Chancellor issues informative report card: UM-St. Louis Police need improvement

by Jeremy Rutherford

When Capt. John Smalley was given the day of doing the UM-St. Louis Police Department, he was given one order. The University wanted to see his officers out and about.

It's been three months since Smalley received his new job, and now there are two very different report cards being handed out: one by the University, would have two Smalley sitting in the corner if this were grade school. The other report has the UM-St. Louis Department steadily improving its efforts to make it a safe campus.

Looking at the online numbers, most offenders were facing a situation where they feel that a crime has been committed against them, and they are looking to take matters into their own hands. Thus, the online numbers reflect a lack of trust in law enforcement and a desire to take matters into their own hands. This highlights the importance of understanding the motivations behind online crime and addressing them through effective law enforcement strategies and community education programs.

Hancock II: Too good to be true

Dear Editor,

The idea of writing on every local and state tax proposal, then, will now, somehow, something Hancock's too good to be true is usually, I believe, the case that with Amendment

The promoters of Amendment 7, according to Hancock's tax measure, have not fully informed citizens of the far-reaching changes the measure would impose. Perhaps that's why Amendment 7 is so badly written that proponents and opponents can only speculate on its impact. The most likely scenario of Amendment 7 will be Missouri will have less, not more, say our government, because a judge will eventually define Amendment 7 and set up procedures for state and local governments accordingly.

Without government through the court system is not what anyone intended, but perhaps most damaging is the lack of state agencies and state-supported web sites that would allow making direct tax issues to service while Amendment 7 plays out for years to come.

The small city is inappropriately that we would endeavor to increase the tax, since in order to bring tax issues in the opening and facilitate local tax communications, otherwise powerful that might be.

The safety of Missouri will jeopardized throughout the state as the Missouri Highway Patrol clampdowns on the Missouri Highway Patrol and highway closures or Department of Transportation个人 income and property taxes.

To the Missouri Highway Patrols of all counties and the Department of Transportation, this proposal would result in higher costs for public and insurance companies.

The plan of elementary and secondary education will decline immediately when the mental and physical health of each student in public school class constitutes an achievement in elementary and secondary schools throughout the state.

Consequently, the President of the University of Missouri-St. Louis, George R. Urness, I am especially concerned about the devastating impact this proposal would have on higher education, colleges and universities. I would be proud to find a way that is reasonable and significant tax rate increase.

Would fundamentally change the status of public higher education.

Public higher education gives citizens as opportunity to broaden themselves and to become educated and employed in diverse fields that would be beyond their reach.

This is specifically made of the University of Missouri-St. Louis. The University of Missouri-St. Louis was created to make quality higher education physically and financially accessible to Missouri students and teachers. Passage of Amendment 7 would damage the institutions ability to meet this mission.

When viewed consider Amendment 7 on November 8, I suggest you consider all that has been mentioned. I am voting "no" on Amendment 7 because the state needs a system that will ensure a public higher education that is accessible and affordable to all.

Sincerely,

Steve Beavetsky
Alumni Association President

Transcript requests sends student on long-distance runaround

Dear Editor,

I don’t want to waste my time with this, but I can’t afford spending 45 minutes to proofread the obvious.

A few months ago, I saw the University of Missouri-Columbia Office of Student Affairs (UMCO) in my campus email. I had an urgent request by the student who was having a difficult time and I was told this job offer that required a copy of my transcript.

I asked the University of Colorado Boulder Community College and they faxed the transcript over to the University of Missouri-Columbia.

As the organizers of this effort, I believe we are all making the same mistake by not asking for the transcript when we need it.

I hope this doesn’t happen to the students who are in a similar situation.

Thanks again!

The American Red Cross is currently under a "Code Yellow." This means the supply of blood is not large enough for the expected need in the near future.

BETA ALPHA PSI, Red Cross, UM-St. Louis host another successful blood drive

by Brian A. Dashner reporter

This semester's UM-St. Louis Blood Drive, conducted Oct. 17 and 18, was a smash hit on the campus.

The drive, conducted each semester, is sponsored by Beta Alpha Psi fraternity. The American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) chapter 3610 of St. Louis provided free volunteers, and the St. Louis chapter of the American Red Cross provided personnel and transportation.

Each year Beta Alpha Psi sponsors the blood drive with a sweeping program to encourage students to take part. By the end of the drive, 234 new donors were recruited. This is all done as a community service. They encourage everyone to participate. There is no cost to those donating blood.

Many of the volunteers from the AARP had participated in previous drives. This is just one of the many activities that the organization promotes for the community.

Another important force behind the drive was the faculty advisor for Beta Alpha Psi. "She's very enthusiastic," said Green. "She's great!"

The average number of usable blood drives each semester is around 650. Twenty-eight people had signed up to give by 11 a.m. Tuesday.

Tuesday. By the 2 p.m. deadline, 82 signatures were listed, and then every single person coming in donated blood. The final tally of usable blood was 386, and was available.

"We really appreciate you having us," said Green. "At least we feel good.

"The blood is definitely needed, especially type O, and we'll happily take any clean blood we can get."

Assistants worked 20 years.

Post Traumatic Stress Disorder is characterized by several factors:

Recurrent and intrusive, distressing recollections of the event.

Recurrent and distressing dreams of the event.

Acting or feeling as if the event were recurring.

Intense psychological distress when exposed to internal or external cues that symbolize or resemble an aspect of the event.

Psychological reactivity upon exposure to internal or external cues that symbolize or resemble an aspect of the event.

Author Shirley Haizlip discusses her latest book

by Scott Lamar associate features editor

What inspired you to be a psychologist? How did your passion for psychology become a reality? I don't know the answer to this question, but what I do know is that I've been interested in psychology for as long as I can remember.

I was born in St. Louis, Missouri, on November 16, 1935. From an early age, I was interested in people and how they interact with each other. I was fascinated by the way people think, feel, and act.

My parents were proud of me, and they encouraged my interest in psychology. They supported my decision to become a psychologist, and they provided me with the necessary resources to pursue a career in psychology.

I attended the University of Missouri at St. Louis, where I earned my bachelor's degree in psychology. I then went on to complete my master's degree and doctorate in psychology.

During my graduate studies, I was exposed to a wide variety of research and clinical experiences. I came to understand the complexities of the human mind and behavior, and I became passionate about helping people.

I have been fortunate to work with many different individuals and groups over the years. I have had the opportunity to counsel people on a wide range of issues, including mental health, addiction, and trauma.

I have also had the privilege of working with individuals and groups who have experienced traumatic events, such as natural disasters, violent crimes, and war.

I have written and published extensively on the topics of trauma and mental health. I have written books, articles, and other works on the subject of trauma.

I am committed to helping people overcome the effects of trauma and improve their quality of life. I believe that every person has the potential to heal and move forward after experiencing trauma, and I am proud to be able to contribute to this important work.

I am currently working on a new book, which I hope to publish in the near future. This book will provide readers with a comprehensive understanding of trauma and how it affects the human mind and body. It will also provide readers with strategies for coping and healing after experiencing trauma.

I am excited about the opportunity to share my knowledge and experience with others, and I look forward to helping people on their journey to healing and recovery.

Riverwomen keep on rolling

by Pete Dicrispino

The UL-M., Louis. soccer season is coming to a close and it is that time again. It is time for you to recognize some of the athletes for their achievements.

It's time for the return of the Peter Piper Awards. The awards are given out to the players who deserve congratulations in a job well done. This week we will visit with the Women's soccer team.

The Women's soccer team has been working hard this year. They have had some ups and downs, but overall they have had a great season. They finished the season with a record of 9-15-9.

.PUTTING ON THE PRESSURE: Riverwomen midfielder Tammi Madden dribbles the ball down field as Missouri State defender Julie Russell (12) closes in last Saturday at UM-St Louis. T.J. Pizza's Coca-Cola Classic. Maddy was all over the field as her team scored its third goal of the game.

Rivermen come on strong as the ball is deflected out of the goal. The Lions and the Rivemen are tied with 5-5 scoring. Lions defender Mark Zollinger blocked the ball in the right anterior of the net by Lions defender John Smith.

The Lions in the game 2-2 Scotland, Lions defender David Zeplin turned the ball to the outter right of the net by Lions defender John Smith.

Madden was all over the field as her team scored its third goal of the game. When Burton scored all four goals for the Rivemen.

The Rivemen scored the game's first goal in the second half. Forward Greg Granville made a couple of good moves on the Lions defense and moved the ball down the right side of the field. He made a perfect shot towards goal to make a goal in the 4th minute of play. The Lions and the Rivemen are tied with 2-2 Scotland.
