African-American staff members discuss struggles of community

by Michael O'Malley

"During Block history month we highlight our contributions and our leaders," Priscilla Dowden, assistant director of the University Program for Women of African-American descent, said during a symposium titled "The African-American Struggle for Equality in the 20th Century.

The event was attended by a who's who of campus personalities, including Vice Chancellor of Academic Affairs Howard Stier, Director of the Office of Equal Opportunity Norman Eaton and Coordinator of African-American Student Affairs Doretha Dortch-Puckett.

"The period of the 1960s was one of the most important periods of the struggle," said Dortch-Puckett.

The symposium was focused on the related movements that were passed between 1965 and 1968 which highlighted African-Americans to certain properties and anti-civil rights laws that still exist to this day. The 1965 Voting Rights Act was one of the most important movements in society.

Two speakers were featured during the symposium, and the event was hosted by Kelward Hornaday, UM-St. Louis Student Government vice president.

Word, now a graduate student in English at UM-Detroit, was recently named president of the Clayhorne group in the state of the room's speakers, Word observed mobilization in the room.

"The students have a three-year contract with ComServe that expires in December," Wendy James said.

"When we go to the board they'll go out for as much money as possible," she said. "If we don't renew, you'll be hit by them.

History professor feels more should be done to combat racism

by Scott Lamar of The Current staff

Over the past 10 years, Priscilla Dowden has been drawn from the perspective of both a student and a teacher.

"For me, understanding the African-American experience was an interest," said Dowden.

She attended the University of Chicago and the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. She recommended that students utilize the office of African-American education and the Black Student Union as resources.

"The 1500 African-American students in the campus are very important," she said.

"We need to use our resources and allow them to realize their potential," she added.

The good, the bad, and the ugly
by Michael O’Brien
The Current's staff

The Good
I have a story to tell that I will tell at the end of this column, but for now, I want to talk about all the good that exists.

Several students have been working hard on various projects, and it’s amazing to see the fruits of their labor. Some events have been planned, such as the upcoming graduation ceremonies, and I’m excited to be a part of them.

Susan Benton, a photographer for The Current, was chosen as the photographer for the upcoming graduation ceremonies. Her work is always impressive, and I’m looking forward to seeing her photographs.

The Curators have also been actively planning for the upcoming exhibition season. They have been busy working with artists and curators to ensure that the exhibitions are of the highest quality.

The Bad
Unfortunately, there are also some negative aspects of The Current’s operations that need to be addressed.

I’ve been hearing complaints about the quality of some of the articles, and I realize that I have a responsibility to ensure that the content we publish is accurate and well-written.

I’m also aware of some logistical issues that need to be resolved, such as the delays in getting the new print version of The Current out to our readers.

The Ugly
There are also some uglier aspects of The Current’s operations that need to be addressed. For example, the financial situation of The Current is not as healthy as it could be.

We have been relying on ads as our primary source of revenue, but this is not sustainable in the long run.

We need to find new ways to increase our revenue, and I’m looking forward to working with our advertising team to explore new opportunities.

I hope that by addressing these issues we can move forward and improve the quality of The Current for all of our readers.

Son Volt visits the Gateway City

Semilocal band sells out Mississippi Nights by Jill Barnett

There's nothing like success to break up a good band. Uncle Tupelo, a local band that played the St. Louis area for years, have broken all the way around it. Before that they were just scatting around.

Badfinger/Beatle/John Lennon/Chuck Berry. The band won on the noon room wall, but only once. The band won on the noon room wall, the band won on the noon room wall.

"There will be a debate at Southeast Missouri State University High School, but the UM-St. Louis debate program had folded by the time Ennenbach arrived here. His heart was drawn to the tournaments where Tim Preston, associate professor of Communication and staff adviser for the Debate and Forensics teams, Ennenbach began to compete in the competitive events, and won at least three trophies, all of which trophies must total 8 or less. A speaker who will receive third place at all four finalists this year, will receive second place in Programmed Oral, Ennenbach will be the first UM-St. Louis student to qualify to compete in final events at National.

Ennenbach plays in a TV studio and on video production, where he presides over his competition, and After-Dinner Speaking, at the UM-St. Louis town hall.

Son Volt is one of the many voices that Ennenbach says, "just listen; they give me direction." When Tim Ennenbach speaks, it was during his freshman year at the University of Missouri, that the songwriting has been a small part of his life. Goldman contracted the HIV virus. In a state of shock, Goldman later called his relatives and friends to tell them that he was positive for HIV. The virus that causes AIDS.

When Tim Ennenbach speaks, people listen. Some people do more than listen; they give him trophies, and lots of them. These people are the judges at the debate tournaments where Ennenbach speaks nearly every weekend.

Ennenbach, a veteran Debate and Forensics Team member and leader, plans to go into TV and video production after graduation.

SOUTHERN RAIL
"Glory Train"

Southern Rail is something of an odd name for a New England-based bluegrass band, but the band's latest release, "Glory Train," is a fitting name for this disc of all-gospel tunes.

Some of the songs on "Glory Train" have been adapted from Ward Bynum's collection of "Old Time Country and Western Songs," while others are adaptations of African-American spirituals. The band's music is a soulful mix of gospel and bluegrass influences, with a strong emphasis on the spiritual aspects of life.

The band consists of Jim Muller, guitar and vocals; Dave Dick, banjo and vocals; and Rickie Lee Jones, vocals. The band's latest release, "Glory Train," features the powerful lead vocals of Muller and the following released tracks:

1. "Sing"
2. "Looking for Something Good"
3. "I'll Be Your Friend"
4. "Heaven"

With justification, Muller's vocal stylings inevitably draw comparisons to those of Lyle Brickell and his band, Southern Rail. This is due to Muller's ability to capture the essence of the traditional bluegrass tradition, influencing listeners with his powerful and emotive vocals.

For more information, visit the band's website at [Southern Rail Website].

Swimmers hold own in Midwest meet
by Ken Dunkin

The Riverwomen were held to a 75-64 loss at the Midwest Championships, but they did perform better than usual.

The team had several points in the swimming, but they were down 41-28 at one point. The team did well in the freestyle and backstroke events, but struggled in the butterfly and breaststroke events.

Despite small player count, the River-St. Louis swim team has kept their heads above water for most of the season.

The team has been struggling all season, but they have been working hard to improve. The team has been working on their technique and conditioning to improve their performance.

The starting lineup for the team is the following:

- Ken Dunkin
- Eric Bickel
- Mark LaSh
- Scott Crawford
- Sarah Miller

The team will continue to work hard and improve their performance in the upcoming meets.

The UM-St. Louis Rivermen basketball team capped off a strong season against Northwestern Missouri State Saturday.

The game came down to several key plays, and it was the Rivermen who came out on top. The game started with a 13-0 run by the Rivermen, but the Riverwomen fought back to make it 26-11.

The Riverwomen used a 23-4 run to make it 36-29, but the Rivermen responded with a 10-0 run to make it 46-36. The Riverwomen made a 10-0 run to make it 56-46, but the Rivermen responded with a 16-0 run to make it 72-56.

The game ended with the Rivermen winning by a score of 83-75.

The Rivermen were led by Eric Bickel with 20 points, and Mark LaSh with 16 points. The team also had solid performances from Mark Miller with 12 points, and Scott Crawford with 11 points.

The team will continue to work hard and improve their performance in the upcoming meets.

“After the game, we were all really happy with our performance. We have been working hard to improve our performance and we will continue to do so.”

Rivermen goalie Ian Mackie had a great season in the hockey men, finishing with a 4-1 record.

Mackie had a really solid performance into the hockey way of life. His father was in the hockey scene. His dad was a trainer for various hockey organizations, Mackie said.

"Scotty had played soccer, so did I, but I began to really like the game."

Following grade school, Mackie attended Parkway North High School and started in goal all four years. It was there he first played with present day teammates Andrew Strickland, Ned Deppe, and Scott Allen.

"Ian was the only goalie on the squad, so there was a great deal of pressure on his shoulders," Allen said.

"He had my respect even then, but it really didn’t help that his older brother was on team either, ’cause they used to beat me up at home and on the ice."

After getting into various universities in Colorado, Mackie decided to enroll at University of St. Louis. "I wasn’t going to play college hockey, but for some reason I went with Mackie," Allen said.

have to do the something about it. I got Announcements to deal with the issues of nuceous rats and do anything about it because of guilt. Despite conservation races, people who are alive today must be perpetuating racism," Dowden said.

"We don't want any 200 or 400-year-old white people, but we are still in the trenches of dealing with these problems," Dowden said. "And if we continue to just bury our heads in the ground, we won't be able to see the ways we are perpetuating racism in our society.

As the meeting on February 6 discussed racial issues on campus, Dowden suggested that instructors should explore the issue of racism in their classrooms.
