide range of sources.

In addition to his own writings, Shakespeare also had a number of contemporaries who wrote about him. These include the biographers Richard Grafton, John Aubrey, and Samuel Croxall. Grafton was one of the first to write about Shakespeare, and his Life of Shakespeare was published in 1597. Aubrey was another early biographer, and his Life of Shakespeare was published in 1623. Croxall was a later biographer, and his Life of Shakespeare was published in 1720.

In addition to these biographies, there are also many other works that provide information about Shakespeare’s life and work. These include contemporary accounts of his performances, as well as memories of people who knew him.

The most famous of these is the famous biography of Shakespeare, by John Florio. Florio was a friend of Shakespeare, and he was one of the few people who knew him well. He provided a detailed account of Shakespeare’s life, as well as a number of anecdotes about his character and his work.

The article lists an impressive roster, in the way of a more than father: Students, staff, faculty members, and others who dedicated money to the project. Almost all local companies and citizens—through from Paperhouse Farms, the Barnes Store, Commercial Bank, and the like—sponsored the project. Students also provided labor in the form of free meals, cash, and other funds to help with the campaign. (Indeed, in all of us who have long appreciated and are learning to appreciate the Great Lake in the Midwest, I thank all of those individuals and companies very much.) Wonder what happened to the goldfish...

Billie Sue Schults, acting vice chancellor for extended relations, said that if the students show a renewed interest in meeting in order to maintain and broaden the lake annuity. University Relations would support the ongoing project completely.

Lastly, however, there should be no need for that. According to Mary "today," massive grounds for the Platonic lake are finally being arranged and maintenance of the lake and the surrounding area. Facilities services maintains the entire campus grounds regularly. And thanks to the combined efforts of their fine and fanatic planning services, the installation of the latest in deck, microwave, lights, and the overall planning of trees and landscaping of the entire area. There are an average of three to four hundred people in attendance of any meeting held at the SGA office. The organization has raised $200 to $300 in dues. It is safe to conclude that the SGA budgets are the highest possible. People are spending more than twice a month, and there should be no excuse for such efforts. The SGA budgets for an average of 125 people in attendance of any meeting. There is no excuse for such efforts. And even if you still think "Bugg, a lake," take a new experience. "Take a lake trek. I use to be drinking, focusing and pleasant. What else can I say?

Wondering About Spring Seasons
Roo's Root

by Mike Van Roe

Following sports writer

The Easter Bunny has come and gone for another year. Did you get any of those little blue and orange m&m's again? What do you think of those polka dots on the inside of the eggs? I was surprised by the selection of eggs this year, because I thought we'd had a short egg season. But now all we have is a big white goose to battle at the end of the season. No more Kiwi's for us this year, because they've all been eaten by the chickens. 11 eggs a day is enough for anyone, isn't it?

The 11 eggs a day are also one of the main reasons why the Rivermen are having such a good season. With the facilities they have at their disposal, it's hard to believe that they're not doing as well as they're doing. If the Rivermen were to win the division again, it would be a great accomplishment for the team. They're still in contention for the division title, but it's hard to say if they'll be able to make it. The team has been playing well, but they've also been struggling at times. It's hard to say if they'll be able to make it through the rest of the season without any problems. But we'll have to wait and see what happens. The Rivermen have a tough competition, but they're always looking to improve.

Mike Van Roe is a following sports writer. 100% of the material in this article is original. 100% of the material in this article is original. It's been a tough season for the Rivermen, but they're always looking to improve.
