SGA elects officers

Dodd named SGA chairman, Schwadron elected vice-chair.

The agenda of the first Student Government Association meeting, held on Friday, included nominating committee members and approving meeting formats. President Kristy Runde started off the meeting with an explanation of what got her into the president's seat. She explained how the Executive Committee chose to put her into the office after Adam Freimut vacated his office of president. He was succeeded by Thomas George.

There is at least one event during the week, every week, and sometimes during the weekends.

- Dennis Montague, director of the office of Student Life and admitted to causing some of the election minor.

"With the position being vacant," Runde said, "it moved the vice-president up and the vice-chair moved up to the vice-president's spot since we do have a chair." Due to the promotion of Runde, the vice-chair's seat was left vacant. The vice-chair did not accept the promotion, so SGA will hold elections on Sept. 23 and 24. Applications are available in the Office of Student Life. Chairperson Thomas George was present at the meeting. George has taken over as the advisor of SGA. Curt Conrad, mother of the SGA Affairs, will be the advisory chair and should any other questions will be answered in the future.

David Dodd was elected to be SGA chairman at the SGA meeting Friday.

Computer virus problems escalate

Computers hit hardest from Aug. 19 to Aug. 22

Sandra Kimble

Computer viruses have been circulating around campus, causing mostly loss of time. Many steps have been taken to prevent the viruses.

"A lot of monitoring was going on before the large virus hit the campus," the most serious virus infected computers Aug. 19 and lasted until Aug. 22. They still continue to travel around campus, costing the most hardest from escala te.

Classifieds are on the same network; companies, including Microsoft, are still several days ahead of time, but there were still several that were not and thus infected. The main loss from the virus was the computers. There was some machines that were able to be patched ahead of time, but there were still several that were not and thus infected. The main loss from the virus was the computers.

Driemeier bids farewell

Don Driemeier has a chuckle at his farewell reception Monday Aug. 25 as Paul Spacc, assistant professor of marketing, awaits the audience with humorous anecdotes from Driemeier's career at UM-St. Louis. Driemeier, who has served as interim chancellor since Blanche Trusty's retirement, was succeeded by Thomas George on Sept. 1.

Mars brightens the night sky

Students view the ‘Red Planet’ from observatory

By Dean Rhodes

News Editor

Mars is currently at its closest point to Earth in nearly 60,000 years. The planet can be seen through a small telescope for the next couple of months.

Approximately every 15 to 17 years, Mars gets fairly close to Earth. In 1988, it was somewhat close, but being this large; however, the Red Planet was not as large as it appears in the sky tonight.

The planet will be in the sky all throughout September and will be fully visible in October. Appearing noticeably farther away than Venus, Mars is fairly visible in October.

Ron Willing, professor and chairman of the department of physics and astronomy, said, “It’s pretty apparent because it has a red halo around it.”

The orbits of Mars and Earth are highly elliptical, causing the two planets to be closer to each other at different times. Once every two years, Mars comes closer to Earth than normal.

“The brightest object in the sky, next to the moon, and has a very distinctive orange color because it is covered with co-colored rocks,” Willing said.

On Aug. 27, the Department of Physics and Astronomy sponsored a free, open viewing of Mars, at the Richard D. Schwartz Observatory on South Campus, the public was able to view the planet through telescopes.

The event was open to the public. Supplies were provided for anyone who wanted to catch a glimpse. One telescope was located outside the observatory for people to see in addition to those in the observatory.

About an hour before dawn, this large object was formed due to the large crowd of people that showed up for the event. People of all ages showed up to take a closer look at the Red Planet. Some of the people set up their cameras to prevent questions because people had not seen it before.

Although Mars is 344 million miles away from Earth, UM-St. Louis viewers were able to see some of the features of the Red Planet. Pale orange and red surface markings were visible through telescopes.

Mars was even noticeable while traversing just wandering in the sky tonight. It looked like a big, bright orange star in the sky. Many people could even see it from their dorms.

The planet that may reside even closer to Earth than Mars is Venus. At its closest approach, Venus is half the distance between the Earth and the sun. Venus should be about three-tenths the distance between the two, when the cycle returns.

The planet Venus, at times, is much brighter than Mars is to see.

“Venus is an ultimate star and Venus has not been visible during the night. The planet will also be featured in the next two observatory open houses.”

On Sept. 4 at 8 p.m. and Sept. 28 at 10 p.m., anyone can catch a good glance through the telescopes.

The planet will also be featured in the next two observatory open houses.

The College of Business and Economics sponsored a Red Planet Seminar in business. There will be two seminars.

Dear Editor,

I am writing to express my concern about the lack of vegetarian options available on campus. As a student who follows a vegetarian diet, I have noticed that most dining options are limited to meat-based dishes. I understand that the University is committed to providing diverse options, but I believe that offering more vegetarian options would greatly benefit students like myself.

I have looked into the current menu and found that only a few items, such as salads and some vegetarian dishes at the deli, are vegetarian friendly. Even then, the ingredients are not always clearly labeled, making it difficult to determine which items are vegetarian. I have also observed that vegetarian appetizers and desserts are not available, which is a major drawback.

I would like to suggest a few changes that could be made to improve the current situation. First, I believe that the University should consider offering more vegetarian meal options in the dining halls. This could include more vegetarian entrées and vegetarian sides. Second, I would like to see more vegetarian options available at the deli and other food outlets on campus.

I hope that you will take my concerns into consideration and that the University will take action to improve the vegetarian options available on campus.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]
Dear Editor:

I must say I like and agree with Jason Granger’s recent columns on our Governor Bob Holden. Holden proposed "most of the cut in UM-St. Louis and other public university tuition in Missouri," but the Republicans-controlled Legislature. In fact, the Republican Governor, Bob Holden, proposed "reducing tuition in the regular spring and fall semesters to all the other higher education had increased," but Holden said "toll." According to the Horizon, proposed revenue tax hikes on the first $75,000 of revenue targets seniors, the child and big businesses. He proposed to impose new tax hike on tobacco after Missouri last November. It passed.

Jason Granger is off to a very great start this year. Keep up the great work at the Current.

Sincerely,
UM-St. Louis Student
Organizations recruit more students at Expo by Melissa McCaary Features Associate

UM-St. Louis gave students the opportunity to learn more about campus life at the annual Welcome Back Fry on Aug. 25. Despite the drizzle and slightly wet footing, the students cleaned up just in time for the event to begin. Fries were held in the Millennium Student Center from 4 to 6 p.m. and from 4 to 6 p.m. on Sept. 3 and 10. Each student was given an additional person to assist the Office of Student Life, "As a sophomore, this was the first informal activity where I wasn’t the student leader," said the student. Some of the organizations that attended were: East 却 University Health Services, the International Business Center, the National Accounting Academy, Delta Sigma Theta, the University Meadows, the Student Government Association, the Multicultural Relations, Academic Affairs, Zoology, Alpha Phi Omega, Student Social Work, Gallery Two Ten, the Newman Center, Alpha Chi Omega, Alpha Chi Omega, the International Club, the Career Center and the American Marketing Association.

The event was able to inform students who are interested in becoming peer educators, and we also attended to learn more about the organization and what they have to offer. The Career Services also held free career counseling sessions for students who are interested in learning more about the different career fields. The event was open to all students, so it is a great opportunity for students to explore different career paths and find their ideal fit.

Superbowl: Miami takes on Atlanta

Volleyball and tennis camp schedules

After long and strenuous training sessions, both the volleyball team and the women's tennis team broke camp Monday and opened their respective seasons this past weekend.

The volleyball squad, led by Head Coach Donna Silverton and Assistant Coach Eric Kozierud, made a trip to Otterbein University in Illinois to play in the first of two autumn exhibitions before opening conference play. The tournament took place on the 27th and 30th with the Riverwomen playing four matches.

UM-St. Louis took on Tuscarawas Valley State and South Dakota on Friday and squared off against South Superior State, North and Southeast Missouri State on Saturday.

UM-St. Louis will be led into action this year by junior Dirk Seik, who is coming off a 2002 campaign in which she won a spot on the Great Lakes Valley Conference first team, when she was named as a defensive specialist. The outside hitter is one of seven upperclassmen on the Riverwomen roster. UM-St. Louis also has two upperclassmen on their roster to round out the squad.

The women's tennis team, coaxed into action by Coach Mary Foy, who spent most of last year away from the sport, will lead the Riverwomen into an exciting season.

UM-St. Louis, who will play in nine regular season matches and in a couple of tournaments before stumbling a bit in the conference opponents.

Junior Devin Howard is a junior on a strong women's tennis team, who is coming off a second place finish in the women's tennis team broke camp in the NFC South Prediction.

The 'Niners are one of the premier NFC South teams, with the New Orleans Saints and the Carolina Panthers.

The Leaders are led by the tough defensive specialist, Dough Coleman, who is one of the top ten players in the country.

Bill Simmons has been saying don't ever bet against Brett Favre, and he's right. In Green Bay-Chicago-Detroit-Dallas-Texas the offense is stacked, and you still have to put in the effort. Miami is still up in the air, but with the addition of Elway and Mark McGwire, the offense is stacked.

South Florida Prediction

South Florida is stacked, and you still have to put in the effort. Miami is still up in the air, but with the addition of Elway and Mark McGwire, the offense is stacked.

The difference will be whether the defense can stop the offense, and it will be a tough one.

NFC East Prediction

Philadelphia Eagles vs New York Giants

The Giants, like most teams in the conference, is stacked.

The Eagles, on the other hand, have been the talk of New York City.

This is how the NFC looks for the season.

The Eagles have the best defense in the NFC. For Emmitt Smith, you have to say that he should be the most valuable player in the league.

The Rams already in, and I'll take the Rams over the Eagles in the NFC East.

The Rams have the best defense, and they can win the NFC East, but don't expect too much else.

The NFC West Prediction

St. Louis vs. San Francisco-San Diego:

The Rams should return to glory this year, but only if Kurt Warner is truly healthy. Warner is one of the top quarterbacks in the league, and he can lead the Rams to a Super Bowl appearance.

There are only a few teams that can come close to the Rams, and that's why I think the Rams will win the NFC West.

NFC North Prediction

Green Bay vs Chicago-Detroit-Minnesota

Green Bay is definitely the class of this division. For Emmitt Smith, you have to say that he should be the most valuable player in the league.

Green Bay is definitely the class of this division. For Emmitt Smith, you have to say that he should be the most valuable player in the league.

The Rams already in, and I'll take the Rams over the Eagles in the NFC East.

The Rams have the best defense, and they can win the NFC East, but don't expect too much else.

The NFC West Prediction

St. Louis vs. San Francisco-San Diego:

The Rams should return to glory this year, but only if Kurt Warner is truly healthy. Warner is one of the top quarterbacks in the league, and he can lead the Rams to a Super Bowl appearance.

There are only a few teams that can come close to the Rams, and that's why I think the Rams will win the NFC West.

Golf squad looks to build on last year's strengths

by STEVE HARRELL

Sports Editor

The UM-St. Louis golf team finished their 2002-2003 season last weekend in a tie for eight place in the District 4 Tournament in Kentucky. That last performance of the season was the team's last on an unseasonal course, though.

Between their fall and spring seasons, the squad had one first place finish, as well as one individual first place finish.

UM-St. Louis competed in eight different tournaments, four in the fall and four in the spring. The squad's lone first place finish came in the fall season, as the team took first at the IIT Pepsi Shootout in Quincy, Illinois.

The team also had a second place finish in the fall, but failed to finish higher than third during the spring season.

Leading the way for the Ravens in '02-'03 was Kyle Wiles, who led the team with a 74.75 average. Kyle competed in all eight tournaments of which he played in.

Patrick Kirchoff finished last year with an average of 79.90, lone after two strokes behind Scott Kirkhoff. Scott did not compete in all eight tournaments, as he was hurt, but he did make it in for three rounds in the Great Lakes Valley Conference Tournament in April, good enough for a sixth-place finish.

Of the six UM-St. Louis golfers this past year, four of them competed in all eight tournaments. Of those four, Scott Kirkhoff had the lowest average, shooting a 77.70. During the fall, Scott's lowest two-round total was a 148, shot during the Southern Indiana Invitational, as well as a sixty-one and place finish at the NCAA Great Lakes Region Fall Tournament.

Kirkhoff's lowest round of the season, however, was a 68, which he shot during the UM-St. Louis' round in the Southern Indiana Invitational. Kirkhoff finished that tournament in ten for eight place, also his best performance of the season.

Mark Rieke finished his year with an average of 79.05, lone after two strokes behind Scott Kirkhoff. Rieke had UM-St. Louis' lowest round of 68 this year, which came during the second round of the Pepsi Shootout. That 68 helped Rieke win the Pepsi Shootout in Quincy, Illinois, as it was preceded by a 73.

During the second half of the year, Rieke's top finish was an eight place finish in the conference tournament. Rieke shot a 75-78-77 and finished seven strokes ahead of teammate Joel Wills.

Speaking of Wills, Sam finished with an 80-81 season average. He had the individual distinction of finishing with the team's high round for the year, a 91 during the Riverman Shootout. Wills did have some high points, however, including a fifth place finish at the Pepsi Shootout. Those shots were a two round total of 149 and finished third on his team in the spring. Wills' best finish was a tenth place performance in the Ball State Intercollegiate Tournament. While in Louisville, Wills led the team with a 163 total, six strokes ahead of the second Ravens' finisher.

The sixth and final member of last year's golf team was Pat Szcesniak. Szcesniak's lone final round was 80-81 season average. He had the individual distinction of finishing with the team's high round for the year, a 91 during the Riverman Shootout. Szcesniak's best finish was a seventh place finish, as he shot seven-over on the two rounds of the Riverman Invitational.

This year, only three golfers will be returning to the UM-St. Louis squad. Pat Szcesniak and Mark Rieke will be returning this year, and also Wills. Wills will serve as the lone sophomore, head coach J. trimming will enter his third fall season as

They’re called Mest for a reason

By Elliott Reid

Just when you thought that the prosperity of boy bands and the manipulation of sales tactics by major labels to play particular articles for money had been new, the story of Mest is much ado about nothing.

Songwriter/lead singer/vocalist Heat M. Mest, 22, of the band Mest, described the controversy: “We didn’t write a song that was about the war. We didn’t write a song that was about killing. We didn’t write a song about love. We didn’t write a song that was about anything. We didn’t write a song that was about nothing. We didn’t write a song that was about anything at all.”

The group has been accused of writing songs that glorify war, violence, and other negative themes. Mest has denied these allegations, stating that their music is actually about keeping the world from going to war and that they are not trying to glorify violence.

Many music critics, including those who originally praised the band, have now condemned Mest’s music. However, the controversy has also brought the band new attention and has increased sales of their albums.

Though many fans of Mest are disappointed by the controversy, others see it as a way to bring attention to an important cause. One fan, for example, said, “I think it’s great that Mest is getting noticed for something other than their music. They’re making a difference.”

The controversy also brought Mest a new record deal with a major label, which they plan to use to continue promoting their message.

Despite the controversy, Mest continues to perform and release music, which they hope will continue to bring attention to their cause.

‘American Splendor’ is just splendid

By Catherine Lunde

‘American Splendor’, Arguably the best comic of the year, is finally getting the attention it deserves. After years of being overlooked, this masterpiece has finally been recognized for its unique and creative style.

The story of Harvey Pekar, a Cleveland factory worker and aspiring cartoonist, is told through his own words and his own drawings. Pekar’s life is a series of mundane moments, but through his own eyes, they become extraordinary.

The film captures the essence of Pekar’s life and his work, bringing his world to life on screen. With its simple and nostalgic tone, ‘American Splendor’ is a true masterpiece.

The film is not without its problems, however. Some critics have criticized its lack of action and its slow pace. But these are minor issues compared to the overall quality of the film.

‘American Splendor’ is a reminder that sometimes the most ordinary lives can be the most interesting and值得 our attention. This film is a tribute to Harvey Pekar and his life, and a testament to the power of art to tell our stories.

Forever Changed

An evening with Radiohead

By Amy Gonna

Radiohead is one of the most innovative and influential bands of the past decade. Their music is a perfect blend of complex rhythms, melodic lines, and catchy hooks.

At their recent concert in New York City, Radiohead put on a show that was captivating and engaging. The band’s music is simple to understand, yet complex enough to keep listeners engaged.

The band’s music is a perfect example of the power of art. It has the ability to make us feel emotions that we might not even be aware of. Radiohead’s music is a reminder that art can be a powerful tool for change.

If you haven’t had the chance to experience a live Radiohead concert, you’re missing out on something special. Their music is a true masterpiece, and their performances are unforgettable.

So don’t miss out on the chance to see Radiohead live. Their music is a true gift, and their performances are a true treat.
In 'Le Divorce' French men behave badly

BY CATHERINE MARQUIS-HEYMOND

In the new Merchant Ivory film "Le Divorce," we find two Americans in Paris—sisters involved with French men behaving badly. So it seems by American standards.

The opening of the film sets the tone. It is a medical office in Paris, where a woman is meeting with her doctor. The doctor asks her if she is taking any medication. The woman responds that she is not, because she is pregnant with her second child. The doctor then asks her if she is happy with the pregnancy.

"I am pregnant," she replies. "And I am miserable."

The doctor then asks her if she is considering having an abortion. The woman responds that she is not, because she wants to keep the baby.

The opening sequence sets the tone for the rest of the film. It is a period piece, with a sense of style and romance. The women, cafes, and lipsticks and a soundtrack that evokes 1950s French jazz are all part of the setting.

Isabel (Kate Hudson) arrives to stay in Roxy's family's Parisian apartment. Isabel is a young, glamorous American, who becomes the center of attention in Paris. She is drawn to the city's men, and the heartache of this unexpected film production, which evokes 1959 Parisian French jazz soundtrack. The introduction of Isabel to the city and her interactions with the French men and women is a rewarding path, mixing the comic and the romantic.

The Merchant Ivory film's focus on the experiences of women in Paris is handled well by Bebe Neuwirth as an art appraiser from the Getty Museum and Ismail Merchant, who has appeared in a string of meatier works. This is a rewarding film, with a satisfying ending.

Le Divorce

BY CASEY STECKEL

We've been here since the beginning. We've seen lots of changes. Steve began when we first opened the store. It's been a fun ride, but we've changed a lot over the years. We've had to adapt to the changing times, but we've managed to stay ahead of the curve.

"Le Divorce" is a movie that tells the story of a French woman who is trying to make ends meet in Paris. She is a widow, and she has to raise her children on her own. She is struggling to make ends meet, but she is determined to succeed. She is a strong woman, and she is willing to do whatever it takes to ensure her family's future.

"Le Divorce" is a movie that is both heartwarming and thought-provoking. It is a story about love, loss, and the challenges of life. It is a story about a woman who is determined to make the best of her situation, no matter what obstacles she faces.

"Le Divorce" is a movie that is both enjoyable and insightful. It is a story that will resonate with anyone who has ever struggled to make ends meet. It is a story that will inspire anyone who is determined to succeed in the face of adversity.
