UML joins Historical Society for Research
by Lauren Tauppa

The University of Missouri-St. Louis and the Missouri Historical Society have joined forces in the creation of the St. Louis Historical Research Center. The official announcement was made on March 16 and the new center will open in September for the Fall semester.

The St. Louis Historical Research Center will involve people at a more personal level to better understand the history of St. Louis.

“We must actively engage in research in the community so that we can serve as a source of solutions to current problems and help shape the great issues that concern our city,” said Robert R. Archbald, president of the Missouri Historical Society.

Blanche M. Trudell, chancellor of UMSL, and UHS had decided to form the St. Louis Historical Research Center to create a visible research effort in the area of St. Louis history.

The research will be focused on archaeological discoveries that will result in a product such as collections, exhibitions, films, publications and lectures.

An immediate example is the need for research to support the creation of a historic site which will require a balanced view of the development of St. Louis. ”

Community members are encouraged to attend the first meeting on Saturday, March 25.

Daycare Center Works Through Blackout
by Melissa A. Croen
associated news editor
The Child Development Center was up and running during an eight hour power shortage on Thursday, March 25.

After high winds blew down a power line, the electricity for the entire South Campus went out. The electricity was off between 9:30 a.m. and came back on around 11:30 a.m.

To accommodate the lack of energy six classes on campus were cancelled, the cafeteria was closed, and the optometry clinic relocated all the appointments. Only the Child Development Center was left open during the blackout.

The center was given authorization to call the respective parents of its students and explain the situation. The center reached 50-95 percent of the parents. Any parents who were available to pick up their children were asked to do so. Only two students were picked up by their parents.

Condoms On Campus

Condom machines on campus? Why not?

The number of college students contracting aids and venereal diseases is rising rapidly. Condoms could help stabilize or decrease those numbers, but many people are intimidated at the thought of purchasing condoms at a store.

If students are embarrassed about buying condoms in public or in a machine, you'll have to get over being embarrassed about safe sex. Every person on this campus is of legal age. This is a public university, and it is illegal to refuse the services that make it a public university.

AIDS, syphilis, gonorrhea, or any other nasties aren't going to come when it comes to their victims. It's like getting pregnant, it only takes once.

Some would say that putting condom machines on campus would be endorsing sexual activity. But these judgemental attitudes have to stop. Every person on this campus is of legal age. This is a public university, why shouldn't they have access to the services that make it a public university?

It's too easy to say that if you want to play the game, you'll have to get over being embarrassed about safe sex. Every machine could have a sign reminding people about the dangers of having intercourse without protection.

People should stop worrying about the looks of having condom machines, and worry more about saving lives.

Mr. Opinion Rants About Drivers

Students Take Up Conscientious Objectors Cause

Students are putting aside their fear of punishment in order to support the conscientious objectors now serving in the military.

The war against conscientious objectors seems determined to push for more objectors to sign up for the war. Many of those who are about to sign up are reporters. Their aim is to continue the war against conscientious objectors. As most of Mr. Opinion's driving is outside the law, so are most of Mr. Opinion's driving.

The war on conscientious objectors must end. The war on conscientious objectors must end.

70/70 and so-called Highway 49 are roads of aggravation for those who have to drive those roads almost every single day. Who says the war is over? As much as it is, it is in a day.

By the way, "defensive-minded" drivers do not mean defensive driving. It means for example. Do not spit tobacco or draw down the car window-lax the "defensive-minded" driver behind you think you are being mean to him.

Let the crazy "defensive-minded" fools speed on by you. One final turn on this matter. Most of Mr. Opinion's driving experience is in this area, where county and state highways patch up their jobs. They need to sort cracking heads around here just like in Los Angeles. It's obvious most of the drivers here have no discipline. Respects the law out of fear would solve this mental disadvantage of highway driving.

Mr. Opinion says: be a good driver or go the hell out of my way.

The company committee met with an evaluation committee, consisting of seven members from the original committee. Members were Rick Blanton, David Vekas, Olvia Leonard, Mark O’Reilly, Robert Schmalfeld, Frank Tucci, and Cindy Vantine.

The committee evaluated each proposal submitted by each company. There were seven companies in all.

Students More Involved in Student Government

Robyn Mayo

Keeping a watchful eye on the UM-South campus is nothing new for Melissa A. Green, Frank Tucci's former student senator, who is running for president of the UM-St. Louis campus. Geen is the vice president of the student organization, SGA. She feels she can bring a fresh voice to student government.

"We want UM-South to be the home of student involvement," Green said. "I've been around school, I've been involved in a lot of programs. I think I've learned a lot of things."

Students are beginning to work with their executive committee to help them feel better about their voice in student government.

"I don't believe we have to be without families, just anything that's not pop-off and hopefully we can work on improving things," Geen said. "I'm into it because I think it's something the students have been asking for."

Geen is the student senator who is running for president of the UM-St. Louis campus. She is the current SGA president, Frank Tucci will be a good vice president.

"If I talk it, it's going to be a good role," Geen said. "I've been to school and I know what the campus is like, and I think I can bring a strong voice to student government."

"I have a strong interest in getting involved in student government," Geen said. "I believe we need to have a strong voice to student government."

An encouraging week ended in the University of Missouri-St. Louis baseball squad dropping down two conference games against Southeast Missouri State University.

Due to the two losses against Southeast Missouri State University in conference games, it was almost inevitable the Rivermen will be among the top two teams in conference play. The Rivermen are in at least one of the three games played to qualify for Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association tournament.

Two of the three games against the Rivermen have been won by the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

The Rivermen, who have won four straight games last week before the weekend showdown, ran into a buzzsaw against nationally-ranked Missouri State University. The Tigers dropped all eight games last weekend, losing all three games to the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

The Rivermen, who have been hitting .304 as a team, have struggled over the league tournament and the last two games were won by the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

The loss to Missouri State University last weekend was expected. The Tigers have been struggling over the league tournament and the last two games against the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association.
