Student E-mail to be integrated into MyGateway

BY NICK BOWMAN

Effective Winter 2002 semesters, all UM-St. Louis students will be provided with a new e-mail system that aims to streamline the current messaging process.

As an outside service, this new system will be known as "MyGateway", which would replace with yourpersonal email accounts. The only service that the university will continue to use with students will be Gmail, which will be available, but students will be required to create an account with "MyGateway" and (the current email server) as well.

The goal of this new system, which was announced October 1st, is to create a "free password system" for all student-related communications, said Mark Fowler, director of information technology services.

"The system is not integrated with student emails," Fowler said, "so even if your Gmail account is full, you will be free to access other communications.

The TFI department, as well as the university, is very happy to send official announcements to these new accounts to ensure that students will receive the communication on time, especially for important and urgent issues.

"We hope to be fully integrated by the fall (2002) semester," said Siegel.

"Multi-Media" has had a very positive response from the UM-St. Louis campus community since it's inception in the Fall 2001 semester. Four hundred and thirty-two associates have registered with "Multi-Media" and utilize it is some fashion, with course announcements being the most popular use of the system. Fowler is currently trying to get all faculty members involved on the system.

"Eventually, we hope to offer chat and announcement services over the system," said Fowler. Though Winter Break, Fall and exam time sessions were offered via MyGateway, which are this email system

Censorship at UMSL needs to be addressed

Many people present at the UMSL Student "Open House" on Saturday were disturbed by the posting of a copy of the "The Current." The issue contained an article by Emily Ubright, which was critical of the editorial board. We believe that there was no need to change the article, but rather, we should have addressed the issue in the newsletter and not the newspaper.

Emily Ubright is a member of the editorial board and was very upset by the article. She felt that it was unfair and that the article was not reflective of the opinions of the editorial board. She asked that the article be removed from the newspaper.

We understand that the editorial board wants to be fair and just, but we also understand that there were concerns about the content of the article. We believe that the editorial board should be more transparent about their decision-making process and should be more open to feedback from the community.

During a meeting on Sunday, several copies of "The Current" issue 2023 were removed from the newsstands by the department of admissions and hidden away from the editorial board. This was due to the "controversial" content of the front page of last week's edition.

We suggest that the UMSL community needs to be aware of this situation and that it should be handled with care.

Dowlat-e Eslamiye Afghanistan vs. US?

Over the past few weeks, we have been covering the situation in Afghanistan. Over 64,000 square kilometers of land have been returned to the Afghan government. The country, which is slightly larger than California, has 25,234,506 men and women and 10,924,000 children, and over 43 percent of those are under the age of 14. This is a significant problem, given that 6 million young women give birth to six children, with 46 years of life for women, and 46 years of life for men.

If and when the women of the Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan return to this country, it is clear that they will be highly educated, and they will not return to the previous way of life. The women have been educated and are highly skilled in many areas.

We are committed to providing coverage of the situation in Afghanistan and to providing our readers with the most up-to-date information available.

Thankful for my mom

As Thanksgiving approaches, I find myself with a sense of blessings. I will graduate in January. I am blessed to have a wonderful supportive family and friends. I am lucky to have the support of my family. I am grateful for the support of my friends. I am thankful for my mom.

She is the one who has been a constant in my life. She has been there for me through good times and bad. She has been a source of strength and comfort throughout my life.

As I get older, I realize how much I need her. She is my rock. She is my everything.

My mother has always been a source of inspiration. I want to be like her. I want to be a strong woman. I want to make a difference in the world.

Thank you, mom. I love you.

Dear Current editor,

I'm writing to express my opinion on the recent issue of the "The Current". I found the article by Emily Ubright to be very insightful and thought-provoking. As a member of the editorial board, I believe that it is important to address such issues in the newspaper.

However, I also understand the concerns about the "controversial" content of the newspaper. I commend the editorial board for their commitment to providing fair and balanced coverage of the news.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Men end season with a win against Lincoln, finish on bottom of GLVC

by Charlie Bailey

The Riverwomen's soccer team finished the season on a high note with a 1-0 victory over Lincoln University Wednesday night. It was the team's second straight victory of the season, and it moved the Riverwomen up to 3-9-1 in the GLVC.

The game headed into the second half tied 0-0, but Lincoln didn't last long. Casie Skaggs scored the game-winner at the 25-minute mark, and the Riverwomen held on for the 1-0 victory.

The game was a part of the Riverwomen's annual Mardi Gras celebration week. The team wore Mardi Gras t-shirts, and the crowd was dressed in white and purple.

The Riverwomen are now 1-1-1 in the GLVC with two games left in the season. They will travel to St. Louis on Sunday to play Saint Louis University.

Four named all-GLVC

by Somer Briscoe

The Riverwomen's volleyball team had four players named to the All-GLVC team, announced Tuesday. The selections included forward/center Travon Bryant, setter Sarah Sholly, and outside hitters Victoria Zrout and Tori 축.

Bryant was named the All-GLVC First Team, while Sholly and Zrout were named to the Second Team. 축 was named to the Third Team.

The Riverwomen are now 1-1-1 in the GLVC with two games left in the season. They will travel to St. Louis on Sunday to play Saint Louis University.

Men hoops start down Semo

by Dave Kowitrow

The men's basketball team started the season off on the right foot with a 79-76 victory over Southern Illinois University Edwardsville on Saturday.

The game was close throughout, with the Rivermen leading most of the way. But the Rivermen pulled ahead with 5 minutes left in the game, and they held on to win 79-76.

Top films for the St. Louis International Film Festival

MacArthur Park - a winner at the Sundance Film festival. An edge, dark film about a group of drug users in an urban park.

Teddy Bears Picnic: a dark comedy by the creator of the pipe, Harry Shearer, with a deeper message. Also, getting a lot of attention for indie film magazines.

Business of Strangers - Another film with a lot of great buzz in the indie film world. A tale about two women, and power and ambition in the corporate world.

Mortal Transfer - Summer French Film, also getting a lot of attention in indie film circles.

Other films that look good:

"Attention," "Eternal Beauty," "World History of Reckoning" (not a documentary), "I 'm Not Okay," and "I love you.

The festival films are all good and you can just walk into the theater and randomly pick one out and see something that is at least new and unusual and often great. But here are some really special picks among the feature length films that are running the rest of this week. Larger reviews of some of these films will be appearing on our website as well.

Documentary and Shorts: spice of the festival

A special aspect of the film festival is that new chances to taste the samurai films that dot the week's film feast. You can go into any of the shorts programs and come out satisfied, as the programs always have a mix of serious, and entertaining films. Since they are short, you can get a quick taste and then move on to the next, so that if it doesn't appeal, there is always the next. The shorts film programs group together films that are usually included as part of the main film line-up. The festival program or flyer, available at the Tivoli, HI Pomer and Webster University theaters, lists the documentaries under the Leos and Mary Streis sidebar with a description and length for each of the short films showing with them. The program also gives a description and length for each of the short films in the line-up. Science takes a fresh look at evolution: Part 2

MODERN EVOLUTION

The discovery of DNA by scientists in the 1950s started a major scientific revolution that transformed the study of evolution, genetics, and biolof revolution, and evolution. The following decades saw the emergence of a new scientific revolution known as the "modern synthesis," which attempted to combine the theory of evolution with the theory of genetics.

This "synthesis," attempted to explain how DNA, nucleotides, alleles, and other genetic factors affected the ability to breed with other species who have similar chromosome numbers. Scientists studying these phenomena have found that species are considered to be very similar if their chromosome number is less than or equal to 24. In this case, the chromosomes are more similar to each other than to the chromosomes of other species. This trend should also apply to most other non-chromosone mutants occurring in all chromosomes at the same time causing the chromosome number to double. Often within a single group of some species have chromosome numbers that are very different from each other.

Last Wednesday and Thursday, Accounting majors had to take exams to become Certified Public Accountants.

This set of exams is one of many that are available throughout the year, with last Wednesday and Thursday being the last of this year. The test, which is being held at five locations in Illinois, will determine who will become a CPA and who will not have to take the exam.

One of the main sites for the exam and the St. Louis exam is at UM-St. Louis. The other sites are situated throughout Illinois in major metropolitan areas.

For the one site that I took, the hardest ones are on the amount of times many individuals have taken the exam and how many have been successful. Another impediment is that people who study for the test must be at the test at the quantity of rounds must be mastered.

Mollie Lumpkin, a CPA student at the Anderson College of St. Louis, was one of the many CPA candidates that took the exam this year.

"It's a lot of knowledge that is out there," said Lumpkin. "People are very well prepared, the test is very difficult." And the candidates are very well prepared, "People are very well prepared. The test is very difficult," said Lumpkin. The CPA exam is divided into four parts. The first part is the Business Law examination. A grade of 75 percent is required and the second part is the exam for the test.
