Student Expelled, One Suspended
For Bringing Liquor on Campus

The two were observed possessing alcoholic beverages by a University official at the Student Association sponsored pool and patio party last May 28.

Both were brought before the Student Affairs Committee, which voted to suspend the one student from the University until January 1966. The other violator was unconditionally expelled. The committee withheld their names.

At the same meeting, the Committee voted to place the Student Association on probation with the provision that the ban would be lifted when the S.A. presented an acceptable plan to safeguard against further incidents.

The Committee also voted that the Student Association could not sponsor any social functions until a plan was approved.

One student was dismissed, and another suspended from the University after the two were found guilty of violating a State law which prohibits the possession of alcoholic beverages on University property.

The first was suspended for one year; the second was expelled.

FIRST MU GRANT
To Help Update Kinloch Schools

The University of Missouri at St. Louis' first federal aid grant will finance a co-operative project to help the Kinloch Public School System improve its academic, curricular and teaching methods.

The $214,770 grant, $161,606 going to the University and $53,059 to the Kinloch schools, was awarded through the Human Development Corporation as part of President Johnson's "War on Poverty" program.

Dr. Adolph Urosh, Chairman of the Department of Teacher Education and Director of Teacher Training, is heading the quarter million dollar program scheduled to start this fall. Work will begin with collection and organization of social, psychological, and educational data relevant to Kinloch.

Conference and seminars sponsored by MU-St. Louis covering newer teaching techniques, curriculum problems and course work are part of the second phase of the project. The final phase will be evaluation.

OUTLINES PLANS
For This Year

Outlines Plans for Spring Semester

The University of Missouri at St. Louis has outlined plans for the spring semester, which includes a number of new academic offerings.

New Offerings

In addition to the new academic offerings, the university also announced plans for a new building to be constructed on campus.

The building, which will be located near the main campus, will house the university's School of Business and Economics.

The building will be a three-story structure, containing offices, classrooms, laboratories, and a conference room.

The projected cost of the building is $5 million, and it is expected to be completed by the fall of 1966.

The university also announced plans for a new academic program, which will focus on environmental studies.

The program, which will be housed in the School of Science, will offer undergraduate and graduate degrees in environmental science.

The program will be designed to prepare students for careers in environmental research, policy development, and education.

The program will be offered in collaboration with the Missouri Department of Natural Resources, and it is expected to attract students from a wide range of backgrounds.

The university also announced plans for a new academic building, which will be dedicated to the study of art and design.

The building will be located near the main campus, and it will house classrooms, studios, and a gallery for the display of student work.

The building will be a two-story structure, containing approximately 30,000 square feet of space.

The projected cost of the building is $3 million, and it is expected to be completed by the fall of 1967.

The university also announced plans for a new academic program, which will focus on the study of literature.

The program, which will be housed in the School of Humanities, will offer undergraduate and graduate degrees in literature.

The program will be designed to prepare students for careers in teaching, writing, and publishing.

The program will be offered in collaboration with the Missouri Department of Education, and it is expected to attract students from a wide range of backgrounds.

The university also announced plans for a new academic building, which will be dedicated to the study of foreign languages.

The building will be located near the main campus, and it will house classrooms, studios, and a library for the study of foreign languages.

The building will be a two-story structure, containing approximately 20,000 square feet of space.

The projected cost of the building is $2 million, and it is expected to be completed by the fall of 1968.

The university also announced plans for a new academic program, which will focus on the study of mathematics.

The program, which will be housed in the School of Sciences, will offer undergraduate and graduate degrees in mathematics.

The program will be designed to prepare students for careers in teaching, research, and industry.

The program will be offered in collaboration with the Missouri Department of Education, and it is expected to attract students from a wide range of backgrounds.

The university also announced plans for a new academic building, which will be dedicated to the study of science.

The building will be located near the main campus, and it will house classrooms, laboratories, and a research laboratory for the study of science.

The building will be a three-story structure, containing approximately 50,000 square feet of space.

The projected cost of the building is $10 million, and it is expected to be completed by the fall of 1969.
Editorials

Our Platform

It is the responsibility of any newspaper to report the news with integrity, courage, and style. With this as our motto, the staff of the Mizzou NEWS presents the following editorial policy.

We shall be non-partisan and non-sectarian, reporting only on issues surrounding the areas and reserves comment for the editorial page. We will objectively and honestly report the news without restraint within the bounds of good taste. However, we will not be afraid to print controversial matters.

In accordance with our goal, the Mizzou NEWS will strive to meet three primary purposes. First, as observers of campus happenings, we will be the watchdog of the student body. Second, we will promote student-faculty relations through better understanding. Third, by reporting school-related events, we will increase the interest of students and community in the University of Missouri at St. Louis.

Justice?

The Mizzou NEWS strongly supports all law-abiding citizens of the University and, with the Administration, is in favor of punishing law offenders; however, in the same vein, we do not condone reprimanding innocent students for something that many did not even know about until today.

We feel that the Student Affairs Committee definitely was unjust in putting the entire Student Association on social probation for $30,000 unless a suitable plan was submitted to keep similar incidents from happening.

It must be emphasized that the two young men deserved their "just reward." But, it was necessary to deprive 2,500 other day students of all social affairs for an entire year?

In the first place, these two boys would not be here to feel the effects of such punishment. Secondly, these methods seem a bit childish for a sophisticated university. It is like a weary mother spanks all the children because one got into the cookie jar.

Perhaps, this move was to let the students, through the S. A., solve a student problem. If this was the case, why couldn't the Student Affairs Committee ask for a plan from the S. A. without putting it on probation? Certainly, the Student Association was not guilty of drinking, also!

Fortunately, Mr. Allan Handler, President of the S. A., submitted an acceptable proposition to the Committee and the S. A. is now off probation. However, we hope this incident will not become precedent for the future.

Welcome Pioneers!

Today marks the beginning of a new school year. For some it is the start of an interesting four years—four years filled with hard work, new friends, and fresh experiences. For others, it is the continuation of studies in their chosen fields. To all it is an opportunity to help "pioneer" on a new campus, complete with a new building and a few hardships; however, we couldn't be pioneers without hardships!

The Mizzou NEWS staff would like to welcome you and remind you that the predecessors we set now will hold as traditions for future students. We hope that you, too, will feel the responsibility as well as the privilege of deciding how things are to be done.

Have an Opinion?

The Mizzou NEWS welcomes any letters and written opinions from students and faculty on any subject concerning the University, campus, surrounding communities, or editorial commentary.

Not only do letters to the editor allow personal public comment, but they offer a guideline for the staff.

Letters sent to the editor will appear on the editorial page. They should be brief, typed and must be signed.

I welcome each of you, and especially those of you who are enrolled here for the first time. As you know, this is a new campus for it opened its doors only six years ago, and it has been a Campus of the University of Missouri for only two years. That is a very brief period in the life of most educational institutions, and you will find that there are many things which are still in a period of formation. Few precedents and traditions have been established. This is, of course, both a disadvantage and an opportunity for a new institution. For you become an active participant in the formative period. It is more difficult to begin or to establish traditions than to merely inherit and continue them. But it is also more creative and more rewarding, especially if they are constructive.

There are, however, certain things which you will find. We are dedicated to academic achievement above all things. We believe that any student really educates himself, and that part of that education is the development of creativity and the ability to think of one self. We believe that there is no easy road to knowledge, only one paved with hard work. We also believe that it brings understanding. We believe that knowledge, as Lord Bacon expressed it many years ago, is power, and that is one of the very few forms of power which brings satisfaction. We believe that students should have both the opportunity and the responsibility of assisting in the determining of University policy, and students sit as working and voting members of many committees which determine policy. We assume that the students who come here are sincere, honest and honorable men and women, that they have the welfare of this institution at heart, and that they will help to advance its interests and do nothing to hurt its reputation or its standing. This gives us a certain way of meeting and working with students with which we believe is of benefit to them as well as to us. Those few, and they are very few, who cannot accept this attitude, have no place here.

This year will be challenging. For you we have considerables. The new building is not yet completed and this will cause problems for all of us, and particularly for those who are in Science because we must make do with subdivide facilities for most of the semester. We have far too little space, and this will remain a problem for as long as you are here. Architects are now designing plans for a library building and a classroom building to house Mathematics and Languages and that their completion is two years in the future. As a state university, we are dependent upon the state legislature to provide us with the facilities we need.

This year we shall request a

Lecture Halls Unfinished: Moved to Local Church

The classroom wing of the new building has been completed and is ready for use starting today. However, only the ground floor rooms in the laboratory section can be used immediately.

The large lecture halls, 105 and 120, will be ready for classes in 2 or 3 weeks, according to Mr. John Perry, Business Officer. The delay is due to a strike by American Seating which has contracted to supply the desks for the lecture halls. In the meantime classes will be held temporarily in mid August of this year, but due to strikes, materials were either unavailable or extremely difficult to get. This delay in construction has created a problem for students since the new lounge will be in the center wing.

Between lectures students may relax in the old cafeteria which has taken the place formerly occupied by the book store, Mr. Perry explained. The only alternative to students seeking a study place to gather would be the study lounge at the Old Church or Newman House.

Changes are occurring in the old building also. The Student Association office and room 30 are combined to make a larger book store. The Press, MIZOU and Landmark office is upstairs in the same dining room.

Also elected were the following: President, William H. Nolte; Vice President, George Montag; Secretary, Samuel Vinocur; Treasurer, George Montag.

Jack G. Barnhill, Asst. Prof. of Economics, is the new Dean of the University of Missouri at St. Louis. He succeeds Robert R. O'Brien, who is leaving the University to accept a position at the University of Virginia. Barnhill has been on the faculty of the University of Missouri at St. Louis for the past five years and has served as Assistant Dean of the University during that time. He is a native of St. Louis and received his B.A. degree from the University of Missouri in 1936, his M.A. degree from the University of Missouri in 1937, and his Ph.D. degree from the University of Missouri in 1940.

Dean Eickhoff received his B.A. degree from the University of Louisville and his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Chicago. He has been on the faculty of the University of Missouri at St. Louis since 1947, where he has served as Professor of Economics and Acting Dean of the University.

ship in 1961. He also served for a time as chairman of the department of history at Columbia. He obtained his A.B. degree at Hampden-Sydney College in Virginia in 1941, and his A.M. degree from the University of Virginia in 1942. After serving with the U.S. Air Force in World War II, he resumed his graduate studies and received his Ph.D. degree from the University of Virginia in 1950, after he had been appointed to the teaching staff in Columbia. He had also served as an instructor in history at George Washington University in Washington, D.C., in the summer of 1948.

A recipient of numerous scholarships and a member of a number of professional societies, he has published a textbook in Jeffersonian Democracy and is working on a book on Jeffersonian Democracy as well as a biography of James M. Mason.

Along with his appointment, Chancellor Bogg, recently announced the appointment of three faculty administrators to dean's posts:

Assistant Dean Harold Eickhoff, was named Dean of Student Affairs. He came to the University of Missouri at St. Louis in 1961 and was named Acting Dean of the University in 1962. He has served as Assistant Dean of Student Affairs since that time.

Dean Whitener received his B.A. degree from the University of Missouri at Columbia and his Ed. D. from Washington University.

Among these projects will be a study of the economic impact of the Young Democrats on local communities, with emphasis on the role of young people in influencing local politics. Other projects will focus on the uses of political action by young people in promoting social change and improving the quality of life in their communities.

Since there are no important state or local political campaigns during the coming school year, the Young Democrats will shift their attention to social and civic projects on the St. Louis Campus and in the surrounding communities.

ELEVEN LETTERMEN RETURN
Basketball Team Wants 1st Place

Eleven returning lettermen, plus the possibility of many freshmen recruits, gives Coach Bob Meyers an excellent opportunity to improve on last year's co-championshipship basketball club. Co-captains Dave Wilson and John Sarantakis especially want the Greater St. Louis Small College Conference crown for themselves, rather than sharing it with St. Louis Business College as they did last year.

Coach Meyers has called a meeting for all basketball prospects October 14 at which time he hopes to outline plans for the coming season that will begin midway through November.

Some of the highlights of the 64-65 campaign were the double overtime defeat of Sanford-Brown at homecoming, and the second place trophy won at the Boy's Club Invitational Tournament. Besides Co-captains Wilson and Sarantakis, other returning squad members are Ron Clark, Steve Novak, Bob Brooks, George Sabol, Bob Novak, Jay Snider, Ed Mulke, Jack Gahon and Brian Haus.
