Nick Sebelski

Nick is the Training & Planning Team Lead at Plancorp, a premier RIA firm in St. Louis. He started at Plancorp in 2019 as a client-facing Senior Financial Planner, and over time has shifted his focus toward training his new & existing teammates. In his current role, Nick develops & maintains Plancorp's training curricula, and also supervises the firm's Planning Team, a centralized team of Financial Planners in the early stages of their planning careers. For his undergrad studies, Nick attended Truman State University, where he dual-majored in finance and psychology. The intersection of these areas made perfect sense to him, as he believes that a deep understanding of human behavior is critical to financial planning, investing, and training. Even post-grad, Nick is forever motivated by the desire to be a student, becoming certified as a CFP® Professional in August 2021, and continuing to self-study afterwards.
