

A Use Case model describes the functionality of the system - what the system will do for the user in order to get some useful work done. It also helps to lay out the actors or users of the system and their role in running the system.