The Best Sustained Program
by Clint SLLouis.

Where the university is, where the students are, why they choose to come to UM-St. Louis and the events that make their campus great.

This program will be offered for the first time ever at the Student Leadership Awards Banquet.

The Current

Students Honored At First Leadership Award Banquet

by Diane Cook

Student organization members were honored at the first Leadership Award Banquet.

Bob Schmalfeld, director of the University Center and Student Activities, served as Master of Ceremonies. He said the administration hopes the banquet will become a way to honor those students who have contributed to making campus life at UM-St. Louis more fulfilling.

"Our purpose is to recognize individuals, both students and advisors, who have made outstanding contributions to student organizations that have presented quality programs which addressed social issues, promoted awareness, performed needed services and maintained us throughout the last academic year," said Schmalfeld.

The first to receive awards were the members of the Student Activities Budget Committee. They receive an appreciation award for their work in analyzing the needs of both "Aragon Students." Members of the Student Activities Budget Committee, Karen Harmon, Floyd6, Andy Mann, Bill Blood, John Sebben, said there were no complaints from either the "right party" or the "left party" of the university.

"Programs eligible for the award include those that brought positive rea-sonable support for a common cause or purpose, general awareness of all related issues," said Schmalfeld.

The award went to the Right Party on campus.

"It doesn't mean that UM-St. Louis is closing its doors to people that it has historically served," - Morris Manning manager of media and university relations

"It doesn't mean that UM-St. Louis is closing its doors to people that it has historically served," said Morris Manning, manager of media and university relations at UM-St. Louis.

Manning said the university is looking at the "right party" because it will help keep the university running.

"If we work actively by the high selective option, admission will be granted to students who have high probability of adapting the university," added David Lucas, director of University Relations for the university.

Under the "right party," a 2.5 grade point aver-age, a 26.5 ACT composite and a rank in the top 75 percent would be necessary for admission.

If the plan was properly executed, 25 percent of the currently enrolled student class would not have been admitted to UM-St. Louis. The figures at UM-Kansas City and UM-Columbia are 16 percent and 13 percent, respectively. UM-Buffalo would be the tenth-ranked school with a similar percentage of students.

But, Manning said, the effect will not be as dramatic as it seems.

"If the university is, in fact, going to change, it will mean going from a high school to a community college," Manning said.

Manning also said it was important to know that the new student rolls would logically fit in with the UM-St. Louis and the student body is safety.

"Too much of UM-St. Louis is closing its doors to people that it has historically served," said said.

"What we need, in fact, is to make sure that enrollments and enrollment growth are balanced in each of the schools," added David Lucas, director of University Relations for the university.

"The new drop box should reduce waiting time in lines. It was completed in 1990, but there were waiting times in 1995. The new drop box has 30 offices, five classrooms and two computer labs. According to UM-St. Louis dean David Lucas, the new drop box can handle the daily traffic of all computing functions including: - Accounting Office - Information Systems Department - Mathematics and Computer Science Department - Computing Center - Telecommunications - 30 offices are currently being used. It helps to improve the advanced technology classrooms in the facility. Those classrooms have enough space for 1,400 students annually.

"The new drop box has been used by the general student computing laboratories throughout the campus. They are also related to information systems throughout Missouri and around the world.

Curators’ Remedy For Injustices Long Overdue

In a justice system where the accused is innocent until proven guilty, the term "sexual harassment" has not been said about those accused in the highest regard and in some cases, completely unfounded. Sexual harassment can be an issue where there is little to no evidence, and those accused of it can be left in the dark. The curators have done quite some time.

The policy also allows for the accuser in a sexual harassment case to be notified of disciplinary actions taken against the accused, something that has been needed for quite some time. In the past, victims of sexual harassment have not been notified of disciplinary actions taken against the accused, something that has been needed for some time.

Students Receive Recognition For Organizational Effort

by Diana Cook

Students organizations are split with respect to their need for recognition for their contributions to college life. Without them, UM-Louisville life would be a very different place where students go to college and go home without learning to live in a community of learners, exercising their leadership, and broadening their horizons. Student organizations put together events that reflect our heritage as a diverse city, entertain everyone doing ‘recreation’ duty as a student at campus, and enrich the message of life to students.

"Their commitment is not only stressful, but is very consuming, often eating up free time they would otherwise spend with family, friends," - Bob Schmalfeldt, Director of Student Activities.

"The first thing to be achieved in an annual award is the Student Leadership Award Banquet, held Friday night in The Student Union Center."

The first formal recognition of the evening was in the form of awards given to the Student Activities Committee. The awards were given to organizers of the student organization that had made the best contribution in the organization’s area. Scholarship, leadership, and community involvement were all emphasized.

goal ating at SIGA's annual leadership retreat, Scrogg also attended a workshop sponsored by the Student Government Conference in Washington. D.C.

"In short, Steve was not only concerned with the success of the Student Government Association, but he was also concerned with the success of the individuals in the organization," said Schwillich. "He found time to help these people become successful students, leaders and citizens.

Scrogg said the SGA members helped to make his job easier.

"Actually, I don't really deserve it, the student deserves it. It's been awarded to me at back and strait it," said Scrogg. "I'd like to think I've done some things but as an advisor I would help them if they get off track. They come to me and I say, 'Well, have you thought about this?' But basically, they did the work and it's been really nice to watch. It's been rewarding to be a part of that.'"

Another member of the faculty was awarded for the Festival College Fellicity of the Year. Judy Lively, instructor, won the Newsmen Writing and Interduction to Public Relations, among others.
She has taught classes for the Festival
College for the last six years.

"I was absolutely astonished and kinds thrilled," she said. "You never really think that anyone out there is respecting anything you teach."

Lively said that receiving the award made her feel good about her students.

Wang's World

They're Here To Learn... Then Play
by Jack C. Wang sports editor

Over the past few years, some of our local college sports teams have been proving that anything is possible with hard work, determination, and a will to succeed. Among these teams, the University of Missouri-St. Louis (UMSL) has had a particularly strong showing. Three of its students recently shared their experiences with us, and their stories won't disappoint.

One of the most unusual situations at UMSL is the baseball team. After a few years of being on probation due to poor attendance and consistency, the team has made a remarkable comeback. Coach Jeff King has done an excellent job of making the players realize the importance of the sport, and the team has shown a marked improvement. This year, they are playing well and are looking forward to a successful season. If you're a fan of baseball, you should definitely check them out.

The UMSL women's tennis team is another story. They have been working hard to improve their game, and it's showing in their performances. The team is currently ranked in the top 25 in the nation, and they have won several important matches. Coach Brian Walsh has been doing a great job of guiding the team, and they are definitely on the rise.

Finally, the UMSL men's soccer team has been making a name for itself. They have been working hard to improve their skills, and their performances have been impressive. The team is currently ranked in the top 30 in the nation, and they have won several important matches. Coach Paul Burnette has been doing a great job of guiding the team, and they are definitely on the rise.

Overall, these teams are doing well and are definitely on the rise. If you're a fan of sports, you should definitely check them out.

Players on the University of Mo. St. Louis women's volleyball team are making their mark not only in the classroom, but also on the court. The team is currently ranked in the top 25 in the nation, and they have won several important matches. Coach Kelly O'Dell has been doing a great job of guiding the team, and they are definitely on the rise.

No Aces Yet for Rivermen

by Jack C. Wang sports editor

UM-St. Louis men's tennis coach Carl Walker seems happy despite the team's 0-3 start.

"The team is working hard," said Walker. "But we are playing against schools that have some experience and played some matches. We believe that the problem may stem from the fact that the weather has been bad recently. The team has been practicing hard, and we feel that they have become more comfortable with each other.

"You may see a better performance when you play against different opponents." Walker added.

"The team has been playing against some other teams, but we have been working hard to improve our skills. We are definitely on the rise. If you're a fan of sports, you should definitely check them out.

Double Header At Doane: Softball Team Takes Two

by Pete Dapolito current sports reporter

The U-M-St. Louis softball team played doubleheader against St. Louis University on Tuesday. The game was a close one, but the Rivermen won both games to improve their record to 2-2 on the season.

In the first game, pitcher Jill Thompson led the team with a strong performance. She struck out seven batters and allowed only two hits. The Rivermen won the game 2-0.

In the second game, the Rivermen took charge early and never looked back. They scored five runs in the first inning and went on to win the game 10-2.

Head coach Jim Brady praised the team's defense and said that they are making progress towards playing at a high level. He also mentioned that the team is working hard to improve their skills. Overall, it was a good day for the Rivermen, and they are definitely on the rise. If you're a fan of sports, you should definitely check them out.

plus if someone goes down. "I'm not one to get hurt, someone else can step up and do the job," Stockdale said.

Catcher Cara Whedon has been a big reason in the Riverwomen's offensive ways. "Guys call a very good game and keep the pitchers sharp," Stockdale said. "Whedon, a senior transfer from Missouri Community College, has been a great influence on the pitchers. "Two keep me under control, I have confidence in her usually," Stockdale said.

These two pitchers and a good catcher add up to a viable Mid-America Athletic Conference opponent.

Said onegueen momaya. What if the turner our pitcher? We can go with Kelly first, Jill, then Colleen. Or how bout Jill, Colleen, Vicki Kelly, or Colleen. Vicki I'm not in. Brussels's next.
