Named Editor

Student publications on the UMSL campus seem to be in for a very bad year.

As late as Freshman Orientation the very existence of a newspaper was in doubt. The lack of a qualified editor had blocked any consideration of the future of the publications. After surviving for two years in spite of many difficulties, the newspaper seemed doomed to an untimely end.

Early in September, a qualified applicant was brought before the sub-committee on student publications. The applicant, Miss Barbara Duepner a junior at the University, was interviewed by the committee concerning her plans for newspaper. Later that week Miss Duepner was informed that the committee had approved her application, and that she could proceed with her plans.

The first staff meeting was held on October 16, and due to the help of Mr. Robert Spitzfaden and Mr. John Phillippe of the University staff the newspaper was able to appear one month later.

Many staff positions are still open, and applications are being accepted in the Publication Office, room 208, Administration Building.

At the present it seems unlikely that the yearbook will appear before September '67, if it appears at all. Students will be polled through the Senate newsletter about their willingness to purchase a yearbook. The Students must indicate that they are willing to purchase a yearbook before the university will contract with a printer.

Heavenly!

What are you doing on the night of Dec. 3? Want a date — with an Angel? All you have to do is buy a chance, for either 50¢ or $1, and you may be the lucky winner of an evening out with the Angel Flight member of your choice!

There will be two winners — the holder of a 50¢ ticket will win dinner and a movie; the holder of a $1 ticket will win a more expensive dinner, a movie, and a snack at Cyrano's afterwards. But don't despair if you happen to be going steady, pinned, engaged, or married. In these cases, if you are one of the two lucky winners, you may take the angel of your choice — your girlfriend, fiance, or wife.

So waste no time! The drawing will be held on Nov. 25. Buy your chances now from any Angel Flight member for an evening you'll never forget.

Kennedy Legacy Carries Obligation Says Sorenson

By Michael Hughes

"I'm convinced John Fitzgerald Kennedy left for us a legacy far lasting" than any of the monuments that have been named in his honor. That Kennedy legacy was the subject of a lecture delivered by Dr. Theodore Sorenson on campus recently. The lecture was the first in the University's Evening Concert-and-Lecture Series.

Sorenson as special counsel to the late John Kennedy had a unique place in the President's administration. In introducing the speaker, Chancellor James Bugg said, "Few men have had the opportunity to influence an age." The author of two books, Decision-making in the White House and Kennedy, Dr. Sorenson had the opportunity to survey the impact of the Kennedy legacy on American society.

The legacy which the late president left was an initiating, a beginning in five areas. Specifically these were in the fields of politics, the presidential office, economic policy, the American Ideal of equality and foreign policy. Dr. Sorenson related that it was not so much what he accomplished in these areas but his contribution in commencing positive action.

In the field of politics, Kennedy reintroduced the debates which were popular a century ago. More important, though, was the fact that politics were brought down to the level of the people and personal involvement was stressed. Religion as a political issue is now dead, Dr. Sorenson told the audience; this was a great relief to Mr. Kennedy who often worried that if he failed, no other Catholic could be elected, let alone nominated.

As president, John Kennedy was determined that he would be the master of the White House and therefore the executive branch of the government. Likewise he was determined that, through the presidency, the United States as a whole should accept its responsibility as leader of the commonwealth of free nations, according to Dr. Sorenson.

In economic policy, Sorenson said that Kennedy worked a quiet revolution. The New Economics became accepted and then taken for granted. Fiscal policy was recognized as a dynamic tool to shape the American economy. In this field as in others, Mr. Kennedy made it easier for those who followed him.

Kennedy expanded the concept of equality and American opportunity. Credit should be given Mr. Kennedy, not for starting the civil rights revolution, but for recognizing that it was taking place the former counsel said. Though he confided that he could not see absolute equality, John Kennedy felt that every American should have the opportunity to develop talent to the "utmost of capacity."

RIVERMAN NEW MASCOT AT UMSL

By Linda Lindsay

The mascot issue that caused such a storm of controversy last year was recently brought to a quiet close with the selection of "Riverman" As UMSL's mascot. According to the University's administration, the name was chosen primarily for its uniqueness and for its historical significance in this area.

"St. Louis is rich in the lore of the river," stated Dr. Harold Eichkoff, Dean of Student Affairs. "The glamour of stern wheelers and booming river

UMSL Birth Announcement

For the third time in four years the student newspaper at the University of Missouri of St. Louis will have a different name.

The Mizzou News, formerly the Tiger Cub, will now be called the UMSL Current, according to Editor-in-Chief Barbara Duepner.

The change resulted from pressure put on the newspaper by some administration members and students who wished to break the connection between this campus and the Columbia campus that they felt the use of the word "Mizzou" implied.

The name, UMSL Current was chosen for its association with the recently adopted mascot, "Riverman."

traffic is characteristic of this area. As St. Louis is building its character, we are capitalizing on an important theme and adding to the national image."

"Rivermen" was selected last month from suggested names submitted for consideration by the student body. An ad hoc committee including Coach Smith and the President of the Student Body was formed to discuss ways of determining the basis for the choice of the mascot. All names and suggestions were sent to the student Senate for final approval.

"Certain prerequisites had to be met before the final selection," Dr. Eichkoff continued. "It must be unique to the geographical area, yet have some in depth connection with St. Louis."

Many names were rejected on the basis that they did not meet these requirements or that they would have received negative connotations. These included the Knights, Geminites, and Minutemen.

Animal names would not be unique. The eagle and the bear, which hold the most meaning for St. Louis as they are on the State Seal, are already the mascots for Southeast Missouri State and Washington University, respectively. Various high schools have used any other (continued on page 2)

TRAFFIC REGULATIONS OUTLINED BY NELSON

By Ken Knarr

According to Mr. James J. Nelson, Chief of Security and Traffic, a good number of UMSL students are unfamiliar with the rules and regulations concerning driving on campus. As a result of this lack of knowledge many of them receive a fine that may amount to as much as $10.00.

There are over 2700 motor vehicles registered, and the student driver is expected to know the campus rules concerning driving. To help the student the Cashier's office is opened at 7 a.m. every weekday to answer student's questions. Handbooks are provided by that office, but many students fail to read them, and this has led to students receiving tickets when they were unaware of breaking a rule.

The main student problem concerns parking. Chief Nelson reminds the students that they must park only in designated sections, and not in faculty or visitor areas. The no parking signs should be obeyed and the "turn-around areas" should be kept clear. All cars should be parked "headed in".

Another common student mistake is that of unloading and loading on the street in front of the Administration Building. The circle is for this purpose and the street should be left clear for traffic only.

Chief Nelson continued by saying that if a student who has a regular parking permit uses another car, he may park free if he registers the car in the Cashier's Office. If the student is a member of a car pool and forgets to bring the permit he may park for fifty cents, as can the driver who has no permit at all.

If a student receives a ticket he must report to the Cashier's Office within three days to pay the fine or appeal. In case of an appeal, the Student Court decides if the appeal should be honored.

EDITORIAL POLICY

In recognition of its position as a student-supported, administration-sanctioned publication, the policy of the UMSL Current will be to accurately and informatively report news which has any bearing on the university in a non-partisan manner. All comment will be reserved for the editorial page.

The primary function of any newspaper is communication, and the newspaper's position in the new, structured student government requires it to act as intermediary. A large portion of the newspaper will necessarily be devoted to the dispersal of campus news in fulfillment of this role. We will however print any national or international news of significance to our community.

Students, faculty and administrators are invited to submit editorial comment. The newspaper will function most effectively as an open publication, and your co-operation is necessary.

In Memoriam

John Fitzgerald Kennedy

Less than a week from today the country will solemnly observe the third anniversary of the death of the thirty-fifth president of the United States, John Fitzgerald Kennedy. On November 22 the world will reflect, with us, upon the life and administration of the late President and of the shock of his brutal death by an assassin's bullet in Dallas.

Since that sad day in 1963, when the world was stunned into a state of insensibility, a wealth of mythology has emerged from this noble American's life. Many words have been written and will continue to be written by those close to President Kennedy; it is not our purpose to add to the legend. It is our purpose, however, to call attention to this observance, for it was the academic community which meant most to John Kennedy. Like us he had a faith in the ability of the young of this nation to accept a challenge, a challenge from which he never shrank.

The symbolic torch which he accepted in our place at his inaugural appears to have been lost sight of in the last few years. He challenged us to carry on where he left off, not to permit the torch to be snuffed in apathy but to hold it proudly in this country which held the president's deepest love. Are we too weak for the challenge, is the torch too heavy for our grasp — or will we accept the challenge at this late day and push forward the ideals which John Kennedy left for our legacy, and thus the legacy for all of America?

In an undelivered speech, prepared for Dallas, President John Kennedy asked that we exercise "strength with wisdom and restraint — and that we may achieve in our time and for all time the ancient vision of peace on earth, good will toward men. That must be our goal — and the righteousness of our cause must always underlie our strength. For as was written long ago: 'Except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain.'" This is our challenge. As members of the academic community we cannot lose sight of it, for in us is found the hope of a vital tomorrow, a vital and peaceful tomorrow.

We do not think John Kennedy died in vain, but perhaps the total impact of the man will not be felt as strongly as it could have been if he had been allowed to live. The Philosopher, Cardanus, counseled that a person's fame could be continued through his children; as Kennedy's Children, we must not, we cannot let the flame of John Kennedy flicker.

Letter from SA President

Dear Students:

I have just returned from attending the Associated Student Governments of America National Conference at Norman, Oklahoma. I would like to give you a report of what I learned and the proposals I hope our student government will adopt as a result of my trip.

The first thing that really impressed me at the conference was the taping of all sessions and seminars. These tapes are available to any member school which requests them. At UMSL we could do the same for our Senate and Council meetings. Thus, every student could get the exact proceedings of these meetings and be totally informed as to what exactly happened and why.

Secondly, at the seminar on academic freedom I learned of North Dakota University's printing of a publication which allowed students to express their opinion on any topic. Such a publication could be printed inexpensively here and encourage students to take stands and defend them. This publication could be stenciled, with all articles printed in their entirety. All student government would spend would be the costs of paper and stencils.

Likewise, it was suggested that a committee composed of non-student government members be formed as an advisory committee to the student senate. Possibly, this committee could be composed of 10 members representing most recognizable cafeteria groups. Thus, we could get grassroots opinion on all student problems and in fact have all students represented in the Senate.

I feel the Conference was excellent in that it gave schools throughout the nation an opportunity to get many meaningful ideas for their student governments and also opinions of their programs. I hope UMSL will take full advantage of the services offered by ASGA and also correspond with the member schools.

UMSL is a member of Region III which comprises Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, and Missouri. Through contact with these states and their member schools we can get all types of information pertinent to our own campus.

Within these states there will be our staff school which will handle much of the correspondence within the state. UMSL has been offered this position and will accept and thus be the hub of all student government correspondence in Missouri.

I will be happy to answer any questions about ASGA any day from 10:40 to 11:40 in room 210 of the Administration Building.

CHEERLEADERS: FORGOTTEN?

According to Coach "Chuck" Smith, due to an "honest mistake" the UMSL cheerleaders have been completely left out of the athletic department budget for the 1966-67 basketball season.

The budget, which Smith says was made before he arrived here to take over the athletic department, makes no provisions of any kind for the expenses of the cheerleaders. They must purchase their own uniforms and equipment at a cost of what one cheerleader estimated to be $75. In addition to this expense, the coeds on the cheering squad are expected to pay for and provide their own transportation to all games, some of which are as far as Decatur, Illinois and Rolla, Missouri.

According to one of the cheerleaders, Smith informed the coeds that they were expected to attend all games, even the Memphis, Tennessee game. This cheerleader further stated that Smith told them that the only excuse he considered valid for missing a game was a "death in the family."

As the athletic budget now stands, funds are allotted to provide a chartered bus for the coach and the team to travel to all games. Smith says he is opposed to having cheerleaders travel to the games on this same bus because the team should "be all business" from the minute they leave campus for a game until they return from it.

Presently the athletic department has no plans for helping the cheerleaders find funds for their expenses, but at the suggestion of a staff member of this newspaper, the Student Senate is now investigating the possibility of finding funds for the cheerleaders from within its budget.

The "Spirits of St. Louis" was one of the names that was also considered. "There are various reactions that would be associated with this name," Dr. Eichkoff stated. We could be called the "sheets" or "ghosts", or to go the other way, the "drunks".

"It is highly embarrassing for people to ask what the mascot is, and then say 'I don't know,'" Dr. Eichkoff said. "Because of the concern for getting things going, we were against another student-wide contest."

"So where do you go for a name that makes much sense in the St. Louis area?" Dean Eichkoff continued. "The river is linked with the historical past of St. Louis. After considering what "Rivermen" might connote, we felt that it came closest to fulfilling the prerequisites. It makes a lot of sense.

RIVERMEN PLAY IN CONCORDIA TOURNAMENT

NOVEMBER 23 - 25

The Faulkner-Cowley File; Correspondence of Literary Greats

By RUZICKA

The Faulkner-Cowley File; Letters and Memories, 1942-1962 by Malcolm Cowley. New York: The Viking Press. $5.

"American literary scholarship has always been affected by changing fashions in subject matter." (pg. 94) Inherent in that statement of Cowley's, towards the middle of The Faulkner-Cowley File, the correspondence between this literary giant and that literary scholar finds purpose.

This was the dilemma Cowley resolved to undertake: to elevate the cyclical myth of Yoknapatawpha County to its just position in the eyes of critics. In 1944 Faulkner was a failure. His books were out of print, and not to be found even in secondhand book stores. Faulkner, working for Warner Brothers in Hollywood, did not even own his own copy of Sound and the Fury. With a letter suggesting the creation of a Portable Faulkner, Cowley began a conspiracy which was to ultimately bring the Southern writer to the well-deserved claim at home that he, at that time, enjoyed only in Europe.

But this is only a third of the total value of the work; only on, perhaps the lowest, of three levels. It exists very well as merely a record of the formation of The Portable Faulkner, of its reception and has already had sufficient review as such. But it contains, for anyone with a special interest in Faulkner, two higher levels. The record of his letters to Cowley is also an insight into the man himself: Faulkner, the human heart behind the typewriter (though he would detest being thought of as such); his humanity rather than his genius.

Just a half-step above this, The Faulkner-Cowley File becomes a record of Faulkner's feelings about his personal life and also, quite separately and more importantly, his feelings about his career, works and themes, feelings not previously attainable from either his fiction or the most praising critics. For those that seek them, there are not only justifications for his inconsistencies, but also instances of his themes in his own life, not unlike Hemingway in their proximity; he had often experienced many of the scenes in his novels.

Somewhere in between these two levels, curiously combining both, at certain rare times in the letters, Faulkner goes inside himself, almost writing to himself in personal contemplation. This is what makes the book a prize, for it is here that the unconscious power that Faulkner must have known he had, and which was the greatest asset to his novels prosaically (in that he would try to express in one sentence everything there was to say about a feeling). It is here that this power is directed at its reader, whoever he might be, instead of at the novel in order to enforce it. This power then takes the reader inside Faulkner, to find a human heart feeling the same eternal verities about which he was always writing. The letter of a Sunday in December, 1946, is the best illustration although it reoccurs in others.

The chief insight into Faulkner's mind, perhaps the most paradoxical, is that derived from his repeated comment in the letters on the inter-relationship between the anguish of travail — the effort, in short — he put forth, and the result created thereof. For most writers the ecstasy of the accomplishment compensates for the agony of the accomplishing; the end result justifies the effort. But in Faulkner agony and ecstasy become one in a way that is almost affilial.

Lastly, on a lesser but more general level, the book is also an insight into the Southern mind, not Faulkner's (necessarily); but with his perceptive mind as a guide, it is a study of the Southern way of thought, action, reason and approach.

If, in summation and in essence, the book is too much Cowley, it is so of necessity with a view to his obvious admiration for the writer's genius. Yet the interest of the human side of the god-like, revered Faulkner is more than sustaining. It has the ability, even from the first letter, to bring to life again a breathing, humble, poor, compassionate, determined human being, in whose mind existed a myth containing the entire human situation. This he tried to set down in print, yet wanted to be forgotten himself, and only wished to be remembered as "He wrote the books and he died."

N.R.T. HEADS THEATER OFFERINGS IN ST. LOUIS

By Sam Hack

St. Louis theatergoers have plenty to keep them busy this month. A great variety of theatrical fare, including classical and contemporary, comic and dramatic plays, is available.

The most important event is the annual visit of the National Repertory Theatre to the American from November 14 through December 3. This year they are presenting Noel Coward's Tonight at 8:30 (three selections from his collection of nine one-act plays published under the same title), Moliere's delightful farce, The Imaginary Invalid, and, of greatest interest, Eugene O'Neill's A Touch of the Poet on its first national tour. Featured with the company is British stage and film actor, Denholm Elliott.

The new Repertory Theatre of Loretto-Hilton Center for the Performing Arts at Webster College is opening a new production of Shakespeare's Twelfth Night on November 16. It will run through November 23 and then join another Shakespearean comedy, A Midsummer Night's Dream, and the satirical revue, Oh What a Lovely War, in continuous repertory. This is a very talented professional company (in a beautiful new theatre) with which you should become acquainted if you are not already.

The Gateway Theatre of Gaslight Square is presenting Moliere's The Doctor in Spite of Himself through November 26. Ronald Frazier (the company's newest star) and Mary Jo Enoch are playing the leading roles.

UMSL Students Report For CBS

Several UMSL students served as CBS News Vote Profile Analysis reporters for last week's general elections. Among these students were Dale Igou, David A. Zerrer, David Elkins, and Mike Killenberg. By reporting election results from certain key statistical St. Louis County precincts, they enabled CBS to report accurate predictions in the major political contests in this area.

CBS was able to estimate the true outcomes of Missouri Congressional elections with in an average of deviation of less than one percentage point. This was done by accurate selections of representative models in the St. Louis area.

UMSL Representatives Attend Student Government Conference

By Holly Ross

The third annual conference of the Associated Student Governments of America (ASG) was held Nov. 3-5 at the Oklahoma Center for Continuing Education on the University of Oklahoma campus, in Norman, Oklahoma.

UMSL, one of the 190 member schools, sent a delegation of four to represent the school. Respectively representing each of the classes were: David Depker, SA president; Holly Ross, Junior Senator; Richard Galosy, SA treasurer and Beverly Kerr, secretary of the Freshman class.

In keeping with the purpose of ASG, which is to open means of communication and cooperation among student governments of American institutions of higher learning, approximately 13 seminars were held. The conferences are designed as workshops where some of the member schools lead seminar discussions on the structure and function of projects successfully conducted on their campuses.

Topics ranged from "Course Evaluation" by Vanderbilt University to "The Value of Intramural Activities and Large Living Groups" by the University of Kansas; from "Academic Freedom" by Bradley University to "How to Publish a Student Directory" by the University of Oklahoma.

Welcoming addresses were made at the first general business session by David Banmillar, ASG president from Villanova University, Bill Whitehurst, Senate president from Oklahoma University and Dr. Kyle McCarter, vice-president of O.U.

Nominations of candidates for national offices were made during the Friday morning session after a speech made by Dean Helen E. Kean, University of Detroit, on "A College Administrator's View of Students." The election was held that evening after a banquet and keynote address by Al Capp, humorist and creator of "Li'l Abner".

UMSL is located in Region III, along with other schools in Missouri, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin and Illinois. Tom Baxter of Purdue University, Indiana, was elected regional chairman. UMSL was designated State Coordinator for member schools in Missouri.

Approximately 140 of the ASG member schools were in attendance, along with 40 observer schools. Accommodations were sought in local hotels after the Sooner House capacity was overflowing. Attendance at seminars and business sessions was not hindered by the fact that delegates were scattered all over Norman.

The conference ended Saturday morning after the final business session. Newly elected ASG President Bob White, Oklahoma University, remarked that next year's conference should be even more productive than this one. The meeting was adjourned at noon so that delegates could depart for the airport and home, or attend the O.U. — Kansas State football game that afternoon.

APO Holds Rush Smoker

The University of Missouri at St. Louis chapter of Alpha Phi Omega will have a formal rush beginning November 15. For three days there will be a booth in the main lobby of the Administration building. The members of A.P.O. hope that this booth will give interested students the opportunity to familiarize themselves with the fraternity.

The rush program will also entail an open smoker to be held Thursday, November 17. This event will be open to any student wishing to pledge A.P.O.

Alpha Phi Omega is a national service fraternity with chapters on over three hundred college and university campuses in the U.S. Although A.P.O. is relatively new at UMSL, its members feel the groundwork has been laid for a strong and active chapter. The members have already begun several projects of service to the University such as the placing of a duck house on the pond.

In order to continue their programs on this campus, the members of Alpha Phi Omega feel that more members are needed in their organization. For this reason the fraternity is urging "all male students who are interested in serving their school and community, and becoming a part in the spirit of fellowship" to drop in at their booth, meet the members, and attend the smoker.

Sorenson indicated that he wished to continue to work in public affairs. If circumstances were right, he said, he would not refuse to run for an elective office.

Rivermen Welcomed

The UMSL Rivermen held an intersquad game last Friday night at the Normandy Junior High School gym.

Coach "Chuck" Smith said the game was held to show the coaching staff the team's ability to play in competition. The team attempted to show the public the type of season they can expect from this year's Rivermen.

Before the game Coach Smith introduced the players and the cheerleaders to the public and the press. The game was the scene of the unveiling of the UMSL mascot. The mascot will attend all the athletic events this year.

After the game the Student Union Board sponsored a dance at which the Riverman presided.

DXK Pledges 29 New Members

Delta Xi Kappa has initiated its fall activities, highlighted by the Founder's Week Banquet and induction of a record pledge class of 29.

At the Founders Banquet, attended by school officials and their wives and all active members of the fraternity, President Jerry Winter outlined four goals of Delta Xi Kappa. They are supporting the school's activities, initiation of the fraternity's own activities for school spirit, service to the school — i.e. orientation, and setting a good example for those outside the fraternity.

New fraternity officers inducted were Jerry Winter, president, John Petersen, vice-president, Mike Bennett, secretary, John Latta, treasurer, Jim Quillman, pledgemaster, and Stan Herman, sergeant-at-arms.

The new pledge class was inducted on Thursday, Oct. 27. Pledges were sworn to an oath of secrecy and given instructions as to what was expected of them. They are to conduct themselves in a collegiate manner and to perform various other tasks. Pledge class co-chairmen are Paul Murphey and Bill Grayson.

The next event is Delta Xi Kappa's rummage sale, to be held November 22 and 23 at 7011 South Broadway.

KENNEDY LEGACY

A legacy in foreign policy was also left for us by President Kennedy. This, Dr. Sorenson said, was what he knew best and what also worried him the most. He paved the way for aid to underdeveloped nations, but with the prerequisite that they had to want to help themselves. He had a great faith in the Latin American Alliance for Progress. In ending economic isolationism, he also had a dream of an Atlantic partnership.

There was a "large element of hope" which President Kennedy left for the American people. This hope is the "Key to the entire Kennedy legacy," said Dr. Sorenson. Among the hopes which Kennedy held was the "Hope for a world free of the threats of nuclear war." It is our responsibility to cherish this hope and to build upon it for this is our obligation to the legacy of Kennedy.

As during the late president's administration, Dr. Sorenson told the audience, "There is much still to be done, too little time and too few tools." Again in speaking of the obligation to the Kennedy legacy, Sorenson said, "John Kennedy is no longer able to call forth our spirits, but his life and legacy are calling, and I hope we answer when we are called."

Theodore Sorenson is currently visiting lecturer at the Woodrow Wilson School of

Political Inquiry Club Established

The Politics Club, started over the summer, hopes to provide students with a vehicle for acquiring an insight into politics and with the means of expressing political convictions in a non-partisan environment. The Politics Club is intended to complement the party-affiliated clubs by conducting a more thorough and free-wheeling inquiry into political process and philosophy. The Club is endorsed by the political science department, but its organization, goals and activities are in the hands of the students.

Informal meetings last spring and during the summer resulted in a constitution and a selection by the members of temporary officers — President Dale Igou, Vice President Tom Dyer, and Secretary Judy Webb. Dr. Robert Sullivan moderates the group.

Currently the Politics Club has been engaged by the Open Space Council to secure passage of the parks bond in Ferguson township. Also, a delegation is being formed for the Midwest Model United Nations. The Club will also present the movie Animal Farm which will be shown in December.

Any student interested in politics or political thought, regardless of his personal philosophy, is invited to formulate suggestions and present them at the next meeting.

New Placement Office Assists In Finding Jobs

by Christine Winter

Whether you are a freshman or a senior in the day or evening division, and if you are in search of outside employment, a new service has been added to the administrative department to help you. The Director of Placement, Miss Veronica Murphy, explained that the Placement Office opened on September 1, 1966, for the purpose of centralizing job placement on campus, and providing a contact for employers with students seeking employment.

Miss Murphy's office, located in room 117 of the country club building, handles full-time and part-time employment, and has taken over the job of teacher placement from the Education Department. The office is also working on lining up summer jobs.

The only area that the Placement Office does not now cover is that of on-campus employment, which still remains under control of the Admissions Office. Mr. Emory Jackson is Assistant Director of Admission and Financial Aids.

In order to acquaint employers with her office, Miss Murphy sent over 900 letters of introduction to local employers and suburban and public school superintendents.

One response to these letters, aimed primarily at college seniors, is a request from the firm or school for an appointment to send college recruiters to conduct personal and/or group interviews with interested

The Placement Office makes up a calendar of these appointments, ranging from November 14 to April 15, and distributes them to the seniors who have applied for full-time employment. The seniors can then come to Miss Murphy's office and sign up for an interview. These interviews are valuable, Miss Murphy points out, because the business firms and schools send their best representatives to attract the students.

They are capable of answering questions, providing informative literature, and even making direct job offers. They provide an excellent educational experience with business contacts for the student.

One item on the calendar that will be interesting to all students, especially those seeking summer employment, is the interview scheduled for November 22 by Mr. Dean D. Larrick of the U. S. Civil Service Commission. He will give out information on hundreds of jobs available in civil service, and explain the new policy of part-time summer employment in Benton Hall from 8:30-4:30.

Although much of the office's work is centered around full-time employment for the graduating class, it also handles a number of part-time jobs. Employers, informed of the office's existence through introductory letters, or just presuming that it exists, phone in descriptions of jobs, which are coded and hung on the bulletin board in the country club building.

Allen Cites Factors In "2-S" Deferments

Mr. Glen Allen, assistant director of admissions at the University of Missouri at St. Louis, told the Mizzou News that the greatest factor in the draft deferment procedure is the attitude of the local draft board.

"Every board is an individual," Mr. Allen stated early in November. "There are about 21 different boards in St. Louis and St. Louis County, and there are about 21 different conditions for deferment."

Mr. Allen also stressed the importance of "normal progress" which the Selective Service Administration considers to be 30 hours a year. "The draft boards are getting very strict in terms of progress. You must accumulate 30 hours a year," he noted.

Other considerations are class rank and performance on the College Qualification Test, although emphasis on them varies from board to board.

As assistant director of admissions, Mr. Allen has served as the middle man between student and draft board since the fall of 1965. Every male student seeking deferment must request that Mr. Allen notify his draft board of his academic status. The admissions office will then inform the board of the student's class — freshman, sophomore, etc. — and indicate whether he is a full- or part-time student. This deferment is good for one year. At the end of that time the procedure must be repeated. Each student must also request that his class rank be submitted to the board at the close of the academic year.

It is important that students notify Mr. Allen when they want information sent to their draft boards because "The Office of Records will not release any information other than hours enrolled unless requested by students."

Quality Stressed

EVENING DIVISION EXPANDS PROGRAM

By Roger Lee Albritten

Dean Joy Whitener is devoted to quality in the Evening Division: quality of faculty, quality of curriculum, quality of the student experience. He often speaks as if the Day Division were his standard of excellence, but he is quick to explain the advantages that the Evening Division enjoys.

About 40 percent of the evening faculty are drawn from the Day Division, but the remainder are enlisted from a wide variety of situations. By keeping in contact with such organizations as the American Society for Training and Development (an association of education and training directors of business and industry) the Dean and his staff are able to have an artist teaching art, a banker teaching economics, a politician teaching political science and a scientist from Saint Louis industry teaching natural science. Dean Whitener feels that such instructors, who are available only to the Evening Division, bring a valuable blend of theoretical and practical knowledge to the student.

Dr. Whitener came to UMSL as Dean of the Evening Division in August of 1965, after progressing from elementary teacher to Superintendent of Schools in several Missouri and Illinois communities. His wife teaches first grade and their daughter and two sons are all doing undergraduate work.

Speaking carefully and pausing often in search of the best word or phrase to express a thought, the Dean describes the evening student body: "It's a heterogeneous population. We draw people from all walks of life, from all age groups. They're an interesting group to work with." While many evening students take only a few courses to improve their job competence, to prepare for an engineering or journalism school or to become certified teachers, the majority are pursuing degrees that can be obtained within the Evening Division. "Last year we surveyed about 800 evening students who had attained sophomore standing at the University. We found that 75 percent of them were degree-oriented. This, incidentally, is a trend all over the country."

Dean Whitener is very much aware of the need for communication between his office and the evening students. "We have a rapidly expanding program. To the extent that we are able to determine what the students want and need, we are trying to provide the courses and services that students need to fulfill their educational objectives." By studying surveys and enrollment trends, the Dean and his staff try to improve the program offered by the Evening Division.

Scheduling of the limited number of classrooms is an ever-present problem. The number of sections taught in the evening has more than doubled in the last two years. An evening faculty of 102 now teach 2180 undergraduates plus about 400 students earning graduate credit for degrees offered by the Columbia campus. "There is no doubt that next year we will be scheduled at virtually 100 percent capacity for every period in the evening. It may be necessary for us to rent some classrooms elsewhere next year."

If you have been annoyed by occasional conflicts due to odd class lengths, there is a good reason for it. "We operate on a two-period schedule — two classes per week. This enables us to schedule more efficiently, with greater flexibility. This year, for the first time, a student is able to get 15 hours in the evening program, and we have a good many full-time students."

Of course no one is going to take 15 hours in the evening unless he has first clarified his own educational objectives, but a variety of counselors and advisers is available to help the evening student toward this end. The academic departments furnish faculty members to advise students who have chosen a major subject. These advisers may be consulted during day or evening office hours, or appointments may be made through the department concerned. The Dean has made himself and Mr. Bowling, the Assistant Dean of the Evening Division, available with two professional counselors, one of whom will be in the Dean's office, Room 242, each evening from 5:00 to 8:30. "We encourage students to come in and talk to us about their interests, about their needs. We certainly hope that more evening students will take advantage of the opportunities for advisement in planning their programs so that they will take courses that will enable them to meet their objectives."

Library Reaches Capacity; New Library Faces Delay

In June of 1964 librarian Susan Freegard left her job at Mizzou, Columbia, for the library of its two-year-old sister campus, UMSL. The library in the old Bellerive Country Club ballroom then boasted some 5,000 volumes and 150 periodical titles, with backlogs of two to three years.

Two years later, there are more than six times as many books — 31,000 volumes in all. The number of periodical titles has jumped to 700; of these, most have a substantial backlog and three or four are complete. The present library is filled to overflowing; later this year it will be expanded into the old chemistry lab. Even when this additional space is filled expansion will not stop. Books will be bought and stored until the budget limits purchases; then, if all goes well, the new library will be ready.

This rapid expansion is the result of liberal spending and donations. Fully 75 per cent, as compared with the usual 35 per cent, of the library budget is used to purchase new books and magazines. Other additions are the result of donations by individuals and organizations. Among the donations is the recent gift of the Weldon Spring Library by the Uranium Division of the Mallinckrodt Chemical work — 135 scientific journal titles, principally in the field of chemistry, with good backlogs, about 3,000 books and some valuable scientific reference sets.

As almost all books are ordered by faculty members for use in their departments, the range of subjects added depends on the courses offered.

Although three professional librarians are employed, and another will join the staff in January, all are occupied with office duties. They are available to students who seek them out, however. In the library itself the work is handled by four clerks — three full-time and one part-time — and 20 student assistants who work between 10 and 15 hours weekly.

As the library has expanded student use has also increased. Because more books are available, more research assignments are being given. The increase in enrollment has also helped cause the rise in circulations. Students check out between 80 and 100 books each weekday.

In spite of the growth of the library in the past two years, it is still inadequate both in terms of material and of space. The amount of time necessary to build up a university-level library, adequate for basic graduate work, has been estimated loosely at an additional four years. The problem of space for books and for students will only be solved when the new library is finished.

Construction has been delayed because of the necessity of sending the modified plans back to the Federal agency concerned for reapproval. The Federal government is supplying one-third of the building funds. After final approval it will take 18 months to complete the building; then the books must be removed from the present library and shelved properly in the new one. Some modifications in the system of checking out books may prove necessary; additional help will certainly be required. But the students will have the use of the new library "even before we're ready," reports Miss Freegard.

The new library will have space for 1,000 readers and 240,000 volumes. Extra book space may be converted into additional reader space. And when the move is complete and the ballroom is empty — who knows? Maybe people will dance there again.

Campus Construction In New Phase

New University Library

Math and Modern Languages
Building

UMSL will add another landmark to its campus upon completion of the five-story Mathematics and Modern Languages Building early in 1968. Construction began during the first week of November on this second permanent classroom structure which will be located on the northeast corner of the present parking area behind the swimming pool.

Work on another building, the library, will begin soon after the Federal Government approves a $750,000 grant which will, along with a $2,250,000 state grant, finance the structure. This building, to be completed late in 1968, will be immediately behind the present swimming pool and its construction will force total shut down of the parking area there. Parking will be moved to the three areas along the east edge of the campus.

The two buildings, with a total project cost of $4,050,000, will be part of a rectangular grouping of buildings to consist mainly of classroom structures.

In addition, the library will be in the grouping of student center, administration, and auditorium buildings to be placed around the swimming pool.

Benton Hall architects, Hellmuth, Obata, and Kassabaum, Inc., are the designers of the Math and Languages Building. Materials to be used in the new building are similar to those of Benton Hall. The exterior will be brick with cut stone at the window sills and columns; the interior will be of concrete block walls and resilient tile floors. The architecture is somewhat similar, also, with long narrow columns of stone bordering the vertical arrangement of narrow windows.

A total seating capacity of 1,730 students, a lecture hall for 300, two language labs, a statistic lab, and eighty-two faculty offices are in the plans for the modern structure. Language and statistic laboratories will be located on the first floor along with the lecture hall. Also on the first floor will be student study, storage, and mechanical areas. The second, third and fourth floors, with identical floor plans, will contain seminar rooms in addition to classrooms ranging from 35 to 100 seats. Faculty offices will occupy the fifth floor. Two brick-shaped projections on the roof will house mechanical equipment, the elevator machine room and cooling tower.

Library Will Have Room For 240,800 Volumes

Architects for the square-shaped library building are Murphy & Mackey and their plans include two floors beneath ground level and three above ground. A total of 99,600 square feet will contain seating for 1,033 persons and room for 240,800 volumes.

The two lower levels will contain receiving, storage, mechanical and staff lounge areas. Students entering the first level above ground will encounter circulation and reference areas before reaching volume stacks and study areas. Also on this third level will be offices for the librarian, assistant librarian and technical processes.

Volume stacks will take up most of the floor space of the fourth and fifth level. In addition, area will be provided on the fifth floor for faculty studies.

Future expansion of the library calls for a five story upward extension increasing the total area to 164,500 sq. ft.

Temporary Structures To Meet Needs Of Students

Another building will be added to the campus later this month when the temporary student center is completed behind the Country Club Building. The center will serve as an extension of the cafeteria area now occupying the lower level of the Country Club and will contain Servomation machines and seating for 140 to 150 students.

Until the permanent student center is erected, the temporary structure, plus the lounges and cafeteria in the Country Club building will serve as student relaxation, study and eating areas. Limited activities, such as small dances and meetings, can be held in the new area.

Plans are now being made to erect still another temporary structure for study area. The metal building, similar to the temporary student center, will be placed near the lake.

Student-Faculty Football Game For Scholarships

The first annual UMSL Student-Faculty Football game, to be held this Friday, is generating a great deal of enthusiasm among students and faculty.

The game will benefit a newly established Athletic Scholarship Fund. Admission will be fifty cents.

Emotions are rising as preparations are getting underway to present the finest in college football. The student team will be cheered on by their lovely Pom-Pom girls. However, they will have a lot of competition from the fairer Faculty members.

The battle begins at 3:30 p.m. on the intramural field. Mr. Jack "Bruiser" Barnhill, Mr. Emery "Terror" Turner, Dean Harold "Crazy-legs" Eickhoff, Dr. "Smashin'" Sam Vinocur and Dr. Willy "Wildcat" Saigh are just a few members of the ferocious Faculty squad. Meeting them flag to flag will be "Tiny" Tom Beisinger, "Angel" Andre Garamella, "Raunchy" Rick Gallosy and "Darling" Dan Fotch of the stammering student string.

Normandy Osteopathic Hospital will have on hand three specialists and their speediest ambulance in case of injuries.

The Student Union Board is sponsoring this exciting event. Post-game refreshments will be offered in the cafeteria.

UMSL Basketball Team; Smith Ready For Season

For UMSL to participate in organized basketball the University needed a coach and some twenty-odd players. For UMSL to win at organized basketball is something else again. Primarily, a winning university must have a dedicated and experienced coach. The second requirement, in UMSL's case, is to come up with a team willing to play independently against opponents possessing the important advantages of experience and an access to a home gymnasium.

A Most Adequate Addition

With the addition of Mr. Chuck Smith to the Athletic Department, The UMSL cagers will be guided through the '66-'67 season by a dedicated and experienced coach. A look at Mr. Smith's coaching experience illustrates why the UMSL basketball team will be in good hands. Coach Smith has supervised a total of seven years of high school basketball, placing 70 per cent of his games in the win column. From high school ball Coach Smith moved on to the pilot position at Washington U., winning 84 games, losing 59, and posting two conference championships in a six year period. During the '65-'66 campaign, Mr. Smith was head coach at Central Missouri State, leading his team to the N.C.A.A. finals.

The Essential Combination

A capable coach with a winning percentage is not the only ingredient needed to produce a winning team. For a coach to have a winning season he must have capable players with the will to win. A basketball team that will play as an independent ball club against well-established four year teams must have a desire to win. A basketball team that will practice five and six nights a week in the Normandy High School gym, preparing to prove that no matter what the obstacles, a team can win, must have class and the desire to be on top. Such a team has the University of Missouri at St. Louis.

Transition Is Important

Just because a team has the spirit and will to win, one should not conclude that this team will end the season undefeated. In an interview with Mr. Smith, the coach pointed out that "it is too early to remark on the team's standing in regard to overall experience and potential." Coach Smith stated that the adjustment of the players from their previous team to their working here for the first time is an important transition to make. Coach Smith pointed out that the team is working hard to allow for any edge the opposing teams may have in the way of team experience. Coach Smith showed confidence in the team's efforts and is looking toward a favorable outcome for UMSL in the Concordia Tournament, November 23-25.

Whatever the results of the tournament or the season, the basketball squad will be showing the college circuit that when a team has the desire to play and win, the obstacles the team encounters do not seem so impossible to overcome.

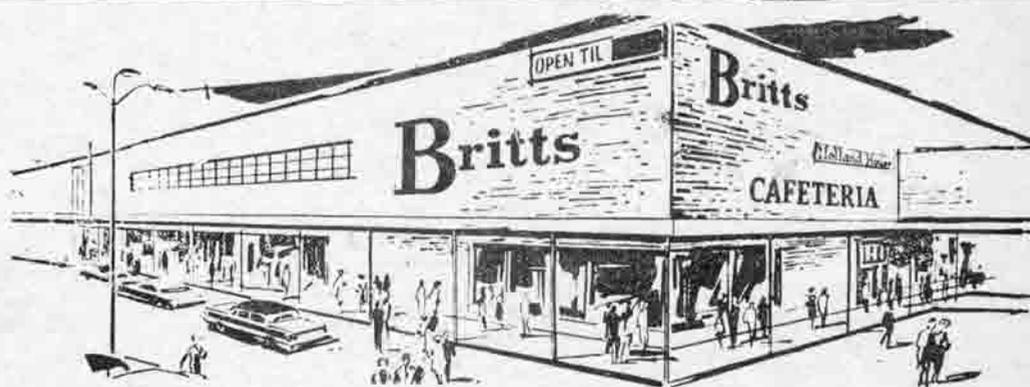

The '66-'67 squad includes two seniors: Dave Willson and Jay Warren; five juniors: Ron Clark, Bob Lucas, Steve Novack, Terry Reiter, and Ron Woods; three sophomores: Lon Allen, Sylvester Phillips, and Jack Stenner. The rest of this year's team is composed of eight freshmen: Ron Armbruster, Chester Hodger, Bryan Korbmeier, Bob Ludwiniski, Ray Martin, Hugh Nisbet, Clarence Slaughter, and Pat Wiese.

Committee Picks Cheerleaders

Seven girls were recently chosen to represent UMSL as cheerleaders for this year: Bev Kerr (captain), graduate of Southwest, Linda Hartman, graduate of McClure, Michele Layton, graduate of Northwest, Tina McConnell, graduate of Webster Groves, Pat Michell, graduate of Riverview, Evelyn Washington, graduate of Soldan, Nancy Weis, graduate of Riverview. They were judged on the qualifications of general appearance, voice, enthusiasm, coordination and acrobatic abilities. The judges were: Dean Eichkoff, Dr. Boswell, Coach Smith, Dave Willson (representative of the basketball team) and Cheryl Taylor (president of the Student Union Board). These seven were chosen from an original 22 candidates. A cheerleading clinic was held by former cheerleaders Jane Moore and Linda Kelleher prior to the cheerleading try-outs.
