Committee Computes For Campus

Schoemehl Speaks To Students

UP FOR ELECTION: Vincent Schoemehl and Robbey Sturman, both running for office in 1992, look out a routine photograph. (photo by Michelle McMurray)

Schoemehl revealed that one of the conversations between the governor and the Missouri Republican Party chairman, Schoemehl said he will bring his experiences in the business world to the job of governor.

The mood of the Missouri Republican Party is "probably fearful," said Democratic state senator and candidate for governor, Lee. "They're not sure what to do in the new year."

Lee said that an important part of the campaign will be to explain the issues to the voters.

"We need to make sure that the voters know what is at stake," Lee said. "We need to make sure that the voters understand the issues and the candidates.'

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Conscientious Objector Wants To Protest For Peace

To the Editor:

This is in response to all of the happenings since June 15, 1991. I have never seen so many "patriotic" people in my life, waving below the flag, and praying for peace appear doing anything about it. I hope many of them will soon renounce their beliefs after reading this letter.

I am anunsathed idealist and a conscientious objector. I have a good friend in the Marines on the front lines. I hope this letter will help the Navy and the Air Force, who have lost of their number fighting in the desert, to return safely. I hope this letter will help the Saudis and everyone involved in this war.

Sincerely,

Michael Hortor
Student Senate Chair

War Protesters Would Have You Believe!

To the editor:

I am writing in regard to the letter written by Marine Corporal Buchheit in the Jan. 31 edition of the Current. I am a Marine stationed in Stuttgart and I have also taken the oath of the Constitution. I would like to add my views and then show them where the U.S. Marines are now.

The day before the Gulf War started, I went to the U.S. Army Recruiting Station and started my paperwork to join the Marines. I realize the seriousness of my decision and I am not motivated by financial gain. The war protesters would have you believe that patriotism is dead through the U.S. government, but the reality is far from the truth. It is a nation that has seen one after another war and the reality is that war is the only way for this country to grow and move forward.

I am not saying that war is the answer, but it is the only way for this country to grow and move forward. It is a country that has seen one after another war and the reality is that war is the only way for this country to grow and move forward.

Sincerely,

Fredi Appel

Student Chastises Republican Guards for Iraq's Imperialist Behavior

To the editor:

In the last issue of the Current, Terry Inman, World Director of the Libertarian Student Network, wrote that we should all take a stand against George Bush's decision to use force to quell the late Saddam Hussein's imperialist crusade for a "New World Order" that would wipe out the private property of the American people. In my opinion, this is a gross violation of our basic rights.

In this era of computer security, we must keep our eyes on the ultimate enemy, Saddam Hussein. The reason why we are currently at war is because Saddam Hussein and his fellow extremists are free to do what they please with our oil. This war is about Iraq's aggression against the United States. Saddam Hussein was not the only country that was fighting in the Gulf War. The United States was fighting against Saddam Hussein to protect our interests in the region and to prevent further aggression from the Middle East.

In response to Mr. Inman's criticism that this war is a crusade for peace, I must point out that the decision to enter this war was not made without the expressed written consent of the United States. This was not a covert action ordered by the U.S. government under the United Nations command. War with this international conflict was a response to the threat posed by Saddam Hussein, not a response to any previous order from the United Nations.

The war protesters would have you believe that patriotism is dead through the U.S. government, but the reality is far from the truth. It is a nation that has seen one after another war and the reality is that war is the only way for this country to grow and move forward. It is a country that has seen one after another war and the reality is that war is the only way for this country to grow and move forward.

Sincerely,

Michele Paglin

LETTERS POLICY

The Current welcomes letters to the editor. The writer's student number and phone number must accompany all letters. Non-students must also include their phone numbers. Letters should be no longer than two double-spaced pages. Unsigned letters will be published, but the author's name can be withheld by the author. The Current reserves the right to edit all letters for space and style. The Current reserves the rights of publication of all letters.

---

EDITORIALS

Expectations

A memo is a memo is a memo. Or is it?

The Human Resources and Payroll office officially merged on Jan. 16. A week before the change, a memo went out to all employees informing them of the relocation and the new hours. The new hours were specifically stated as 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday with 30 minutes for the bi-weekly pay day. On those days the office will open one hour earlier. This memo was signed by Bonnie Sims, assistant dean of administrative services.

When such a memo comes out of the Assistant Vice Chancellor's office, it should not be too much to expect to be able to collect all checks during the stated hours. If there is a problem, like not having a safe in that department, the memo should state that checks could be collected until 4:45 p.m.

This otherwise noble effort on the part of UM-St. Louis employees to be able to get paid up until a minute before but not a minute after the stated hours of operation.

---

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Senate Is Student Voice

To the Editor:

Once again, it seems the Senate is for student membership in the University Senate. Last year, 12 students applied for a position on the ballot, of 25 seats available. Because of this there has been discussion about whether student representation is important. In view of so many complaints made today, I offer this view about this university. I find it expedient that students participate in forums where they will be heard. Let me clear this up regarding the position of the Senate.

1. You do not have to be a political science major to participate.
2. You can voice your opinions without fear of being oppressed. The faculty members of the Senate are professionals and respect student representation. In view of this.

When such a memo comes out of the Assistant Vice Chancellor's office, it should not be too much to expect to be able to collect all checks during the stated hours. If there is a problem, like not having a safe in that department, the memo should state that checks could be collected until 4:45 p.m.

This otherwise noble effort on the part of UM-St. Louis employees to be able to get paid up until a minute before but not a minute after the stated hours of operation.

---

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Student Chastises Republican Guards for Iraq's Imperialist Behavior

To the editor:

I am writing in regard to the letter written by Marine Corporal Buchheit in the Jan. 31 edition of the Current. I am a Marine stationed in Stuttgart and I have also taken the oath of the Constitution. I would like to add my views and then show them where the U.S. Marines are now.

The day before the Gulf War started, I went to the U.S. Army Recruiting Station and started my paperwork to join the Marines. I realize the seriousness of my decision and I am not motivated by financial gain. The war protesters would have you believe that patriotism is dead through the U.S. government, but the reality is far from the truth. It is a nation that has seen one after another war and the reality is that war is the only way for this country to grow and move forward. It is a country that has seen one after another war and the reality is that war is the only way for this country to grow and move forward.

Sincerely,

Fredi Appel

Student Chastises Republican Guards for Iraq's Imperialist Behavior

To the editor:

In the last issue of the Current, Terry Inman, World Director of the Libertarian Student Network, wrote that we should all take a stand against George Bush's decision to use force to quell the late Saddam Hussein's imperialist crusade for a "New World Order" that would wipe out the private property of the American people. In my opinion, this is a gross violation of our basic rights.

In this era of computer security, we must keep our eyes on the ultimate enemy, Saddam Hussein. The reason why we are currently at war is because Saddam Hussein and his fellow extremists are free to do what they please with our oil. This war is about Iraq's aggression against the United States. Saddam Hussein was not the only country that was fighting in the Gulf War. The United States was fighting against Saddam Hussein to protect our interests in the region and to prevent further aggression from the Middle East.

In response to Mr. Inman's criticism that this war is a crusade for peace, I must point out that the decision to enter this war was not made without the expressed written consent of the United States. This was not a covert action ordered by the U.S. government under the United Nations command. War with this international conflict was a response to the threat posed by Saddam Hussein, not a response to any previous order from the United Nations.

The war protesters would have you believe that patriotism is dead through the U.S. government, but the reality is far from the truth. It is a nation that has seen one after another war and the reality is that war is the only way for this country to grow and move forward. It is a country that has seen one after another war and the reality is that war is the only way for this country to grow and move forward.

Sincerely,

Michele Paglin
When Siegel was asked about the possibility of the new lab that Schoemehl mentioned, Siegel said, "It seems like the only way to do this is if we can get excited about this gubernatorial campaign..."

"It's better than a dream—it's a vision. Then pinch yourself."

The Macintosh EXPANSION CARD, if you thought that finding a color Macintosh system you could afford was just a dream, then the new, affordable Macintosh LC is a dream come true.

The Macintosh LC is rich in color. Unlike many computers that can display only 16 colors at once, the Macintosh LC expands your palette to 256 colors. It also comes with a microphone and new sound input technology that lets you personalize your work by adding voice or other sounds.

Like every Macintosh computer, the LC is easy to set up and easy to master. And it runs thousands of available applications that all work in the same, consistent way—so once you've learned one program, you're well on your way to learning them all. The Macintosh LC even lets you share information with someone who uses a different type of computer—thanks to the versatile Apple SuperDrive®, which can read from and write to Apple, MS-DOS, OS/2, and Apple II floppy disks.

Take a look at the Macintosh LC and see what it gives you. Then pinch yourself. It's better than a dream—it's a Macintosh.
Last year the drop was 15.5 percent, the NISU survey found. The decrease this year is 8.8 percent. Many employers cited uncertainty about the economy and the prospects for war in the Middle East as the reasons they have cut back their student hiring.

The other major annual survey of student prospects, Northwestern University's Lindquist-Endicott Report, found that businesses plan to hire one percent fewer graduates overall this year.

"The market is going to be more competitive," said Eric Cyr, a recruitment officer at Southern Maine's Bates. "But surely, though they haven't said it, will be window shopping."

"We're just fine as long as they don't want to make very many offers," added Eric Lieb, Swarthmore's director of career services. "This year, " he said of the past three to four years, "We've had a growth of about 10 employer years."

"We've had a drop," added Brian Kortz, Northwestern's placement director.

About 15 percent of the companies surveyed in December by McFarrow, Inc., expected to hire more graduates during the first three months of 1991, but Hisperman said they planned to hire one percent fewer graduates overall this year.

"The market is going to be more competitive," said Eric Cyr, a recruitment officer at Southern Maine's Bates. "But surely, though they haven't said it, will be window shopping."

"We're just fine as long as they don't want to make very many offers," added Eric Lieb, Swarthmore's director of career services. "This year, " he said of the past three to four years, "We've had a growth of about 10 employer years."

"We've had a drop," added Brian Kortz, Northwestern's placement director.

About 15 percent of the companies surveyed in December by McFarrow, Inc., expected to hire more graduates during the first three months of 1991, but Hesperman said they planned to hire one percent fewer graduates overall this year.

"The market is going to be more competitive," said Eric Cyr, a recruitment officer at Southern Maine's Bates. "But surely, though they haven't said it, will be window shopping."

"We're just fine as long as they don't want to make very many offers," added Eric Lieb, Swarthmore's director of career services. "This year, " he said of the past three to four years, "We've had a growth of about 10 employer years."

"We've had a drop," added Brian Kortz, Northwestern's placement director.

About 15 percent of the companies surveyed in December by McFarrow, Inc., expected to hire more graduates during the first three months of 1991, but Hesperman said they planned to hire one percent fewer graduates overall this year.

"The market is going to be more competitive," said Eric Cyr, a recruitment officer at Southern Maine's Bates. "But surely, though they haven't said it, will be window shopping."

"We're just fine as long as they don't want to make very many offers," added Eric Lieb, Swarthmore's director of career services. "This year, " he said of the past three to four years, "We've had a growth of about 10 employer years."

"We've had a drop," added Brian Kortz, Northwestern's placement director.

About 15 percent of the companies surveyed in December by McFarrow, Inc., expected to hire more graduates during the first three months of 1991, but Hesperman said they planned to hire one percent fewer graduates overall this year.

"The market is going to be more competitive," said Eric Cyr, a recruitment officer at Southern Maine's Bates. "But surely, though they haven't said it, will be window shopping."

"We're just fine as long as they don't want to make very many offers," added Eric Lieb, Swarthmore's director of career services. "This year, " he said of the past three to four years, "We've had a growth of about 10 employer years."

"We've had a drop," added Brian Kortz, Northwestern's placement director.
In 1990, only 12 students applied for 25 positions on the University Senate. Because of this, it has been suggested that the number of student representatives be cut.

We need you!

Use the forms below to place your name on the ballot for the University Senate. You must have completed nine credit hours at UM - St. Louis.
Robin Mayo
Current staff

The U-M St. Louis choral group, the University Singers, is about to pack up and leave, to embark on a five-day trip, visiting various arts centers, and attending music conferences. Their final concert will be at noon on Sunday, Feb. 24, at the Concord Baptist Church in South County, and their next vocal concert will be in Columbia, West Va., the following Wednesday, the 27th.

On Wednesday, the University Singers will perform briefly at Webster University, then travel on to Memphis, Tenn., where there will be an evening concert at St. John's Episcopal Church. Thursday morning, the 28th, it's off the clock, mom, after a brief appearance at the Webster University. For their final performance of the tour, they will perform at the University's First Presbyterian Church, sponsored by the College of Music.

Choosing the right performance for Webster University was extremely difficult, as the group which will perform a final concert in the Webster auditorium is the University Singers, and they will be on tour at the time the university concert is scheduled.

The group has remained the same over the past few years, between 30 and 35 members. This week there are 30 members in the select group. To become a member, an audition is required.

The group is small enough to go on tour only a few times a year, and it helps the cost of transportation. "It's always looking for more people from the rest of campus to come in, we can see a few more people in the group and still do well with the one we have," Vanite said. Students in the University Singers say they are happy to part of a small group, but they also have their reasons as well.

"I think most people should be involved, because it's really fun," Smith said. "I love singing because I like very much the environment.

"We're very rare,"去过那场演出的大学里的人说，"just make the best of it."

"It's a good department, but unfortunately not enough people in the area to show their appreciation," says Vanite.

"I think that the general public doesn't realize what we have here in the school," he adds. "The vibrancy of the music department, the sound of it is the main draw of a commune student. I think that the majority of the students don't know of an opportunity this gives, and that the music department is the main draw of the music department," Vanite said.

"It's a great opportunity, and I think more people should be involved, because it's really fun," Smith said. "I'm a music major because I like very much the environment."

The group is small enough to go on tour only a few times a year, and it helps the cost of transportation. "It's always looking for more people from the rest of campus to come in, we can see a few more people in the group and still do well with the one we have," Vanite said. "Students in the University Singers say they are happy to part of a small group, but they also have their reasons as well.

"I think most people should be involved, because it's really fun," Smith said. "I love singing because I like very much the environment.

Melodies Come To Campus With MENC

"It's a great opportunity, and I think more people should be involved, because it's really fun," Smith said. "I'm a music major because I like very much the environment."

The group is small enough to go on tour only a few times a year, and it helps the cost of transportation. "It's always looking for more people from the rest of campus to come in, we can see a few more people in the group and still do well with the one we have," Vanite said. "Students in the University Singers say they are happy to part of a small group, but they also have their reasons as well.

"I think most people should be involved, because it's really fun," Smith said. "I love singing because I like very much the environment.

The group is small enough to go on tour only a few times a year, and it helps the cost of transportation. "It's always looking for more people from the rest of campus to come in, we can see a few more people in the group and still do well with the one we have," Vanite said. "Students in the University Singers say they are happy to part of a small group, but they also have their reasons as well.

"I think most people should be involved, because it's really fun," Smith said. "I love singing because I like very much the environment.

"It's a great opportunity, and I think more people should be involved, because it's really fun," Smith said. "I'm a music major because I like very much the environment."

The group is small enough to go on tour only a few times a year, and it helps the cost of transportation. "It's always looking for more people from the rest of campus to come in, we can see a few more people in the group and still do well with the one we have," Vanite said. "Students in the University Singers say they are happy to part of a small group, but they also have their reasons as well.

"I think most people should be involved, because it's really fun," Smith said. "I love singing because I like very much the environment.

The group is small enough to go on tour only a few times a year, and it helps the cost of transportation. "It's always looking for more people from the rest of campus to come in, we can see a few more people in the group and still do well with the one we have," Vanite said. "Students in the University Singers say they are happy to part of a small group, but they also have their reasons as well.

"I think most people should be involved, because it's really fun," Smith said. "I love singing because I like very much the environment.
Wingers Wings Clipped By Performance of Extreme

by Brid Touchette

Music critic

This past Friday night was a night I was waiting for for weeks. Being a guitarist myself, having seeing two premiere guitarists, Emme's Nuno Bettencourt and Winger's Reb Beach, in one show was like a dream come true. To my surprise, it didn't turn out quite as I had imagined. To start the ball rolling, a now band called Tarzan opened the show. They performed well and had good sound presence, but once their first album was everyone got, everyone got into them. They then put on energy into the show, and won the crowd's applause for what would turn out to be the main course a little early.

When Extreme kicked in, I was shocked to see that much people had come out to see them than Winger. The floor was decorated with fans waving "Get The F*ck Out!" signs. Now I know why. Gary Cherone, the lead singer, took out the stage with arms extended and eyes wild. This only set the crowd into a frenzy. Extreme opened with "It's A Monster," a flat-paced, high-energy funk song, and change only went up from there.

As the songs progressed, and Cherone dreamed on Betancourt's blazing guitar, people were nearly falling over each other from dancing and scrapping to get a better view. Cherone and Betancourt clicked on like a two marries, and eyes wild. This only extended and eyes wild. This only increased the crowd's energy, and things only went up from there. Bettencourt grabbed the acoustic guitar and sat down with Cherone to play blazing guitar, people were nearly turned off by the guitar and vocal harmony made the playlist. Why?

Extremely, because the guys didn't realize that their mellow songs are what they are best at. It's what their fans really get off on. Every album nowadays has a cheesy rock song, (soul singer, I think the man who moves you from women in the audience, you go, Kip). The concept was great, but not as good as it could have been. Extreme could teach Winger a few things about live performances and sound selection. In a word, Winger conventional show stage suicide with no experience or naivety. Their songs. What it was, was great. It could have been what it was supposed to be just a little bit better.

As Extreme left the stage and numerous guitarists could be heard cheering "Na na, Na na, Na na," it was obvious to everyone that the crowd would come from Extreme.

Most people were figuring that Winger would headline the show - especially considering this was the first show of their first headlining North American tour. But they really just a tough act to follow, this was another Winger's same thing. What was probably most con- vention was the selection of songs Winger choose to play, "Twelve" the best song of it's new album, "Under One Condition," and the title track "In The Heart Of The Young," were not even played. Yet songs like "Joule Wolf" and "Little Dirty Blink" were the play. Why?

Extremely, because the guys didn't realize that their mellow songs are what they are best at. It's what their fans really get off on. Every album nowadays has a cheesy rock song, (soul singer, I think the man who moves you from women in the audience, you go, Kip). The concept was great, but not as good as it could have been. Extreme could teach Winger a few things about live performances and sound selection. In a word, Winger conventional show stage suicide with no experience or naivety. Their songs. What it was, was great. It could have been what it was supposed to be just a little bit better.

uos guitarists could be heard chanting "Na na, Na na, Na na," it was obvious to everyone that the crowd would come from Extreme.

Most people were figuring that Winger would headline the show - especially considering this was the first show of their first headlining North American tour. But they really just a tough act to follow, this was another Winger's same thing. What was probably most con- vention was the selection of songs Winger choose to play, "Twelve" the best song of it's new album, "Under One Condition," and the title track "In The Heart Of The Young," were not even played. Yet songs like "Joule Wolf" and "Little Dirty Blink" were the play. Why?

Extremely, because the guys didn't realize that their mellow songs are what they are best at. It's what their fans really get off on. Every album nowadays has a cheesy rock song, (soul singer, I think the man who moves you from women in the audience, you go, Kip). The concept was great, but not as good as it could have been. Extreme could teach Winger a few things about live performances and sound selection. In a word, Winger conventional show stage suicide with no experience or naivety. Their songs. What it was, was great. It could have been what it was supposed to be just a little bit better.

This past Friday night was a night I was waiting for for weeks. Being a guitarist myself, having seeing two premiere guitarists, Emme's Nuno Bettencourt and Winger's Reb Beach, in one show was like a dream come true. To my surprise, it didn't turn out quite as I had imagined. To start the ball rolling, a now band called Tarzan opened the show. They performed well and had good sound presence, but once their first album was everyone got, everyone got into them. They then put on energy into the show, and won the crowd's applause for what would turn out to be the main course a little early.

When Extreme kicked in, I was shocked to see that much people had come out to see them than Winger. The floor was decorated with fans waving "Get The F*ck Out!" signs. Now I know why. Gary Cherone, the lead singer, took out the stage with arms extended and eyes wild. This only set the crowd into a frenzy. Extreme opened with "It's A Monster," a flat-paced, high-energy funk song, and change only went up from there.

As the songs progressed, and Cherone dreamed on Betancourt's blazing guitar, people were nearly falling over each other from dancing and scrapping to get a better view. Cherone and Betancourt clicked on like a two marries, and eyes wild. This only increased the crowd's energy, and things only went up from there. Bettencourt grabbed the acoustic guitar and sat down with Cherone to play blazing guitar, people were nearly turned off by the guitar and vocal harmony made the playlist. Why?

Extremely, because the guys didn't realize that their mellow songs are what they are best at. It's what their fans really get off on. Every album nowadays has a cheesy rock song, (soul singer, I think the man who moves you from women in the audience, you go, Kip). The concept was great, but not as good as it could have been. Extreme could teach Winger a few things about live performances and sound selection. In a word, Winger conventional show stage suicide with no experience or naivety. Their songs. What it was, was great. It could have been what it was supposed to be just a little bit better.

As Extreme left the stage and numerous guitarists could be heard cheering "Na na, Na na, Na na," it was obvious to everyone that the crowd would come from Extreme.

Most people were figuring that Winger would headline the show - especially considering this was the first show of their first headlining North American tour. But they really just a tough act to follow, this was another Winger's same thing. What was probably most con- vention was the selection of songs Winger choose to play, "Twelve" the best song of it's new album, "Under One Condition," and the title track "In The Heart Of The Young," were not even played. Yet songs like "Joule Wolf" and "Little Dirty Blink" were the play. Why?

Extremely, because the guys didn't realize that their mellow songs are what they are best at. It's what their fans really get off on. Every album nowadays has a cheesy rock song, (soul singer, I think the man who moves you from women in the audience, you go, Kip). The concept was great, but not as good as it could have been. Extreme could teach Winger a few things about live performances and sound selection. In a word, Winger conventional show stage suicide with no experience or naivety. Their songs. What it was, was great. It could have been what it was supposed to be just a little bit better.

This past Friday night was a night I was waiting for for weeks. Being a guitarist myself, having seeing two premiere guitarists, Emme's Nuno Bettencourt and Winger's Reb Beach, in one show was like a dream come true. To my surprise, it didn't turn out quite as I had imagined. To start the ball rolling, a now band called Tarzan opened the show. They performed well and had good sound presence, but once their first album was everyone got, everyone got into them. They then put on energy into the show, and won the crowd's applause for what would turn out to be the main course a little early.

When Extreme kicked in, I was shocked to see that much people had come out to see them than Winger. The floor was decorated with fans waving "Get The F*ck Out!" signs. Now I know why. Gary Cherone, the lead singer, took out the stage with arms extended and eyes wild. This only set the crowd into a frenzy. Extreme opened with "It's A Monster," a flat-paced, high-energy funk song, and change only went up from there.

As the songs progressed, and Cherone dreamed on Betancourt's blazing guitar, people were nearly falling over each other from dancing and scrapping to get a better view. Cherone and Betancourt clicked on like a two marries, and eyes wild. This only increased the crowd's energy, and things only went up from there. Bettencourt grabbed the acoustic guitar and sat down with Cherone to play blazing guitar, people were nearly turned off by the guitar and vocal harmony made the playlist. Why?

Extremely, because the guys didn't realize that their mellow songs are what they are best at. It's what their fans really get off on. Every album nowadays has a cheesy rock song, (soul singer, I think the man who moves you from women in the audience, you go, Kip). The concept was great, but not as good as it could have been. Extreme could teach Winger a few things about live performances and sound selection. In a word, Winger conventional show stage suicide with no experience or naivety. Their songs. What it was, was great. It could have been what it was supposed to be just a little bit better.

As Extreme left the stage and numerous guitarists could be heard cheering "Na na, Na na, Na na," it was obvious to everyone that the crowd would come from Extreme.

Most people were figuring that Winger would headline the show - especially considering this was the first show of their first headlining North American tour. But they really just a tough act to follow, this was another Winger's same thing. What was probably most con- vention was the selection of songs Winger choose to play, "Twelve" the best song of it's new album, "Under One Condition," and the title track "In The Heart Of The Young," were not even played. Yet songs like "Joule Wolf" and "Little Dirty Blink" were the play. Why?

Extremely, because the guys didn't realize that their mellow songs are what they are best at. It's what their fans really get off on. Every album nowadays has a cheesy rock song, (soul singer, I think the man who moves you from women in the audience, you go, Kip). The concept was great, but not as good as it could have been. Extreme could teach Winger a few things about live performances and sound selection. In a word, Winger conventional show stage suicide with no experience or naivety. Their songs. What it was, was great. It could have been what it was supposed to be just a little bit better.
“Mixed Metaphors” In Mascots, Nicknames

by Christopher M. McGraw

sports editor

Recently in sports news articles students are taking on the administrative “fixing” metaphors in connection with school nicknames. Students at the University of North Dakota are in a rage that the school name should be changed.

Getting ready to graduate in December and wanting to make the most of his senior season, Appelbaum said he is planning to swim at the University of Michigan.

The same thing happened in January, Eastern Michigan University students were saying that using the nickname and logo was not acceptable.

The UM-St. Louis Women’s Basketball team is looking forward to a good season with a new coach.

Cheerleaders Continue Commitment

by Christine M. McGraw

sports editor

The University of Missouri-St. Louis’ Cheerleading Squad has encountered many different obstacles but continues to strive for excellence.

The University of Missouri-St. Louis’ Women’s Basketball team showed how last week, knocking off the number one ranked Missouri Southern.

The Riverwomen, who entered this season already strong, have started the season on a winning note.

The Riverwomen are currently ranked sixth in the nation and are looking to continue their winning streak.

The UM-St. Louis Men’s Basketball team also began the season with a win over Missouri Southern.

The UM-St. Louis Men’s Basketball team is looking forward to a good season with a new coach.

Riverwomen: Showing New Life

The University of Missouri-St. Louis’ Women’s Basketball team is looking forward to a good season with a new coach.

The UM-St. Louis Women’s Basketball team showed how last week, knocking off the number one ranked Missouri Southern.

The Riverwomen, who entered this season already strong, have started the season on a winning note.

The Riverwomen are currently ranked sixth in the nation and are looking to continue their winning streak.

The UM-St. Louis Men’s Basketball team also began the season with a win over Missouri Southern.

The UM-St. Louis Men’s Basketball team is looking forward to a good season with a new coach.

Riverwomen: Showing New Life

The University of Missouri-St. Louis’ Women’s Basketball team is looking forward to a good season with a new coach.

The UM-St. Louis Women’s Basketball team showed how last week, knocking off the number one ranked Missouri Southern.

The Riverwomen, who entered this season already strong, have started the season on a winning note.

The Riverwomen are currently ranked sixth in the nation and are looking to continue their winning streak.

The UM-St. Louis Men’s Basketball team also began the season with a win over Missouri Southern.

The UM-St. Louis Men’s Basketball team is looking forward to a good season with a new coach.

Riverwomen: Showing New Life

The University of Missouri-St. Louis’ Women’s Basketball team is looking forward to a good season with a new coach.

The UM-St. Louis Women’s Basketball team showed how last week, knocking off the number one ranked Missouri Southern.

The Riverwomen, who entered this season already strong, have started the season on a winning note.

The Riverwomen are currently ranked sixth in the nation and are looking to continue their winning streak.

The UM-St. Louis Men’s Basketball team also began the season with a win over Missouri Southern.

The UM-St. Louis Men’s Basketball team is looking forward to a good season with a new coach.
Rivermen Knock Off Nationally Rated Central Missouri State

Senior Chris Pilz moved into the No. 2 spot on UM-St. Louis' career scoring list with his career-high effort against Central Missouri State. His 39 points against CMSU boosted his career total to 1,511, surpassing William Harris (1,477).

Pilz enjoyed one of the best all-around efforts of his career against CMSU. In addition to his 39 points, he contributed nine assists, eight rebounds and five steals.

"Chris had a sensational game," says head coach Rick McMillion. "He has done just about everything for us this year. He has had a great senior season."

Pilz is just the second player in school history to amass 1,500-career points at UM-St. Louis. All other huskies Bobby Bean has 1,575.

Column from page 2

A conservative student group at Southeast Missouri is trying to raise money to convince the school to re­name its "Indian" name, which was replaced more than 10 years ago.

Most recently, Native American groups in October failed to convince administrators and boosters at the University of Illinois at Champaign­ Urbana to give up Chief Illiniwek, its Indian Mascot.

Personally I feel that Native Americans should be proud of the role they have played in the development of the United States. The purpose of the mascot is to create a competitive, strong and courageous image for the team. What better it represents strength and courage than an American Indian warrior.

JOIN THE EXCITEMENT AT
BUSCH STADIUM

To apply for a limited number of EVEREST EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES at various schools, stop by BUSCH STADIUM.

Thursday, 6 p.m. to 7 p.m.
Saturday, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.
February

BUSCH STADIUM

The search is on for the newUntitled Mascot, which was replaced more than 10 years ago.

After a conservative student group at Southeast Missouri State was unable to convince the school to adopt its own "Indian" name, the school was forced to switch to the "Rivermen" for basketball.

"Women In Sports Day" Honored By UMSL

Twenty-three female athletes were recognized at halftime of the men's basketball game Feb. 15 in celebration of National Women in Sports Day. The student-athletes were honored for their outstanding academic and athletic accomplishments.

Those who were honored included: Carla Adolph, Jen David, Tara Gray, Stephanie Jensen, Pam Parks and Gerti Wilson of the volleyball team; Christine Berry.
second level of the Motown Review featuring singers their goal was $10,000 contract so that legal liabilities are learning more about different kinds

Extension for people interested in

A commitment call 553-5961.

will be for a student to receive the minimized.

pants will examine the basics of

of contracts and what makes them campus.

27; and

About Contracts

There will be an international

To register or for more informa­

Fee for the course is $165.

• Thermal

• Chemical

• Environmental

• Biotechnology

• Biomedical Engineers

• Environmental Engineers

• Environmental Scientists

• Chemical Engineers

• Chemical Engineering

We will be on campus February 20th.

The winners are Scott Holtzman and Doug Seymoure, (pictured at the right). The prize was sponsored by the Current

Vanilla Ice Waters Down

The Sounds of True Rap

Loren Richard Klahs

for the Current

When is anybody going to come out and take a stand? What is all the fuss about a white performing artist making rap from the black urban community? Vanilla Ice represents all that is wrong with music today. Not only has he taken away the black genre parading for hours and real rap music? Is it because N.W.A. and Public Enemy make us nervous? Is it because Vanilla Ice is a product that has been manufactured and time. And make even more money-if I'm promoted to part-time supervisor. No other company makes a college education so affordable.

help, give UPS a call.

"It's easy to hire and work at UPS."
There’s an IBM PS/2 made for every student body.

IBM PS/2
Model 30 286 (U31)
1MB memory
30MB fixed disk drive
8553 Color Display
Preloaded software:
IBM DOS 4.0
Microsoft® Windows™ 3.0
hDC Windows Utilities
ZSoft SoftType™ $1,799

IBM PS/2
Model 55 SX (U31)
2MB memory
30MB fixed disk drive
8553 Color Display
Preloaded software:
IBM DOS 4.0
Microsoft Windows 3.0
hDC Windows Utilities
ZSoft SoftType™ $2,349

IBM PS/2
Model 55 SX (W61)
2MB memory
60MB fixed disk drive
8555 Color Display
Preloaded software:
IBM DOS 4.0
Microsoft Windows 3.0
hDC Windows Utilities
ZSoft SoftType™ $2,799

Printers
IBM Proprinter™ III
w/cable (Model 4201-003) $ 349
IBM Proprinter X24E
w/cable (Model 4207-002) $ 499
IBM Proprinter XL24E
w/cable (Model 4208-002) $ 679
IBM LaserPrinter E
w/cable (Model 4093-E08) $1,039
Hewlett-Packard PaintJet®
color graphics printer
(Model HP 3630-A) $ 799

IBM PS/2
Model 70 (W61)
1MB memory
60MB fixed disk drive
8555 Color Display
Preloaded software:
IBM DOS 4.0
Microsoft Windows 3.0
hDC Windows Utilities®
ZSoft SoftType™ $4,499

Whether you need a computer to write papers or create graphics, charts and spreadsheets, there’s an IBM Personal System/2 that’s right for you.

The IBM Personal System/2 family of computers has everything you asked for... including pre-loaded software, a special student price and affordable loan payments. All models come with IBM DOS 4.0, Microsoft Windows 3.0, 3.5-inch diskette drive and an IBM Mouse.

Try one on for size. We’re sure you’ll find one that fits just right.

And on a different note, for only $599, you can get the Roland Desktop Music System that transforms your IBM PS/2 with Micro Channel into an exciting, comprehensive music maker.

For more information on special student prices contact:
Dan Volansky
103 D SSB 553-6009

This offer is available only to qualified college students, faculty and staff that purchase IBM Selected Academic Solutions through participating campus outlets or IBM 1 800 222-7277. Prices quoted do not include sales tax, handling and/or processing charges. Check with your institution regarding these charges. Orders are subject to availability. Prices are subject to change and IBM may withdraw the offer at any time with written notice. *Microsoft Word for Windows, Microsoft Excel and hDC Windows Utilities are Academic Editions. ZSoft SoftType is the Academic Version. IBM, Personal System/2, PS/2, and Mic Channel are registered trademarks of International Business Machines Corporation. Microsoft is a registered trademark of Microsoft Corporation. Roland is a registered trademark of Roland Corporation, U.S. Proprinter is a trademark of International Business Machines Corporation. Windows, Word for Windows, and Excel are trademarks of Microsoft Corporation. hDC Window Utilities is a trademark of the hDC Computer Corporation. ZSoft SoftType is a trademark of ZSoft Corporation. IBM Corporation 1991.