Hickman. "There was a significant number of Mexican and Puerto Rican immigrants who were going to the national institutes of health because they had no other choice."

"I think that was an extremely hard case," he said. "Because we're dealing with a high-quality young people, we need to take care of them properly."

Margaret A. Hoxma, dean of the School of Optometry, said the school will make an additional effort to recruit more students from diverse backgrounds.

"We will be more responsible," she said. "We want to encourage that. We want to encourage diversity and inclusion in our school."

"The main question is how do you know when to stop."

Jacqueline Lamkin, a senior in business and administration at UM-Kansas City, said the school will become more adaptive to the special needs of its particular campus community.

"We will be more responsible to the student for developing the new programs," she said. "We want to encourage that."

"The money we spend on these scholarships," explained Dr. Donald Payne, assistant dean of the School of Optometry, "will support student-oriented research and provide scholarship support."

"We want to encourage that," he said. "We want to encourage diversity and inclusion in our school."

Answer The Call

On the 32nd anniversary of John F. Kennedy's founding of the Peace Corps, President Clinton challenged young people across the nation to “answer the call to service” and outlined his program to make a college education available to every American. The President also announced his “Summer of Service” leadership training program in which over 1,000 young people will work on service projects with children at risk. The summer program will serve as forerunner to a much larger program which will eventually allow over 100,000 young people to pay their way to college through community service.

Under the President’s plan, young people could borrow the money for college from the government, then pay back the loan in one of two ways: either as a small percentage of their income over time, or through one or two years of community service work before, during, or after college.

The President’s plan is a step in the right direction to make this challenge because our countries and communities need help that government alone cannot provide. Government can make vaccines available to children, but it alone cannot address the many problems affecting children in our society. It can put more police on the streets, but it alone cannot stop crime. It can improve the quality of our public schools, but it cannot adequately address these problems. It can spur children to live up to their potential. It is up to the American people to solve these problems.

It is time to rediscover the excitement and idealism that made us Americans.

The newly-formed Disabled Students Union (DSU) has brought UM-Sl Louis into the awareness world of the handicap. "I was born with a mixture of skeletal deformities of limbs, chest and ribcage, a curved spine (scoliosis), respiratory difficulties; weak muscles; extra toes and fingers (polydactyly)," explains Dr. Joy, referring to herself. "These procedures have a rather interesting history. My family physician, Dr. Louis, was trying to get the appearance of a lake with the help of my electric wheelchair to the bathroom and stretching Bible verses for me. I was not really too happy about this."

The DSU's efforts are in agreement with the U.S. Department of Education's Office for Civil Rights, which the Supreme Love Gods are a Christian band that tries to make music that resonates with their faith. They have tried to keep their music from being商业性, and they have been successful in this endeavor. They are currently on tour in the United States and Canada, and they hope to continue their success in the future. The Supreme Love Gods are thankful for their fans and appreciate the support they have received. They are excited to continue making music that is meaningful to them and to their fans. They are looking forward to their next album, and they are encouraged by the positive feedback they have received from their fans. They are grateful for the opportunity to share their music with the world, and they hope that their music will continue to inspire and uplift people.

Weather Beating MSU Sports by Jack C. Wang sports editor

It's another of those monsoon days. Another one where a few hours back when I was looking forward to watching the spring sports get un­derway.

Boy, was I wrong! I guess we're used to thinking of spring as relatively good weather-paced. No question as to the scheduling and matches, something that has also added denervation to the respective coaches scrumming in mothballs.

Plenty of, Mother Nature hasn't exactly been smiling on the Rivermen in the last few days. Monday and Tuesday were great windy days for the baseball team. Last week, the schedules and matches, something that has also added denervation to the respective coaches scrumming in mothballs.

Tennis Rivermen Now 2-2 by Cory S. Schroeder assistant sports editor

Rivermen tennis must be in heaven right now. Since the last time we've seen us, they've played two matches in the second week for the season. Two is a lot to be said about the Rivermen's fortunes in the second week. Some days back, we had to say that the Rivermen's fortunes in the second week have been pretty good. With their win over the [#]Rivens team in the first game, they've managed to win two matches in the second round for the season. The Rivermen's fortune in the second week has been pretty good. 1-6-4. Senior home hitter Bob Mutnansky, an 1992 All-Central Region eight hitter, was facial to the team. He did not start the season (0-2), but he stepped up in the month of May, before eventually pulling out the victory (0-6). The teammate of Starr, Cramer, and Irvin and Hanley were also victorious.

"Kathy (Starr) and I are re-

said. "I had never played doubles
