Students Call Dorm Conditions Substandard

by Matt Forsythe
of The Current staff

Despite unrest by students about problems in the UM-St. Louis Residence Hall, the North County Health Department recently gave the dorm food service an "A" rating.

The residence hall, located on the Incarnate Word Campus, is now owned by the Sisters of the Incarnate Word, a convent that currently resides in an adjoining building.

Students are still complaining about the food, even after the Health Department's inspection.

"I'm afraid of their scrambled eggs. I don't know what you have to do to an egg to achieve that kind of result," said Igor Proleiko, a Russian graduate student studying at UM-St. Louis.

"Dinner is ghastly," said John David, another student resident.

Sharon Jeffery, a manager for Food Service Consultants, said the problem is not the food, but personality conflicts.

"We can't please everyone everytime. I've seen a lot of dorm food and I think ours is top quality," she said.

The students say they have called the Health Department about these problems during the past year. Officials at the North County Health Department said they received no formal complaints about the dorm's food service. The dormitory's cafeteria received its first inspection on May 1, 1992.

Bob Arnold, a supervisor with the Health Department, acknowledged that the cafeteria should have been inspected when students began eating there last August. But he said no action could be taken against Food Service Consultants despite the students' allegations about the quality of the food.

The student complaints about the residence hall also include a lack of parking, showers with unpredictable water temperature variations and unclean bathrooms.

The former manager of the residence hall, Jim Weinstein, conducted an informal poll of the students' thoughts about the dorm conditions. One student commented about the need for "better food service, better parking and better housekeeping." The rest of the polls made similar comments.

Karl Beeler, assistant to the vice chancellor of student affairs and the director of residential life, said Weinstein's poll "is not an official University document and I don't see it as representing the opinion of the residents of the hall."

"Admittedly, there are some problems," Beeler said. "Students had a number of complaints about the food service. There wasn't much we could do about it. We aren't in a position to hire or fire the food service. The landlord[s] hired the food service years ago. We didn't hire the food service, it came along with the lease."

Beeler said the lease also gave the dorm only 15 parking places. "This is something we are addressing in the new lease," he said.

Those 15 parking places could not be used by the students who lived in the dorm. The Honors College, located in the residence hall, needed parking places for students who took courses in the residence hall during the day.

Despite these problems, Beeler seemed confident about the coming year. "Now that we are through the first year and the sisters are moving, we can resolve the parking problems and we can hire a food service of our choosing."

In regards to students' complaints with plumbing and cleanliness, Beeler said, "We'll continue to work with the maintenance and custodial people to improve those services."

The Sisters of the Incarnate Word are moving out this summer and the lease is to be renegotiated by June 30.

University Center Computer Lab Funds Cut

by Anjanette Smith
of The Current staff

Effective July 1, the computer lab located on the second floor of University Center will no longer be in operation.

"The computers here were inappropriate in terms of the larger context of computers all over the campus," said Robert Schmalfeld, Chairman of the Student Services Fee and Student Activity Budget Committees.

In light of the increased number of new computers available at other computer labs on campus, the growing complexity of software needed for the computers and the necessity for a computer staff in the lab, the Student Services Fee Committee, which has funded the lab since its establishment two years ago, decided to discontinue funding.

University Senate

McMurray Elected New Editor

by Matt Forsythe
of The Current staff

For only the third time since the paper's inception in 1966, The Current will have a woman as Editor-in-Chief.

Michelle McMurray has been elected to serve as editor for the 1992-1993 academic year.

McMurray began working at The Current as a photographer in 1988. She gained the position of photo editor, and then went on to the position of news editor in 1991.

"Because I have worked in different positions on the paper, I have been able to learn how the paper works," McMurray said. "I have a good understanding of how the different departments work together to produce an issue."

Michelle McMurray

McMurray has some prior experience in the professional world. She has served internships at two major television stations (KTVI and KMOV) and one major radio station (KMOX). She also does an entertainment segment for American Cablevision.

"These experiences have enabled me to see how the real world of broadcasting works: how to set priorities; the importance of deadlines and interviewing people, from famous political figures to your 'average Joe' citizen on the street. These have been valuable experiences for me," she said.

McMurray is a graduate student in her final year at UM-St. Louis. She is seeking a master's degree in Criminology and Criminal Justice.

As far as content of the paper, McMurray puts human interest stories high on the list of priorities.

"I want to keep consistent the wide variety of stories. I think it is important to cover a wide variety of student activities and more human interest stories," she said.

She listed past stories such as the AIDS Memorial Quilt on display at Forest Park Community College and Ozzie Smith visiting Normandy High School as examples of stories that weren't directly involved with the UM-St. Louis campus but deserved coverage in The Current.

"My main goal and responsibility is to oversee the administration of the paper and to see that we inform the campus community," she said.

"We have a really good staff. I'm confident of their abilities. I'm really looking forward to [this year]," McMurray said.

The Editor of the Gay and Lesbian News Telegraph said Ross Perot, potential United States presidential candidate, threw away "millions of votes" after saying gays and lesbians should not hold top White House positions.

"It's a real disappointment," Telegraph Editor Jim Thomas said. "I think gays and lesbians were willing to give Ross Perot a fair hearing."

In an interview with Barbara Walters on ABC's 20/20, which aired May 29, Perot said he wouldn't consider a homosexual for a top post in the defense, treasury or education departments.

"No, I don't want anybody there that will be at a point of controversy with the American people. It will distract from the work to be done," Perot said.

But Perot, who is on the verge of officially announcing his presidential candidacy, said that "what people do in their private lives is their business."

Perot told Walters that he would not change the current ban on military computers, related equipment and furniture for printers and modems from the lab to those organizations that submit applications to the committee. The applications are then approved or denied by the committee and the equipment will then be distributed to those organizations whose applications are approved.

The decision to handle the redistribution of the equipment in this way has received mixed responses from two of the organizations that used the lab frequently.

Student Government Association (SGA) had no comment but is applying for computing materials.

The other main user for this lab was the University Program Board (UPB). The UPB secretary remarks that the closing of the lab shows a lack of support for students by the Student Activities Office. Schmalfeld said the room will benefit student organizations in the future.

"The room will become a student organization space in general for first-come, first-serve basis. I hope some of the side benefits from that may be that there will be more communication among organizations which I think would be helpful," he said.

service to acknowledged homosexuals. That policy has created a major rift between the federal government and the gay community.

Thomas said Perot's comments give Democratic presidential hopeful Bill Clinton the backing from the gay and lesbian community.

"He's the only candidate who has outlined a program," he said.

Thomas believes Perot was "focusing on gaining Republican [votes]," and he criticized the Bush administration for not spending money to deal with AIDS.

"I would be really curious as to what direction Perot is going," Thomas said.

He added that the gay and lesbian community would like an anti-discrimination law similar to the American Disabilities Act and amendments to the 1964 and 1967 Civil Rights Act.

"But we have real reasons to make an anti-gay and lesbian violence act so we can stop gays and lesbians from being murdered and having their homes burnt down," Thomas said.

Tom Chorlton, a lobbyist for gays and lesbians, says Perot needs to be "tolerant."

"I think gays and lesbians were willing to give Ross Perot a fair hearing"

Chapman Wins Award

by Lauren Tsugita
Current news reporter

Ellie Chapman, Coordinator of the Writing Certificate program, received the 1992 Chancellor's Award for Excellence for an academic non-regular. This is the fourth time that this award has been given.

"Although there were a number of excellent nominees, Ellie Chapman was clearly the person who has given the most outstanding contribution to UM-St. Louis and the community," said Ruth Person, Associate Vice Chancellor of Academic Affairs. Person served as the Chair of the Awards Committee that presented Chapman with the award.

Students, Faculty, Staff and people from the community wrote letters of recommendation in support of all the nominees.

Charles Larson, chairman of the English Department, made the official nomination which represented a testimonial of the letters received.

"Ellie Chapman is a marvelous asset to the University. Her talents and efforts are shown in the prospering Writing Certificate program and her excellence as a classroom teacher," Larson said.

Chapman has taught at UM-St. Louis for the past 21 years. In recent years, she has taught Grammar and Editing, News Writing, Feature Writing and Business Writing. Chapman is also the Coordinator of the national-award winning Writing Certificate program. This program began in 1979, when only two people received certificates. Since then, over 500 students have participated in the program and have received certificates. In the program, students must complete five writing courses and an independent project or an internship which Chapman helps arrange.

"The Writing Certificate program develops students writing abilities and gives them experience through internships at local businesses and public agencies. These internships sometimes lead to full-time employment," Larson said.

"I think what has made the Writing Certificate program work is the fact that as the coordinator, I have one foot at the University and one foot in the community. It has been our formula for success," Chapman said.

"To me, she does for the University what we should be doing. She bridges the gap between the work at the University and the possibilities of jobs outside the University," said Nancy Gleason, an English Lecturer and colleague of Chapman.

Dennis Bohnenkamp, a Senior Lecturer in the English Department, also sees Chapman as extremely helpful to her students.

"Ellie helps students make the transition from the University to the working world. She has a direct influence on students by helping some of them find their first job," he said.

Chapman received the 1984 Outstanding Teacher award from the UM-St. Louis Alumni Association and was named one of St. Louis's "Successful Women" by St. Louis Marketplace magazine. She earned her M.A. from Murray State University. She is an alumna of CORO Women in Leadership and a vice president of the Women in Leadership Alumnae.

Chapman was the first non-regular lecturer on campus and is a strong supporter of teachers that are on one-year contracts. There are now 250 non-regular lecturers on campus who have been hired with one year contracts.

Chapman has decided to take the early retirement package. She will continue to be the Coordinator of the Writing Certificate program and will teach classes part-time.

Wesley Foundation

Offers Variety of Activities For UM-St. Louis Students

If you are looking for inspiration, fun, friends, Bible Study, personal and confidential conversation or are just wondering about life's meanings, you may find that the Wesley Foundation Campus Ministry is just the group for you.

Wesley Foundation is sponsored by four Christian denominations: The United Church of Christ, The Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), The Presbyterian Church (USA) and the United Methodist Church. The student group is open to all who would like to join.

The first Bible Study, sharing and prayer group will meet on Monday, Aug. 31, at 3 p.m. and will be a joint meeting with the Newman center. As this is being written, it is too early to reserve a space, so watch the bulletin boards or call the Wesley Foundation for the location.

Wesley Foundation cooperates ecumenically on campus working especially with the Newman Center in Bible Studies, educational and recreational activities. Wesley Foundation is also active with students from other campuses and has a weekly meeting at 1st Congregational Church of St. Louis, located at 6501 Wydown, just east of Big Bend Ave., between 3 and 7 p.m. on Fridays.

One of their early events is a float trip on the Niangua River Sept. 25 through 27. For $20 you can go with the St. Louis Wesley Foundation to meet other Wesley Foundations from around the state at Bennett Springs State Park. They will camp on Friday night, float on Saturday and return on Sunday. In the middle of everything they have worship, singing, games, and time to make friends from around the state. The Wesley Foundation will also hold a Faith and Life Retreat in February, join with others in a Global Education trip in January, (usually to Central America), and participate in regional and national conferences.

They provide opportunities to volunteer. If you would like to join us for a Saturday working in a food pantry or doing fix-up jobs, or if you would like to volunteer on a regular basis to work with the elderly, children or persons with special needs, call the campus minister. He will aid you in finding what you are looking for.

For the first time this year The Wesley Foundation will be awarding a small scholarship to a student who is active in campus ministry or a local church and who demonstrates academic potential and need for the scholarship. Applications can be obtained from the campus minister. Financial support is also available for certain faith enrichment events.

The Wesley Foundation Campus Minister is Roger Jespersen. Rev. Jespersen is an ordained United Methodist minister appointed by the church as campus minister. Rev. Jespersen is in his 9th year at UM-St. Louis. The Wesley Foundation office is located at Normandy United Methodist Church, 8000 Natural Bridge Road, just across Natural Bridge from Benton Hall. His telephone numbers are 385-3000 or 391-0747.

If you want your faith to grow and mature; if you are interested in integrating your faith with your knowledge; if you want to meet and make friends from diverse backgrounds; try Wesley Foundation. If you haven't found them earlier, The Wesley Foundation will meet you at the EXPO.

LOTS OF ACTIVITY: If You are interested in joining the Wesley Foundation, sponsored by four Christian denominations, please call Roger Jespersen at 385-3000.

Singing Is Their Thing

UM-St. Louis Gospel Choir Welcomes Freshmen

The UM-St. Louis Gospel Choir is one student organization that welcomes anyone who has a love for music. There are no auditions required for joining and they sing on and off campus. Membership dues are $5.

Last fall, they had an introductory reception where interested students came over to eat. They were also able to hear some of the singers perform. They followed the reception with a myriad of performances on area college campuses like Washington University and Harris-Stowe.

During October through November, they practiced very hard for the production, "The Best of God," a Gospel musical that highlighted events in the Bible. The show was a big success and a lot of fun.

In the Spring of '92, the Gospel Choir performed during Black History Month. They produced a video to showcase their 1991-92. In addition, they had an end of the year reception. They raised over $200 this year, and they will purchase new choir stoles to complement their robes.

They are currently working toward furnishing an office in the music building. Also they are preparing a reunion concert with graduates of our choir. Interested? Call the advisors, Rochelle DeClue at 553-5450 or Janice Harris at 553-5692 for more information.

Students For Choice

by Nancy Lewis
President

In February of this year, three UMSL students met to form a new student group dedicated to direct political involvement in the reproductive choice issue. In less than two months, Students for Choice became a recognized student group, increased its size to over thirty members and collected over two hundred signatures at UMSL in support of reproductive choice. Students for Choice helped to fund nine UMSL students who attended the April 1992 March for Women's Lives in Washington, D.C. We worked with the St. Louis Student's Coalition for Choice to organize, fund and direct actions for the Washington, D.C. march and for the local rally and political activities.

Students for Choice was founded to give pro-choice students the opportunity to become politically involved. Our goals are:

1. To provide information and raise awareness about pro-choice legislation.
2. To network with other pro-choice student groups.
3. To promote student involvement in the political process.

Our plans for the 1992/93 school year include:

- participation in a political leadership training seminar.
- several state lobbying days in Jefferson City.
- campus information seminars.

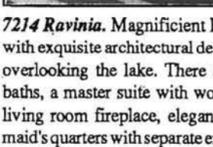

Students for Choice organized to provide information and political training to students who want to work to keep reproductive freedom legally protected as a woman's right to choose. We mobilized partly in response to the religious anti-choice minority that is trying to overturn or rescind the legal right to reproductive freedom. We believe that each woman, not the Church and not the State, should have the right to choice of reproduction. We believe that the State and the Church have no compelling interest in a woman's private decisions about reproduction.

Students for Choice invites all interested students to the first meeting of the 1992/93 year. The meeting will be held on Friday, September 4, 1992 at 1:00 p.m. The location will be posted during the first week of classes in the fall. Please join us at this important planning session. There is still much work to be done to assure that a woman's right to choose remains a legal right.

Dianetics

Did Your Problems Begin Before You Were Born?

According to Dianetics, the best selling self-help book by L. Ron Hubbard, words spoken in the environment while a child is being born may affect the child for life.

During the trauma of birth (as covered in Dianetics), the child's mind is making a detailed recording of the events going on around him/her. These recordings form a mental image picture, complete with smell, vision, sound and other perceptions, which is buried in the mind below conscious recall.

In later life, stress or anxiety can cause these recordings to be "reactivated", at which point they have the power to dictate behavior without individual realizing it. In Dianetics counseling these unconscious recordings have been found to be the cause of irrational fears, compulsions, other unexplainable behavior and even psychosomatic illness.

The removal of such mental recordings through Dianetics counselling has resulted in increased intelligence, better health, improved success in life and a higher state of general well-being.

The findings in Dianetics have been echoed by numerous doctors and pediatricians since its release in 1950. As sales of the book near 15 million this year, one might expect an increasing number of doctors and pediatricians to be following Hubbard's advice in Dianetics: "Maintain silence in the presence of birth to save the sanity of the mother and the child and safeguard the home to which they will go."

The full explanation of why a quiet birth is so essential to the child's future health and happiness is given in L. Ron Hubbard's book, Dianetics: The Modern Science of Mental Health or for a free booklet entitled Silent Birth, call 1-800-367-8788.

"She Said, He Said" Issues In Women's Studies

She: "Let's sit down and talk."
He: "What did I do?"
She: "You didn't do anything... I just want to talk."
He: "Come on, give me a hint. How much trouble am I in?"
Women and men sometimes appear to be speaking two different languages, the dialogue from the comic strip Sally Forth humorously has depicted above. Differences in women's and men's perceptions of the world and ways to improve communication are some of the many aspects of female-male relationships that are addressed in Women's Studies courses.

Other issues such as female sexuality, how to balance a family and a career, barriers and facilitators of women's achievement, surviving abuse, and the strengths and problems of women of different social classes, ethnic and racial backgrounds, and sexual orientations are also topics of great importance in Women's Studies.
The Women's Studies Program at UM-St. Louis for more than a decade has offered courses exploring women's lives, roles, and contributions. About six or seven courses are taught every semester. Women's Studies offers both an undergraduate and graduate certificate (similar to a minor), each requiring students to take 18 credit hours. However, many students who are unable to complete a certificate - both women and men - take one or two courses during their college career just to learn more about women.

Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Women (ID 50: Tues. and Thurs. 12:30 - 1:45) is one course especially aimed at incoming students. ID 50 provides an overview of women's condition in the United States and is one of the two courses required to earn a certificate. Register no for Fall 1992.
For more information on courses or the Certificate Programs, call 553-5581.

Peer Counseling Offered To Students

Horizons Peer Assistants are undergraduate students who have been trained to listen and to help. We work closely with, and are supervised by the UM-St. Louis Counseling Service. We are available to talk with fellow students about any questions or concerns they might have; personal, career, or academic. Peer assistants can be seen by coming to 427 SSB, or spoken to by phone at 553-5730 (5730 from any campus red phone) during the fall and winter semesters.

Our staff is regularly available to help students explore career options in the Career Resource Center (CRC) which is also located in 427 SSB. The CRC houses a wide variety of books and files on different career options. Information to help in choosing an occupation is also available. For example, one can learn the annual earnings of a job, the job outlook, what type of training is needed, and an abundance of other career information.

Two computer programs are also available to students in the CRC. The first is called SIGI PLUS and it can help in making a rational career decision. An interactive program, SIGI PLUS helps an individual examine what he or she might want in a career, or how to match his or her values with occupational fields. SIGIPLUS also provides current nationwide information about occupational fields. There is a small fee for the use of SIGI PLUS.
The second program is called CASSI (Computer Assisted Study Skills Instruction) and is free to all UM-St. Louis students. CASSI provides lessons on effective study and note-taking skills, overcoming procrastination, how to take exams and write papers, to name just a few. Appointments for SIGI and CASSI can be made by calling Horizons at 553-5730 or the Counseling Service at 553-5711.
And, new to Horizons will be a student lounge, opening for Fall 1992. Students are invited to come in and relax, study, have a cup of coffee, on us. So stop by, look around and see what Horizons and the CRC have to offer. We look forward to meeting you. We're your peers, and we're here to help.

Beach Volleyball: Big Hot Sport

Jamestown Sports Complex

Mention the words "beach volleyball" to a southern Californian and you will be directed to hundreds of sun drenched sea-side locations sporting plenty of amateur and professional players of all ages. However, here in the Midwest, it took some ingenuity and a few tons of sand to create the west coast atmosphere at Jamestown Sports Complex.

Beach volleyball has recently attracted more and more attention here in the St. Louis area. Courts are popping up everywhere from popular nightclubs to your nearest community park. One of the first, and still the largest in the entire St. Louis area, is the Jamestown Sports Complex at 5105 North Hwy. 67.

Situated on 14 acres, just half a mile west of Jamestown Mall, lies a virtual west coast come true for both recreational and competition beach volleyball players. The complex features six regulation size sand courts for daytime and fully lit evening play. Adjacent to the courts is an in-ground swimming pool, sundeck, outdoor patio bar & grill, tennis courts, wiffleball cages, and many other amenities enjoyed by players in between games.

Owner, Tom Twellman, said the facility was really designed to provide people with a unique recreational environment. "In St. Louis, you only get six or seven good months of sunshine," said Twellman, "people like the chance to get outside and have some fun."

The facility was first introduced in 1990 and now boasts a steady supply of league teams, tournaments, and special events all summer long.

This year is promising to be one of their biggest seasons to date, added Twellman. "The sport is really growing and we have found a real unique appeal in this area," Twellman said. He noted that this year the complex debuted the new Gilligan's Beach Bar & Grill at the facility.

According to Twellman, an increasing number of people and league members enjoyed staying at the complex after their games for some food and beverages (and usually a quick dip in the pool to cool off after a match). Thus, Gilligan's was born to the surf-starved Midwest.

The beach volleyball facility is open to the public for league or open play every Sunday through Friday. "Oddly enough," remarks Twellman, "some people think they need a membership to come here, and that is not the case." Although several beach volleyball courts are reserved for league play, Twellman says the public is always welcome to come enjoy the facilities just like any other restaurant or local bar. Gilligan's Beach Bar & Grill is open 7 days a week from 5 p.m. to 1 a.m. serving everything from burgers and appetizers to Thurston Howell steak Ka-bobs. There is no charge for admission and patrons are free to play beach volleyball, swim, play tennis or any other of the outdoor recreational activities. Twellman said that about the only time the facility closes is for private parties or special events.

"We had a lot of positive response to our facility rentals from area businesses, civic groups and special event organizers," explained Twellman. The facility is used for everything from company picnics to special fundraising events to benefit community groups and organizations. According to Twellman, the events are usually reserved for Saturdays during the day or evening hours. "The beach facility is unique because it offers so many unique activities for any type of outdoor event. Everything is already here and set up so it makes it real easy to have a fun, successful function," said Twellman.

He added that the complex encourages campus clubs and organizations to contact them for upcoming summer events. "We're always interested in holding benefit fundraisers, private parties, tournaments or other events that will give people an opportunity to see and enjoy the facility," said Twellman.

People who are interested in beach volleyball leagues or special summer events may contact the complex at 355-5363. The next leagues begin the week of July 6.

A Hand To Hold: UMSL Child Development Center Offers Professional Care

The University Child Development Center is a campus based child care center serving the University of Missouri-St. Louis and surrounding communities. The purposes of the Center are to provide high quality children's and parent programs; staff development and teacher training; and a site for child study/research.

The Center, located in the South Classroom Building of the Marillac Campus, provides full and part-time care for children who range in age from six weeks to five years.

Evening Child Care is also available to UM-St. Louis Evening College students' children Monday through Thursday, 5:00 p.m. to 9:45 p.m. Care is available for children ages two to 12. Evening care is not available in the summer.

The program exists to encourage and support each child to grow to his or her full potential in all areas of development, thus enhancing a positive self-concept and a strong foundation for succeeding in life. Our primary mission is to provide a rich, warm and supportive environment in which the child may develop socially, emotionally, physically, and intellectually.

Our educational objectives are based on the knowledge we share about children and the way they develop. Children learn through play. As they interact with their social and physical environment, they make new discoveries. New concepts are interpreted with new words and sentences.

There are many opportunities in a day to engage in music, art and dramatic play. In order to develop freely, children primarily use self-chosen materials and move through the classroom spontaneity. This freedom does not mean the child functions with no direction. The teacher's role is to encourage and guide this activity by making available a large variety of materials or props, showing an interest in what the children are involved in and facilitating children's play.

The University Child Development Center abides by the licensing rules published by the Missouri Division of Family Services (DFS). We are currently self-monitored, since University-sponsored centers are exempt from regulation. However, the Center is in the process of becoming voluntarily licensed through DFS.

Beyond the basic safety and health guidelines provided for in the licensing rules, the Child Development Center strives to meet the standards of quality child care established by the Missouri Board for Voluntary Accreditation, in conjunction with the Missouri Department of Elementary and Secondary Education and the Association for the Education of Young Children--Missouri. The Center achieved Accreditation in October, 1990. Copies of the licensing and accreditation guidelines are available for review.

Within the Center, children are grouped in six classrooms: Infants, Toddlers, Blue Room and Green Room (three and four years.), and Yellow Room (four and five years). Each classroom has one full-time teacher and a number of part-time teacher's aides.

Employees and students of UM-St. Louis are eligible to enroll children at the Center for a lower tuition rate than community families. In addition, a student discount is available to UM-St. Louis students taking day classes and utilizing daytime child care at the University Child Development Center. At the present time, discounts are not available during the Summer session. Check with the Center Supervisor for details.
