Violent threat brings SGA election to premature finish

Students speak out on new minimum wage policy

by Michael O'Brien

The Student Government Election was abruptly halted Wednesday at 1:15 p.m. after volunteer poll watchers alleged that SGA candidates were illegally soliciting votes.

"This is the best thing that I knew how to do," Cuevas said. "We would've done it." After stopping the election, Cuevas immediately announced the votes for Jason Warren, candidate for SGA president, and Tonya Hutchinson, candidate for SGA comptroller, would be disqualified.

"I wanted to knock him back," Rodgers said. "Gonzalo believed he was being separatist. The whole campaign was against Warren and Hutchinson. To me, it was like the election­

Dr. John J. Nauss, newly appointed dean of UM-St. Louis, is still in the process of making decisions about personnel Eqme and taking a look at the current faculty and staff. Although he says he's not ready to make all the dequisions, he has made some. Nauss said the next step will be to form a faculty search committee to evaluate candidates for their ability to meet the needs of the students. The decision will be made in the fall, he said.

Robert Nauss steps down as Dean of Business School

by Tynnea Rodgers

After six years as dean of the business school, Robert Nauss is stepping down to focus on teaching and research.

Nauss started at UM-St. Louis as an assistant professor in the School of Business teaching Managerial Economics in Fall 1993. He was named a full professor and served as chair of the Management Science Program in 1995. He was promoted to associate dean in 1999. Then, he went on to serve as executive dean before being appointed as dean in 2004.

Nauss said he will continue to teach and work at UM-St. Louis, but his new role will give him more flexibility to pursue his research interests.

"I think it's a good balance between teaching and research," Nauss said. "I want to be able to devote more time to my research and writing, and I think this new role will allow me to do that." He added that he is looking forward to working with the new dean, who he said is an excellent choice.

Susan Belcher, who was named associate dean for student affairs, will serve as interim dean while the university searches for a new dean.

Chancellor Touhill featured in local magazine

by John Jones

The smiling face of Chancellor Charles Touhill was featured on the cover of the April issue of St. Louis Com­ magazine. The Chancellor has been featured on the cover of the magazine several times this year.

"Because we are young, we can still change and do things differently," Touhill said in the article. "I am proud of the progress we have made and I am excited about the future of our university." He also noted that he is looking forward to working with leaders in the community to move the university forward.

The article also describes the successful career of his predecessor, Chancellor Touhill, who has been in the position for more than 20 years.

"I am confident that I will be able to work closely with my team and make decisions that will benefit the students and the university," Touhill said.

"I am looking forward to working with our new chancellor, and I am confident that he will be able to bring new ideas and initiatives to our university," said Susan Belcher, who was named associate dean for student affairs. "We are excited to see what the future holds for our university under his leadership."

UM-St. Louis International Students come together to celebrate International Week

by John Jones

In music and colorful outfits, the international student union of UM-St. Louis has gathered to share their cultures and customs for the campus-wide international week.

Part of promoting understanding and friendship is often a sharing of experiences. Several foreign students were interviewed by The Current to find out how they are studying at the University and what their views are on life in the United States.

Henghu Zhou is a fresh man from the city of Tai-pi in the island of Taiwan. Taiwan is formally known as the Republic of China. She came to UM-St. Louis in 1993 because the universities in America, and UM-St. Louis has reputation in marine sciences.

When asked what differences she has noticed between American culture and her own, Wu was at a loss as to where to begin. Finally, she commented on the difference between the way both cultures use body contact.

"In Taiwan there is no hugging or touching," she said. "Handshakes are said instead."

"It is okay for women to hold hands in Taiwan," Wu said. "Friends hold hands at the movies, even in the classrooms."

Wu and her student organization (Chinese Student Association) will display examples of Chinese calligraphy during the international week celebration.

Across the street of Taiwan has maintained China, a home of China, a haven of Chinese. A Zaku, a chemistry major and executive vice president of the Chinese Student Association of Mainland.

This has been studying at the University of St. Louis since 1994. This international university, with over 15 students, is one of the largest international student organizations on campus.

"Americans are more open. When Chinese students come here we encourage them to learn from American culture," Zhou said.

"Americans are more friendly. At the same time they are colder. Zarapeva said, "At the first step, they open, but then you can't get too close to them."

"They need their own space. The international students are also more close and friendly group. This is perhaps due to the fact that UM-St. Louis is largely a commuter campus. Most international students live off campus or in the near campus, and it can be difficult to form lasting friendships with domestic students. The international students hope that International Week will bring more friendship among Americans and also very active and diverse group of people.

The story of a girl who's gone a little mad is a sweet Hugh and Patricia Winterbourne's winning take. She's lost her baby boy, winds up in the hospital and has a whole new life after the shock. It is minutely identified as Patricia Winterbourne and is delivered away to the Winterbourne mansion where the stern Hugh's (Brendan Fraser) twin brother, Bill (Fraser again) and she begins her chaste. It won't last the building, but any one will half a house can see where the movie is going all about minutes of its half-baked lines, poor delivery and clichéd moments.

Ricki Lake's portrayal of Conni Doyle was disappointing, as the story's premise for Tristar's new and appears to be a predictable script.

Brady gets 300th victory

by Kent Dunmeyer

With it a 11-1 victory over St. Louis, Edwardsville, Illinois, Edwardsville, Illinois, baseball Head Coach Brian Brady, added his 300th victory as a coach to his list of accomplishments.

"It's a great feeling to have that milestone," Brady said prior to the game.

"We have worked very hard to get to this point," Brady said.

"The foundation has been laid with the help of several assistant coaches," Brady said. He has an all-time record of 305-103-3 at St. Louis.

Brady had already won 50 games this season, prior to this game, and he was managing the Rivermen when Brady was a player.

"The puck, Gilmour lays on the league (Murphy Baron) and the Leafs center Doug Gilmour go as long as Fuhrr doesn't get hurt."

"Casey Wek is a Blues style. This is the major and aggressive. Even over the season, it seems like he was the league."

"The Blues went on to win the game. Now Fuhrr is gone.

"Over the weekend, the Blues have been fed Sat on the mound, then we sting the ball. When Humphrey was 5-0, he was hitting OVER .200. He is hitting OVER .200. But it's not over yet, Brady said.

"Brady said. "We have a lot of ground to cover and many more teams to come. We have to continue this journey over the next two years, and we hope to meet the expectations of the fans," Brady said.

"Stunned has broken more men tackles with his tackling than anybody ever on the Wildcats. Brady said, "I'm not sure who is." He has done a lot. Brady has never had a losing season in his 31 years as a baseball coach. Most of his teams have been nationally ranked. This year's team is currently ranked 15th in Division II. But with the win, there comes a down side, being away from home. He has had to deal with much. His boys are 7 and 8, and he hasn't opened as much with them as I probably should have, because baseball has taken me away from them. That is one part of the problem I have, I wish I could spend more time with them."

"I still enjoy coming to work. I love baseball."

"Jim Brady, Rivermen baseball coach."
Defensive dynamo Donna Simon signs letter of intent

Defensive dynamo Donna Simon signs letter of intent

The Riverwomen basketball team has added another highly recruited player to their roster for next season, as Donna Simon signed a letter of intent to play at UM-St. Louis.

The signing was announced April 17 by head coach Jim Coen. Simon is a senior at Waltonville School. Both were signed during the fall signing period.

Donna is one of the most versatile athletes we've ever recruited. She is a truly outstanding defensive player and might be the best defender in the metro St. Louis area.

The Way Out Club came to life with powerful words and images Friday, April 19 during LitMag's year-end banquet. The banquet was a celebration honoring those who had their writing or art included and those who worked diligently to produce UM-St. Louis annual literary magazine, Friday was also the first release of the magazine, Words & Dreams Part 12, and the first time that it was seen by most of the people in attendance.

Bob Fritchey, managing editor of LitMag, emceed the evening's performance and took time to thank those involved; he gave words of encouragement to next year's staff and openly invited everyone to be a part of LitMag. "There is room in our organization for more people even than we have now," Fritchey writes in the prologue to the 1995-96 LitMag. "And with many of us leaving after this year, we need your involvement desperately. I won't kid you about the work or the time involved, but the breadth and character of the people in this organization make it all worthwhile. And there are positions to fit almost any schedule. It is a rare occasion to see so many of them performing in one evening.

The night was full of performances given by the authors published in this year's LitMag. Among them was next year's LitMag Managing Editor Guy Bates, and President Brian Jenkins. Jenkins provided the much needed comic relief after several deep and soul-stirring pieces with his dynamic poem titled, "A Large Deep Pan Poem with Extra Cheese, and Hold the Anchovies." The poem tells about the world of the pizza boy and the things and people he must encounter on his job. Jenkins' performance of the piece amused and refreshed the crowd. They laughed hysterically when Jenkins belted out a line from his poem, "I always come in less than thirty minutes, / but the favor is rarely reciprocated.

After the performances, former, current, and future members of LitMag took the opportunity to mix, mingle and enjoy the free food and cash bar.

"I had a marvelous time," Don Bames, 1995-96 LitMag president, said. "There are so many fine artists here at UM-St. Louis, and it is a rare occasion to see so many of them performing in one evening.

"Words & Dreams, Part 12" is on sale now for $5 in the University Bookstore and from LitMag members. For more information about the book or about becoming a part of LitMag call 516-7778.

On Wednesday, problems began when Warren called the SGA presi­dent, Bob Fritchey, and said he had seized Warren campaign­ing.

"I wasn't aware that Jason Warren was not in campaign," Fritchey said. "I don't think I should say where he was until I got this information. I told Carson that Warren was campaigning."

Fritchey said, "I don't think I should say where I found him and did so.

This debate originated between Republican Campa­ign--which has not suggested the President's call for an increased minimum wage. However, in the February 28, 1996 issue of The Post, Harvard economics Richard Freeman said the increased minimum wage "is not a great deal of money and wouldn't cause the government a whole lot."

FOR SQUIRRELS 2:15
AND
THE NIXONS 4:00

In combination with the International Student Week, UPB will celebrate the close of another academic year with games, food, bands, and much more excitement. Mirthday is a huge birthday party for UM-St. Louis. Enjoy watching the UM-St. Louis Dance Team and the UM-St. Louis Riverettes Pom Squad perform. Meet other students, while the Black Greeks United wash your car.

This year UPB introduces Mirthstock '96. This four-part concert features nationally known alternative rock bands and rap artists. The performance begins at 11:00 am.

Don't miss out on all the fun. Be with us on Wednesday, April 24, 1996.

Another event sponsored by YOUR University Program Board.
