Graduate Certificate in Public History and Cultural Heritage

The Graduate Certificate in Public History and Cultural Heritage at the University of Missouri-St. Louis is an 18-credit program that provides interdisciplinary training for students pursuing careers that engage communities with the past. The theoretical knowledge and practical experience gained through coursework and internships will prepare graduates for a wide variety of jobs in museums, historical societies, cultural resource agencies, historic preservation, community development, and tourism, particularly those located in the St. Louis region.

Admission Requirements

Applicants wishing to pursue the Graduate Certificate in History Education in conjunction with an MA degree should follow the normal application procedures for their respective Master’s level program. Applicants wishing to pursue the...
Graduate Certificate in Public History and Cultural Heritage alone normally must have a GPA of 3.2 or higher and should apply specifically for this certificate program and submit three letters of recommendation and a writing sample along with their application.

Program Requirements

All candidates for Graduate Certificate in Public History and Cultural Heritage must complete the following courses:

HIST 6001, Introduction to Public History and Cultural Heritage (3)
HIST 6124, Practicum in Public History (3)
