University Meadows Apartments open with the semester

The UM-St. Louis/Barnes Pennington Phase Two: nursing merger complete

The UM-St. Louis/Barnes Pennington Hospital Nursing Program living on campus (due to the new University Meadows apartment complex) is one of the top hospitals in the country. One of the strong motivators for Barnes was for the hospital to maintain a close affiliation with the university. After the merger of the two organizations, the student housing complex will operate the apartments for another 10 years.

Anthony Georges named director of Financial Aid

Anthony Georges was named the director of Financial Aid at UM-St. Louis on May 22, 1995. Georges, a native St. Louisan, came from Jefferson College where he worked for 10 years as the Director of Financial Aid.

Upon obtaining his undergraduate degree in psychology, Georges worked for three years counseling people who were just getting out of federal and state penitentiaries to develop a parole program. The following three years were spent monitoring development of parolees and employment in the public sector using federal money to help employ economically disadvantaged people. From there, he went to Jefferson College.

Last year, Georges completed his doctoral degree in higher education and he decided to take the job at UM-St. Louis.

"I am very excited to be here," said Georges.

"I hope to improve on what Pat has done. I took the office to a higher level and I hope to expand its services."

Georges credited Pam Fischer, the previous director, with doing a wonderful job of turning around a department that was in disarray when he arrived in 1991.

Georges prefers the term financial aid to financial aid counseling, since the term suggests that the department has a support function in addition to a financial function.

"You don't know if [Georges] is diaing about money, services run high. When a student is counting on the money and they need help, they will naturally be very upset."

"I'd be very surprised if what we find is that they are not eligible for financial aid in the hard part about this job," said Georges.

Although it is rumored that the Republicans are aiming to cut the Direct Loan program, Georges doesn’t think it will happen. "What are you going to do with the students who need that resource to go to school?" he asked. "It won’t be cut because it’s too good of a program."

Georges said his other goals include a quarterly newsletter to inform students about what’s going on with financial aid. He would also like to see a more customized financial aid brochure for students in different areas of study instead of the general financial aid brochure that exists now.

It seemed like the second chance to make a first impression. Well, guess what, you have to make sure that your first impression can’t be right (only “first” impressions are right).

This summer I took one of the biggest risks of my life. I applied for a nine-week job as a counselor at an overnight camp in the middle of Missouri. I was absolutely shocked. It was the most unexpected opportunity, and I didn’t find another job that didn’t involve cooking. Interestingly, she probably didn’t have any kids, so you could say that I didn’t come into this job with the best intentions.

We need to talk about the. I was in charge of caring for the kids under my watch. Our “bitch” was one of the nicer things they called me. I was an air pocket, I was so young and so new to it all. I didn’t let them get the best of me.

There are a few issues one should know when your first day: you want to taste for friends, you want to give the kids an idea of what they’re going to be friends with. But you don’t need to know them too much. So even if you think you don’t have time to get to know everyone, you’re right. You may be surprised.

It is a good idea to try to get to know people and you need to take every opportunity that comes your way. This is about a month ago when the whole staff was here. I didn’t get in the way of what my life was like. I didn’t have time to get to know each other. I didn’t have time to get to know everyone, you’re right. You may be surprised.

Rangoon leaves audience with questions

by Scott Lamar / The Current staff

Beyond Rangoon is a film based on actual events involving an American tourist and a country whose people were being slaughtered in a fight for democracy.

Laura Bovaria (Penelope Ann Miller) plays a doctor who from the country to escape the anguish of finding her husband and son dead in her husband's death.

For unknown reasons, her sister selects Burma, a country ruled under military rule, as a place for her to hole up from her enemies. In the city of Rangoon, Bovaria gets a free-hand look at the turbulent conditions of the government in Burma. When problems arise with her passport, she is forced to stay in the country while her sister and all other foreigners are leaving all risks and without benefits.

The scenes she's forced to see as exci- tinge as jungles and bamboo can be, as what Bovaria eventually runs is the association committed against the Burmese army, which by now has declared martial law.

Director John Boorman did a good job of showing how horrible it was to live under the oppressive conditions. Bovaria (Penelope Ann Miller) graphically depicted scenes being dragged out of their homes and shot in front of their doors. Peaceful demonstrators were shown being cruelly dealt with by police and reporters.

Most of what Bovaria, Ko (Samuel L. Jackson), and some of the other prisoners did for the bulk of the movie to run. To try to sprout up, run down steps and hide in the river to slide the soldiers. The countless scenes where they run on top of being grotesque to watch, the visual effects make it seem so realistic. At times when they are fleeing by car, it appears that the background is moving rather than the camera is in a cinematic Night Line affair.

Anita (The Romance) was per- fect for the role. Although the direction of some of the scenes of violence is not what one can callcinematic, Rangoon makes it seem as if it was.

Beyond Rangoon was a little dif- ferent than my last few. I didn't work as much as I usually do, at least not for a wage. And wouldn't you know, there were more questions that it answers more than it raises. For instance, what the hell is the government of the country all about? I always wondered about it.

The biggest hassle of the entire evening was when I discovered in the programme the difference between the Latin Honours and magna cum laude versus cum laude. Respectively they reflect grade point averages of 3.79, 3.89 and 3.99. I never knew that, but I always wanted to know. As for my new film, alma mater, I can't say that I was all that impressed with it when I made it on the opening night. But hey, who am I to say? I'd like that film-like vari- able is our current performed at the weekend through.

One of the most satisfying moments of the evening was when I discovered in the programme the difference between the Latin Honours and magna cum laude versus cum laude. Respectively they reflect grade point averages of 3.79, 3.89 and 3.99. I never knew that, but I always wondered about it.

of the Purple Sage or as his own Jerry Garcia Acoustic Band. In 1973, the multi-instrumental Garcia played banjo on "OM And In The Way" which quickly became the biggest selling Grateful Dead albums of all time. Along the way, he even made a jazz albums, "Houndn'" with Howard Wolfe and a R&B albums with Merl Saunders. Aside from music Garcia had several interests. In recent years his works of art have adorned gallery walls across the country, and a collection of neckties designed by him have been available in stores. Since his death, these items as well as his drawings and even the "Cherry Garcia" ice cream named in his honor by Ben and Jerry's have been hard to keep in stock. As a man who entangled the innumerable ideals of love and peace, Garcia had attracted fans of all ages. His lies would have a profound void in the hearts of those who were moved by either his self-spoken and genuinely-humble demeanor or his unadorned knack for playing it from the heart.

Great Recruiting nets Riverwomen a solid team

Coach Hudson adds many quality high school and junior college transfers in off season

by Eric Thomas of The Current staff

As a great number of prospective students remained on campus throughout this month, a number of individuals began to tell the recruiting story. In this case, the UM-St. Louis Riverwomen soccer team needed some help out on the practice field right next to Mark Twain Building. The first practice took place on Tuesday, and the girls knew that they weren't going to work on their sea.

Last year the Riverwomen had a men's team and a women's team. The men's team finished up the final Division II poll. With 11 members on the team, Head Coach Hudson believes that they can make his current team compete pretty much in the same decade. "We have one out of every five that can play different positions," said Hudson. "Make me a current team with the men's soccer team have practiced and this will be the one year, we'll make it a team that can play different positions, that's what makes this team so special."

The first practice took place on Tuesday, and the girls knew that they weren't going to work on their sea.

Last year the Riverwomen had a men's team, and a women's team. The men's team finished up the final Division II poll. With 11 members on the team, Head Coach Hudson believes that they can make his current team compete pretty much in the same decade. "We have one out of every five that can play different positions," said Hudson. "Make me a current team with the men's soccer team have practiced and this will be the one year, we'll make it a team that can play different positions, that's what makes this team so special."

Women's soccer team has depth that last season lacked

by Ken Dunkin

Unlike last season, women's soccer head coach Ken Hudson has an abundance of players to choose from when making a lineup. The Riverwomen had only two backups for most of last season which caused fatigue and the lack of depth hurt in crucial games. Going into this season, Hudson will display more of the most talented players to wear the Riverwomen jersey in years.

In addition to player by player look at the team, an attempt to determine the team's depth hurt in crucial games. Going into this season, Hudson will display more of the most talented players to wear the Riverwomen jersey in years.

Enfield—The starting stopper and backup goalie. Enfield is already a hard worker who can play anywhere in the backfield. She had two goals and two assists last season.

Dyer-A hard worker that covers her opponent well. Made the team as a walk on last season and played in 15 games.

Bob Fritchey
Pam Burton—The team's best scorer and four assists in 20 games last season. Burton is the team's best scorer with two goals and she will be looked upon to produce those numbers this year while being marked heavily by the opposition.

Marcie Scheske—Could be an offensive threat as forward or midfielder. At either position, she will be a threat offensively.

Jamie Snider—One of the freshmen who will make a difference to the team. Can play forward or midfielder. Can have two goals and one assist last season. She started 16 of 20 games last season.

Carrine Mermo—A great player who joins the Riverwomen for her freshman season. Mermo had an excellent high school career at Rosary School. She scored 47 goals and added 36 assists while starting during her four season. Could be the forward who complements Burton as the pair goes and goes.

Angie Bonfiglio-A good offensive player who joins the team after a year at Moravian Community College. Will get a chance to make an impact in the forward position.

Lori Logan—A transfer student from St. Louis University College at Florissant Valley who will be a factor for the Riverwomen. Logan earned second-team National Junior College Athletics Association (NJCAA) All-American honors last season.

Tracy Nace—A quick midfielder from St. Dominic will be given the opportunity to play at both midfielder and in the backfield.

Lueddecke—Kurt Lueddecke-The sweeper for the Riverwomen Lueddecke may not get the credit of the goal scores but her defense is just as important. Had one goal in the 10-0 rout of Fontbonne.

Lynna Gibbs—A smart defender who hopes to earn her starting wingback spot. Her one assist came in the 1-0 victory over St. Je-LIMAG is a student organization with two primary goals: publishing UM-St. Louis' annual literary and arts magazine, compiled from selections submitted by students, faculty, and staff; and promoting literary artists on campus through our open mikes and Premier Performance Troupe. There are more positions and opportunities available to LiMAG now than ever before. Little to no experience is necessary for most positions, and all majors are welcome to become members. If you've ever wanted to join LiMAG, or if you've ever wanted to participate in publishing a literary magazine, now is the time to pursue that goal.

The players say all anyone who is interested needs to do is sign up, whether they are in school or just out of high school. "It is a great way to stay active and have fun," said Lachance.

"We've never played any of these teams before, so we really don't know what to expect," said team star Burton. "But it will be fun!"
