Barnes College of Nursing launches search for tenure track professor

Selection process comes on heels of major cuts in non-regular faculty

By Duane Harrison

A national search is under way at the Barnes College of Nursing for a tenure track professor, less than a month after the college was forced to lose five full-time positions.

"It’s a difficult time," said Duane Harrison, department chair. "But the students will benefit in the long run because we have to maintain a high level of excellence in the academic program.

"We want as many Ph.D.s in the college as possible because that is the way we are heading," Harrison said. "The more Ph.D.s we have, the more we can expand our research efforts.

Only one of the nine faculty not held a Ph.D., according to Harrison.

Harrison said the college is looking for someone who is able to teach effectively and conduct research. "We are looking for someone who can work with students both inside and outside the classroom," Harrison said.

The search committee is made up of representatives from the Barnes College of Nursing, the University of Missouri-St. Louis, and the American Nurses Association.

A national search was held last year, but the college was unable to find a suitable candidate.

Harrison said the college is hoping to have a new professor in place by the fall semester.

"We are committed to providing our students with the best possible education," Harrison said.

In the class, I definitely have a clear career goal.

I feel unqualified to choose a career goal that will meet with others’ expectations.

My family has a certain career path that I will follow.

I do not feel confident in the area in which my interests lie.

I have lots of interests, but I do not know how to narrow them down.

I lack knowledge about myself and what I have to offer the world of work.

I am not clear about my personal work values.

I feel I do not have skills that will be important in the career I choose.

The Issue: The time is fast approaching to elect your next Student Government Association president from hope­fully a number of candidates.

We suggest: The next president should have experience, a realistic vision of today's organization and the will to labor for policies that will benefit current and future students.

So what do you think?

Let us hear from you on this or any issue by sending a letter to the editor.

GUIDELINES FOR SGA PRESIDENT

The past president should have a seat on the executive committee.

The next president should be a student with at least some administrative experience.

We need to hear from you on this or any issue by sending a letter to the editor.
Adviser credits coaches and team leaders

First off, I would like to thank both University President and —The Careers— for continually reporting the results of the UM-St. Louis Forensics and Debate team. While flattered in the opening statement by "Tom Preston," I would like to add with this letter, some recognition to those who really have led the team and made it work well.

James Shaw, an alumnus of Southeast Baptist University who now lives and works in St. Louis, has been an invaluable volunteer coach— for no pay—for our individual events students. In the last two weekends, UM-St. Louis has won five individual events titles, including most recently a first place in dramatic interpretation by Ju Nish and Denise Nazeruddin, and a first place in dramatic interpretation by Nash as a Feb. 24 tournament at Truman State. By giving of his time, Shaw, along with his hard-working students, has enhanced greatly UM-St. Louis' recent expansion in debate and forensics. As well, Doug Dennis, a student at UM-St. Louis, has formed the backbone of our policy debate coaching. Cheval white, the students should be proud of their accomplishments, with Shaw and Dennis taking the bulk of the coaching inside this year.

For a "less," Gwen Jones' fostered relationships with the chancellor (Fred Fausz), found out by all the appointees, David Lushin, gave a career of thanks to Terry Jones, turned out right), the reasonable man wonders if the days of being a reasonable man are about working with borrowed money and start worrying about working on borrowed time.

Dangerous Beauty

Rated: R
Running Time: 115 minutes
New Playing

As Marco Venier (Rufus Sewell) falls into love but are unable to marry someone to benefit his family or the state, Veronica Frances (Catherine McCormack) and Marco Venier (Rufus Sewell) fall into love but are unable to marry because of their social status. She uses her power to create a life for her that otherwise she would have never experienced. The scenery in the movie is beautiful. The acting, which, for a change, is actually quite good. McCormack, Sewell and Oliva Platt provide memorable performances. The poetic confrontations between McCormack and Platt are entertaining. However, some of the dialogue leaves a little to be desired. At times, it was well written and at other times, it was horrible. This movie was supposed to be in the 16th century, in Venice at that, and they were out of place, contemporary words.

Over all, I enjoyed this flick. Definitely worth a black eye. Since winning movie but it was entertaining. The performance by McCormack was particularly moving.

It's a long tradition of parties, la playa and just plain fun

by Amy Lombardo

"There's a well-earned truism among college students that says, "You never party like a senior on spring break." It's a truism that's been repeated countless times in movies, songs and other media. And it's a truism that's not without its truth.

So, how do you party like a senior on spring break? With friends, of course! And you certainly can't go wrong with a bit of Southern hospitality.

For example, during spring break in New Orleans, you can check out the French Quarter for some good food and music. You can also visit the Garden District, where you'll find beautiful homes and gardens. And don't forget about the French Market, where you can find all sorts of local goods.

But the party doesn't stop there. You can also explore the city's rich history, from the civil rights movement to the American Revolution. And you can't forget about Mardi Gras, which is celebrated with parades and costumes.

And if you're looking for a more relaxing experience, you can try a day trip to the Mississippi Delta. You can visit the Delta Heritage Center and learn about the rich culture and history of the region. And you can also take a boat tour on the Mississippi River, which is the longest river in the US.

So, as you can see, there's plenty to do in New Orleans during spring break. Whether you're looking for a party atmosphere or a more relaxed one, you can find it here. And who knows, you might even make some new friends!

The Riverwomen off to sluggish start

Softball team returns 3-6 after tour of southeast states

The Riverwomen, coldly to the run the win but only allowable two. The nightcup would be efficient enough. Georgia Southern capitalized on UM-St. Louis' fielding errors by scoring eight runs in eight hits and seven errors. UM-St. Louis fell far too easy to eliminate the rivals and fall by 8.

Thomas College because our destination for UM-St. Louis and the team's season's non-winners. The Riverwomen exploded in the second inning for nine runs, and it would be much easier than the team scored for the 9-0 win. In the nightcup.

Riverwomen's fortunes would not change as they had against Georgia Southern. Instead, the team went on to knock Thomas College 4-0 with three-run first and third innings.

Unfortunately for the Riverwomen, that would be the home run's home run of the trip. The finale came two days after the Thomas College triumph, at the Valdosta State tournament with three games: a 1-0 win against Savannah State, Valdosta State 0-0, and game against the Georgia Southern for the win. Riverwomen improved, with a 3-0-1 record.

Baseball coach optimistic about team's performance

Riverine lose hitting leaders to graduation, strengthen pitching pitching staff

By Ken Douglass

staff writer

The Riverwomen baseball team and softball team will play in the World Series. They will be playing at a high level and will be competitive. The Riverwomen have had a successful season so far.

Scott Luckacz

"They have an attitude," Brady said. "They have something to prove."

That is something that comes from winning. The Riverwomen were able to go on the road and get a win. Their success is down to their attitude and the way they play. The team is a close-knit group that is working hard to get to the next level.

Steve Johnson

"This is a special time of year for us," Johnson said. "We have a winner! Go crazy!"

That's what sports are all about. It's the ultimate goal for any athlete. The team lacked success on the pitching staff. We expect it," Brady said.

The team has worked hard and has the potential to go further in the season. They have a strong roster and are ready to make a push for the championship.

Miles Head

"Scott Goodwin was two runs ahead going into the ninth inning," Goodwin said. "Toovard Morris jumped from our last set of Johns. He was in singles, Aled. Red Timm, who is in singles, really got better in his last two matches."

"I'm happy with the team," Goodwin said. "We are looking to improve and make a push for the championship."
