Hackers deface mail server

- Officials suspect Chinese hackers may have attacked UMSL's Outlook homepage.
- By Dallas Warden special to The Current
- Hackers hit a University server with an anti-government hompage primarily used by UMSL faculty and staff.
- "F--- U.S. Government" was written in red letters on a black background, covering the Outlook homepage, and Tom Kyte, security administrator, and Kyle Collins, principal systems administrator, found the page on the University server.
- The site was disabled at 7:23 a.m. and was immediately restored.
- Eaton said the site was accessible for the remainder of the day to ensure security.
- "We found them very quickly," said Collins. "They were able to get in and then remove the backup web pages. Luckily it was not the Outlook server."
- Information Technology Services administrator says they believe the hackers may have been Chinese.
- "It is an allegation, but a lot of government sites have been hit this week," said Collins. "Possibly, I think it is a hacking group that has been attacking Chinese government websites, mainly because the incident with our newsletter plan."

Bookstore to sell products over web

By Robin A. Putnam staff writer

A new UMSL bookstore website that was launched a few weeks ago now allows students to buy textbooks over the internet.

The new feature on www.umslbookstore.com makes buying textbooks easier for students. Stephanie Eaton, supervisor of Internet, University web page, because to buy textbooks over the Internet,

Eaton said. The old bookstore, "Millennium," is prohibited, because customers then . . . have them shipped, and hardware will be available on congestion in the bookstore, Eaton added.

"The new feature on the bookstore . . . makes it easier for students to order something over the Internet," Eaton said. "The store was opened to provide another source for campus news and information, Bible Bulletin Board, and government sites have been hit this week," said Collins. SGA holds last meeting of year

By Steve Valko staff writer

The last Student Government Association meeting on May 1 tied up some loose ends.

SGA President Ryan Conner opened up the meeting by reminding everyone of SGA's accomplishments for the year and building a new coalition to pass a few resolutions, and then passed the gavel to a new member, and the floor was opened to questions.

"I'd rather actually see my customers then . . . have them order something over the internet," the said.

United Europe could recapture lost prestige

- Lecture examines potential implications of unified continent
- By Tom Thompson staff writer

Last Tuesday a lecture was given on the European Union in BSB 331.

As the stock market of the United States and the European Union continued to dip this year, the University hosted a lecture on this topic.

"It was a very interesting lecture," said Tom Thompson, a philosophy student.

"It was a very interesting lecture," said Thompson, a philosophy student.

"I don't think anyone stepping on the growth of this campus, they just want a more comfortable way of living," said Thompson.

"I also think that the Board of the Commoners understands that UMSL must do more to increase the number of resources available. One problem this semester the UMSL does is probably through means of access, or as a time.

Callie was excited to see the opening of the Disneyland Resort. She had been planning this trip for months. Finally, today was the day she had been waiting for. Callie was eager to explore the new attractions and meet all the classic Disney characters. She couldn’t wait to ride the Matterhorn, see the parade, and visit all the theme parks. Callie was determined to make the most of her day at Disneyland. She had planned out her itinerary in detail, and she was sure she wouldn’t miss a thing. Callie was looking forward to creating memories that would last a lifetime. She couldn’t wait to see what the day had in store for her.
Letters to the editor should reflect the reader's perspective on an issue or matter they feel should be addressed. Here are some points to consider when submitting a letter:

- Keep your letter brief. Letters should be no longer than 300 words.
- Be respectful and文明. Avoid personal attacks or ad hominem arguments.
- Provide a clear and concise message.
- Include your name, city, and state to have your letter considered for publication.

If you have a letter you'd like to submit, please follow these guidelines and send it to the appropriate email address or fax number listed below.

EDITORS NOTE

- Off all the people with whom I've worked, Tim Wohlert is the one I'm most impressed with the complete dedication to his work. He's a hard worker—from design to layout to scheduling to final delivery. When we worked on the paper together, he was always full of ideas and suggestions, and he was always willing to listen and learn.

PARKING, FUNDING TOP LIST OF ISSUES FOR U TO ADDRESS

The issue:

It's the end of the year and time to take a look back at some big issues that still need to be addressed. The parking problem facing the University, the opportunity for improving course offerings, establishing structure in the SCI, filling the empty space around campus, and campus construction safety risks all appeared on the list.

We suggest:

The parking problem can be solved if administrators include students in the planning process. Getting better funding for the University will be a challenge, and we endorse Chancellor Zilis' new "workforce development" strategy.

So what do you think?

Write a letter to the editor about this issue or anything else on your mind.

REAL-LIFE RIVERWALN WANTS CREDIT FOR MASCOT

I am offering the University of Missouri-St. Louis the opportunity to claim credit for the name "Riverwaln," which was used during the 1960s-1970s.

Riverwaln was the name of a Shirley Davis story, which was a hoax in the Missouri Baptist Review in 1972. The story was written by Brian Douglas and was about a group of UMSL students who created their own newspaper and called it "Riverwaln." The name was chosen because it sounded like "Riverman," which is the name of a newspaper published by the Missouri Baptist University.

I am a resident of St. Louis and have been involved in the University community for many years. I believe that the University should recognize the contribution of Brian Douglas in creating the name "Riverwaln."

OTHER COUNTRIES’ HOLIDAYS BECOME EXCUSE FOR BOOZE

You didn't know that the Fourth of July was our country's Independence Day? That's right, folks! It's the day we celebrate our freedom from British rule and the birth of our nation. And here's a fun fact for you: Americans drink more alcohol on the Fourth of July than any other day of the year!

Grab your friends, family, and a cold beverage, because it's time to celebrate the birth of America the liberty-bell way! This holiday brings with it a lot of fun activities like parades, fireworks, and barbecues. But let's not forget about the alcohol. It's a great way to relax and enjoy the festivities, right?

New Hall of Fame will honor 12 in June

By Dave Kinworthy

On June 6, the University of Missouri-St. Louis will honor the presidents of its athletic past at the christening of an Athletic Hall of Fame on the UMSL campus. For the inaugural class, 12 individuals whose contributions have been vital to UMSL sports, will be inducted into the hall. The selection of inductees was made by a committee consisting of former student-athletes, coaches and administration. The hall will recognize the contributions of past UMSL presidents who have helped build and establish a tradition that will require ongoing support in order to continue.

Riversmen upset in four of five games, now 28-19

By Dave Kinworthy

The UMSL men’s baseball team has been up and down this season with six losses in games, including two games to conference opponents. In May, the Riversmen moved to their overall record to 28-19, including a 3-2 victory over Southern Illinois Edwardsville to advance to the GLVC Tournament. In the game, the Riversmen used two three-run innings on their way to a 12-7 win over the Cougars. After Southern Illinois Edwardsville came back to take a 5-3 lead in the third inning, the Riversmen rallied in the sixth inning, winning by a final score of 12-7.

If you are a fan of independent films, Armin Mueller-Stahl will be familiar to you. Whether you choose to watch more mainstream reviews, your own, or a combination of both, Armin Mueller-Stahl played the father of pianist, Franz Liszt, in the biopic directed by Jean-Stéphane Sauvaire. In the film, Liszt is depicted as a lonely and troubled man, struggling with his own sense of purpose. The relationship between Liszt and his father is complex, and the film explores the tension between the two men. Sauvaire's film is a moving and thought-provoking examination of Liszt's life and legacy, and Armin Mueller-Stahl's performance as the father is unforgettable. The film is a must-see for anyone interested in classical music, or simply interested in the lives of great artists. The film is available on DVD, and I highly recommend it.
Dark humor from St. Louis writer

BY CATHERINE MARQUIS-KOREM

The Acting Art

Sometimes when everything seems to be going right, suddenly everything goes wrong. Ron Skaal, a writer originally from St. Louis, had just flown to Los Angeles to visit his childhood friend, Chesterfield, Missouri, and developed a terrible case of jet lag. He was unable to sleep, and was at war with his wife and family. Not to mention his new family. "One Night at McCool's," a very funny black comedy, also provided him with this insight into his life. This is not only right for those with friends and family, but also for film fans. The cast of Sam's movies, "One Night at McCool's," is a very funny and very funny comedy that was inspired by Harmony's, the hard-shaking world he has resisted for so many years of the St. Louis University!

This broad, factual tale is set in St. Louis and reveals an aurora borealis. The men and women that took place one night at this bar, McCool's. This film is different from McCool's, a working-class bar whose owners have an existence whose presence is a chip into which someone digs. A blonde woman, Carl (Paul Reiser), is also present in the bar. Carl is a successful, self-centered lawyer who feels he's better than everyone around him. The third man in the detective sent to investigate the murder: (De Sede's John Goodman), a yacht, simple man, mourning the death of his wife.

The final scene of the film is over this woman is the bar, Jewel (Liv Tyler), a love story of a story that each of these goods falls for the story told from the three points of view of these men. Each one has his own opinion of what he thought that night and of Jewel herself. The tales are hilariously wide views of these men. Each has his own view of the set, and the people involved. The humor is sexy, fast, and broadly played. The look of the film is almost surrealistic, with vivid colors and an over-the-top garishness, and the look of the sets and the people involved is being presented, which adds a very humorous and very funny level of visual humor. None of these characters are remarkably bland suburb. Once you get past the squirm factor that someone might really identify with St. Louis, the film is great black humor in broadly comic form. The final shot alone is almost worth the price of admission.

This is not a recent comedy, and if you don't see it to this kind of dark stuff, this film may not appeal to you. It is at times rude and even violent. But it is also creative and very funny, and requires quite a bit more thinking than the average black comedy. "One Night at McCool's," is a very funny black comedy that was inspired by Harmony's, the hard-shaking world he has resisted for so many years of the St. Louis University!

The community microwave that sits in the Mission Student Center has mysteriously disappeared. According to Food Services, on Friday, the microwave was in the room. However, it was not in its spot. The building was closed and locked for the Easter holiday weekend. On Monday morning, the empty space where the microwave once sat was discovered.

"When I went in, I didn't have a clue, I just wanted to have a microwave," said George Schmidt, Director of Food Services. Schmidt believes the microwave was stolen. The microwave, which was in the Millennium Student Center, is a "very unique," according to Schmidt. While the microwave was not in its spot, it was found elsewhere in the Mission Student Center. Schmidt said the microwave was found in the corner of a room. "The microwave was being used by the computer science, business, and other classes. We are working on getting the microwave back to the room where it belongs," Schmidt said.

As of now, no new computer will be purchased. However, the department is working on finding a microwave that is similar to the one that was stolen. Schmidt said that the microwave will be replaced by another microwave that is similar to the one that was stolen. The microwave is expected to be delivered to the department.

"As a new year unfolds, the new microwave will be used in the classroom," Schmidt said. "We are working on getting the microwave back to the room where it belongs. The Lusitania was to be 788 ft. 10 in. long, 87.5 ft. in width, and 331 ft. in height. It would have a gross tonnage of 65,900 tons, while displacing 44,000 tons of water. This is just scratching the surface of the ship’s features. The ship would also boast seven decks, four funnels, five propellers, two masts, and a double bottom. The Lusitania would be powered by four direct-drive Parsons’ steam turbines, which were capable of delivering over a combined 40,000 horsepower. This would make the ship one of the most powerful vessels in the world. In May 1905, the Lusitania’s engine was launched and worked immediately. The first section of the new ship, a mammoth construction of steel, was actually finished before work had even begun on the stern. It was due to the engine that the ship was able to take on its new status of being able to move machinery in the turbine rooms.

The Lusitania was launched at 8:30 on the afternoon of June 7, 1906, in front of dignitaries. The entire procession took only 86 seconds.

Got an old trumpet stashet away in your basement?

Don't really plan on using it again? Why not sell it to someone who can get some use out of it and make a few bucks for yourself in the process. Sound like you?

Contact Dave at 739-0711.
