Roxana Contreras, the UM-St. Louis student now freed from charges in Russia, returned home last Wednesday.

Contreras was welcomed back at Lambert International Airport by friends, her fiancee and news reporters ready with cameras.

Contreras was finally allowed to return home after an 85 day holdover in Voronezh, Russia for more than 80 days Contreras had to pay a $600 fine for trying to export military coins.

“I’m surprised people were paying so much attention to something so silly,” Dr. Sonya Bahar, Contreras’ thesis advisor and friend, rushed down the gate to meet Contreras and carry her backpack.

Bahar raised media attention to Contreras’ detention over two months for the purchasing and exporting of military coins.

“The entire situation was like being on a strange planet. It was like being on a planet,” Sonya Bahar gets word that Roxana Contreras, the UM-St. Louis student, was freed by Russian authorities last Wednesday night at Lambert Airport. The UM-St. Louis student was freed by Russian authorities on Friday, Aug. 31, after being detained for over two months for the purchasing and attempting to export Russian war medals.

Faculty Senate discusses Columbia name change

Proدراسة

In a resolution on Sept. 4, Timothy Farmer, chairman of the Faculty Senate, said a resolution passed that day voting in favor of the UM – Columbia name change in the resolutions section... whereas the name "University of Missouri" is not exclusively given to the institution...[10x780]...The Missouri constitution gives the power to change their name, but all agreed that the name change was wanted. Riepe said that Student Government Executives will present the resolution at the next SGA meeting this Friday, but it will be up to the assembly to take action. Few University halls and administrative buildings have taken a name change, likely because it is not that something that matters. While it was the first time he heard the idea come up, Todd McCollum, director of the Alumni Association at UM-Columbia, had said that the proposal has been on the works for a while. The Missouri constitution gives the Board of Curators the power to change the name to whatever Visible at the PlHCSCA A BALL AT THE PlHCSCA - Columbia.

Normandy hospital demolition pending

The old Normandy Hospital was set to be demolished soon after February 2007. Because of a delay, however, it still stands today. The only problem I’ve been aware of is for the demolition, a "stinky project," said Bob Samples, director of marketing services. A proposed $2 million for a new, 48-bed building to tear down the building and clear the property is in the works for Columbia. The hospital was closed in 1983 and is currently used by students who run the hospital until it permanently closed in 2003. UM-St. Louis purchased and closed Normandy Hospital between fall of 2001 for $2.5 million. The most recently approved contract for demolition services could be used for athletic facilities. "Samples said. "A link to integrity date is not set in stone, but could occur within the next 15 or 24 months. The Zun Tzu Alpha society was required to leave their room in January 2007 due to the pending demolition of the hospital and house. An official date for the demolish- men text has yet to be set.

Marliac Dedication

On Wednesday, the dedication of the Zeta Tau Alpha sorority house in Marliac Hall took place. Dean Charles Schenz, director of the College of Education, described the house prior to ceremonies, to the students. "It’s a beautiful building. We’ll take it down and just get back in the process," Schenz said. The house will be set up for planning and renovating the lobby. As a result of the dedication, students, faculty, and members of the sorority will be able to move back in. Schenz said that he was able to do something for the students. "We are a good example of two colleges working together to take one of the sins of the students," Schenz said.

HABING A BALL AT THE PlHCSCA LUAA

Pierre Laclede Honors College Student Association, PLHCSCA, hosted its third annual Welcome Back Luau as Friday, Open to new and returning Honors students as well as any campus residents who wandered by, the Welcome Back Luau offered pool, ping pong, free food and a chance to socialize outside of class. Due to inclement weather, the luau was moved to Seton Lounge. Here, Stephen Lederman, junior, music performance major, explains his view of the social. This was the first year the luau would be held by the Oak pool instead of in front of the Honors College.

ULSM police arrest suspect in sexual misconduct cases

AP Paul Mercereau Editor-in-Chief

Columbia police are currently investigating two related sexual misconduct cases involving a male student. Both incidents occurred in student residential halls on campus, one approximately more than two years ago, the other approximately one month before. Police believe he was involved in both cases.

Two weeks ago, a male student alleged to the university that a female student had been sexually assaulted and attempted to have him take her to his room.

After the incident, another female student came forward to campus police with information claiming that the same male student involved in the sexual assault incident had also raped her a semester before and sodomized her in 2005. Sgt. John Schiffer of the campus police said the male student was arrested for rape and sodomy, but his name will not be released until charges are filed against him.

According to the campus crime log, a male suspect approached a female student in the Oak Ball pool at approximately 10 p.m. on Aug. 25.

The suspect was allegedly touching the victim’s buttocks and then attempted to pull her into his room. The suspect also threatened to assault the student.

The female student was able to leave the pool area, but did not report the incident until Aug. 30. According to the crime log, the female victim was attacked unprovoked and delayed telling the police.

After hearing about the Oak Ball incident, the female student decided to come forward and report the incident to Columbia police. The same suspect may have been involved in a sexual assault at Columbia’s Women’s tennis school.

According to the campus crime log, in March 2007, the same suspect forced a female student into her room in Seton Hall and allegedly raped and sodomized the female student, but she was able to get off her back. The student did not report the incident because she did not feel comfortable and did not know what to do.

The investigation into both incidents is ongoing, according to Sgt. John Schiffer of the Campus Police. Police are also looking for information about the male student with the suspect.

As of Sunday, Sept. 9, no arrest has been made by the St. Louis County Prosecuting Attorney’s Office.

McEwen said no notice was released concerning the incident because police did not consider the cases an ongoing threat.

Recent crimes prove need for improved alarm system

Two weeks ago a very frightening event occurred at the University of Virginia. A residential halls. A report of alleged sexual assault and abject rape and forcible sodomy two years earlier can be found in last week's Campus Courier. These reports are about our campus safety on which we have been reviewing in both cases.

What about student awareness of the University even more so than we are aware of sexual assault and rape and forcible sodomy on the campus this year? The University of Virginia is a place that should be safe to these people who are putting their personal safety under their personal safety. For clarity and length, words will be given preference.

One win, four losses: is this how we start a season?

This past weekend, the Tritons opened up for conference play in men's and women's soccer as well as volleyball. It was great to see all three sports compete on Friday night, even though one could pick back for the win.

The men's and women's soccer teams had games this weekend (men's soccer on Friday was postponed due to inclement weather) against the UM-St. Louis Panthers.

Both teams started the season with an 0-2 record, but only the women's team had a win this past week. The women's team took on Rockhurst at Friday's women's soccer game.

The game ended 2-2 after regulation time. The Tritons scored the first goal for Drury in the 33rd minute of the game with the assist going to Aly Reynolds. Mandi Little recorded the second goal for Drury in the 48th minute of the game with the assist going to Littell. "We made a couple of mistakes on defense and we were able to capitalize," Goetz said. "The opportunities were there, but we are struggling to put the ball in the back of the net."

Both Beckerman and Caranday played 45 minutes and both recorded one save while allowing one goal.

The Tritons suffered another injury to play by a player during the game against Rockhurst. Midfielder/defender Lyn Cervy was taken off of the field due to an injury to her right knee. According to Goetz, Cervy is expected to return in about a week and the team is still waiting on a diagnosis.

The UM-St. Louis women's soccer team record stands at 1-3-1 (0-2 GLVC) after losing its first game conference games of the year. The Tritons lost to Rockhurst 2-1 on Friday and 2-0 to Washburn on Saturday.

The Tritons faced off against the Rockhurst Hawks on a sunny Friday night in a game that ended in overtime. Overtime in this game started after a half hour rain delay. The score was 1-1 at the end of regulation and Rockhurst won in overtime 2-1. Danielle Goetz assisted Lonee Bean to score the game winning goal for Rockhurst 2:54 into overtime.

"I think we definitely had a moment of the game when Head Coach Beth Goetz said, "She [Bean] was never going to get any pressure. We had a rental linebacker."

The second game of the weekend was a 2-0 loss to Drury.

The Tritons were able to out-shoot the Panthers throughout the game, recording 17 total shots to Drury's four. Three of the shots made by UM-St. Louis came in the second half of the game. Mikah Little scored the first goal for Drury in the 33rd minute of the game with the assist going to Aly Reynolds. Mandi Little recorded the second goal for Drury in the 48th minute of the game with the assist going to Littell. "We made a couple of mistakes on defense and we were able to capitalize," Goetz said. Christy Trame, junior, nursing, is the Athlete of the Week. The 6’1” middle hitter is invited to the Triton volleyball team in many categories with 183 kills, 17 service aces, and 17 blocked shots. This week against Drury, she recorded a team high 19 kills and her 21st total attempts were the second highest of the team.

The highest number of kills for a Drury player was 9.

In 3-1 loss to Rockhurst on Sept. 7, she recorded the most kills of either team, 22.

Last season she led the team in total kills and blocked shots, and was a second team Great Lakes Valley All-Conference selection.

Trame will face off against UM-Kansas later this week at UM-St. Louis.

Men's soccer shut out in first GLVC conference game

By Leihn Fuce
Sports Editor

The first home win in the GLVC for the men’s soccer team was sched­uled to be against Rockhurst on Sept. 7 and experienced several delays be­fore being postponed indefinitely.

The game started late due to the weather’s sourer gone game going into overtime followed by a half an hour rain delay.

When both teams finally took the field, they only played for three minutes before the game was halted due to lighting. After an hour and a half delay, the teams took the field again, this time for only 15 minutes, before the game was officially postponed due to weather.

UM-St. Louis hosted Drury on Sunday, Sept. 9, in what was sched­uled to be the second conference game of the weekend. Drury was up by a goal with a final score of 1-0. The Tritons’ second new stand to 3-0 (1 GLVC).

The Panthers controlled the tempo for most of the game and prevented the Tritons from getting a shot until the last five minutes of the first half. Drury was able to outshoot UM-St. Louis 11-4 during the game. UM-St. Louis was able to get four corner kicks during the game but only two goals.

The only goal of the game came unassisted in the 46th minute by Mario Cheremus. Cheremus finished the game with one goal and two assist shots for the Panthers.

The Tritons finished the game with their own shots, but none of the shots were on goal. The Panthers controlled the tempo of the game and scored seven of their shots during the first half.

UM-St. Louis goalkeeper Mike Biber played 90 minutes in the game and finished with four saves and al­lowed one goal. So far this season, Biber has two clean sheets and has only allowed two goals.

“We couldn’t score goals,” said Biber. “We worked good as a team. We just did not get the goals.”

Biber is in his first year with the team and before this season, he had only had five career saves with the team.

“I think our team chemistry is coming together,” head coach Dave King said. “We had difficulty de­fending as a unit. This conference is very competitive.”

The last time these two teams played off, both games ended in a tie. In 2006, the game ended 0-0 and in 2005, the final score was 1-1.

The next game for the Tritons will be the second weekend on the road against Lewis and Wisconsin-Park­side.

The make up for the post­poned game against Rockhurst has yet to be established. The Tritons will not have another home game until Sept. 21, when they host Illi­nois-Chicago and then on Sept. 29 against Northern Kentucky.

A review of Tiger Woods PGA Tour 08, golf is not just for the rich and famous

By Brian Nelson

Five months ago, Electronic Arts released their latest version of "Tiger Woods Golf" for the Nintendo Wii. EA Games has even more in store for the gaming community this fall with the exception that they’ve turned their sights onto the world of professional golf. EA has poured millions of dollars into creating the most realistic simulation of professional golf yet seen. After five years of development, Tiger Woods PGA Tour 08 has hit the shelves.

Five years ago, Electronic Arts released their first ever golf simulation called "Tiger Woods Golf" for the Nintendo 64. The game was a hit due to the fact that EA Games was able to create the most realistic golf simulation to date. "The History Boys" has plenty about boys, not so much history

By Cate Manus

What is the purpose of education? Two teachers offer different views, while weighing the efficiencies of night-higheighteen-teen boys in the play "The History Boys." The Tory school version is "History Boys English," a season opener at the Repertory Theatre of St. Louis.

This British play by Alan Bennett won multiple awards and was made into a 2006 movie directed by Nicholas Hytner, who also

The History Boys

The headmaster wanted to take no chances, so he brought a new teacher, Dr. Sykes (Richard 14), a recent Cambridge graduate, to teach the boys on test-taking techniques. Thus, the play set up a conflict between goal-oriented teaching to the and cool free stuff.
