New Staff Strives for Success

Salutations from the Current, your integral link to campus affairs.

The start of the semester is like the start of a New Year. Everyone has a resolution: to make the Dean’s List, to make the varsity soccer team, to say “hi” to that friend in the Undergrad and the list goes on.

Some dedicated individuals actually achieve their goals while others simply drift through their college career, putting aside their dreams and aspirations when the going gets tough. Although most of the staff is relatively inexperienced, they have an excellent grasp of what it means to run a newspaper.

Without any further ado, I’ll introduce the editorial/managerial staff of the 1990-91 Current.

Brian Habr, also known as Guyet Van Habrter, is the managing editor. Brian is the Current’s token English major as well as an Education major. When asked what goals he had in mind for this year, “I’m going to wear my shirt and my new tie. When people ask me if I work for the Current, I’m going to say, ‘Yeah, I’m damn proud of it!’”

Greg Albers, the Business Director, is an accounting major but frequently doubles as the columnist in Elvis Hotline. “I want to be filthy rich. I want to make money, lots of money.”

Melissa Green, the sports editor, will also be serving as the集成电路 editor. Melissa is a Communications major. “wants to get a practicum program going with the Communications Department.”

Nicole Menke, and Eng Yapp, agree that they would like to be a rocker for K-CMS 90. “I’m going to wear my shirt and my new tie.”

The photography staff, which consists of Michelle McMurray, Nicole Menke, and Eng Yapp, agree that they would like to produce lots of photographs. So far, they’ve got a big jump on updating and increasing file photos.

Because of space restraints, I’ll have to end the introductions there.

As the editor, I have many goals for this year. Some of the most important are to make this newspaper into a viable information resource that students can confidently turn to in order to find out who’s, what’s and why’s of this campus, help the staff achieve all of their goals, get a desk top publishing system, and finish the year without anymore grey hairs.

The staff invites you to read the Current weekly. I challenge you to react to it. If you read something you agree or disagree with, drop a letter into one of the Classified Boxes located around campus. If you have a lead or can add to a story, call our office at 553-5174. We look forward to hearing from you.

Interim Chancellor Says 'Hello Students'

It is with great pleasure that I welcome you to the University of Missouri-St. Louis. The opening of a new school year is an exciting time for all of us. I wish you success as you pursue your educational goals. I am sure that you will enjoy your time here on our beautiful campus. There are many cultural and social activities available that will help make your stay an enjoyable experience. I would urge you to explore those that might coincide with your interests.

As a student at the University of Missouri-St. Louis, you will be pleased to know that our institution stands in the forefront as a leader among the nation's urban, research universities. A traditional land-grant university, UM-St. Louis is committed to teaching, research and public service. At the same time, programs and initiatives have been placed to assist in preparing our students to meet the challenge of the new technological and highly competitive world of the 21st century.

This year will bring increased computerization to the campus. Also you will have the opportunity to experience the new addition to the Jefferson Library, dedicated just this past spring and enjoy the newly renovated Mark Twain Physical Education Complex soon to be opened. Being a part of a dynamic, growing campus will be exhilarating as well as challenging. We will all be working together to meet the challenges of the new technological and highly competitive world of the 21st century.

President Stresses Importance of Education

Dear Colleagues:

These are exciting and demanding times in our nation and in the world. Conditions at home and abroad underscore the importance of higher education to the quality of life and to the economic and cultural development of our state and our United States.

The beginning of the academic year is unequalled for its energy, Its optimism and its vision of what we, as an academic community, are about.

To those of you who are new to the University of Missouri-St. Louis and to the University of Missouri System, I extend my warm welcome and best wishes. To those students, faculty and staff members who are returning to UM-St. Louis, I wish a successful and productive year on an urban campus recognized for its achievements and its tremendous promise.

In the meanwhile, Interim Chancellor Blanche Touhill and I will continue to work for the state investment in higher education necessary for Missouri to realize the full potential of its invaluable human resources. Cordially,

C. Peter Magrath
Welcome to the wonderful world of Woods Hall. Located just north of Natural Bridge Road, it is where students can find a relaxed, studious environment. The hall is known for its comfortable atmosphere and personal touch. Students can find a range of academic and social activities to engage in, from study sessions to social events.

Many students come to Woods Hall for its excellent facilities and comfortable living environment. The hall is known for its spacious rooms and comfortable furniture, as well as its access to a variety of amenities, such as a fitness center, study lounges, and a library.

The hall is also home to a number of student organizations, including the Woods Hall Student Government Association, which works to improve the living conditions of students in the hall.

Overall, Woods Hall is a great place to live and study for any student looking for a comfortable and supportive living environment.

A hint to get that second row. Food and beverages are allowed in this room. Although an appointment isn't necessary, students call the Joy Whitener scholarship is available for Evening students. "Some students get discouraged with what they need to graduate. They're booked up for a month," said Administrative Secretary Brenda Larger. "There's getting out of the English requirement, so they can fill it up quickly and... we're constantly scrutinizing," she said. "Students shouldn't plan ahead and anticipate. Preparation is a good idea."

"If you don't pre-register, forget about taking and communication classes," - Christopher Castellanos

Outside the office hangs a bulletin board with notices about writing opportunities for scholarships, short stories for independent films, graduate school, playing certains, workshops, and anything else that concerns writing. History Department - room 404

Students learning to avoid the mistakes of the past should come here to be drilled on avoiding the mistakes of past students. A secretary can guide a student to a history advisor and offer informational brochures on degree programs.

Going Greek Is A New, Exciting Experience

The UM-St. Louis Greek system is comprised of eight organizations that are enthusiastically involved and dedicated to the betterment of student life and the UM-St. Louis community.

Delta Sigma Theta Sorority was the first sorority on campus. They were founded in 1913 and have a chapter at UM-St. Louis. The sorority promotes self-improvement and progress among its members as well as involvement in the community.

Delta Zeta Sorority was founded in 1902 and is one of the oldest sororities on campus. They are known for their community service projects and their emphasis on academic excellence.

Delta Chi Fraternity was founded in 1886 and is one of the oldest fraternities on campus. They are known for their involvement in philanthropic activities and their commitment to academic success.

The Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity is a Brotherhood that focuses on leadership, scholarship, and professional development. They are dedicated to providing opportunities for personal growth and professional success.

Theta Chi Fraternity is a social fraternity that focuses on leadership, scholarship, and personal growth. They are known for their community service projects and their emphasis on academic excellence.

Sigma Pi Fraternity is a social fraternity that focuses on leadership, scholarship, and personal growth. They are known for their community service projects and their emphasis on academic excellence.

Attention Evening Students of UM-St. Louis

Early in the twentieth century Albert Einstein formulated his theory of relativity, which dealt with the relationship of energy and matter at a certain critical speed. Late that same century, Ed Mock, President of the Evening College Council, found that it applied directly to persons attending UM-St. Louis as an evening student. That is, one should apply his or her energy to what matters to them. Join the Evening College Council and we shall discover what matters are relative to the evening student.

permit attached to the vehicle in the proper place,” Pickens said. “If an emergency arises and we need to find a particular person, we can do so with the information the sticker provides.”

Pickens said the parking permit should be permanently affixed to the lower left side of the rear window on standard automobiles. Convertibles, station wagons, vans and trucks should have the stickers affixed to the lower right-hand side of the windshield. Pickens also said the permit must be attached by its adhesive, not by a piece of tape, or the vehicle will not be considered properly registered.

Students should be aware that their permits will allow them to park in the daily-parking lot and a fee will be charged at the gate. Those who need to park at the South Campus, or the Moore Building should go to the Campus Police office to obtain a parking permit.

If, during the course of the semester, you incur a parking violation, you can pay all fines at the Cashier’s Office, or the violations can be appealed. Appeals must be made by filing a written appeal at the Campus Police station within two weeks of receiving the ticket. Failure to pay violations will result in a hold on your scholastic records.

The campus police do not just pass out parking tickets during the course of the school year. Pickens said the police offer a variety of helpful services to the campus community, including an Emergency Service, Monday thru Thursday from 7 AM to 11 PM, and Fridays from 9 to 5.

“The number to call on campus for jump starts, tire changes, battery charges, gasoline or water, anything to get a student on their way is 553-5153,” Pickens said.

Pickens also said the police will be providing whistles free of charge this semester to further promote campus safety. Pickens said that while police officers may not be able to hear anything suspicious, police also patrol the campus handouts, with hotline that goes directly to the police department. The red phones are located inside and outside of most campus buildings.

The campus police also provide2 engraving for the bike or vehicle as an added deterrent to theft.

Kiddie Care is Thriving as the South Campus Surprise

by Brad Touchette
Special Assignments Editor

For many women, children are the main reason they never make it back to college. The mere thought of class would be enough incentive to loving little kids just so you can take six hours of class and be enough incentive to remain illiterate.

Take this test.

Looking for a job with great pay—at a competitive salary? With flexible hours? Offering valuable training and business experience? Interested in the free use of a personal computer? Are you a Sophomore or above? Full-time student? Computer familiar? With at least a B average?

EOE Never Again.

Hiring Now For Fall
576-6868
EEO Never A Fee

Reasons like these are just a few miles away from your schedule as well as the financing of these "why buy?" incentives here in the MSU Child Development Center. The center is located in the South Classroom Building of the Marriott campus, just down the hall from the School of Nursing. Its main operating area is a well-equipped nursery. They also have a large play-ground just outside for those sunny days. The gym is decorated by colorful corraply walls, tall, wooden stools displaying the children's artistic performances, and smiling faces of both children and teachers alike.

"The Academic Affairs Department was responsible for the funding for the renovation," adds Thompson. "We're waiting for a State Inspector to give us our exam. Once we get our state license, we'll be able to get more funding from elsewhere."

Student receive discounts, but they take children from outside the university as well as students' and faculty's children. The rates depend on the number of hours and days you deposit your little fledgling there and how old each child is. The children are kept within their own age groups, and learn through playing and thinking-out-elders. The teachers use the child's talents to promote learning. "Children here learn a lot and have fun while doing it," comments Thompson. "The whole philosophy is centered around encouraging and supporting each child to grow in their full potential in all areas of development.

During the day, the center accepts children ages six to five years. The children get breakfast, lunch, and a snack during their stay. They also have social interaction skills—something vital in a child's development. They also have an evening program in which they will take children ages 2 to 12 years. The center's hours are very flexible, although you can't just drop the kid off for an hour and pick him or her up at hour later. You wouldn't want to anyway, since you're paying for a full day of care. The center holds majors specializing in early childhood development where observe and participate in the child care for their practicum. The center also hires outside help, and Thompson says there are a few openings for this summer.

"Many parents going to UM-St. Louis find our service invaluable," says Thompson. "They and their children gain learning experience from attending school here. Finally, leaves you with a good feeling."

For more information concerning rates, hours, and employment opportunities, call Lisa Thompson at 553-5083, or just stop by and check the place out for yourself.

Get Caught Up In The Current
"Seeing Is Believing" - It Can Tickle The Optical Nerves

by Brad Touchette
Special Assignments Editor

Have you found yourself squinting when sitting in the back of the class? Have you been running into trouble while driving at night? How about that helpless feeling when getting assaulted by a barrage of sly words that you swore you never saw coming? "Life is worth seeing," is the slogan of the Optometry Eye Care Clinic, located on the U-M St. Louis south campus, inside the optometry building. And if you fall into one of these previously listed categories, it may be time for a checking up on those peepers.

Now your first concern will obviously be financing this optical occasion. Before you start whining about your lack of money, listen to the disconsolate peepers off the lucky students.

If you were just Joe Nobody and walked in to the clinic, they would be forced to charge you a whole $34 dollars (Ooh no!). But, as a student, you can expect to pay $9. This 70% discount should be more than enough incentive. It's O.K. I defy this.

The Health - Sciences Library: Geared For Medical Study

by Chiwetta McRae

If you enjoy studying in hand-hewn surroundings and are interested in opuscolary or nursing, the Health Sciences Library is the place to go. Located in the heart of the Optometry building on 3rd fl. Lower south campus and decorated with genuine Italian marble stairs and arched ceiling panels, this library was once a chapel for the Daughters of Charity. Ironically, the room was constructed to store medical supplies such as books and literature. The library is equipped with a library staff, a librarian and an assist. The library is open from 8am to 9pm and on Saturday from 9am to 5pm. The library is located on the 3rd floor of the Health Sciences building.

The library is well-stocked with books and journals covering all aspects of medical science. The library also subscribes to a variety of medical journals and publications, including the Journal of the American Medical Association, the New England Journal of Medicine, and the Lancet.

Newman House: You’ll Feel That Way

by Christine McGraw

More than just a student center, it’s the Newman Center — a place where you can escape the grueling pressures of school and your own existence.

The Newman Center, sponsored by the Catholic Bishop of St. Louis, is a tables for students to socialize in a fellowship of the campus community. Newman House, the Newman Center, is located on the corner of Natural Bridge road, is open every day from 9:00 am to 3:00 pm.

"During the time of the semester, in other words, you feel the heat, whether it be studying, dating a book or newspaper, or just trying to deal with your own worries, the Newman Center is there to help.

"It’s the Newman Center, a place where you can escape the grueling pressures of school and your own existence. This is where you can go to get away from the stress. The Newman Center is there for you to relax and unwind."

Video Advantage: Cable Studio offers new view on job opportunities

by K.C. Clarke
features editor

Communications majors with an interest in broadcasting have a tough row to hoe when it comes to getting a job in the outside world. Trying to break into the fiercely competitive world of broadcasting usually requires making a move to a small market and paying your dues before anyone else will hire you. But there are ways to increase the odds in your favor by taking advantage of educational opportunities right in your own backyard, and one of those opportunities lies waiting at the American Cablevision Studios at 1360 Lacun Hall.

James D. Fay, director of the Instructional Technology Center oversees both the cable studio and audiovisual services for the campus. Fay agrees that it’s important to take advantage of every opportunity, especially since the university does not offer a degree in broadcasting.

"It's true they don't offer a teacher's degree in broadcasting here," Fay said. "But to say we don't have a broadcast program is not realistic. There are tremendous opportunities right now for students to get in on the ground floor of TV production because we're expanding." Fay said that between extra hours provided by both the university and American Cablevision, the cable studio has upgraded its facility.

"This year we'll have one of the best three-quarter inch facilities in St. Louis," Fay said. "We're on the cutting edge of technology and that translates to jobs!"

In addition to new video cameras and a new video switcher, Fay said the facility will now have simultaneous recording and editing, including a digital video effects machine and a computer that can generate graphic images and animation. The studio has also upgraded its grading equipment, and has added new color decks that can read out in time codes.

Students are encouraged to learn about the equipment by enrolling in broadcast production courses or by applying for one of the many positions that are available.

"We're interested in getting as many students involved as possible," Fay said.

“Macintosh?”

"For the first time I saw a Macintosh, I was immediately hooked. It's a work of art. I saw the student pricing and my next move was obvious: get one.

"Some other computers are cheaper, but they're a pain to learn, and working on them can be a grueling experience. Last year, a friend bought another kind of computer against my advice and has used it for maybe 15 hours. What a waste.

"Macintosh, on the other hand, is a logical extension of the mind. It lets you concentrate on what's in your paper, not on how to get it on paper. You can create professional-looking documents in minutes, and you lose the fear of learning new programs because they all work in the same way.

"Once you've worked with a Macintosh, there's no turning back!"
Campus Radio KWMU Educates and Trains Students

by K.C. Clarke

feature editor

Communication majors at U-M St. Louis are fortunate to have access to some very unique learning opportunities on campus, and one of these is the university’s radio station, KWMU 89.3.

Located at 105 Lucas Hall, KWMU 89.3 is a public radio station licensed to the university with 97,000 watts of power. The radio station sits on a hill near the middle of the St. Louis metropolitan area, with classics, jazz, news and public affairs programming 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

One of KWMU’s educational goals is to provide practical broadcast training to students through production, programming, internships and apprenticeships.

Station Manager Patrick Wiencek said the working relationship between student and station was an important one in that the station was valuable help and service and the students could walk away with some very definite career development.

"It works for both of us," Wiencek said. "And if you're in the industry, it's hard to get your feet in the door of a station."

Music lovers can tinker with the baby grand piano — Students can study, chat or simply give in to the laws of inertia and cut some z’s.

The U-Center is the site for a number of comfortable student lounges where students can study, chat or simply give in to the laws of inertia and cut some z’s between classes. Most of the lounges are equipped with tables, chairs, and sectional couches that double as beds where you can stretch out in a fully furnished, air-conditioned environment. The student lounge above the Underground, offers a wide array of comfortable student seating equipped with tables, chairs, and sectional couches that double as beds where you can stretch out in a fully furnished, air-conditioned environment.

LOCATIONS

The University Center lounge is located on the top floor above the Underground, located halfway up the steps in between the Candy Store and The Bookroom.
