The University of Missouri-St. Louis is currently conducting a search for various administrative positions on campus. Those of these positions are vice chancellor for Academic Affairs, vice chancellor for University Relations, and director of Parking. Interviews for all three positions began on Feb. 13 and will continue until the second week of March.

Within a week of the final interview, the search committee will send its recommendations to Chancellor Blanche Touhill for a final decision. The entire process should take about a month.

Most students at U-M. L. Louis know about the Mardi Gras parade which takes place Sunday, February 18. But the parade might even pass you by if you have never been to one before. This year’s parade begins at 1 p.m., and will start at Francis Park. The float measure 100 feet in length and it contains moveable feet—wouldn’t that be cool?

Be on time! They really mean it this year. Though many have entered the parade, there were plenty of students who told me that they were more interested in attending the event than being a part of it. Some are very interested in the event itself, but want to avoid the hassle of being part of the action. Others prefer to watch from the sidelines.

If you are interested in being a part of the parade, there are still opportunities available. Contact the Krewe of Dog Barkus for more information.

by Lori Callander

New Orleans, one of the oldest neighborhoods in the city of St. Louis, is home to the second largest Mardi Gras parade in the nation. Thousands of spectators flock to the city each year to watch the parade. The parade begins at 1 p.m., and will start at Francis Park. The float measure 100 feet in length and it contains moveable feet—wouldn’t that be cool?

This festival derives from the ancient beliefs that the best way to protect the community is to celebrate the arrival of spring. The parade has been going on for several decades, and it is still going strong today.

To get in on the action, attend the parade this Saturday, Feb. 14 at 1 p.m. at Francis Park. Bring your camera and enjoy the parade! It’s free and fun for all ages.

Determination, professionalism, and fun are the words of the members of the Associated Black Collegians. The group has been working hard to make this year’s event a success.

We asked the group to explain why they were involved in this event. One member said, "We are involved because we want to make sure that this event is successful and that everyone enjoys themselves.

Underneath the excitement surround- ing the Krewe of Dog Barkus, we find our- selves attending to the important business of Mardi Gras—having fun! The Krewe of Dog Barkus is made up of students from the University of Missouri-St. Louis. The group is known for its colorful floats and lively atmosphere.

The goal of the entire event is to celebrate the start of spring. The parade begins at 1 p.m., and will start at Francis Park. The float measure 100 feet in length and it contains moveable feet—wouldn’t that be cool?

One organization working with local artists in the National Aquarium of Mississippi, sponsored a float. The float was sponsored by the Krewe of Dog Barkus and was created by visually impaired artists. The float was designed by a visually impaired artist, and it was decorated with colorful beads and streamers.

March is Women’s History Month. To commemorate this event, the Trailblazers Award in honor of women who have made a significant contribution to their community or University was presented.

The Trailblazers Award was presented to Emily Umbright, a Sexual Assault Coordinator at UMSL. Emily Umbright is a trailblazer in the area of sexual assault prevention.

Emily Umbright was chosen as the recipient of this award for her dedication to helping survivors of sexual assault. She has been a leader in the movement to raise awareness about sexual assault and to provide support and resources to survivors.

Emily Umbright has worked at UMSL for over 10 years, and she has been a leader in the movement to raise awareness about sexual assault. She has been a leader in the movement to raise awareness about sexual assault, and she has been a leader in the movement to raise awareness about sexual assault.

Course renumeration good for students, University

The issue

There are two issues here: students should have a consolidated number system. For the first 800, we would have separate courses that do not count towards the minimum requirements for any degree. For the second 800, courses that communicate, like communications, have courses in this range that are required to get a degree. The numbers 100 to 199 are the first course numbers, and 200 to 299 is called the "Lower Division" and is primarily for sophomore courses. The "Upper Division" consists of the 300-level junior and 400-level senior courses. For the junior and senior student, we would hire more professors and programs with special permission. The 500 range is the professional courses. Currently, the School of Commerce is in UMSL's only professional program. The 600 range is also for the professional program, which is difficult to make in this new system. It would need to cut off until the new system. It would be a shame if we allowed important in graduate studies. The new system can be used to cut off graduate studies. The new system can be used to cut off graduate studies. The new system can be used to cut off graduate studies.

We suggest:

Re-numbering courses will make it easier for students to transfer to the university, so we need to do it. Forming an ad hoc committee may make the job easier.

Atari developed good stuff, forgot to market it

The issue

I am in the midst of Providence, and I find it essential to see a nostalgic trip. Late last week, it was announced that Atari would like to spend some time talking about old Atari games. Not only is Atari (in various forms) still around, it is being marketed for the next generation of the "walkthrough" generation.

Atari released a new system called the AFX5000, which was quite popular among students and marketers alike. The system functioned as an operating system, and it was used to build and test electronic games. However, Atari failed to market it. In 1993, Atari gave up on the concept, in favor of the market-driven approach. Instead of trying to market their own system, they marketed the latest IBM computer, which seemed to be on the right track. The new computer made the move to the AFX5000, which was dubbed the "backwards." However, once the computer was released, it was a failure. The cost was too high for the average consumer, and the computer was out of fashion.

The benefits of a more streamlined and consistent numbering system for UMSL’s courses far outweigh any disadvantages, and we couldn’t agree more.

Rivermen win all for Homecoming

Men's basketball may still make GLVC playoffs

by Nick Bowman

As Homecoming Week 2001 came to an end, the Rivermen went into the spirit by winning each of the week's contests to solidify their resume and moving closer to advancing to participat in the Great Lakes Valley Conference tournament.

After losing two games on the road to nationally ranked Southern Indiana and cross-town rival Simon Fraser, the Rivermen returned home to take on Quincy University Saturday night.

UMSL fell behind early against Quincy before taking a 57-37 lead at the half. The Rivermen scored in the closing minutes, yet Quincy was able to score four of the final five points in the half to end up with a 4-29 lead to head into the half.

In the second half, a three-pointer by Matt Morris and a 3-0 run from the bench allowed UMSL to catch up, with the Rivermen leading 59-58. UMSL was able to score three of the next five points, as the Rivermen went on to defeat Quincy 60-45.

The second contest pitted the Rivermen against Indiana-Purdue at Fort Wayne. UMSL took control of the contest early, but the Mastodon guard Brad Noll was a constant threat for the Rivermen.

As his distance shooting kept the Mastodons at bay, the Rivermen were in the driver's seat of the contest. It was pointed out by the coaches that the majority of the weight for the team fell on the shoulders of Southern Indiana and SIU Edwardsville.

Movie Review

Saving Silverman

Length: 86 min.

Our opinion:

This movie is about a group of friends who decide to fly to New York City for a weekend of fun. They are planning to attend a party at a famous nightclub, but things take a unexpected turn when they witness a crime. The lead characters, played by Adam Sandler and Jack Black, are forced to become heroes and save the day. The movie is filled with laughs and action, making it a fun watch for the whole family.

Synopsis:

When a crime is committed during a party, the lead characters must work together to prevent it from spreading further. The movie explores themes of friendship, loyalty, and the power of unity.

Award:

Best Comedy

Nominees:

- Adam Sandler
- Jack Black
- Nick Kroll
- David Spade

Story:

The movie is a classic example of a buddy comedy, with Sandler and Black's characters being the main focus. The film's success is largely due to the chemistry between the two lead actors, as well as the supporting cast that includes Kroll and Spade.

Director:

David Wain

Producers:

Adam Sandler, Jack Black, and Spike Jonze

Rating:

PG-13

Release Date:

2001

Box Office:

$231,800,000

Nominations:

- Best Original Screenplay
- Best Editing

Analysis:

This movie was a huge success at the box office, grossing over $231 million. It was also nominated for several awards, including Best Original Screenplay and Best Editing. The film's humor and wit kept audiences engaged throughout the entire duration.

Final Thought:

Overall, this movie is a must-see for anyone who loves a good laugh. The chemistry between Sandler and Black is undeniable, and the supporting cast only adds to the fun. If you're looking for a movie that will make you laugh, then look no further than Saving Silverman.
Willem Dafoe is 'Shadow of the Vampire'

All the details of the set and costume are painstakingly reproduced. In the scenes where day and night intermingle, the image of the screen fades from the lush color of the rest of the film to a beautiful and effective reproduction of the high-contrast black and white silent film. Dafoe's actions are reproduced from the original film, and Willem Dafoe's portrayal of the vampire is remarkable in its ability to mimic the original and in its acting of this part.

Chancellor Bianca Tourell explained her new approach for increasing UMSL's funding to the members of the University Assembly at last week's meeting.

Tourell said that at this time, the list of candidates has been narrowed down to three finalists. "We are determined to get the best person for the position, and that decision should come in early April."

She explained that Academic Affairs is another vacancy currently being filled.

Dr. Douglas Dionne, Deputy Chancellor, stated that the committee had a meeting in January to evaluate some of the applications they received, and that an application deadline for March 13 was determined. He is confident that the committee will be able to work "with quite different standards to find a permanent replacement by this coming fall."

SGA constitutional vote was minimal. Many students were not aware of the issues or even that this important document was up for vote. On the other hand, increasing long and queer candidates did add a goal of providing publicity for the housing court election. Flyers and banners were displayed throughout all UMSL's facilities, even in the restrooms, and the smiling faces of candidates met other students in hallways to provide information.

The above apparatus led me to believe that, like citizens of a democracy, those belonging to the UMSL student body are getting a research because of glitches in the electronic system. These problems include inconsistencies in strategies of campaign publicity and the issue of students being provided with ample time to access the polls.

Although the Callander explains students of opposing voting represent different students who work with convincing information on all sides of the issues, the newspaper doesn't reach all students. Bill Russell overcame long odds, dominated basketball

February 19, 2001

Bill Russell was the heart and soul of it all. Without his phenomenal defense, the Celtics never would have won a single championship. He blocked shots and snared rebounds with unparalleled ease and zeal. He ignited the legendary Celtics fast break by blocking an opponent's shot, catching the ball out of the air, then firing an outlet pass to point guard Bob Cousy. Mini centers today will block a shot and send the ball flying out of bounds. This is nothing more than allow the opponent to maintain possession of the ball, thus giving him another scoring opportunity. Bill Russell not only used his superior athletic ability to defy his opponents, he also used intelligence. He may well have been the most tactically sound player of the game of basketball ever witnessed.
