The unreasonably warm days this week gave many students an excuse to tour the campus. Sophomore Mike Zerillo and Judy Holsheimer pause at a small bridge near the main building.

The Inside Story

EDITORIAL: Student Senators fail to endorse clean-up ruling in student lounge. SEE page two.
NEWS: M. U. Cadets reinstated in Washington University ROTC program. SEE page one.
FEATURES: Meet Dr. Barry Schneider. SEE page three.
SPORTS: Intramural football championships announced. SEE page four.

The three buildings under construction in the southwest corner of the campus are scheduled for completion in August, 1965. Each building will house separate facilities. Office-space, laboratories, and classrooms will be provided. According to Ernest Thacker, general superintendent of the Ralls Construction Co., the three structures will soon begin to look like buildings. The foundations of the three buildings have been completed. The second floor of the laboratory has been poured and soon the men will begin laying bricks. The men are currently working on the third floor of the office building, which at completion, will consist of five stories. The lab and classroom buildings will have four stories each.

Mr. Thacker is responsible for seeing that all subsidiary companies work together smoothly so that the jobs are completed on schedule. A large rise in construction throughout the city has produced a lack of skilled laborers, such as carpenters and ironworkers.

But, the fine weather has permitted construction to continue on schedule even with the labor shortage.

After completion of the three buildings in 1965 the old country club building will be used for classroom space. The new construction planned is a new library, adjacent to the three new buildings now under construction. Three more classroom buildings will be built as funds are appropriated.

Mizzou Cadets Reinstated
To Taint Washington U.

AFTER reinstallation of the St. Louis Campus
AFROTC agreement with Washington University, the Mizzou Military Science Corps was reactivated two weeks ago, allowing 35 Mizzou students to attend the University.

Although the newly reinstated AFROTC cadets are starting half way through the semester, the new legislation allows them to receive a full semester's credit for taking the sciences course. The seven students enrolled before October 15, 1963, who were reinstated after the interpretation of the 1916 act, have been reassigned to the St. Louis Campus flight.

The old legislation was unsuitable to both W. U. and the St. Louis Campus because the M.U. ROTC activity is too small to do. They must complete the full semester's work in the second term.

Barry Schneider, a lieutenant in the St. Louis AFROTC, said that he has high expectations for the M.U. St. Louis Campus AFROTC. "We should," commented Schneider, "come from behind and win all honors in the AFROTC program. The boys are interested and capable. That is all that is needed.

Kennedy Memorial March Scheduled

A torchlight memorial march will be held from the Washington University Quadrangle to Jefferson Memorial on November 22 in commemoration of the late President John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

The Young Democratic clubs of Mizzou, University, and Washington University are sponsoring this march to give the people of the St. Louis area an opportunity to rededicate themselves to the principles for which the late president stood.

There will be invocations by major clergymen of the Catholic, Jewish, and Protestant communities. These will be followed by a short talk to be given by a speaker, who will be announced later.

The march will begin at approximately 4:45 p.m. from the Washington U. Quadrangle and will proceed down the front steps of the administration building to Lindell Blvd., and then on to the Jefferson Memorial.

Copies of the march may be obtained at Washington University for 25 cents apiece. They will serve as symbols of the light of youth evinced by our late president.

A crowd of 10,000 is anticipated.
World's Waste Basket?  No Fairy Tale

The midwest is often referred to as the breadbasket of the nation—our cafeteria is rapidly becoming known as the wastebasket of the world. Dean Bugg has threatened to close the lounge if the condition of the littered cafeteria doesn't improve. Davre Zerrer brought the problem before the Student Senate.

The senators arrived at by the Senate came in the form of a sheet of pink paper, which blended in very well with the flamingo pink tables, but failed to clean up the lounge. This proclamation said that anyone leaving a table with trash on it would have their name and student number referred to Dean Eickhoff and would be subject to discipline before the Student Court.

This rule was to be enforced by the senators, but to date, there have been no summons issued, and no cases brought before the Student Court. The lounge is still littered, and the Senate's solution has proved to be no solution at all. The ruling has failed to be effective because the senators have failed to enforce it.

It's about time the senators realized that when one accepts the privileges and status of office, one must also accept the corresponding duties and responsibilities that come with being a senator. Some of these duties might be distasteful, but as Harry Truman once said, "If you can't stand the heat, stay out of the kitchen."

Cadets Flying High Again

In September the Department of Air Science at Washington University dropped 35 M. U. cadets who were enrolled in the Air Force ROTC program there, because of an outdated ruling prohibiting students from one university from attending another. The MIZZOU NEWS ran an editorial at that time protesting this situation, and urging immediate action on the part of the university to discipline before the Student Court.

The Administration and the Student Senate have gone to a method that is their decision. This afternoon, the Lounge has been cleaned. The Senate is taking the initiative here to prevent such action. The lounge be-

Medieval Musical Held

On Wednesday, November 4th, the Evening Concert Series featured a concert of English Medieval and Renaissance Music. This was presented by the Collegium Musaeum, composed of faculty and students of the University of Missouri at Columbia. The Collegium Musaeum was organized in 1959 to give performances of pre-sixteenth century music. Its repertoire ranges from Gregorian Chant and songs and dances of the troubadours to 16th century cantatas and concerts.

Among those pieces which received wonderful audience reactions were "Estampie" from the Medieval Court songs of the 13th and 14th centuries. The "Estampie" was one of the most popular dance forms of this period. From the Court of Henry the 8th, "My Lady Carey's Dance" was played by Wina Morgan on the harpsichord. A dance is a story or lamento, either vocal or instrumental. This early example of a keyboard dance was probably written on the death of Lady Carey, the sister of Anne Boleyn. "Country Cries" from the Country Songs of the 15th century was played by the College Ensemble. This fantasy depicts sounds associated with life in the country during the Renaissance, the swaying of the household, care and feeding of the animals; an early morning hunt for the hare; the merrymaking after the harvest is in.

Of notable interest was the use of authentic reproductions of Renaissance and Baroque Instruments -- recorders, shawm, cornetto, viols, gambas, flauto, harpsichord and trumpet.

The next concert program will feature soprano Carolene Hendricks on December 16th.

Letters...

Dear Editor

As two former staff members of high school papers, we realize the long hours of thought and work required to publish a newspaper such as the Mizzou News. Because of several derogatory remarks heard from students ignorant of your fine efforts we would like to give a brief picture of the work behind the finished product.

Planning an issue includes assigning stories, setting due dates for articles to be turned in and revised, and devising an interesting layout. When articles or copy have undergone revision they must be accurately typed according to the printer's specifications. Finger are crossed so that the material fits in the original layout. If it doesn't, articles must be added or cut or a new layout is made.

Next comes the task of making headlines. While it may seem simple, this is often a time consuming job.

Finally the copy is sent to the printer. While waiting for the gal-leys, which are sheets from the printer showing the size and type of articles as will appear in the issue, plans are in the making for the next issue. When the galleys are returned, they are proof-read and made to fit the layout, again a process of adding, cutting and changing. Copy is sent to the printer for the final time and one more issue of the Mizzou News is ready for distribution.

We hope through this better student appreciation the great work being done by the Mizzou News staff.

Ann Harding
Mary Northway

October 16, 1964

To: All Students, Missouri University at St. Louis

Subject: Cafeteria Maintenance

As you have seen, the cafeteria has been completely redecorated this year. The Administration and the Student Association have gone to a considerable expense to make the Student Lounge more comfortable and give it a more pleasant atmosphere. To this date, however, the cleanliness of the lounge has been, to say the least, unsatisfactory. There are two courses of action open at this time: 1) to close the lounge if immediate improvement does not come; 2) to institute an effective system of continuing maintenance on an individual level.

The Senate has authorized me to put forth this plan to the students of this campus.

1) Anyone leaving a table is responsible for all the trash left on that table. Whether it was present when he sat down or not.--

2) Each senator and each individual student will be enforcing authority of this rule. Anyone who refuses to clean off the table which he has left will have his name and/or student number referred to Dean Eickhoff and would be subject to discipline before the Student Court.

3) This rule also applies to the malicious defacing and destruction of university property in the lounge.

As many of you know, the Dean has stated that he will close the cafeteria if the general appearance does not improve. The Student Association is taking the initiative here to prevent such action. The lounge belongs to you and, therefore, it is your responsibility to see that it is kept clean.

Letters...
Adolescent Agony is Popular Topic; American Novelists See Problem

Adolescent agony is presently a popular topic of many American fiction writers, in his study The Adolescent in the American Novel, 1920-1960. Dr. Witham examines the work of several distinguished American novelists. The book shows that the adolescent problem is a great deal. Tom Sawyer, Pecos Bill and Sam Spade, in Archer, are being superseded on the literary scene by Holden Caulfield (Catch-22), Caleb Travis (East of Eden) and Mick Kelly (The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter). In spite of the stereotype, giddy, haven't-a-problem-in-the-world, the world adolescent has virtually disappeared.

Dr. Witham says, "Besides finding a way of earning a living and exercising his talents, the young approaching adulthood must find a meaning in life or else he must persuade himself that he can be satisfied with a meaningless existence." This "search for identity", as it has been trilly called, is invariably a part of every serious adolescent novel and Dr. Witham believes it forms the pivot for the character's conflicts in the story.

Dr. Witham recognizes adolescence as a crucial time in life and he says that "The adolescent problem is a vast range of children's clothes and playsuits for children can be noted everywhere."

They seemed to have unrequited "rich boys' Russia can reason more independently with China now."

The book shows that the split was as much as ideological as it was nationalistic and territorial. There seems to be an intense national rivalry between the two nations and they have always had boundary disputes. I really think Khrushchev had a lot of the blame. I think it is mainly a split between peoples rather than between leaders.

Ed. Kottkamp (Freshman) [1] think they will improve. Khrushchev was a barrier. He seemed to be in the way of the Chinese, but the Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai don't seem to want the friendship. The problem seems to be in the hands of the Red Chinese leaders such as Jiang Qing and Mao-Tse-Tung don't seem to want the friendship.

David Loundis (Freshman) [2] think they will improve. Khrushchev was a barrier. He seemed to be in the way of the Chinese, but the Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai don't seem to want the friendship. The problem seems to be in the hands of the Red Chinese leaders such as Jiang Qing and Mao-Tse-Tung don't seem to want the friendship.

Donald Rosenfeld (Freshman) [3] think that the split was as much as ideological as it was nationalistic and territorial. There seems to be an intense national rivalry between the two nations and they have always had boundary disputes. I really think Khrushchev had a lot of the blame. I think it is mainly a split between peoples rather than between leaders.

The book shows that the split was as much as ideological as it was nationalistic and territorial. There seems to be an intense national rivalry between the two nations and they have always had boundary disputes. I really think Khrushchev had a lot of the blame. I think it is mainly a split between peoples rather than between leaders.

Dr. Witham believes it forms the pivot for the character's conflicts in the story.

Dr. Witham recognizes adolescence as a crucial time in life and he says that "The adolescent problem is a vast range of children's clothes and playsuits for children can be noted everywhere."

They seemed to have unrequited "rich boys' Russia can reason more independently with China now."

The book shows that the split was as much as ideological as it was nationalistic and territorial. There seems to be an intense national rivalry between the two nations and they have always had boundary disputes. I really think Khrushchev had a lot of the blame. I think it is mainly a split between peoples rather than between leaders.

Ed. Kottkamp (Freshman) [1] think they will improve. Khrushchev was a barrier. He seemed to be in the way of the Chinese, but the Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai don't seem to want the friendship. The problem seems to be in the hands of the Red Chinese leaders such as Jiang Qing and Mao-Tse-Tung don't seem to want the friendship.

David Loundis (Freshman) [2] think they will improve. Khrushchev was a barrier. He seemed to be in the way of the Chinese, but the Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai don't seem to want the friendship. The problem seems to be in the hands of the Red Chinese leaders such as Jiang Qing and Mao-Tse-Tung don't seem to want the friendship.

Donald Rosenfeld (Freshman) [3] think that the split was as much as ideological as it was nationalistic and territorial. There seems to be an intense national rivalry between the two nations and they have always had boundary disputes. I really think Khrushchev had a lot of the blame. I think it is mainly a split between peoples rather than between leaders.
The Coaches Speak

An Interview with Dave Ellis

The first of a two part series viewing our athletic teams through the eyes of the coach.

Editor's Note: Mr. David Ellis, coach of the St. Louis Campus wrestling team, is a graduate of Normandy High School where he was lettered in football, wrestling, and track. He then attended Southern Illinois University, on an athletic scholarship, where he was a member of the football and wrestling teams. After a year at SIU he moved to Central Missouri State where he completed his degree in Education and is now a faculty member there. He is the wrestling coach and assistant football coach at Normandy High School. He is now the wrestling coach and assistant football coach at Normandy High School.

Q. Mr. Ellis, how many boys tried out for the wrestling team?
A. Six, six out of twenty boys are the trying out for the team. But there are still places on the team for interested wrestlers. We are fairly strong in the middle and upper weights, but in the lower weights we lack depth and experience.

Q. What teams will you wrestle this year?
A. So far we have scheduled two matches with Washington University and one each with the Kirkwood A&U, Ristexour Y, and Grambling City A&U teams. We could have scheduled more matches this year, but because of our late start and the limited practice time available, I thought it advisable not to engage in a full schedule this year.

Q. What do you think the team's chances are this year?
A. Frankly, I don't know. The team is highly cooperative, but due to limited practice time, conditioning is a major problem. For this reason I have scheduled most of our matches on a scrimmage basis, that is the match result will not go on the record of either, similar to a pre-season exhibition football game. But let me say that if the team does well I will schedule more matches on an official basis. If spirit and drive were the only factors in determining winners the team would be a champion. As it is I have very high hopes for a good record this season.

Q. Do you have anything to say in conclusion, Mr. Ellis?
A. Wrestling is one of the fastest growing sports in the nation. The great popularity the sport enjoys is spreading across the United States. St. Louis Campus follows Columbia. He is now a member of the football and wrestling teams.

The first of a two part series viewing our athletic teams through the eyes of the coach.

Editor's Note: Mr. David Ellis, coach of the St. Louis Campus wrestling team, is a graduate of Normandy High School where he was lettered in football, wrestling, and track. He then attended Southern Illinois University, on an athletic scholarship, where he was a member of the football and wrestling teams. After a year at SIU he moved to Central Missouri State where he completed his degree in Education and is now a faculty member there. He is the wrestling coach and assistant football coach at Normandy High School. He is now the wrestling coach and assistant football coach at Normandy High School.

Q. Mr. Ellis, how many boys tried out for the wrestling team?
A. Six, six out of twenty boys are the trying out for the team. But there are still places on the team for interested wrestlers. We are fairly strong in the middle and upper weights, but in the lower weights we lack depth and experience.

Q. What teams will you wrestle this year?
A. So far we have scheduled two matches with Washington University and one each with the Kirkwood A&U, Ristexour Y, and Grambling City A&U teams. We could have scheduled more matches this year, but because of our late start and the limited practice time available, I thought it advisable not to engage in a full schedule this year.

Q. What do you think the team's chances are this year?
A. Frankly, I don't know. The team is highly cooperative, but due to limited practice time, conditioning is a major problem. For this reason I have scheduled most of our matches on a scrimmage basis, that is the match result will not go on the record of either, similar to a pre-season exhibition football game. But let me say that if the team does well I will schedule more matches on an official basis. If spirit and drive were the only factors in determining winners the team would be a champion. As it is I have very high hopes for a good record this season.

Q. Do you have anything to say in conclusion, Mr. Ellis?
A. Wrestling is one of the fastest growing sports in the nation. The great popularity the sport enjoys is spreading across the United States. St. Louis Campus follows Columbia. He is now a member of the football and wrestling teams.

The first of a two part series viewing our athletic teams through the eyes of the coach.

Editor's Note: Mr. David Ellis, coach of the St. Louis Campus wrestling team, is a graduate of Normandy High School where he was lettered in football, wrestling, and track. He then attended Southern Illinois University, on an athletic scholarship, where he was a member of the football and wrestling teams. After a year at SIU he moved to Central Missouri State where he completed his degree in Education and is now a faculty member there. He is the wrestling coach and assistant football coach at Normandy High School. He is now the wrestling coach and assistant football coach at Normandy High School.

Q. Mr. Ellis, how many boys tried out for the wrestling team?
A. Six, six out of twenty boys are the trying out for the team. But there are still places on the team for interested wrestlers. We are fairly strong in the middle and upper weights, but in the lower weights we lack depth and experience.

Q. What teams will you wrestle this year?
A. So far we have scheduled two matches with Washington University and one each with the Kirkwood A&U, Ristexour Y, and Grambling City A&U teams. We could have scheduled more matches this year, but because of our late start and the limited practice time available, I thought it advisable not to engage in a full schedule this year.

Q. What do you think the team's chances are this year?
A. Frankly, I don't know. The team is highly cooperative, but due to limited practice time, conditioning is a major problem. For this reason I have scheduled most of our matches on a scrimmage basis, that is the match result will not go on the record of either, similar to a pre-season exhibition football game. But let me say that if the team does well I will schedule more matches on an official basis. If spirit and drive were the only factors in determining winners the team would be a champion. As it is I have very high hopes for a good record this season.

Q. Do you have anything to say in conclusion, Mr. Ellis?
A. Wrestling is one of the fastest growing sports in the nation. The great popularity the sport enjoys is spreading across the United States. St. Louis Campus follows Columbia. He is now a member of the football and wrestling teams.