GSA controller resigns

Former GSA President Chris Jones was appointed to replace Pat Rauscher.

By Nicholas Bridges of The Current Staff

Student Government Association (SGA) president Beth Titlow announced the resignation of comptroller Pat Rauscher and the appointment of former SGA President Chris Jones in a presentation during the Oct. 31 SGA meeting.

Titlow said that Rauscher, who was in attendance, requested to be excused to rigorous course work and a personal family event, to devote more time to his personal life. “I’m sorry to see him leave such an important role, but to sacrifice his health, personal relationships or his education.”

Titlow said, “I have the highest respect for Pat. He did wonderful work, and I only wish him the best.”

According to the SGA constitution, the top-ranking officer of the controller would be announced by the president.

In addition, Rauscher’s position was announced on the Oct. 31 SGA meeting. After consulting with Student Senates and other campus organizations, the GSA president administered the oath of office to titlow and Mr. George Smith.

Titlow also appointed a new parliamentarian, Beth Frinkey. Frinkey is the managing editor of U-Mart, the campus newspaper.

Other topics were discussed during the meeting. Vice Chancellor for Flintcampus, Zero Asset, and staff members were recognized for their contributions. The University is currently training to operate in a green and environmentally friendly way.

At the grand opening of the new University Center, a 14-cent increase was approved for the fiscal year. It will be used to fund the building’s cleaning services. The University is committed to hiring more women and men who are currently unemployed.

The organization is located in McMillan Hall and is a component of the University Center. The GSA is dedicated to helping young people develop a commitment to informed, responsible participation in the civic, governmental, and social life of the local community.

Frinkey said, “Every year we have an issues forum,” said George Rup, CEO of the Environmental Protection Agency. “We put on this forum to present both sides of an issue, and we encourage our students to think about the issues and make informed decisions.”

The organization is located in McMillan Hall and is a component of the Center for Excellence in Urban Education at UM-St. Louis. According to an annual statement, CEU is dedicated to helping young people develop a commitment to informed, responsible participation in the civic, governmental, and social life of the local community.

Critiquing Pat Raushcer's resignation

Titlow's decision is a type of nepotism. He has used some creative tactics in running with Rauscher on the ticket for the comptroller. Rauscher should have thought about the sacrifices that must be made to garner the honor of acquiring an elected position. He should have at least shown up to tell the people he will be the comptroller. It is a position that must be filled by someone with strong personal morals and dedication. This student body only cares because it knows Titlow will not resign from his position. Rauscher supposed to win a high-power position. He must have underestimated the work that he has done previously. Rauscher should be held accountable for his actions. He has not made the sacrifices he promised.

75th ANNIVERSARY OF WOMEN'S RIGHTS

by Julie Barrett

This July, 1995 marks the 75th anniversary of women's rights in the United States. Seven-1995 years ago, women received the right to vote and the political landscape changed forever. Women were, at last, granted formal voice in the democratic process. UM-St. Louis observed this anniversary with an inaugural luncheon to honor six women trailblazers.

There were only six women who were the first to occupy positions of power in society. At the luncheon, women were celebrated for their accomplishments and contributions to society. The event was a celebration of women's progress and the importance of women's rights.

Feature stories on women's rights and accomplishments were published in the newspaper, highlighting the achievements of women in various fields. The articles praised the courage and determination of women who worked towards equality and social justice.

The newspaper also published an essay by Michael O'Brien on the historical significance of women's rights. The essay explored the struggle for women's rights and the impact of the Women's Suffrage Movement.

The anniversary was marked by various events and activities, including lectures, panel discussions, and exhibitions. These events aimed to raise awareness about women's rights and to celebrate the achievements of women.

The newspaper highlighted the importance of women's rights and the ongoing struggle for equality. The articles called for continued support and advocacy for women's rights, emphasizing the need for gender equality and the importance of women's participation in society.

The anniversary of women's rights was a momentous occasion that marked the progress made in women's rights and the continued struggle for equal opportunities. The event was a celebration of women's achievements and a call for further progress towards equality.

Second hand shops offer wallet relief

by Michael O’Brien

With the US Louis administration making tax breaks for second hand goods, this is a good time to shop if you don’t need the latest in fashion. Just when I thought I had that perfect wardrobe I was hit by the need for a new pair of shoes or a sweater.

Second hand shops (often called thrift stores) offer a variety of items at more reasonable prices. If you have never shopped in any of these stores, you would probably be surprised to find out that many carry stock that you would find in a department store.

There are many specialized stores, such as those that offer only men’s or women’s clothing or only children’s clothing. Often, these stores have other items, such as books, records, or even furniture.

Second hand shops usually have a wide selection of items, from clothing to furniture. They often carry a variety of brands and styles, allowing you to find something that suits your taste. Often, these stores are located in neighborhoods that are not as wealthy as the area, allowing you to find items that are not available in more expensive stores.

UM-St. Louis is in the midst of several top-notch second hand stores. As I write this, I am looking at the National Red Cross Thrift Shop, located at 1470 National Red Cross. This store is a great place to find second hand clothes at reasonable prices. The store has a wide selection of clothing for women, men, and children.

In addition to clothing, there are many other items available, such as books, records, and even furniture. The store is open every day from 9:00 to 5:00, and is a great place to find steals.

To check out this store, head over to the National Red Cross Thrift Shop, located at 1470 National Red Cross. This store is a great place to find second hand clothes at reasonable prices. The store has a wide selection of clothing for women, men, and children.

Second hand shops are a great way to save money and find unique items. They are a great alternative to department stores and malls, allowing you to find something that suits your taste.

Jeanie Stahl

Mysteries

Jeanie Stahl, born playing and recording accentuol folk and children's music for over 20 years. In her latest release, "Mysteries," she finds her- thing everything from the old English ballad to the "Lord Franklin" arica-country-flavored "Little Cowboy's Lullaby.

"The August of Our Years," one of the few tracks penned by Stahl and brought to life by the Stahl family, is a sweet tale about the childhood memories of each, as they both grew up in New Jersey.

Another of her co-written tracks, "Mysteries of Science," is a delightfully evocative reminder of childhood that features such questions as:

- How come the body's beautiful but nature's a chorean?
- How come Pistachio can be a red Pinachio's ice cream's green?

Joining Stahl on the release are Aubrey Haynie, guitar; Schmitke, fiddle; Gay Van Deen, guitar; Bill Staines, guitar and vocals and Mason Daring, vocals, guitar and dobro.

"Lord Franklin" is one of the best songs on the disc. It features Stahl's voice clear and resonant at a crystal bell as well as the hauntingly pretty wailing played by Billy Novak, and interesting harmoned dobro playing of Daring.

"On The Little Cowboy's Lullaby" Schmitke, Van Deen and Van Duser and Bryan can tap into a2ng the ride; the range would akin to that of long time children's favorites "Riders in the Sky."

One of the prettiest songs was the Randy Newman-written "Tecum Jimmie." On it Stahl is backed by Chris Nettles on piano and Daring on "tongas." In a tender strut, Stahl and Stains sing of a love which was unexpected due to the random winds of youth.

Though I've been an avid folk fan for several years, eventually I'd moved heard of Stahl before this disc arrived. Now that I've heard it, I can't wait to to the same and accept the credits of the musicians.

Highstrung

"Now Or Never"

After two years of playing the bluegrass circuit and delighting crowds as events like the Telluride Bluegrass Festival, Highstrung has released "Now Or Never," their second Pineman release.

The disc begins with the title track, a sad tale about the childhood memories of each, as they both grew up in New Jersey.

"Grandpa," is a Nabbigum narrative written by lead singer and vocalist Keith Tew. On it he pays tribute to his grandfather, noting all the special times they spent together as he was growing up.

Highstrung is Tew, lead vocals and guitar; Jerry Nettles, vocals, mandolin and guitar; Terry Campbell, vocals and bass; and Dave Pye, banjo. Guarnatti's vocals on the disc include Ashley Harney, fiddle and Kim Gardner, dobro.

No Bluegrass record worth its salt would be complete without a gospel song or two, and Highstrung doesn't disappoint. While "Show 'Em Your Sermon" isn't exactly gospel, it does lean that way, offering advice on clean living and righteousness. Pye's banjo picks and Tew's vocals really stand out on the disc.

Other songs on the disc include "Going To The Hilltop," and "On And On (The Story Goes)," the latter a soft-sung tale of life and love.

From start to finish, influences of early Bluegrass pioneer Bill Monroe, Lester Flatt, the Osborne Brothers and Jim & Jacky Brown come through loud and clear in the group's music.

I found them to be one of the best of a group of up-and-comers making Bluegrass bands. I was particularly impressed with all the vocals as well as Harney's fiddle playing and Pye's banjo picking.

"Mysteries" as a rather fine string band, impeccable musicianship and sophisticated arrangements to boot, what more could a fan want?

"Now Or Never"

by Jill Barrett of The Current staff

The holiday season is upon us, and for those people who believe holidays are really just a great joke played by Hallmark and tradition, "Home For The Holidays" is a movie for you.

Holly Hunter plays Claudia, single mother who loses her job as an art teacher on the same day she is supposed to leave town for Thanksgiving weekend. To make matters worse, she's pregnant, the baby is due at the hospital, her son is to arrive for the holidays that same weekend in Claudia's apartment.

Perhaps the final blow is that Claudia is returning home to visit her parents.

During the middle of the first night, Claudia's brother Tommy (Robert Downey Jr.) makes an appearance with his fiancée and her brother, singing of Daring.

One of the prettiest songs was the Randy Newman-written "The Funeral of Her Husband." It features Stahl's vocals as well as her brother, singing of Daring.

It was quite a season for the UM-St. Louis women's soccer team. This was the season for the 3-year starter to play her last game for the team. She had thought about what she would do after the game and what she would do before the game. She knew she would leave a lasting impression on the team. She was a great kid to have around and not just for his playing ability.

Jenni Burton was the=head coach and played for the team all season.

Bob Westling named new UM-St. Louis softball coach

by Ken Dunkith
The Current staff

With a winning history and an optimistic attitude, Bob Westling has been named the new UM-St. Louis head softball coach.

Westling comes from a winning background. He was the head softball coach at Lindenwood University.

He coached them to a 29-25 record, taking them from a losing program to a winning program.

He was a big factor in the offensive game plan. Before she was his the season opened with a tough start and was her first game on the field.

She was key player on the team. She was always the ball carrier for the team. She was the one who carried the ball.

KWMU sets fund drive record

by Susan Benton
of The Current staff

In just seven days, Saturday, Oct. 15, through Friday, Oct. 21, KWMU raised $22,300 from its listeners to help fund "Challenge '95," an annual on-air fundraising event. This is the on-air fundraising record for the station. "We said people would give one more time. Our goal before the air time deadline was $15,000, we would end the drive, and $20,000 we would extend the drive," said Robert Aoeseler, program director for KWMU. "Well, that's what happened, and we surpassed our goal by $2,300 in just seven days.

According to a press release from KWMU, this year's total is a 22 percent increase over last year's full fund drive, almost doubling the funds of KWMU's KFSR'S two previous efforts of $12,350 and $8,300 respectively. Included is a $4,750 which came from corporate and individual sponsors, $4,750 from listeners generosity, and $4,750 from grants.

The money raised for membership programs based on KWMU's and for the operation of the station. Additional funding is provided by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and the University of Missouri-St. Louis. The multi-day membership drive took place through Nov. 27. The KWMU station's call numbers are 516-5789 in Missouri, 1-800-252-9163 from outside Missouri.

The drive is so successful due to the growth of the number of people who believe in KWMU, proving to us that our listeners are interested in local coverage and news and information programming on KWMU.

Ermeling battles till the end

by Eric Thomas of The Current staff

The season is over, but there are numerous memories for the Riverwomen soccer team. Any of the Riverwomen who have watched the UM-St. Louis attack over the years, might refer to the dramatic Ermeling battles on Oct. 7.

Ermeling, a junior in the nursing department, is one of the most consistent players in the Riverwomen's starting lineup. The team has played well in their first nine games this season, finishing first in the Division II conference and fourth in the Division II national ranking. Ermeling has been instrumental in the team's success, leading the team in goals scored with eight goals and assisting on five others.

But the season was not without its challenges. Ermeling had her fair share of injuries, including a trip that required stitches above her right eye from a game the previous week. Despite the injury, she continued to play, just as she did in previous games. Ermeling's determination and resilience are an inspiration to her teammates and coaching staff.

"She's a strong, physical player, and she's also a tremendous stabilizing force on the team," said Glenn Clendenen, the Riverwomen coach.

In the end of the season, Clendenen is proud of her team's performance and the season they have had. "The chemistry is just right for them this year," Clendenen said.

"We have had a lot of fun, a big game around from last year season," said Carrie Marino, the Riverwomen's president.

The team has done very well this year. "The end of the season is coming to a close; but, Clendenen is happy with their performance and the season they have had," said Glenn Clendenen, the Riverwomen coach.

"I'm happy with my performance," said Glenn Clendenen, the Riverwomen coach. "The chemistry is just right for them this year."
