ABOUT US

Our Mission

The Mission of Children’s Advocacy Services of Greater St. Louis is to reduce the effects of trauma experienced by children and adolescents through: trauma informed assessment and counseling, child-sensitive forensic interviews and medical exams, consistent victim advocacy, utilization based research, quality undergraduate and graduate training, responsive community outreach, and relevant advocacy to influence public policy.

Our Vision

The Vision of Children’s Advocacy Services of Greater St. Louis is that communities will respond to families impacted by childhood trauma in a prompt, coordinated manner that ensures physical and psychological safety, promotes justice and supports recovery.

Our Values

Children’s Advocacy Services of Greater St. Louis is committed to Core Values which emphasize promotion of the Child First doctrine that places the best interest of the child above all else; professional and scientific integrity that ensures the high quality clinical and forensic services; and synergy that promotes interdisciplinary collaboration which empowers children and families. The Center’s instructional; research and service activities advance the region’s awareness, knowledge, understanding and applications of Best Practices in the field of Child Maltreatment and Child Trauma.

Our History

Children’s Advocacy Services of Greater St. Louis is a non-profit agency which serves the St. Louis community as the nationally accredited Child Advocacy Center for the metropolitan area. Established in 1995 as the Children’s Advocacy Center of St. Louis for the purpose of conducting forensic interviews in St. Louis City and County, the Center merged with the Kathy J. Weinman Child Advocacy Center on the campus of University of Missouri - St. Louis in 1997 to become Children’s Advocacy Services of Greater St. Louis (CASGSL). Following the merger, CASGSL began offering affordable trauma informed counseling to victims of childhood sexual abuse. In October 2005, the agency expanded its forensic interviewing and counseling operations and began providing services to child victims of physical abuse, severe neglect, traumatic bereavement, domestic violence, community violence and other forms of trauma such as natural disasters and accidents.
PROFESSIONAL SERVICES OVERVIEW

For the second year in a row, CASGSL has increased its overall capacity of individual client service units by over 25%. The graph below illustrates recent growth in forensic interviews and sessions of individual and family counseling. Group therapy sessions are not included in this graph.

Who do we serve?

Demographic data indicate that that the vast majority of children served by CASGSL have been exposed to multiple, chronic or sequential episodes of trauma.

African American children are overrepresented in the CASGSL client population with over two thirds of child clients falling in that category.

Although recent years have seen an increase in the number of male victims seeking services, the majority of the child victims seen at CASGSL are girls.

The average age of child clients has become younger during the last year with more children in the preschool age group seeking both forensic and clinical services.

Socio-economic indicators show that over 60% of the families seeking services at CASGSL fall well below the federal poverty line and have annual household incomes of less than $20,000. Income at this level means that most uninsured families fall at the lower end of CASGSL’s sliding fee scale which goes down to $5.00/hour.
FORENSIC SERVICES

During FY 2006-2007, CASGSL staff completed 322 forensic interviews to assist local law enforcement and child protection services investigations of child abuse and neglect. Approximately 90% of the forensic interviews conducted involved allegations of sexual abuse with the remaining 10% focusing on allegations of physical abuse or witnessing violent crimes. As in years past, the vast majority of alleged perpetrators are known to the child with large percentages falling in the categories of step parent or paramour.

A number of investigations from FY 07 continue to work their way through the legal system but preliminary data (with 14% of cases pending) indicate that approximately 33% of the cases we interview result in formal charges being filed. In FY 2007, resolved investigations assisted by CASGSL forensic interviews have already resulted in 399 charges being filed against adult and juvenile suspects with 48 cases still pending.

The CASGSL Victim Advocate program continues to thrive. In FY 2007, over 300 families received our services which assisted them in navigating the unfamiliar legal process involved in child abuse investigations.

COUNSELING SERVICES

During FY 2006-2007, over 200 children, adolescents and their caregivers received individual and/or family counseling services at CASGSL. A total of 2,449 client sessions were provided which represents a 28.8% increase in capacity from the previous year. CASGSL has responded to additional demand for services by increasing operational hours in the evenings and Saturdays, offering services at the West Pine location and hiring additional therapists. Despite these efforts, the number of children on the waiting list for individual counseling services hovers between 25-40.

Individual client’s needs are assessed by their CASGSL clinician and addressed through a variety of evidence based trauma informed treatment modalities including Trauma Focused Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (TF-CBT), Integrated Treatment for Complex Trauma (ITCT), Parent Child Interaction Therapy (PCIT) and Trauma Informed Play Therapy.

In addition to the families served through individual counseling sessions, over 100 children and 90 caregivers received group counseling services through CASGSL’s three group treatment programs (e.g. FLARES-Families Learning About REcovery Strategies, SPARCS-Structured Psychotherapy for Adolescents Responding to Chronic Stress, CSBP- Children with Sexual Behavior Problems) which address various trauma related issues.

I hope that the [Victim Advocate] program and the Center are available to children for a long time because unfortunately there are not enough of those who are out there brave enough to speak on behalf of those with no voices

Total expenses were $947,640.

Virtually 100% of CASGSL’s expenses go toward Direct Service costs. Salaries and benefits in the amount of $755,510 represent the bulk (79%) of CASGSL expenses. Operating expenses of 20% include Building Maintenance, Utility and Computing Expenses, Professional services of the contracted medical staff, Supplies for programming and general office supplies, as well as Staff Development and travel expenses. Less than 1% of the CASGSL budget was used for fundraising efforts during FY 07.

In 2007-2008, CASGSL will continue to build capacity, seek higher reimbursement rates for clinical services from insurance panels, actively seek donations from individuals and foundations and implement systematic billing and collection procedures to increase revenues. Anticipated additional expenses include covering the salary and benefits of the Manager of Forensic Services, Senior Accounting Clerk and additional Therapists to handle the caseload generated by capacity building efforts. Anticipated operational expenses include costs associated with carpet replacement at both buildings (approximately $80,000 to $100,000) and installing additional video equipment in therapy rooms (approximately $10,000). Anticipated staff development costs include travel and lodging costs associated with staff members participation in two Learning Collaboratives sponsored by the National Child Traumatic Stress Network (approximately $25,000).
TRAINING AND INSTRUCTION OVERVIEW

CASGSL offers a number of graduate and undergraduate training experiences for students wishing to learn about child maltreatment and trauma. Undergraduate opportunities include research assistantships and administrative/Intake assistance. In FY 2007, CASGSL funds supported one Graduate Research Assistantship and two Clinical Clerkship placements for advanced doctoral students in the Clinical Psychology program. These positions allowed these capable graduate students to supervise research operations, co-facilitate groups and learn a variety of evidence based trauma informed treatment modalities. In addition to paid positions, CASGSL staff supervised seven unpaid practicum experiences for undergraduate and graduate students including clinical and forensic internships, experiences for intake clinicians, group facilitators and research assistants.

In addition to formal training opportunities for students, CASGSL staff provided community based training for over 300 professionals through our Community Education programming that presents trauma related topics through CASGSL’s monthly Child Trauma Colloquium series and workplace seminars arranged upon request.

“I cannot adequately put into words how grateful I am to you for all of your help...thank you for changing our lives.”
