 Topic: Mixed Mediums and American Visual Culture
 Same as SOC 2192 001, HONORS 2030 002, and GS 2150 001
 This course will investigate how American visual culture has, across time, captured moments that have not only formed our collective historical memory, but defined, shaped, challenged, and contradicted our understanding of gender, feminist, and visual culture theories, as well as contemporary American Studies approaches to visual analysis. Students will practice reading a variety of images as cultural texts gaining the ability to identify and utilize visual media in their own research and writing. This course will visit several St. Louis cultural institutions to explore first-hand how various visual medias are used by public historians and artists on a daily basis. By the end of the semester, students will have a strong working knowledge of the history of American visual culture and an understanding of some of the major theoretical trends in visual culture - and feminist-based studies.

									Intro to Exercise and Fitness This is a shared course with MU.  Topic: Intro to Exercise and Fitness  This course provides students with practical information about exercise and physical fitness. After taking this class, students will be prepared to be physically active, understand the "Do's and Don'ts" of exercise, and know how to live a healthy way of life. As part of the course, students will assess their current level of activity/fitness, develop a plan for improvement, and put that plan into action. This course will not apply toward a Biology degree. Exams are proctored and require students to locate a qualified proctor and facility. Additional Fee - Arts and Sciences Supplemental Fee applies. 				Topic: Mixed Mediums and American Visual Culture Same as SOC 2192 002, HONORS 2030 001, and ART HS 2291 001 This course will investigate how American visual culture has, across time, captured moments that have not only formed our collective historical memory, but defined, shaped, challenged, and contradicted our understanding of gender, feminist, and visual culture theories, as well as contemporary American Studies approaches to visual analysis. Students will practice reading a variety of images as cultural texts gaining the ability to identify and utilize visual media in their own research and writing. This course will visit several St. Louis cultural institutions to explore first-hand how various visual medias are used by public historians and artists on a daily basis. By the end of the semester, students will have a strong working knowledge of the history of American visual culture and an understanding of some of the major theoretical trends in visual culture - and feminist-based studies. Gndr & American Visual CultureMixed Mediums and American Vis
Gender in American Visual Culture.

This course will investigate how American visual culture has, across time, captured moments that have not only formed our collective historical memory, but defined, shaped, challenged, and contradicted our understanding of gender, race, class, and sexuality. Examining visual media ranging from photographs and paintings to television and film, to graphic novels and performance art, students will be introduced to gender, feminist, and visual culture theories, as well as contemporary American Studies approaches to visual analysis. Students will practice reading a variety of images as cultural texts gaining the ability to identify and utilize visual media in their own research and writing. This course will visit several St. Louis cultural institutions to explore first-hand how various visual medias are used by public historians and artists on a daily basis. By the end of the semester, students will have a strong working knowledge of the history of American visual culture and an understanding of some of the major theoretical trends in visual culture- and feminist-based studies.
